Turnbull's Column.

This Column Tells What is Doing at Turnbull's.

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it takes an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Coatings, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Fanuels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c. than we will. All other lines just as cheap. Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's. We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

COMING CABINET CHANGES

NEXT SESSION THE LAST FOR MINISTERS CARLING AND POPE.

The Former to Go to the Senate and the Latter to Retire from Politics—Their Probable Successors.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—It is pretty generally understood here that the coming session will be the last in the House for two of the Ministers, Hon. John Carling and Hon. J. H. Pope, the former of whom will probably go to the Senate and the latter, whose health is seriously impaired, will retire from politics altogether.

Mr. Carling's successor as Minister of Agriculture will be Mr. Peter White of Renfrew, who for a number of years has been chairman of the Committee on Immigration.

Who will enter the Cabinet as Mr. Pope's successor in the representation of the English-speaking people of the Province of Quebec it is not so easy to say, as there is a three-cornered fight going on between Messrs. Colby of Stanstead, Hall of Sherbroke and Ives of Richmond and Wolfe, but from the latter being Mr. Pope's son-in-law he is likely to have the inside track.

A reply was sent by the Minister of Railways and Canals yesterday to the Montreal Corn Exchange with reference to the resolution adopted a few days ago that when the break in the Cornwall Canal is repaired grain-laden vessels be given the right of way over all other craft and that the mills be compelled to shut down until the close of navigation. It is understood that the reply states that every possible effort will be made to expedite the forwarding of all detained vessels the moment the break is repaired, but does not promise that any preference will be given to grain-laden vessels or that the mills will be required to shut down. It is known that there are vessels waiting at Montreal for deals as well as grain, and it does not appear advisable that there should be any discrimination. It is confidently expected that the break will be repaired by to-night, when the detained craft will begin to move down. Day and night gangs are on duty and lockage will be continuous until all the delayed vessels have been passed down. An officer of the department states that it is expected the canal can be cleared in about two days.

The British North American Bank Note Company's building at the corner of Wellington and Kent-streets is nearly completed, and it is expected that the transfer of the Company from Montreal to Ottawa will be made in about six weeks. The company prints all Dominion notes, postage and other stamps, etc., and one of the conditions of its last contract was that the company should do its work at the capital. The building which is being erected for it should have been occupied last May, but as it was mostly put up during last winter and the work was inferior, part of it fell in the spring and the greater portion had to be taken down and rebuilt. The company will employ about 100 hands.

Messrs. Smith & Keigley, proprietors of the steamship Campana, have written from Owen Sound to the Customs Department to demand a refund of $40, which they say the customs authorities compelled them to pay for the escape of a Chinaman in bond. They say that the Chinaman was in the custody of the Customs at the time of his escape, and that they are therefore not liable. It appears, however, that the Customs officers are not to meddle with Chinamen in bond but that the railway company must pay a forfeit if they escape. The department is making inquiries.

The Department of Agriculture is advised that the Mormon settlement in the Northwest is rapidly increasing. The immigrants are bringing in large quantities of cattle.

Sir John Thompson left for New York yesterday afternoon on a short visit.

The writ for East Northumberland has been issued. Nomination takes place on the 14th and polling on the 20th inst. Mr. David Ewing, of Warkworth, is the returning officer.

NOTICES FROM THE GAZETTE.

The Judicial Appointments—The Middleton Divorce Case.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—To-day's Canada Gazette contains the appointments of Judge Patterson and Maclennan and also of Hon. H. G. Mabiot, Q. C., to be Puisne Judge of the Superior Court of the Province of Quebec.

Gormally and Sinclair, solicitors for W. H. Middleton, publish the second report of the Divorce Committee of the Senate in the Middleton case of last session. This report is to the effect that if three months' notice is given to Mr. Middleton's solicitors and the report published for three months in The Canada Gazette the case may be taken up next year where it was left last session.

Seven notices are given by the Registrar of the Supreme Court of expropriation of land in connection with the Cape Breton Railway.

Notice is given of application for an act incorporating a company to build a railway from Victoria to Shoal Harbor, to connect there with a ferry to the mainland, and to construct a railway on the mainland to connect with the Canadian Pacific and United States railways.

Notice is given of application for letters patent to incorporate the Woodburn-Sarven Wheel Company, to manufacture wooden wheels, etc., with headquarters at St. Catharines and a capital of $3,000.

The Standard and Quebec Banks give notice of a semi-annual dividend of 3½ per cent.

Supplementary letters patent have been issued to the Blair Diamond Steamship Company, reducing the capital from $500,000 to $300,000.

THE WEST LETTER.

A California Paper Publishes What It Claims are the Real Facts.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 3.—The Times of this city, the paper that first printed the Lord Sackville letter to the Pomona enquirer, publishes what the editor claims are the real facts connected with the Murchison-West correspondence. Says The Times: "Information has been gathered directly from the few persons who are on the inside and possessed of all the facts in the case. The idea of writing the letter to Minister West originated with Murchison himself in the latter part of August or early in September. He is a reputable citizen of Pomona, in this county, and is of English parentage. The conception of the letter was his thought. He consulted a confidential friend in its preparation. He said at the outset and before sending the letter that the object was not to perpetrate a joke or gratify curiosity, but to get Minister West's opinion on the topics embraced in the letter.

"Murchison's letter was dated Sept. 4 and West's answer Sept. 13. The Minister's letter was received at Pomona Sept. 20, and kept by the receiver till Oct. 19, a full month, when it was brought to Los Angeles by W. A. Bell, the City Attorney of Pomona, and laid before W. P. Fitzgerald, a member of the State Republican Committee; Henry G. Gage, delegate-at-large at the Chicago convention; Harrison Gray Otis, the editor of The Los Angeles Times, and one other local candidate. They saw the importance of the West letter in a political point of view, and it was unanimously determined by the persons present to make the letter public without delay, which was done. The date of the first publication here was Oct. 21."

UNTIL AFTER ELECTION

Mr. Herbert Appointed Charge d'Affaires at Washington.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Hon. Michael Henry Herbert has been appointed British Charge d' Affaires at Washington. Lord Sackville will come to England immediately on leave of absence. It is understood that the Government will allow his case to rest until after the presidential election.

Imported for the Ex-Minister.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The Treasury Department has authorized the free entry of a silver service, valuable clocks and other household articles recently imported at Baltimore for Lord Sackville, the ex-British Minister. This is in accordance with the privileges accorded the resident ministers of all foreign countries. These articles arrived several days ago on a steamer from England, and on being notified of their arrival the British Minister made application through the Secretary of State for their entry free of duty. This application was received at the Treasury Department on Tuesday last, the very day on which the President informed Lord Sackville of the severance of their official relations. A letter was sent to the Collector of Customs at Baltimore yesterday, authorizing the free entry of the goods.

NEWS OF STANLEY.

His Expedition Met by Arab Traders in November Last Year.

ZANZIBAR, Nov. 3.—Couriers from Labora bring direct news from the Stanley expedition, a portion of which was met at the end of November, 1887, by Arabs trading between Lakes Victoria Nyanza and Nzige and Tabora. These Arabs met Stanley's rear guard at a point west of Albert Nyanza and south-east of Sanga, just as the expedition was preparing to cross swamps caused by the radiation of the streams that abound in that country. The Arabs did not see Stanley. The detachment seen consisted of 30 men. They stated that Stanley was two days ahead. The expedition had suffered greatly on the march through a thick forest, where it was impossible to advance more than 1½ miles daily. They had suffered in the marshes where many had disappeared or died. Forty were drowned in crossing a great river flowing from east to west. One white man had died. Stanley was obliged to fight some tribes that refused to supply him with provisions.

The expedition had often halted in the expectation of receiving reinforcements from the Congo. The rear guard at the time met had only been on the march five days after a halt of three weeks due to the illness of Stanley and a great part of the escort who had been attacked with fever.

The Arabs estimated the total strength of the expedition after all losses at 250 men. The health of Stanley was then good. The rear guard, which consisted of natives of Zanzibar, stated that Stanley had decided that he would no longer advance in a northeasterly direction but would strike toward the north hoping to avoid the swamps. After getting a certain distance north he intended to take an oblique line to the eastward and go straight to Wadelai where it was thought he would arrive, 50 days later, about the middle of January, 1888. The Arabs were of the opinion that the expedition was still strong enough to reach Wadelai.

It will be remembered that on Aug. 1 information was received from Zanzibar that two messengers had arrived there who had left the interior about the beginning of April and who reported that Stanley had not arrived at Wadelai up to that time. The messengers stated that in the month of March Emin Pasha did receive some vague and indecisive news of the explorer which had filtered through from tribe to tribe but that the reports were very conflicting. Some declared that Stanley, after losing a number of men and a large portion of his supplies, was hemmed in by hostile tribes between the Maboda country and the Albert Nyanza, while other rumors were to the effect that he had been attacked by the tribes in the Matongora Mins district, and after several conflicts had diverted his course in an unknown direction.

Balfour Jubilant.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Mr. Balfour addressed a Liberal-Unionist conference at Wolverhampton yesterday. He was jubilant over the Conservative victories in the municipal elections and said they proved that Unionism was progressing. The Unionists were defeating the Gladstonians even in strongholds of that party like Leeds. He said the policy of the Government was winning all along the line. Crime in Ireland, Mr. Balfour said, had been reduced almost to the level of 1881. He thought the outcry over evictions was absurd. Over 10,000 persons were evicted in New York yearly without comment.

Reorganization of the German Navy.

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—The National Zeitung says the Emperor has sanctioned a scheme for the reorganization of the navy. The present naval battalions will be enlarged and transformed into two regiments of two battalions each.

Mere Fiction.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Sir William Vernon Harcourt writes that at the proper time he will take steps to contradict Captain O'Shea's statement in material particulars. He says some of O'Shea's statements were mere fictions.

The Etruria's Fast Time.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The steamer Etruria, from New York, Oct. 27, for Liverpool, passed Browhead at 8 p.m. yesterday, corrected time from New York, 6 days, 3 hours, 15 minutes.

THE CROSSING QUESTION.

BEFORE THE RAILWAY COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL.

The Case Presented by Solicitor Clark—Text of the Question Submitted to the Supreme Court.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—The Railway Committee of the Privy Council met yesterday morning for the purpose of hearing counsel in the matter of the crossing of the Canadian Pacific Railway's Pembina branch by the Portage branch of the Red River Valley Railway. Hon. J. H. Pope, Sir Hector Langevin, Sir John Thompson and Hon. John Carling were present.

Mr. G. M. Clark, solicitor for the Canadian Pacific Railway, said that he had prepared a case for submission to the Supreme Court, which he had handed to Mr. Gormully, agent for Attorney-General Martin. Thursday he received from Attorney-General Martin a short letter with the case with modifications which he would be glad to have adopted. The case, as submitted by Attorney-General Martin, was almost entirely different from that submitted by him. The principal change in the case, as he, (Mr. Clark) submitted it, was as to whether the act of Manitoba was valid and effectual so as to confer authority to cross the southwest branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Attorney-General Martin in his case wished to question the validity of certain clauses of the Railway Act, but Mr. Clark contended against enlarging the question in that way.

Mr. Gormully said he had no power to consent to any change in the case as submitted by Attorney-General Martin. It would be for the committee to decide how far they would allow the proposals in the case submitted by Mr. Martin. He argued that the application was to cross the Manitoba and Southwestern Railway, and until they wished to cross the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the question of whether a railway chartered by the Provincial Legislature could do so did not arise. So far no application had been made for permission to cross the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, but application had been made to cross the two branches mentioned.

After some further argument counsel retired and the committee deliberated for some time and finally decided to submit the following case to the Supreme Court:

Case under Chapter 5 of the Statutes of Manitoba passed on the thirtieth day of April, 1888.

The Railway Commissioner of that province is constructing a railway known as the Portage extension of the Red River Valley Railway from Winnipeg to Portage la Prairie, both places being within the Province of Manitoba, and he has made application to the Railway Committee of the Privy Council of Canada, under Section 179 of the Railway Act of 1888 (Canada) for the approval of the place at which and the mode by which it is proposed that the said Portage extension should cross the Pembina branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway (the said branch being part of the Canadian Pacific Railway) at a point within the said province.

After hearing the parties interested and at the instance of counsel for the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, the following question is submitted by the Railway Committee for the opinion of the Supreme Court of Canada, under the provisions of Section 199 of the Railway Act of 1888:

Is the said statute of Manitoba in view of the provisions of Chapter 109 Revised Statutes of Canada, particularly Section 121 thereof, and in view of the Railway Act of 1888, particularly Sections 306 and 307, valid and effectual so as to confer authority on the Railway Commissioner in said statute of Manitoba mentioned to construct such a railway as the said Portage extension of the Red River Valley Railway, crossing the Canadian Pacific Railway, the Railway Committee first approving of the mode and place of crossing, and first giving their directions as to the matters mentioned in sections 174, 175 and 176 of the said railway act?

It is expected that the Supreme Court will consider the case at once.

ALL QUIET AT FORT WHYTE.

The Military Still on Guard—Vigilance on Both Sides Unrelaxed.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 3.—Telegrams from Fort Whyte say all is quiet there. The military is still on guard and the Canadian Pacific Railway is not relaxing vigilance. The Government is evidently awaiting a favorable opportunity to get a locomotive over the crossing. A mile of track has been laid west of the Canadian Pacific Railway and ties strung along for several miles.

The letter regarding maximum rates between Winnipeg and Duluth, hitherto withheld from the public, appears in yesterday's Call. It is written by President Oakes, of the Northern Pacific, to Premier Greenway, and is marked "Confidential." It says rates by the new road to Duluth shall not be higher than the Canadian Pacific Railway's to Port Arthur, and local and through rates shall be fair and reasonable. The division of rates between the several lines shall be upon the basis of a pro rata per mile of actual distance.

Hon. Edward Blake passed through to the east last night.

THE GALT NYSTERY.

A Further Adjournment of the Inquest—Examining Druggists' Books.

GALT, Nov. 3.—The coroner's inquest in the poisoning case was resumed again last night, and further adjourned until Nov. 30, there being no evidence to take. Detective Murray was present, but any new clues that he may be working upon were not made public. The mystery appears to be as far from solution as ever.

Looking for a Clue.

HAMILTON, Nov. 3.—Detective Murray was in the city yesterday examining all the druggists' books for registers of sales of poison about the time of the Galt murder.

Fire at Niagara.

NIAGARA, Ont., Nov. 3.—The stone house of John Muir, farmer, Niagara township, was destroyed, together with its contents, by fire Thursday night. Mr. Muir and his family barely escaped with their lives. The loss is about $2000; no insurance. The fire originated from the chimney.

Lost the Season's Crop.

JARVIS, Nov. 3.—The barns and drive house of John Edwards, fourth concession of Walpole, containing all the season's crops and also a threshing machine belonging to J. McCarthy, were consumed by fire at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. Sparks from the threshing engine are said to be the cause. The loss is $2000; insurance $1000.

Fire at Homburg.

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—Koopman's schlachthaus at Homburg was damaged by fire yesterday to the extent of 650,000 marks. The stock was saved.

Considered Hopeless.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 3.—The king is in no immediate danger, but his recovery is considered hopeless.

Too Much Apple and Whipstocks.

HAYSVILLE, Nov. 3.—A cow belonging to R. C. Tye of this place got an apple stuck in its throat. Mr. Tye thought that he could push it down with a whipstock, but the cow did not like to be treated in such a way and gave a jerk and broke off about a foot in her throat.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1888.

FORCING A NEW BUILDING.

It is evidently the intention of the Ontario Government to force the town of Peterborough to erect a new Collegiate Institute building. It is all very well for the Hon. G.W. Ross to tell the Board through the Inspector that a new building is required, although the Inspector has reported the present building as being of good appearance, but it is a different matter for the people of the town, who would have to raise $20,000 or $30,000 to put up the building. Yet the Ontario Government seems determined to force the people to expend the money.

We have before referred to the report of the Inspector in 1885. In that report the Government demanded (1) larger grounds, (2) a gymnasium, (3) additions to the library of reference, and (4) further supplies of chemical apparatus. These demands had to be met, or the Board was threatened with having the Institute reduced to the status of a high school. Other minor improvements were asked, but these we have enumerated were insisted on. Since then the Board has expended about $3,000 upon the building, the greater part on the Institute apartments. All the demands made in 1885 have been complied with and minor changes that were asked for have been made.

And now what is the result, after this expenditure has been made? The Inspector told the Board last June that "he did not think the present building could be remodeled so as to answer collegiate institute requirements, and at the same time give the accommodation for public school pupils it was found necessary to have." He further tells the Board that the town "should follow Lindsay's example and erect a building worthy of her importance." That is what all the complaints and demands are aimed at. The town is to be forced to put up a new building, although large expenditures have been made to meet the demands made by the Government three years ago.

What was the report as to the building three years ago? The Institute was then in a poorer building—the small one beside the large one at present used—and the Inspector's report said, "School building, fair." It was fair then, but in a very short time a better building is said to be altogether unsuitable and a new one is asked for. This year the school desks are complained of. "Desks fairly good," is the report now, "but should be single instead of double." Three years ago the Inspector's report on this point was, "Desks, good." Good then without any qualification and now condemned.

In 1886 the special complaint was with regard to the play grounds and water closets. The Inspector said:—"The accommodations are much improved, but, as I have pointed out, they are still defective, especially in the matter of play grounds and water closets." It is remarkable how new grounds of complaint can be discovered. In the previous year the report read, "Water closets, satisfactory." And when, this year, it was pointed out that the park was so close, the Inspector said he would not press the point regarding grounds.

Let it be noticed that in 1885 the school building was "fair;" that next year "the accommodations are much improved;" that the gymnasium and other equipment demanded has been supplied, and that, in the face of all this, the Government withholds the Collegiate Institute grant, and intimates that a new building must be erected.

There can be no question but that this is unfair treatment, and that the proceedings have been of an irritating and a high-handed character. Who is responsible for it? The Ontario Government, primarily, for it has made the demands and has withheld the money. What its motive is in thus, in a shuffling manner, forcing the people to expend money only to be told, practically, that the expenditure made is useless and a new building must be prepared, has not been explained. The Government, of course, finds defenders of its conduct. When the matter was under discussion Mr. J. R. Stratton, who is a member of the Board, took the view that the people would sanction the raising of the money for a new building and said he was prepared "to run for Mayor of Peterborough against any other man with that as one of the principal planks in his platform." Mr. Stratton represents this constituency in the Legislature and is a supporter of the Government. It might be expected that he would use his influence and position to protect the people from such nagging as they have been subjected to, but instead of that he throws his influence on the side of the Government and backs them up, so far as he can, in their contradictary demands. He is one with the Government in working to force the Board into incurring the expenditure that would be necessary to erect a new Institute building, if, indeed, it is not at his instigation that the whole trouble has arisen.

A $20,000 PALACE COACH.

The McGibeny Family—Their Splendid Palace Car.

As an evidence of a successful career, and judicious management, financial as well as professionally, the McGibney Family, which recently visited Galena, afforded a most remarkable example. For fifteen years they have been before the public, and during all that time have been facile princeps in their profession, and at no time during their brilliant history have any of their imitators sufficiently approached their high standard of merit as to warrant their being considered even as competitors. The family is remarkable, both for its size and the genius displayed in each of the sixteen members. And with their genius as a basis, through constant practice and study, they have continually improved in every respect and have reached a hight of professional worth and reputation that leaves them the sole occupants of a field which has always demanded skill and accomplishments of the highest degree. Had Longfellow ever attended one of the performances of this remarkable family, one could easily understand how he would have been inspired to write those choice lines:—

"And the night shall be filled with music,
And cares that infest the day
Shall fold up their tents like Arabs,
And as silently steal away."

Nothing succeeds like success, and the McGibeny family have most assuredly succeeded beyond their fondest anticipations.

The "McGibeny Family" Palace Car is the largest as well as the finest and best equipped palace car in the country, being seventy-four feet in length, exceeding the length of the regular passenger coaches by over thirty feet, making it nearly twice as long as an ordinary car. As a consequence it rides easier and furnishes ample room for a thousand and one conveniences. In the front is located the kitchen, with range, water heaters, lockers and all appurtenances most desired in the culinary department. Next to the kitchen reached by a hall which extends to the drawing room beyond is the pantry, which, while necessarily not large, has been placed with a view solely for convenience.

The manner in which the builders could arrange so many shelves, drawers and nooks for storage purposes in such a small space is a mystery. Above the pantry was located the water tanks from which the car is supplied with running water. Back of the pantry is the drawing room in which is a superb piano, manufactured to their especial order, together with easy chairs and other articles of luxury and convenience. Immediately adjoining, in their order, are the library, sitting room and bath room.

Commodious silver, china and linen closets, and ladies' and gentlemen's toilet rooms are conveniently disposed throughout, while adjoining the library a neat burglar and fire-proof safe is placed so as to be entirely hidden from view. In addition to these conveniences, there are sixteen berths and two state rooms. This splendid travelling carriage is provided throughout with electric call bells, and five servants in attendance quickly supply every want. At night, by means of electric lamps, the car is made as light as day, and as it is heated by steam the temperatures is the same at all times. Under the car are ten lockers, in which can be transported enough provisions for a month's supply, a ton of anthracite coal, half a ton of ice, and whatever other articles they may desire. The ensemble of the outside is such as to attract the admiration of every beholder. As a specimen of the perfection to which railroad car building has reached, it will take equal rank with, if it does not excel, the finest of the private cars of the great railroad magnates.—Galena (Ill.) Gazette, Nov. 18th.

This family will appear in the Opera House here on the 16th and 17th of November. 1d105

$10,000 Stock of Boots at 40c. on the Dollar.

An upheavel taken place in leather and the boot and shoe trade shattered to pieces. On Saturday we are going to run a special Boot Sale. Good Goods and Low Prices have gained for us the admiration of close buyers. Our 25c. Boots have completely demoralized the high priced dealers. One man says Goughs are selling below cost, so we are! That is we sell lots of Goods below the first cost of manufacture and still make a living profit. Some people would naturally like to know how we do it. "Here is the Secret." A wholesale man gets hard up, wants money, must have it. He knows Goughs are spot cash buyers. They send for the Wonderful Cheap Men. They arrive on the scene. The wholesale man says, Gough what will you give for 300 cases of these boots; Goughs look them over carefully, find them good desirableselling lines and make a bid of 40c. on the dollar; after hard fighting we get them. They arrive in Peterborough, are sold at 50c. on the dollar, we therefore sell them at half price and make a living profit for ourselves. These are a few of the many reasons why posterity has raised up and christened us GOUGHS, the Tireless, Sleepless, Wide-Awake Boot Men, GOUGHS, the Kings of Clothiers, GOUGHS, the Original Agitators of Small Profits, GOUGHS, the Wonders of the 19th Century. ADVERTISING

When Newspapers first began to be published in London, an editor took opportunity one day to say that a certain man desired a certain something—no matter what. That was the invention of advertising, though the inventor may not have known what he had found. From that time to this people have made more or less use of the papers to publish their wants, and tradesmen their wares; but we doubt very much whether any real improvement upon the first advertisement has ever been made. It was a frank statement that somebody wanted something and what it was that he wanted. Doubtless he got it. We want something. Want to sell goods. Good goods too. The best of the best in Groceries. The range of stock is a wide one. It has to be wide to suit all customers. That we do suit is positive.

If there is one thing we do better than another it is in TEAS.

It is our specialty. Years of experience tell us how and where to buy. We use that experience and select the best.

Do you like a good article? Do you value flavor and strength in Tea? If so give us a trial order.

In addition, every line of groceries you can call for we have.

The stock will be kept well up to the mark with the best and most reliable lines of goods and provisions. All purchases delivered promptly. Give him call.

Municipal Finances.

By the amendment of the municipal act that comes into force next month the councils of towns and villages and townships (outside the district of Muskoka) will require to meet on the 15th day of December, and make up a statement of the receipts and expenditures for the expiring year; which statement must either be published in a newspaper circulating in the municipality or printed copies of same distributed. The clerk must be provided with copies of the statement (not less than one hundred) so that any ratepayer applying may be furnished with one; and at the nomination meeting the clerk must produce copies thereof. By another change in the law all the nominations in a town may be held at one place and may take place in the evening.

Bobcaygeon Lock and Dam.

The Indedendent says:—"The sheet iron bottom for the lock furnished by Mr. Law, the well known bridge builder, of Peterborough, has been riveted together, and lowered to its place. It has now to be bolted down by the diver, and it is hoped that it will be a success in stopping the leak.... The works on the new dam are making good headway, and a thorough job is being made. The old dam is being corked as tight as it can possibly be made and the water below will be drawn to its lowest level. There is a considerable depth of water in the bed of the river, and a diver will find employment there for some time. The breast work along the river bank is making rapid progress and has an impervious bottom of solid rock. The force consists of seventy men, and gives an agreeable appearance of life and stir."

An Excellent Clarionet Player.

Mr. McGuire, of Uxbridge, formerly of the City Band, Toronto, an excellent musician, will assist at the military concert on the evening of Thanksgiving day and will give solos on the clarionet. The programme will include fencing, single stick combat, exercises with sword and bayonet, tableaux, tugs of war, etc., and the Battalion band will be present.

On the Market.

There was a large market this morning and the attendance was good. There was a good supply of poultry, and beef was plentiful. Butter was selling at from 20c. to 24c. and eggs at 18c. and 19c. In the poultry chickens were to be had from 35c. to 50c., geese 50c. and 60c. and turkeys 70c. and 75c. Apples were all prices, as high as 75c. and as low as 25c., while potatoes were about 55c. and 60c.

Municipal Matters.

Three committees of the Town Council met last night—Street and Bridge, Fire Water and Gas, and Charity. The state in which the railway men had left Smith and Benson-sts. was brought up before the Street and Bridge Committee, and the Town Clerk was instructed to notify the G. T. R. to put the street in the condition required by law. The complaints regarding these streets by the residents in that part of the town have been many, but it is probable that the railway will now put mattors right. The other committees discussed several matters and will report at the meeting of the Council Monday night.

Indicted for Murder.

If a merchant sells a pair of shoddy boots to a boy and the boy through the shoddiness of the boots, gets his feet wet, catches cold and dies, can the merchant be legally arrested for murder? The court, after argument decides:—No. The boy knew, or should have known, or his father, if he had a father, which is likely, should have known for him, that Kidd, the boot man, sells J. D. King's make of boots, in which there is no shoddy. Besides, they cost no more, and it would be difficult to prove that the shoddy man really intended to kill the boy. (Signed) SWITCHEM I.

Anniversary Services.

The Rev. Dr. R. N. Grant, of Orillia, will conduct the anniversary services in St. Andrew's church on Sunday morning and evening, November 4th. A collection will be taken up in aid of the church debt. On Monday evening, November 5th, a soiree will be held, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. Tea will be served in the school room from 6 to 7.30 o'clock, followed by a good musical programme in the church and addresses by the Rev. Dr. Grant and local ministers. Strangers will meet with a cordial welcome and spend a pleasant evening. Tickets to soiree 25 cents. 3d100

Adjourned Public Auction.

The adjourned public auction of Phætons, Buggies, Wagons, Road Carts, Cutters, &c. Messrs. Porter Bros., Carriage Manufacturers of Peterborough, beg to announce that owing to the inclement weather, on Saturday, the 13th October last, the day appointed for their Grand Annual Sale of vehicles, they have given instructions to Mr. Chas. Stapleton, to sell by Public Auction, at their Show Rooms, corner Charlotte and Aylmer-sts. near the Midland Railway station, the remainder of their first-class vehicles, on Saturday, 10th of Nov. Sale to commence at half-past one o'clock p.m. They will also include in this sale a lot of first-class New Cutters, and some Second-hand Rigs. Now is the time to buy and save money by coming to this sale. Terms.—Six months credit will be given by furnishing approved paper, a discount of 8 per cent. per annum allowed off for cash. Chas. Stapleton, Auctioneer.

Notice of Visit.

N. Stanley, 18 Jewin-st., London, Eng., and 78 Bay-st., Toronto, Can., intends sending a practical optician, Prof. L. S. Druitt, of London, Eng., to his agent to Peterborough at regular intervals, who will be competent to measure and accommodate every defect of the eyesight that is prevalent. He will in every instance use the firm's Celebrated Spectacles and Eye-glasses, so well known for the delightful ease and comfort they confer on the wearer. There is no glimmering, wavering, dizziness or other distressing sensations so common in the many inferior grades at present in the market, but they comfort, strengthen and preserve the sight. Take care that you are not at present wearing a spectacle which is not exactly adjusted to your sight and consequently acting as a severe strain on the optical nerves, and remember that such a delicate organism as that of the eye requires exact accommodation. No charge made for examination. Remember the date, Saturday, November 10th, at Ormond & Walsh's, Druggists, Peterborough, Ont. 5d105-1w45

B. C. Literary Society.

The members of the Business College Literary Society met as usual Friday evening in the lecture-room of the College. Owing to the absence of the President, the Vice-President took the chair. After the opening exercises the business of the Society was disposed of, part of which was the election of a new President and Vice-President with the following result:—President, Miss Belle Griffith; Vice-President, Mr. Ventriss. The entertainment was good and showed that while preparing themselves for business, the students do not neglect to cultivate a taste for music and literature. The programme was as follows:—Song, Girls Glee Club; reading minutes of last meeting; song, Boy's Glee Club; recitation, "Our new Organ," Miss L. Britton; song, Miss McIlmoyle; "Loves Sacrifice," Mr. Miller; Reading, "The Bashful Bachelor," Mr. Parker; speech from the "Critic," Mr. Bean. Mr. Cook, retiring Vice-President, then gave a farewell speech, in which he said the Literary Society had been to him a source of much pleasure as well as benefit, and he hoped it would continue to prosper and that some time in the future he might have the pleasure of meeting with them again. He then requested the newly elected President to come forward and close the meeting. After a few appropriate remarks by Miss Griffith the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

WITH THE HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS.

They Give an Interesting and Enjoyable Programme last Night.

The entertainment which was given in the gymnasium of the Collegiate Institute by the pupils attracted an audience that filled the building to suffocation. The room presented a very attractive appearance. Sergt.-Major Rundle and his boys had been at work, and the walls were brightened and decorated by tastefully arranged flags, while the Indian clubs, boxing gloves, etc., had been also effectively used in decoration. There was only one feature which detracted somewhat from the pleasant enjoyment of the programme, and that was the heat of the room, which became about unbearable. However, the audience enjoyed the programme immensely notwithstanding. There were two of the Board of Education present—Messrs. Stratton and Wrighton—and this fact was remarked on by a few.

Mr. Stratton occupied the chair and shortly after eight he opened the entertainment with a few remarks. He thanked them for selecting him to the honor of presiding at a meeting of this kind, although he felt that others could have filled the position in a far better manner. The gymnasium was for the development of the physical powers of the boys and girls, and a proper development of the the physical faculties was necessary for the proper and full use of the mental faculties. The tuition they received under the genial Sergt.-Major was sure to be a thorough one, tending to develop the physical powers. He then proceeded to call off the programme, which was rather lengthy.

The first number was a selection by the Peterborough Amateur Orchestra. The playing of the organization is first-class and the audience enjoyed the four selections they rendered through the evening and applauded accordingly. A piano solo by Miss Noble was the second number on the card and was followed by a chorus by the pupils of the school, both of which were very pleasing. A duet was then called for, and Charles McKee and Arthur Duff performed remarkably well on the piano and volin. In calling the next item on the bill-of-fare the chairman took occasion to make a few laudatory remarks respecting the gentleman who was going to render it. He spoke of the great interests and indefatigable exertions of the gentlemen in the movement he had started in the Institute. Sergt-Major Rundle read the court scene for the "Merchant of Venice" in a fine style and was loudly applauded by the pupils. A vocal trio by Misses Hall, Merrick and Burnham was good, as also was the instrumental solo of Miss Edith Robinson. Another chorus was given by the pupils, and then the floor was cleared for action. The ladies and gentlemen in the audience took one end of the room and the boys carried out the seats for the others and a clear space was made for the exhibition drill.

Mr. Stratton said that he might state that the entertainment had been held for the purpose of raising funds to assist in paying for the uniforms of the daughters of the regiment. Sergt.-Major Rundle then put the young ladies through a number of manœuvres and the manual exercise, and the precision and accuracy with which the movements were executed called forth loud applause. He then put the boys through some movements very creditably. The Sergt.-Major has made a great improvement in his classes, and if he had not been so handicapped by lack of space last evening would have surprised some of those present. Two of the young ladies gave an exhibition with the single stick and handied them well.

After the drill the orchestra gave their fourth selection and Miss Carey followed with a piano solo, and God Save the Queen closed the meeting.

WHISPERS.

The chairman was tendered a hearty vote of thanks.

Mayor Stevenson was down on the programme to speak, but was detained from being present.

The exercise of drill and callathenics cannot fail but be beneficial to both young ladies and gentlemen.

The amateur orchestra is on the improve.

About twenty-eight dollars was realized.

A Lecture by Bishop Dowling.

His Lordship Bishop Dowling will deliver a lecture in St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday evening, Nov. 18th. The subject of the lecture will be "The Church and the Bible." The proceeds will be in aid of the fund of the St. Vincent de Paul Society for the benefit of the poor. This will be Bishop Dowling's first lecture in Peterborough, but he has a reputation as a very interesting speaker. His lectures have received high praise when delivered in Canada and in the United States.

All Satisfactory.

The water was turned on at the Otonabee Mills yesterday and a short trial run was made to test the new machinery and gear, a description of which appeared in the REVIEW last week. The system of machinery worked to the entire satisfaction of Mr. Mulhern, the owner, and Mr. Jas. McGill, head miller. The mill will begin to run steady some day next week. The elevator in connection is now in full running order, and grain is being bought and elevated. The siding to the elevator has been repaired, and there are now nine carloads of grain standing ready to be elevated.

Events on the Turf.

A match race just for the sake of the excitement was trotted yesterday afternoon at the driving park, the flyers being Lady B. and Maud B., and the race the best two in three. The rain of the day had made the track heavy and made good time impossible. Only two heats were trotted, Lady B. taking two straight heats. Time 3.05.

A match race has been arranged for Tuesday next, to take place at the driving park and will probably excite some interest. It is just possible, however, that the trot may be postponed until some other day next week. The horses entered are Pettit's Jerry (pacer), of Lakefield; E. Brown's Maud B. (pacer), and Alex. Elliott's Lady B. (trotter). The stakes are the same for first and second money—$25.

Personal.

The Omemee Herald says:—"Mr. John Kincaid passed through Omemee on Wednesday on his way home from Parry Harbor, where he had been superintending the erection of a large building. He seemed to be well pleased with his summer's work."

A Mount Pleasant correspondent writes:—"The Rev. A. C. Wilson, now of Ashburnham and formerly of this circuit, occupied the pulpit of the Methodist church here last Sunday morning, preaching the annual missionary sermon. The rev. gentleman is quite enthusiastic on missions, and preached a very able sermon to a large and appreciative audience."

The Lindsay Warder says:—"Dr. R. F. Morrow, dentist of Peterborough, spent Sunday with his parents and sisters in Lindsay. There are few young Manvers boys who have been more successful than has Dr. Morrow. He is rightly remembered by his old acquaintances from his native township who when troubled with an obstreperous molar ever seek relief, comfort and restoration at Dr. Morrow's office."

Three Bishops Meet.

The Toronto Empire says:—"Bishop Walsh, of London, Bishop Dowling, of Peterborough, and Bishop Cleary, of Kingston, held a conference at the Palace yesterday. The business discussed was of a purely private nature. It is believed that the choice of a successor to the late Archbishop Lynch was the chief point which took up the attention of their Lordships. The conference rose early in the day."

A New Departure.

The Bank of Toronto has opened a savings bank department here, which will be carried on in connection with their regular business. The capital of the bank is $2,000,000 and the rest $1,350,000, giving ample security to depositors. This will be an accommodation for customers and the new branch will be as popular under Mr. Rogers' management as the bank has always been with business men.

SHORT and sweet is our cut on sugar; come and try a $'s worth from M. R. Kidd.

Religious Services.

The following is a list of services in the several churches to-morrow:—

Laymen's evangelistic services for to-morrow are as follows:—Jail, 9.30 a. m. Protestant Home, 2 p. m.; Nassau., 7 p. m.; Grange Hall, North Monaghan, 3.30 p. m. All are invited.

Brevities.

—No Police Court to-day.

—Anniversary Services in St. Andrew's to-morrow.

—Officer Stewart was able to be out this morning.

—A peaceful quietude prevailed in policedom last night, no arrests being made.

—John Kennedy, formerly of Mariposa, was killed at a lumber shanty in Michigan by a tree falling on him.

—Johnny Smith, of Lindsay, went from that town with Cool Burgess as a member of his company. Cool is a native of Beaverton.

—The wet weather interfered with the attendance at the W. F. M. S. meeting at the George-st. Church last night and the reading of the extracts from Miss Munro's letter was postponed until Wednesday night.

—The Lindsay Post says:—"Peterborough town debentures, 20 years bearing 4 per cent., $20,000 in account, have been purchased by the Bank of Commerce at 95¼. This is an exceedingly good figure for a four per cent. debenture."

—The Rev. Alex. Allen, B.A., has been appointed rector of Emily and Omemee. Since being ordained Mr. Allen has labored in British Columbia and the Western States, being at present rector in Lincoln, the capital of Nebraska.

COME!
Brace Up!

That's the Idea. Brace Up! Entirely, we mean, in a clothing sense.

Fall weather is on us. Warmer Clothing is a necessity.

Take a look at our Suitings. Worth buying, you say. Right you are, absolutely right.

Our top price suit of Scotch Tweed are excellent. They look well and wear well.

But it isn't every man that cares to pay the top price even if he gets a tip-top article. Then we catch him with a Canadian Tweed Suit that's a daisy, every time.

And so on down the range of goods and prices. But the fit and finish, mind you, is identical in all cases. You get the style no matter what you order.

Chief Roezel has been waiting the receipt of word from the Deputy Attorney-General as to when he was to start for Buffalo to bring over Greenfield. Mr. E. B. Edwards received a telegram from Toronto stating that the officer could come on Monday morning.

Handsome.

If you enjoy the beautiful, you will admire the very artistic hall stand now in one of the windows of A. Clegg's furniture warerooms. It is made of native oak, antique finish, handsomely carved, polished brass fittings, and large British plate mirror, beveled. This we understand will be shipped early in the week to the north shore of the Georgian Bay and completes one order of nearly seven hundred dollars, shipped during the last month to that point. 1d105

PRICES AND PROSPECTS.

TRADE INTERRUPTED BY THE PRESIDENTIAL CONTEST.

A Revival of Business Anticipated After Nov. 6—Funds Easier—Collections Improved—Sugars and Coffees Lower.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The excitement and distractions common to the week preceding election day have served to interrupt the distribution of staple articles at many points, the only reported exception of note being at Boston. Word is received, however, from almost all points that merchants, irrespective of party, look confidently to a revival immediately following Nov. 6, and a continuance of an active general trade throughout the season.

The Louisiana rice crop is estimated at 695,000 bags of rough. The sugar yield in that state is said to be disappointing, but interior general trade throughout the lower Mississippi Valley is more brisk since the crop began to move.

The advance in the price of boots and shoes urged by New England manufacturers has not been realized.

Collections northwest have improved and greater ease is announced in the Central Western and the Southern States. Funds are growing easier at all centers, and even those at which the heaviest drafts were made from the great agricultural regions new report a returning current of more ready funds than are in demand at the moment. Stock speculation at New York is stagnant, prices declined at first on bearish manipulation, but recovered strength later on. Money at New York is in slack demand, call loans 2½ to 3 per cent. Foreign exchange is dull and slightly stronger, demand, sterling $4.87½ to $4.87⅝.

Our report of stocks of wheat out of farmers' hands east of the Rocky Mountains, covering nearly 1000 points of accumulation, shows 44,518,000 bushels, and on the Pacific coast 5,736,000 bushels, an increase for the country within a month (stimulated by higher prices) of ,665,000 bushels. The total thus reported is about 9,000,000 bushels less than was held a year ago. Wheat flour stocks aggregate 1,761,000 barrels, an increase of 75 per cent. since Oct. 1. Exports of wheat declining heavily on the Pacific coast, the total shipped as wheat is only 582,890 bushels, as against 1,072,000 bushels last week. Including flour as wheat the total shipped is 1,342,814 bushels of wheat, against 1,827,346 bushels last week. The Atlantic coast ports shipped only 46,000 bushels of wheat, but about 158,000 barrels of flour. July 1 to date the total wheat and flour exports aggregate 40,240,000 bushels, against 57,608,000 bushels in a like portion of 1887.

The favorable weather has stimulated dry goods some, notably at Boston. There has been a fair inquiry for cotton goods at first hands, prices of wool remain very firm and there is a moderate activity at leading eastern towns. Eastern mills are taking fair quantities for consumption, stocks are not heavy and the impression is widespread that prices are likely to hold firm with a probability of an advance during the summer.

Freer offerings of raw sugars, new crop Brazil and Demerara and European beet root product at terms ⅛ and 1-16 more favorable to purchasers, result in an increased movement. Refined sugars are off 1-16 and 1-16 on moderate inquiry and more urgent offerings. Coffee has not been active and prices are 1-16 lower on fair invoices. Brazil port stocks and arrivals are increasing.

There has been a somewhat increased business in iron, but prices are not changed. Twelve new southern furnaces will compete for northern and western trade during the winter. Negotiations for steel rails have been checked by the absence of cash offers.

Another Big Railway Deal.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 3.—The weekly circular of John A. Hambelton & Co., bankers, of this city, says to-day: There are some mysterious whisperings going the rounds regarding a possible deal between the Baltimore and Ohio and Richmond and West Point Terminal Company. The rumors have taken no definite shape nor have they been traced to a responsible source, nevertheless it is intimated that a deal is on foot between the B. & O. and Terminal, and it has even been suggested that the B. & O. might fall into the hands and under the control of the Terminal Company.

A Youthful Boodler.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 3.—Yesterday on balancing bank accounts, the Bodman tobacco warehouse found a forged check for $5000 in each of three banks. The checks in each case were endorsed by Charles Tinkler, collector for the warehouse, who received the money. Tinkler was only 19 years old and left the warehouse about the last of September to get higher wages as assistant to a bookmaker at the races. His employers think he was the dupe of experienced criminals. The boy is missing.

Vassar's Liberality.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Nov. 3.—The will of John Guy Vassar makes the following bequests: Fourteen churches in this city, $7000 divided; Vassar Home for Aged Men, $35,000; Poor Widows' Coal Fund, $5000; Vassar Brothers' Institute, $15,000; Vassar Brothers' Hospital, $252,000; Vassar College, $130,000; John Guy Vassar Home for Orphans, $100,000; American Seaman's Friends' Society of New York, $500; Baptist Church Poughkeepsie, $15,000.

The Week's Failures.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days, as reported to Dun, Wiman & Co., number for the United States 243, and for Canada 32, or a total of 275 as compared with a total of 253 last week and 226 the week previous to the last. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 245, made up of 225 in the United States and 20 in the Dominion.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Attorney-General Mowat Resumes Practice —Dr. McCully's Case Enlarged.

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—A paper expressing sympathy with Rev. T. W. Jeffery and requesting him not to tender his resignation is being very numerously signed by members of his church and congregation.

Attorney-General Mowat has resumed practice and entered the firm of which Mr. Justice Maclennan was lately a member.

James H. Spence, the carrier who is accused of stealing money-letters, was in the Police Court yesterday for examination. The young man was sent to the Criminal Court for trial.

Dr. McCully appeared in the Police Court again yesterday morning to answer to the charge of shooting Harry H. Oldwright with intent to do grievous bodily harm. The case was not proceeded with but was enlarged for a week, the same bail being renewed.

Tilley White was arrested yesterday charged with stealing $30 in cash; a pair of diamond earrings, two gold bracelets, and other articles of jewelry from her fellow boarders at 116 Peter-street. She confessed her guilt and surrendered the plunder.

BOUNCED CONDUCTORS.

Other Heads Fall Into the Basket—The Revised List.

HAMILTON, Nov. 3.—The topic in railway circles yesterday was the suspension of the batch of Grand Trunk conductors. Other heads besides those mentioned yesterday have fallen into the basket, for what reason, the men say, they know not. The revised list of decapitated is as follows: Messrs. McKay, Edmonson and Gilkinson, from the Toronto branch; David Blunt and John Main, from the main line of the Southern Division; Conductor Flavell, running from Woodstock to Port Dover, and Conductors Hoskins and Clarke running from Toronto to Stratford.

Superintendent Stiff told a reporter yesterday that none of them would be re-instated. It is said that the Brotherhood of Conductors, a very powerful body, propose to take the case up and ask the company to explain why the men have been discharged, as they consider it unjust that employes who have spent the best years of their lives in the employ of the road should be summarily shaken in this way without a charge or hearing. Many of the suspended conductors have been on the road for years, and, like Cæsar's wife, were above suspicion until the recent extensive operations of the "spotters."

The Montreal End of the Story.

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—With reference to the report in yesterday's papers that a number of the conductors on the Grand Trunk Railway have received "red tickets" Assistant General Manager Wainwright said yesterday: The story is as usual highly sensational and colored. There is a portion of truth in it. Five or six conductors have been removed because the superintendent did not need their services any longer as he is reducing the section staff. There is no charge whatever against them.

Carried on After Sixty Years' Repose.

NEWMARKET, Nov. 3.—There has reposed for upwards of sixty years in the upper department of the postoffice here an old, time-honored copper still, which had been used in the early days of the country for making whisky when huge distilleries were unknown, and when drugged liquors were not thought of. Thursday a couple of Inland Revenue officers carried it off in the name of the Queen.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings healt and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

Turnbull's Column.

This Column Tells What is Doing at Turnbull's.

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it takes an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Manties and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Fannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c. than we will. All other lines just as cheap. Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's. We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

SEVERAL SERIOUS FIRES.

INCENDIARIES KINDLE A BLAZE IN THE DUNDAS RINK.

The Flames Spread and Three Families are Rendered Homeless—A Sash and Door Factory at Dresden Burnt. Firebugs at Dundas.

DUNDAS, Nov. 5.—A serious fire occurred here at 2 o'clock yesterday morning which resulted in the complete destruction of a large skating and curling rink and a double dwelling house besides considerable damage done to other buildings. The fire was undoubtedly the work of incendiaries as it originated in the brick ice rink owned by R. S. Wilson and which has not been used since last winter. The wall of the rink fell outwards and two young men who were assisting were slightly hurt but not seriously injured. The ice house and stables of the Albion Hotel were consumed and the house of Mrs. G. M. Pirie on Foundry-street was partially burnt. Mr. Wilson's loss on rink is over $2000; no insurance, the policy having been allowed to lapse recently. Loss to Mr. Ferrie $2000, no insurance known. Mrs. Pieric's loss to furniture damaged by water probably $500. Loss to A. Bennett, Albion Hotel, $400. Mr. Mountain and Mrs. Lanz will not be heavy losers.

A $7000 Blaze at Dresden.

DRESDEN, Nov. 5.—French, Wells & Burnie's sash and door factory took fire about 8 o'clock Saturday night and burned in spite of all efforts to save it. In addition to the loss of the factory there was material made up to the amount of $2000. The total loss about $7000, insured for $3000.

A Couple of Blazes at Toronto.

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—At 9 o'clock Saturday night fire caught the two houses Nos. 7 and 9 Churchill-avenue, occupied by Thompson Keyes and Stephen Nightingale. Both buildings were totally destroyed with their contents. The flames communicated with a stable in rear in which there were several horses, and destroyed it also. Two of the animals were suffocated. The horses and barn belonged to Contractor Richard West. The loss is put down at $2000, partially covered by insurance.

At 9.45 last night No. 51 Duchess street, occupied by James Lynch, was scorched by the flames, the damage amounting to about $120. Incendiarism is strongly suspected.

Shingle Mill Burned at Saginaw City.

EAST SAGINAW, Nov. 5.—Ed. Andrews' shingle mill at Saginaw City burned Saturday evening. Loss, $5000; insurance not known. It had a capacity of 8,000,000 shingles per season.

Firemen Badly Injured.

SAGINAW CITY, Nov. 5.—At 3.20 Saturday morning fire destroyed two dwellings on Pleasant-street, and in going to the fire a terrible accident occurred at the corner of Bond and Franklin-streets, in which six firemen met with such severe injuries that, in one instance at least, the victim cannot recover, while some of the others are more or less maimed for life. A large empty wagon had been left lying across the street in such a manner that one portion of it protruded clear out on the road in a dangerous manner. When the alarm was given at the time specified, hose cart No. 1, containing six members of the fire department, came dashing down to the obstruction. There was a crash, and suddenly, without a moment's warning, the cart turned completely over, throwing the unfortunate men out and falling on them with its terrible weight in such a manner as to pin them to the ground.

Ten Horses Perish in the Flames.

SANDUSKY, Nov. 5.—The barn of Wm. Spencer, near Florence corners, this county, was destroyed by an incendiary fire yesterday. Four horses were burned to death and a large amount of grain and a lot of farm implements were destroyed.

TWO BIG HAULS.

Burglars Get Away With $1000 Worth of Goods From a Newmarket Store.

NEWMARKET, Nov. 5.—Last evening it was found that the store of J. R. Mader & Co. had been burglarized between Saturday night and Sunday morning. Silks, laces, millinery, ladies' underwear, scalettes, fine dry goods, groceries, tobacco, and ladies' and mens' boots and shoes, amounting roughly to from $800 to $1000 were missing. The top frame of one of the back windows was found removed. Two chisels, a screw driver, brace and bit and other tools were left on the floor of the cellar. The safe was not tampered with.

Forced an Entrance With a Crowbar.

PORT DOVER, Nov. 5.—Some time on Friday night or Saturday morning burglars effected an entrance into the drug, stationery and jewelry store of John McBride of this village and obtained watches and jewelry to the value of about $900. With a heavy crowbar they forced a hole through the wall of the vault sufficiently large to effect an entrance. The hand car at the Northern and Northwestern station was stolen the same night and was found ditched at Hagersville where the Canada Southern crosses.

Mrs. Bowman Granted a Divorce.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Judge Tuley charged the jury in the Bowman divorce case Saturday morning, and soon after the jury brought in a verdict finding the issue in favor of Mrs. Bowman's common law marriage, and granting her a divorce. Judge Tuley will enter a decree of divorce.

Tascotts Everywhere.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Inspector Bonfield was shown the despatch from Lexington, Va., stating that Tascott, the murderer of Millionaire Snell, had been captured near that place. He said he had not yet been advised of this capture, but was receiving two or three such despatches from different points every day.

THE C. P. R. REDUCES ITS GUARD OF SPECIALS TO A FEW MEN.

The Newspaper Libel Suits at Manitoba's Capital—The Free Press Wants Fifty Thousand Dollars from The Sun.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 5.—There is no change whatever in the railway situation at Fort Whyte. The force of military is still in camp but the Canadian Pacific Railway specials have been reduced to a corporal's guard.

The Manitoba and Northern Pacific will apply for incorporation at the next session of the Dominion Parliament.

No bills were returned in the criminal libel suits brought against The Free Press and The Call, and it is rumored that a royal Commission will be appointed to investigate the charges.

The detatchment of mounted police to patrol the boundary arrived last night.

In The Free Press' libel suit against The Sun the damages are laid at $10,000.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

Hungarian Immigration to the Northwest—The Militia Clothing Contracts.

OTTAWA, Nov. 5.—An effort is being made by the Dominion Government to have the case between the Dominion and the British Columbia Governments with respect to the ownership of mineral lands in that province, which is now before the Imperial Privy Council, postponed until after the close of the Parnell investigation, as Attorney-General Webster has been retained to represent the Dominion Government. The British Columbia Government objects to postponement.

Mr. Julius Vasse, a Hungarian gentleman, is in the city for the purpose of conferring with the Department of Agriculture concerning the immigration of Hungarians to the Canadian Northwest. Mr. Vasse proposes to issue illustrated pamphlets in the Hungarian language to be distributed among the peasants of Hungary.

The Militia Department will not award any contracts for clothing this year. The existing contracts are for a period of three years.

THE BANDIT FRUGOSO KILLED.

Last of the Cuban Highwaymen Who Stole Rich Planters for Ransoms.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The Spanish Consul-General in this city received a cablegram yesterday from Havana to the effect that the famous bandit, Victor Frugoso, has been killed and some of his companions wounded by the civil guard of Cuba.

Of this man Frugoso the Consul has no knowledge save that he is a member of the band of highwaymen about whom there was so much talk last winter by timid Americans who hesitated to go to Havana for a season lest their families might have to take all the pennies out of their little tin savings banks to get the men out of pawn.

The representatives of the Consul says that these bandits never take women or children to hold for ransom, but that occasionally they do take rich men, planters and merchants, and keep them in custody until properly bailed out of the unpleasant swamps where they are confined.

Although Providence has been kind to the Cuban bandit in the natural situation of Havana, and although there are plenty of fastnesses about the city, the place of attack is mainly in the suburbs, where very few strangers go. The band has been shot down and killed off until the romance has somewhat left them, and what little is left smacks more of the life of an every-day highway robber than of a picturesque mediæval bandit.

THE CORNWALL CANAL.

Another Break Discovered—The Prospect Said To Be Discouraging.

CORNWALL, Nov. 5.—The canal bank gradually settled Friday afternoon about two feet or more, and a crack has been discovered in the bank where the old break occurred. It was thought that boats would be able to run to-day, but the chances are that they will not get through this fall. Most people who have visited the scene of the break say it is very doubtful, and think that when the water is let in the canal the pressure will be so great that the bank will go out once more.

Lots of Trouble in Prospect.

ESSEX CENTRE, Nov. 5.—Last week the citizens of Essex Centre decided on having electric lights in the village, and since then the Reliance and the Ball companies have been fighting as to who shall get the contract. The former company was getting the best of it, and the Ball Company decided upon a novel way of getting there first. Friday night or Saturday morning, when the majority of the citizens were in the arms of Morpheus, the company got a gang of men, put up their posts and strung the wires, and when the morning came the astonished people saw an electric system all ready but the dynamo. They became enraged at the action of the company, and on Saturday evening sawed every pole down. The streets are now covered with fallen poles and wires, and there is every prospect of lots of trouble.

Collingwood Wins the Championship.

COLLINGWOOD, Nov. 5.—The last of the series of championship football matches for the Northern District pennant was played here Saturday between the Everett and Collingwood teams. Play was called at 10.45, and during the first half time Collingwood scored three goals to Everett's one. In the second half neither scored. A week ago these two clubs met at Everett, the result being that neither club scored. Collingwood defeated Barrie in the first match, and Everett beat Allison. Collingwood by defeating Everett wins the championship badges for the fourth successive season.

Mr. Kerby's Misfortune.

PETROLIA, Nov. 5.—Mr. E. D. Kerby, who contested East Kent on two occasions in the Conservative interest and who at one time was considered in good circumstances, has been taken to the London Asylum. Mr. Kerby has been under a cloud both mentally as well as physically for some time past.

Factional Opposition.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 5.—The Opposition party in the Folkething are using every effort to defeat the Government's plan for the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of King Christian's accession to the throne, on Nov. 15.

Minister Phelps to be Banqueted.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Mr. Phelps, the United States Minister, will deliver an address before the Glasgow Juridical Society on Nov. 15. The municipal authorities of Glasgow will afterwards give a banquet in honor of Mr. Phelips.

London Cheese Market.

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 5.—Twenty-five factories offered 12,205 boxes September and balance; sales 300 July and August at 8⅞; 230 August and September at 95 5-8c; market dull.

A Duty on Coffins.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 5—The customs preventive officer at a New Brunswick outport collected duty recently on a casket containing a body being brought into Canada from Boston for burial. An application has been made to the department asking that the duty collected be refunded.

THE ST. CLAIR FLATS.

A Canadian Engineer at Work Taking Observations.

DETROIT, Nov. 5.—A Canadian civil engineer is at work at the St. Clair Flats. He has been employed for a week running lines and taking observations. Several of his white signal flags are flying on the south pier, and the range is continued up the first straight stretch of the river channel beyond the Star Island House. The Canadian engineer began his base line from established points in the old Ship Channel, near the two lighthouses that stand in the lake north of the St. Clair Fishing and Shooting Club's buildings. He boards at Arthur's place as being less public than the Star Island House, and makes full use of every bright hour. Capt. Mott, United States custodian of the canal, noting the engineer's work, invited him to make use of the official map which is kept at the lighthouse, saying it might save him trouble and labor. The Canadian engineer, who has not revealed his name but is supposed to be the same man who made a survey in 1869 and reported that a part of the canal was in the jurisdiction of Canada, thanked Capt. Mott for his courtesy and intimated that he would depend entirely on his own resources for data.

DARING TRAIN ROBBERS.

Between $50,000 and $60,000 Taken From an Express Messenger.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 5.—The United States express messenger on the train of the Northeastern Railway, which arrived here Saturday morning at 7 o'clock, was robbed at 5 a. m. between Lacey and Derby stations, 50 miles from this city. The express officials decline to state the amount of the robbery, but it is understood to be between $40,000 and $50,000. The robber entered the express car, surprised Baggagemaster Henry McElroy and Charles Lowry with a cocked revolver and threw sacks over their heads. After securing the contents of the safe the robbers pulled the bell rope.

The Refusal Cost Them Dear.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Nov. 5.—Another terrible shooting affray occurred in this county Saturday night. Henry Barlow and George Llewelyn, two citizens of Pittston, were returning in a carriage from Pleasant Valley when their horse was stopped in a lonely spot in the woods by two hunters who carried rifles. The hunters said they wanted to ride. The men in the carriage whipped up their horse and drove away. They had gone but a short distance when the hunters fired upon the fast disappearing carriage fatally wounding Barlow and seriously injuring his companion. The horse ran away and was not stopped until Pittston was reached. The men were taken from the carriage unconscious. There is great excitement over the affair and lynch law is threatened.

Business at the Sault.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Nov. 5.—During the month of October 700 steamers, 244 sail vessels and 48 rafts and unregistered craft passed through the St. Mary's Falls ship canal; a total of 992. The number of lockages was 524; total registered tonnage, 741,660; total freight tonnage, 883,658; number of passengers, 1206. Excess of registered tonnage over corresponding month last year, 71,654 tons; excess of freight tonnage over corresponding month last year, 90,801 tons.

Killed His Father.

BONHAM, Tex., Nov. 5.—On Saturday H. C. Bryans, who resides a few miles south of town, was stabbed and killed by his son, Neely Bryans, aged 17. The son had been living away from home for two years, and had a dispute with his father about his actions which ended in a quarrel. The murderer has not been arrested.

A Petition Against Best's Extradition.

EASTPORT, Me., Nov. 5.—A petition of the Grand Army of the Republic and citizens was forwarded Saturday to Secretary Bayard, asking his personal attention in the extradition case of Best, who shot Batson at Campobello, N. B., recently. The petition says that on account of the feeling existing on the Canadian border, no naturalized citizen, if given up, could have a fair trial.

Election Excitement in North Carolina.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Nov. 5.—The greatest political excitement ever known prevails in this section. Personal encounters between whites and blacks are numerous and no one can predict the outcome. The militia may have to be called out if the present state of lawlessness is carried much farther.

Beaten by Strikers.

GARDNER, Mass. Nov., 5.—On Friday night as the Russian Finns, who have taken the strikers' places at Heywood Bros & Co.'s chair works, were going home they were attacked by unknown persons and whipped unmercifully. On Saturday 30 or 40 of the Finns left town.

And the Earth Quaked.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 5.—An earthquake shock was felt here Saturday morning at 3.50 o'clock. People asleep in the upper stories of buildings were considerably alarmed. Its duration was only a few seconds.

Mr. Pardee' Alarming Illness.

SARNIA, Nov. 5.—Hon. T. B. Pardee still lies very ill at his residence here, with no hope of recovery. His complaint is said to be Bright's disease of the kidneys.

Keep Away From Jacksonville.

JACKSONVILLE, Nov. 5.—The Council has passed an ordinance imposing a fine of $500 or less or inprisonment not exceeding three days, upon any person who enters the city without a permit from Dr. J. Y. Porter, unless such person can prove that he has actually resided within the city limits continually since Sept. 1.

Carried Grant's Famous Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—John Lynch of Indiana, a watchman in the postoffice Department, died Saturday afternoon. Lynch was a private in the late war, and when Grant was at City Point he carried to Lincoln an number of dispatches, among them being the famous one: "I will fight it out on this line if it takes all summer."

A Precocious Boy.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 5.—A boy named James Langley, alias Tuite White, was committed for trial Saturday on the charge of stealing a gold watch from James McGuire on Oct. 10. The watch was stolen from the till behind the bar in Mr. McGuire's hotel and was recovered from behind a conductor pipe at the government building, where the thief had concealed it. The accused is a noted till tapper and thief, although but 13 years old.

A drunken woman named Bridget Clapper attempted to drown herself and her 6-year-old child but was prevented from consummating her purpose.

Poisoned by a Dinner—Bitten by a Dog.

HAMILTON, Nov. 5.—Bernard Schelling, his wife and four children showed symptoms of poisoning soon after eating dinner on Friday. Mrs. Schelling and the children were made seriously ill, but it is thought they will recover. It has not been ascertained what caused the poisoning.

Katie Sharp, the 5-year-old daughter of Arthur Sharp, was terribly bitten by a dog Saturday afternoon. The poor little thing presented an awful sight. The dog also bit Miss Nellie Jones, who went to the child's assistance, on the arm, leg and hip while she was fighting with it. It is not thought that the little one's injuries will prove fatal.

A TRANS-ATLANTIC WINK

EXCHANGED BETWEEN LORD SALISBURY AND MR. CLEVELAND.

Was There Collusion in the Settlement of the Sackville Business?—The Retaliation Suggestion.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Mr. G. W. Smalley cables The Tribune from London: The collusion between Mr. Cleveland and Lord Salisbury in the settlement of the Sackville business is confirmed by all the evidence thus far accessible. It is certain that diplomatic opinion is very different from the opinion of the English press, which storms away in real or assumed ignorance of the diplomatic precedents and principles governing this case. Nor do I think feeling in private is much roused. The London papers reflect not much more than their own image and superstition. The strongest thing I have heard said is that the American Government acted too hastily and with needless rudeness to Lord Sackville; but the English do not appear to consider themselves insulted, or even affronted. They read their own papers with amusement and some amazement.

What occurred here is believed to be this: Mr. Phelps received instructions from Washington to lay the facts before Lord Salisbury and request or suggest Lord Sackville's recall. As Mr. Phelps happened to be staying at Hatfield House from Saturday to Monday, the whole matter was no doubt freely talked over between them. It is even conceivable that the American Minister laid before his host the electioneering necessities which impelled Mr. Cleveland to act. If Lord Salisbury replied that he only knew the President of the United States, and not a candidate for the Presidency, the answer would be a natural one: he must deal with the difficulty that had arisen purely as a diplomatic difficulty. His proposal is thought to have been that Lord Sackville should come to England on leave of absence. He admitted that something must be done; that Lord Sackville's error must be atoned for.

It was, I think, at one moment agreed that the matter should be settled on this basis. But when Mr. Phelps received further instructions from Washington, Lord Salisbury said in substance: "Very good. If you like to send Lord Sackville home, do so. We shall not complain. We think it needless, but there will be no rupture. There will be angry articles in the press, but those you must put up with." This account is believed here to be correct, not in words of course, but in substance, by those who have means of information. If correct, it is obvious Mr. Cleveland did nothing till he was assured England would not resent his action. Lord Salisbury and Mr. Cleveland, indeed, in the presence of all this outside turmoil, appear to be gazing at each other like two Roman augurs. They keep on a grave face for the public, which gives place when they are unobserved to a gentle grin. Mr. Cleveland has Lord Salisbury's best wishes as a candidate. They understand each other. "We have our Irish troubles," says Lord Salisbury, "you have yours. If you can get your Irish vote, don't mind us." And a wink is duly exchanged across the Atlantic.

The Standard's suggestion to retaliate for the dismissal of Lord Sackville by dismissing Mr. Phelps is received with ridicule by such papers as think it worth noticing.

The Gladstonian organ finds fault with Lord Salisbury for not having recalled Lord Sackville at once, is quite unable to believe Mr. Cleveland means to offend England, and scouts the notion of sending Mr. Phelps home. Its new defence of the President is just what Mr. Cleveland's American friends offer. Yet I hear that some of Mr. Cleveland's supporters in America still pretend he is not the English candidate.

The incident is treated lucidly enough by The Saturday Review. As soon as the Republicans began to make use of the Minister's letter, the Democratic Irish vote began to look doubtful. Hereupon, as a presidential election was coming off it became necessary to do something energetic. Mr. Cleveland showed he knew very well of how little importance Lord Sackville's unwisdom was to what course the United States ought to take. But a small knot of voters insist that he shall snort, stamp, and behave after the fashion of My Lord Peter's bulls, and he has to do it.

The Spectator takes a similar view. It thinks the incident painful, as revealing the subservience of American politicians to the Irish vote, but it belongs to municipal, not international, history.

A Candidate's Opinion.

NELSONVILLE, Nov. 5.—Judge Thurman, the Democratic candidate for Vice-President, closed the campaign here Saturday night. Speaking of the Sackville incident he said: "All I can say about the West letter is, that if I had a boy and he was such a fool as to be entrapped as West was by such a letter as was sent him, I would disown him. Whether Mr. West is knave or fool, I do not know, but this I do know that he is one or the other—too much so to represent the British Government at the city of Washington, and Grover Cleveland has told him so and gave him his walking papers."

These Two Were Not Trapped.

OTTAWA, Nov. 5.—Amongst the persons to whom decoy letters were sent by the parties who engineered the Sackville-West affair were Hon. Mackenzie Bowell and Senator Clemow. The letters came from Michigan, and the writer wished to know the wishes of the Canadian Government in regard to the Presidential election. They were promptly consigned to the waste-paper basket.

The Birmingham Elections.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The municipal elections of Thursday are considered to show no marked gain, on the whole, for either party. The most interesting contest of all was in Birmingham, where sixteen wards elected councillors. Nine of these were contested, the Unionists being left in undisputed possession of the other seven. They held, also, their other four seats which were attacked, and themselves attacked and carried two out of four Gladstonian seats, and carried the ninth also, formerly independent. The result is the Unionists have fourteen out of sixteen. This being the state of things, Mr. Gladstone's visit comes none too soon if he hopes to convert Birmingham to his own faith.

The Evangelical Alliance.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—Having followed with considerable interest and much satisfaction several of the newspaper reports of the proceedings of the "Christian Conference" recently held in Montreal, I would take it as a favor if you would reproduce in your columns the constitution (of which I enclose a copy) adopted at that meeting for an "Evangelical Alliance" for Canada, as I am convinced it contains a platform upon which the members of all Protestant denominations can cordially unite, and sets forth principles to which it is of vital importance greater prominence should be given—even in the Protestant Province of Ontario—than has been given of late in this Canada of ours.

Might I also make use of your columns to suggest to the Rev. E. F. Torrance that he, as a member of the central committee appointed at Montreal for the newly organiy organized alliance, is the proper person to take the steps necessary to organize a branch of this alliance in Peterborough?

Yours, etc.,
A PROTESTANT.

November 2nd, 1888.

THE CONSTITUTION.

The following is the constitution referred to of the Alliance:—

1. This organization shall be known as the Evangelical Alliance for the Dominion of Canada.

2. The object of the Association shall be to manifest and strengthen Christian unity, and to promote religious liberty and cooperate in Christain work, without interference with the internal affairs of the different denominations.

3. The doctrinal basis shall be the Articles adopted by the Alliance at its organization in London in the year 1846, which are as follows:—I. The Divine inspiration, authority and sufficiency of the Holy Scriptures. 2. The right and duty of private judgment in the interpretation of the Holy Scriptures. 3 The Unity of the Godhead, and the Trinity of persons therein. 4. The utter depravity of human nature in consequence of the fall. 5. The incarnation of the Son of God, His work of atonement for sinners of mankind, and His meditorial intersession and reign. 6. The justification of the sinner by faith alone. 7. The work of the Holy Spirit in the conversion and sanctification of the sinner. 8. The immorality of the soul, the resurrection of the body, the judgment of the world by our Lord Jesus Christ, with the eternal blessedness of the righteous and the eternal punishment of the wicked. 9. The Divine institution of Christian ministry and the obligation and perpetuity of the ordinance of Baptism, and the Lord's Supper.

4. Any communicant, member of an evangelical Church, may become a member by signing the constitution and paying annually a fee of one dollar. The payment of $50 at one time shall constitute a person a life member of the Alliance; provided the person maintains his other relations to some evangelical Church.

5. The officers of the Alliance shall be a president, vice-presidents, seven or more honorary secretaries, a treasurer, a general secretary, a recording secretary, and a general committee of twenty-five members. All presidents of provincial alliances shall be vice-presidents of this Alliance.

6. The management shall be entrusted to the Executive Committee, which shall consist of the president, a vice-president from each province, the treasurer, the general secretary, the recording secretary and twenty others who shall be appointed by the General Committee.

7. Provincial and local branches of the Alliance shall be formed wherever practicable, and all branch alliance shall be entitled to send delegates to the annual meeting. Such delegates to have the right to vote on all matters coming before the annual meeting. Branches to be left free to form their own constitution, so far as it may not conflict with that of the Dominion Alliance.

8. The annual meeting of the Alliance shall be held in the month of October in such place as the Executive Committee may determine.

9. The constitution may be amended at any annual meeting of the Alliance by a two-thirds vote of the members present. Notice of motion shall be given of any proposed amendment, at least one session before it is discussed, but when desired the mover may be required to state the scope of his motion at the time of giving notice of motion.

INCOMPATIBILITY.

Resignation of a Hamilton Rector—How He Offended Prominent Members.

HAMILTON, Nov. 5.—Rev. Mr. Mockridge, rector of Christ Church Cathedral, has tendered his resignation, to take effect in three or four months from Nov. 1. Dr. Mockridge gives as the reason that the management are trying to make a fashionable uptown church of a church situated in the poorer part of the city, and by the means of high pew rents they keep the masses out of the edifice. As stated in my sermons, I am against the principle of money qualifications for the privileges of a church, and I am determined in future to labor in a free church during the rest of my life."

Chairman Roach of the Committee of Management and one of the churchwardens says it is the opinion of the committee and the wardens that the resignation will be accepted. A vestry meeting to consider the matter will be held about Nov. 22 Mr. Roach said further: "Dr. Mockridge took up prohibition, and his sermons on that offended several prominent members of the congregation. He went on about these establishments where they make the abominable stuff—whisky and ale, and wanted the time to come when they would be swept off the face of the earth. That offended several prominent members. Then he had been discourteous in his language from the pulpit on other questions, and the harmony of the church has been seriously affected."

TORONTO TOPICS.

An Alleged Gambling House Raided—Two Thieves Captured—Bell Remanded.

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—Inspectors Archabold and Stephen and Sergeant Detective Reburn headed a posse that effected a forcible entrance to "Phip" Spohn's alleged gambling house at 112½ King-street west just before midnight on Saturday. "Phip" and a couple of friends were at the foot of the stairs when the officers arrived. Sergeant Reburn told him what was wanted, and requested that he open the door. Spohn refused, but intimated that the officers would find everything all right up-stairs. Reburn at once ascended, but the door was closed and barred, and no amount of pounding could elicit a response. Then a sledge-hammer was brought into requisition, and a couple of blows quickly opened the way in. The only occupant of the place was in a bed in a small room. He was told to dress and come along, being arrested on a charge of being an inmate of a gambling house. He gave his name as E. W. Crane ("Major"). A search of the premises resulted in the discovery of portions of a faro lay-out and a couple of tables. A charge of running a common gambling house will be preferred against Spohn.

On Saturday night at 9.15, as a woman named Mrs. Falconer, was stepping on a south-bound car on Yonge-street, she was knocked down by a car going north, the wheels of which passed over her thigh. She had a seven-months old child in her arms, which miraculously escaped injury. Mrs. Falconer was removed to the Hospital, where it was found necessary to amputate the injured limb. She is doing well and may recover.

Mr. H. S. Smith and Mr. Alexander Boyd captured two thieves at 386 Sherbourne-street last night just as they were getting away with a lot of booty. They gave their names as John Lee, no home, and Patrick Martin, 168 Parliament-street. Martin was recognized as a convicted thief the moment he entered the station house, and Detective Cuddy, who arrived shortly after the arrest, identified Lee as Patrick McEvoy, who had just concluded a three-years term in the Kingston Penitentiary for burglary.

The funeral of Mr. W. A. Foster, Q. C., which took place Saturday afternoon from his late residence, 22 St. Joseph-street, to the Necropolis, was largely attended, among those who assembled to pay a last tribute to the deceased being many of the judges, leading members of the bar and other professions and prominent business men.

The great talk among Toronto military men at present is the coming sham fight at High Park on Thanksgiving Day.

In the Board of Works investigation Contractor Godson's ex-bookkeeper, James Hardy, continued his evidence, which contained nothing beyond what has already been published.

Edward Bell appeared in the Police Court on Saturday to answer the charge of brutally assaulting his mistress, Annie Ferguson. He elected to be tried summarily and was remanded for a week to await the result of the woman's injuries.

$10,000 Stock of Boots at 40c. on the Dollar.

An upheavel taken place in leather and the boot and shoe trade shattered to pieces. On Saturday we are going to run a special Boot Sale. Good Goods and Low Prices have gained for us the admiration of close buyers. Our 25c. Boots have completely demoralized the high priced dealers. One man says Goughs are selling below cost, so we are! That is we sell lots of Goods below the first cost of manufacture and still make a living profit. Some people would naturally like to know how we do it. "Here is the Secret." A wholesale man gets hard up, wants money, must have it. He knows Goughs are spot cash buyers. They send for the Wonderful Cheap Men. They arrive on the scene. The wholesale man says, Gough what will you give for 300 cases of these boots; Goughs look them over carefully, find them good desirableselling lines and make a bid of 40c. on the dollar; after hard fighting we get them. They arrive in Peterborough, are sold at 50c. on the dollar, we therefore sell them at half price and make a living profit for ourselves. These are a few of the many reasons why posterity has raised up and christened us GOUGHS, the Tireless, Sleepless, Wide-Awake Boot Men, GOUGHS, the Kings of Clothiers, GOUGHS, the Original Agitators of Small Profits, GOUGHS, the Wonders of the 19th Century. ADVERTISING

When Newspapers first began to be published in London, an editor took opportunity one day to say that a certain man desired a certain something—no matter what. That was the invention of advertising, though the inventor may not have known what he had found. From that time to this people have made more or less use of the papers to publish their wants, and tradesmen their wares; but we doubt very much whether any real improvement upon the first advertisement has ever been made. It was a frank statement that somebody wanted something and what it was that he wanted. Doubtless he got it. We want something. Want to sell goods. Good goods too. The best of the best in Groceries. The range of stock is a wide one. It has to be wide to suit all customers. That we do suit is positive.

If there is one thing we do better than another it is in TEAS.

It is our specialty. Years of experience tell us how and where to buy. We use that experience and select the best.

Do you like a good article? Do you value flavor and strength in Tea? If so give us a trial order.

In addition, every line of groceries you can call for we have.

There has been a great deal of delay, red tapism and expense about the extradition of the man, but it is hoped that when Greenfield arrives the identification of him will be sufficient to show that he is the right man, as there is little doubt he is Anxious to Quash Proceedings.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Empire writes:—"The Department of Justice has been served with a notice by Mr. E. B. Edwards, solicitor, Peterborough, to quash the proceedings in the case of John Watson, a milk dealer, who was convicted of selling milk in contravention of the Act. 51 Vic., chap. 32, passed by the Provincial Legislature recently. Watson's advocates say the Act is ultra vires and that under the British North America Act the instituting of criminal proceedings in such a case should rest with the Dominion Government."

A Boarding House Selling Liquor.

Somebody with an eye to business and who did not have the nerve to sign his name, sent a letter to Chief Roszel on Saturday, which may contain some truth. The letter read as follows:—

PETERBOROUGH, Nov. 2, 1888.

Chief Roszel,

DEAR SIR,—I do not think it right to make meat of one man and fish of another. You shove one man for selling liquor and let another scot free. There is as much liquor sold in ——boarding house on —— st. as in any common house in town, and I think he ought to pay for it as any one else.

Two Robberies.

Sometime Saturday evening an unscrupulous individual broke open and robbed the poor box at St. Peter's Cathedral The box hangs just at the entrance to the church, and it did not require any great nerve on the part of the sacreligious robber to do the deed. The haul he made, however, is supposed to have been very small.

Late on Saturday afternoon word was sent to the police that a robbery had been committed at the residence of Mr. H. B. Merrick, on Brock-st. Mr. and Mrs. Merrick are at present away from home, and the burglary was perpetrated while the rest of the family were absent from the house at an evening party. A sideboard drawer containing silverware was broken open, carefully sorted over and the selections carried off.

WINDING UP BUSINESS.

The Peterborough Central Directors—A Surplus of $100.

The Peterborough Central Exhibition is now with the majority of our citizens an event of the dim and distant past, but there are a few gentlemen whose labors in connection with the exhibition have not yet been brought to a finis for this year, although this latter happy goal will soon be reached. However, with the closing of the business of the 1888 show, their interest in the Central does not necessarily cease, for, indeed, if it did, it would be a lame and dizzy excuse for an exhibition that would be billed for next year. This is not exactly as it should be. Leaving the exhibition to three or four individuals to work up and, of course, make a success of is not the way to have an annual event which would be an exhibition and a benefit to the town and farmers throughout the county. Every business man should take an interest in the show and not allow the time between now and next fall go by without ever thinking of this undertaking. What would make the exhibition a benefit and an honor to the county would be abolition of the township and district fairs, and the holding of a grand four-day event every year.

The directors of the Peterborough Central held a meeting on Saturday afternoon, when a great deal of discussion arose in closing up small matters in connection with the show. President W. Rutherford occupied the chair, and there were present, Secretary Collins and Messrs. Vance, Baptie, Fair, Mouncey, McClelland and A. Fitzgerald. The labors of the directors have been rewarded this year by the satisfaction of seeing a surplus of cash on hand, although, of course, it is only small, as the object was not to make money but to have a good show. There was a deficit last year of between four and five hundred dollars, but this year Secretary Collins calculates that the receipts will exceed expenses by about one hundred dollars. The total expenses were about $2,350, although this is only roughly speaking as there are several items yet outstanding. The directors, and especially the President and Secretary, have worked hard for the exhibition and they all are entitled to the thanks of the community.

The matter of giving prizes be given in the recommended classes was discussed.

Mr. McClelland moved, seconded by Mr. Fair, that the yearly Jersey heifer of R. Walton, recommended by the judges for first prize of $4, be awarded. The motion was carried.

The other recommended prizes will not be awarded as Mr. Vance moved, seconded by Mr. Baptie, that no awards be made in the recommended classes, and the motion carried.

The directors adjourned at the call of the President.

Indicted for Murder.

If a merchant sells a pair of shoddy boots to a boy and the boy through the shoddiness of the boots, gets his feet wet, catches cold and dies, can the merchant be legally arrested for murder? The court, after argument decides:—No. The boy knew, or should have known, or his father, if he had a father, which is likely, should have known for him, that Kidd, the boot man, sells J. D. King's make of boots, in which there is no shoddy. Besides, they cost no more, and it would be difficult to prove that the shoddy man really intended to kill the boy. (Signed) SWITCHEM I.

Notice of Visit.

N. Stanley, 18 Jewin-st., London, Eng., and 79 Bay-st., Toronto, Can., intends sending a practical optician, Prof. L. S. Druiff, of London, Eng., to his agent to Peterborough at regular intervals, who will be competent to measure and accommodate every defect of the eyesight that is prevalent. He will in every instance use the firm's Celebrated Spectacles and Eye-glasses, so well known for the delightful ease and comfort they confer on the wearer. There is no glimmering, wavering, dizziness or other distressing sensations so common in the many inferior grades at present in the market, but they comfort, strengthen and preserve the sight. Take care that you are not at present wearing a spectacle which is not exactly adjusted to your sight and consequently acting as a severe strain on the optical nerves, and remember that such a delicate organism as that of the eye requires exact accommodation. No charge made for examination. Remember the date, Saturday, November 10th, at Ormond & Walsh's, Druggists, Peterborough, Ont. 5d105-1w45

An Interesting Anniversary.

Thirty years ago Peterborough was rather different from the brisk, lively and pretty little town which to-day elicits words of praise and commendation from almost every visitor who comes to it. Then the business houses on George-st. presented a somewhat different appearance, and different were the faces that were familiar on the streets. It was exactly three decades ago to-day that Councillor Thos. Kelly entered the store of the late Mr. John Harty, to learn the dry-goods business. The store stood just about where McNeil's old stand is at present, and will perhaps be remembered by many. Mr. Kelly's thirty years have not been wasted, for to-day his name on the sign board which decorates the front of the store on the corner of Simcoe and George-sts. tell the story of his successful career in the dry-goods business in this town. From the boy who hustled the shutters, pulled the nails out of the boxes of new goods, manipulated the broom, etc., he is now the head of a successful business and has for many years been returned to advocate the rights of the electors of No. 2 Ward at the board of the Town Council.

ANOTHER YEAR PAST.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES HELD AT ST. ANDREW'S.

Rev. Dr. R. N. Grant, of Orillia' Preaches two Eloquent Sermons—An Immense Congregation—Collections Towards the Church Debt.

Another year in the history of St. Andrew's church has just closed, and anniversary services were held yesterday. Rev. Dr. R. N. Grant, of Orillia, occupied the pulpit at both services and preached two very interesting and earnest discourses.

In the morning the rev. gentleman took as his text part of the fifth and sixth verses of 1st Revelations.

"Unto him that loved us and washed us from our sins in His own blood, and hath made us kings and priests unto God and His Father, to him be glory and dominion for ever and ever, Amen."

Some of the best books that the world ever read, the preacher said, were written in dungeons. Samuel Rutherford while in prison in Aberdeen castle wrote what was familiar to all persons. John Bunyan, in Bedford gaol, wrote the book that had been translated into more languages and read by more people than any other book in the world, except the Bible. John was an exile on the Island of Patmos, and was in the spirit when he began the epistles, and at the close of these salutations they had this grand outburst "Unto him that loved us and washed us from our sins in His own blood and hath made us Kings and priests unto God and His Father, to him be glory and dominion for ever and ever." He proposed to discuss this text under two heads: The work which John ascribed to God, or the three-fold work, and the reason why he performed this work—because he loved them. Washed them from sins, was a general term used very frequently and implied two things—deliverance from guilt of sin and deliverance from the power of sin. As Dr. Guthrie had said Heaven was reached by the drawing of two bows—one drawn when pardon was received and one drawn when they were sanctified.

MEN MUST BE PARDONED

as well as sanctified and sanctified as well as pardoned. Their pardon was an immediate one. He spoke of the suspence and agony of the man who was under a death sentence and waiting for a reprieve, and said Jesus Christ never kept a man in suspence. Before the trembling penitent had time to say "Lord be merciful to me a sinner," the pardon came. It came just as soon as the power of their claim laid hold upon the Saviour. It covered all a man's sins. If it did not it would be of no use to him. The pardon was not only immediate and full, but was final, for all time and eternity. Some people say, well if this is final I may go and sin as much as I please. Oh, no. How much sin would please a man? If truly pardoned it would have the very opposite effect. It would be the same as with the old soldier who had been repeatedly sentenced by his general for offences and at last the general did not know what sentence to pass, when a brother officer suggested that he had never given him a pardon. Accordingly the old soldier was brought in and the general, instead of sentencing him, gave him a free pardon. The soldier was thunderstruck, but from that day until the end of his life no better or braver soldier wore Her Majesty's uniform. Just so was it with Christ. There was that little clause showing the way that this pardon had been received—He washed us from our sins by his own blood. "My friends," said the preacher,

"NEVER FORGET THAT.

There are some things that no man with a heart in him ever forgets. The old house at home, the flowers that grew in the window, the vines that ran on the walls, the little brook that flowed babbling by and on whose banks we often played with those now long gone away, the good old Book and the gray-haired old sire who read from that Book, the old mother, at whose knee we were first taught to say 'Our Father.' These things may be forgotton, but never, never, while your heart is warm with life, never, never, while reason is on her throne, never forget that God pardoned all." The preacher then spoke of sanctification. It should not be forgotton that whom the Lord justified he sanctified. Sanctification was as necessay as pardon. If the people of Peterborough went to Heaven as they were now, that would not be Heaven, it would be Peterborough. There must be a change, and that change was sanctification and was included in "washed us from our sins in His own blood." They were made kings and priests unto God. As Lord's kings one of the meanings held was that they should be finally crowned and the reference was to the crowning in heaven. But, he did not think that was all. Religion would give a man a royalty of character here on earth, and pointed to the illustration in the trial of Paul before Felix, and asked which presented the kingly appearance. Some might object to this illustration, he said, because Paul was an inspired apostle, but he gave another, that of John Brown, a Scotch martyr. A mean Christian was to be despised, and, he thought, more harm was done by sneakiness and meanness than out and out sin, and they should always act a royal part. The term "priests" meant that we were separated. As the priests of old were a separated class, so were the Christians a separated people. This was a real separation at the present time, increasing until one ends in everlasting joy and the other in everlasting misery. Two may start from the same family altar. The one goes on and on until he reaches the ocean of God's eternal love, and the other goes on and on, down and down to the Atlantic of God's never-ending misery. They were separated for service not for enjoyment. Why had God done all this for them? Because he loved them. He loved them when they were lost, and as a congregation they should ascribe glory and dominion.

THE EVENING SERVICE.

There was no service held in St. Paul's last evening, to enable that congregation to unite with the St. Andrew's people in celebrating their anniversary. When Rev. Mr. Grant rose to announce the opening hymn in the evening he faced an audience that filled the church to its utmost capacity, every seat being filled and the aisles lined with camp stools. The rev. gentleman took as his text Job's words:—"Though He slay me yet will I trust him." The subject of the discourse was the trial and triumph of Job's faith. Such faith as Job's, the preacher said, was quite possible to-day and also highly desirable, and he showed how in the time of calamity or trouble there was no comforting word to be said except to point to a Providence and put faith in Him.

After the sermon little Lillie Jackson sang the Lord's Prayer in a sweet and extremely good voice for such a young child, and the immense congregation listened delighted. Indeed the singing of the choir, under the able leadership of Mr. Carter, was excellent at both services, while the music of song rendered by Miss Jackson was composed expressly for the occasion by Mr. Carter.

The collections were in aid of the church debt and were large.

To-night an anniversary tea will be held in the lecture room, after which an adjournment will take place to the church, where several divines will make short addresses.

Obituary.

Mr. Joseph H. Cobb and family will receive sincere symyathy in their bereavement on account of the death of their only daughter, a promising young lady seventeen years of age, which occurred this forenoon, from a disease of the throat. Mr. Cobb's elder daughter died about four years ago. The funeral will take place on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Winter.

Some say we will have an early winter, others think it will be late in coming, but we Canadians know it will "get there all the same," and therefore it is foolish to put off getting what is necessary to keep you warm. W. W. Johnston has a full assortment of Dry goods suitable for winter use. Blankets, Flannels and Dress Goods, all bought at low prices, to be sold cheap. Horsford's Acid Phosphate

IN GENERAL NERVOUS PROSTRATION, Dr. A. G. Bissell, Detroit, Mich., says: "I have used it in a severe case of general nervous prostration, and am very much pleased with the result. I shall prescribe it hereafter in similar cases with a great deal of confidence."

MUNIFICENT GIFTS.

Mrs. Nicholls Gives $12,000 to St. Andrew's and $3,000 to St. Paul's.

Mrs. Robert Nicholls, by whose generosity the Nicholls Hospital was established, has given another proof of her liberality. She is a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church. This church was a couple of years ago rebuilt and is a handsome structure. Previous to erecting this new building the church was free from debt, but, as is usual, a portion of the expenditure for the new church was left to be paid in the future. The debt on the church yesterday, the day of the anniversary, was $12,000. Collections were taken up to apply on the debt, and Mrs. Nicholls placed upon the plate a cheque for $12,000, the entire amount of the debt. Mrs Nicholls had previously given $5,000 to the church. When the envelope was opened the officers of the church were surprised and delighted upon seeing the munificent gift it contained.

St. Andrew's is not the only church that has been benefited by Mrs. Nicholls' generosity. Upon the same day she presented the Building Committee of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church with a cheque for $3,000, a contribution to the building fund of the church and to be applied on the debt.

Such Christian liberality is appreciated, not only by the congregations of St. Andrew's and St. Paul's, who are directly benefited, but also by the people generally, who recognize the spirit of generosity that prompted the giving of such magnificent offerings to assist the churches.

Finger Amputated.

George Miller, the young man who had the first and third fingers taken off in a loom at Brodie's mill some time ago, had to have the middle finger amputated just about the middle joint this morning. It was thought at the time of the accident that the middle finger could be saved.

IT'S positively the chance of a lifetime to get 3 boxes of matches for 10c. at M. R. Kidd's.

Military Pomp.

There is always something attractive about a military display. The uniforms and the marching of the men, even if unaccompanied by other attractions, will draw large numbers to see them. At the military concert on the evening of Thanksgiving Day these will be accompanied by sword and bayonet exercises, fencing bouts, striking tableaux, instrumental solos, music by the band, tugs of war, etc., forming an entertainment that will be delightful.

Accident at the Central.

Just after school came out at noon to-day, Johnnie Figg, aged nine years, was playing with some companions on an acting bar which was in the yard when he fell and dislocated his arm at the elbow and also fractured it just below that joint. The little fellow was taken home and Dr. Kincaid was called in and set the broken arm. The acting bar from which the boy fell should not have been in the yard as it had only been removed from the gymnasium temporarily, and, of course, there was no mattress under it.

Brevities.

—No Police Court to-day.

—No Council meeting to-night.

—Ashburnham Council to-night.

—Cheese Board meets to-morrow.

—School Board to-morrow night.

—There were no arrests made since Saturday.

—The 57th Battalion will have a march out to-morrow night.

—This is Gunpower Fifth, and the Orangemen have a ball and supper to-night.

—A remarkable event—Mr. Thos. Parington caught a butterfly to-day. Rather late seizin'.

—Street Inspector Pope had a gang of scrapers at work on the streets this morning. They needed it.

—Nine cows were run in to No. 1 pound last night. There is a dollar damages against each animal.

—Those who are to take part in the bayonet exercises, tableaux and tugs-of-war at the military concert are requested to be present at the drill shed this evening.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth it relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether rising from teething or other causes 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

That's the Idea. Brace Up! Entirely, we mean, in a clothing sense.

Fall weather is on us. Warmer Clothing is a necessity.

Take a look at our Suitings. Worth buying, you say. Right you are, absolutely right.

Our top price suit of Scotch Tweed are excellent. They look well and wear well.

But it isn't every man that cares to pay the top price even if he gets a tip-top article. Then we catch him with a Canadian Tweed Suit that's a daisy, every time.

And so on down the range of goods and prices. But the fit and finish, mind you, is identical in all cases. You get the style no matter what you order.

It is extremely interesting to visit some of the leading manufacturing houses in Toronto. Perhaps the most interesting and surprising of them all are the extensive Ornamental Stained-Glass and Decorative works of the McCausland & Son. It is from this establishment that the finest windows have come for the principal edifices, throughout our country.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack whenever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette

Van Deckermann's Bargain.

By M. THEED.

It was not, however, until close upon Christmas week, which we were going to spend, as usual, with my wife's father down in Sussex, anything more was said of the private understanding between my new landlord and myself; I had been trying to overcome Mary's scruples about remaining behind with the children, after I was compelled to return to the office, and as there was annually the same little discussion between us, my unselfish little woman generally getting the better of it, I was not surprised to find that our shrewd old friend had reckoned upon this, and was prepared with a suggestion in his own interest. Mrs. Thurnell might, he said, make herself quite happy about me and do him a favor at the same time by allowing me to become his guest for the few evenings I should otherwise have to spend by myself. The longer change could not but be beneficial to her and to the children, and why should she not have it? Besides, it was necessary for the carrying out of what he called our innocent conspiracy against her that some such arrangement should be made. To Mary it seemed only a further proof of his kindness and consideration, and the invitation, the curious circumstances of which were known only to him and to me, was accepted accordingly. It was not, however, until I had dined for the first time, tete-a-tete, with Mr. Van Deckermann, I was made aware of what was expected of me, and shall I confess that the knowledge did detract somewhat from my enjoyment of the best glass of Madeira I had ever been privileged to taste?

The proposition my host had to make to me was simply this: In all respects but one I was to be, as my wife had been led to suppose, his guest in his own house; that is to say, I was to breakfast with him before I went cityward in the morning, and to return to Woodlands to dine and spend the evening, but my sleeping quarters were to be at the Cedars! I should thus be in a position to satisfy myself as to the fitness of the house for the accommodation of my family, and the absurdity of the reports which had been circulated respecting it. We both knew the folly and credulity in which such stories originated, but we knew too the rascality which not unfrequently took advantage of such weakness to answer its own purpose, and it would be well to ascertain that there had been no such agency at work in the present instance, or if there had, to discover it.

"I do not say that I have reason to distrust either old Minchin or his wife," added Mr. Van Deckermann, "but my loss has been their gain all these years, and human nature is weak. The old woman was shaking in her shoes the day I took your wife over the house, and she would not have been behindhand in putting a spoke in the wheel, had the opportunity been given her, on the bare suspicion of the real facts of the case. If there has been any roguery at work, it is for you, in your own interest as well as in mine, to get to the bottom of it. You are not to be scared by the fear of the supernatural—that bugbear of the ignorant and the superstitious—for you do not believe in it, and I will see that you have the means of turning the tables upon any clumsy impostor who may try his hand at frightening you."

The words were cheery and confident enough, but there was a certain eagerness in the utterance of them, and the old man's keen eyes had a curious shiftiness of expression I had never remarked in them before, as he thus addressed me. I could not help thinking he was trying to convince himself, as well as me, of the force of what he was saying. That the whole thing appeared to him less commonplace than he wished to make it out, I felt as certain as that I myself was not, really and truly, going to the investigation of it in the proper daredevil spirit. I did not believe in ghosts or ghost-lore, that I maintain; but if I had ever had much of the spirit of adventure in me the monotony of a business life had knocked it out of me, and I had come to regard a good night's rest as one of the best things in life. Still the stake was well worth the playing for, and I did my best to look pleasant over it.

One thing I did ask my host. What was the story attached to the house, and what form did the apparition take?

He tapped his snuffbox and shook his head.

"No, no," he said, "I am not going to put things into your head. How can I answer for the state of your digestion, or your probable immunity from nightmare, as it is? You know too much—that is too say, you would know too much, supposing you were a man of weak nerves or vivid imagination, already. If I could have kept you in utter ignorance the test would have been a surer one, but that I could not, and I have to require of you, on your honor, that you neither seek nor accept at the hands of any one the information I withhold from you. You will not seek—of that I am satisfied—what I wish you distinctly to promise me is that you will refuse to lend an ear to any one who may try to enlighten you—the woman Minchin, for example."

I gave him my word that I would respect his wishes, and an hour or so later found me in possession of the room which had been assigned me at the Cedars. Mr. Van Deckermann had not himself faced the cutting cold of the moonlit December night, but the old couple were on the lookout for my appearance, and things had been made more comfortable than I expected. Some of the old furniture, of which my host had spoken when he first entered upon the subject of the house, had been brought down from the garrets, and disposed in what would appear to have been its original quarters, while a bright fire burned frostily in the old fashioned grate. I observed, with a certain remorseful appreciation of a thoughtfulness for my comfort for which I should not have given her credit, that Mrs. Minchin had not limited her provision for my accommodation to absolute necessaries. Of the two windows, the one nearest to the bed was closely and carefully curtained—for the other, as she took occasion to explain, there was no curtain forthcoming, and an armchair and footstool, with the faded coverings of which the moth had long since made acquaintance, had been drawn up to the fire. The old woman seemed indeed to have remembered everything, even to the night light in a saucer on the mantle piece, to ignite which was her last care before leaving me for the night. For the rest, she was as taciturn as her employer could have wished. She received my thanks in silence, and, having ascertained at what hour she was to call me, left me to myself with all possible celerity.

When she had turned her back I proceeded to take a minute survey of the room. That it was, or had been at some time, the scene of whatever mystery was connected with the house, I could not reasonably doubt, seeing the object with which I had been sent there. The first thing for me to do then was to discover in what way—if any—it was likely to lend itself to the perpetration of a fraud.

Briefly, I could find nothing in it to reward my inquiries. It was a large room, almost square, with nothing remarkable about it. There were, as I have said, two windows, and there was one of the closets my wife's heart had delighted in. I opened the door of this and looked in. It was empty, as it had been, in common with the rest, on the occasion of my previous visit. The bedstead, which had been brought down from the attics, was of mahogany, minus poles or hangings. Nowhere was there any ambush for anything; one could see the room and all it contained at a glance. I went to the curtained window and examined it carefully; it fitted well and was fastened; so was the other, the blind of which I drew up, and saw the garden lying below me, every shrub that it contained clearly defined in the moonlight. I left the blind up—undressed with my usual expedition, and went to bed and to sleep.

Turnbull's Column.

This Column Tells What is Doing at Turnbull's.

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it takes an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c, or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap. Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's. We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

THE ELECTION IN THE STATES.

A Bird's-Eye View of the Field—The Candidates for President.

BUFFALO, Nov. 6.—All the states will elect Presidential electors by popular vote to-day. The electors then chosen will meet at their respective State capitals on Monday, Jan. 14, 1889, and cast their ballots for President and Vice-President of the United States. The whole number of electors is 401: necessary for a choice, 201. The several states are entitled to a representation in the Electoral College and in Congress as given below. The names of the States which, in 1884, cast their votes for Cleveland are printed in Italics. Those which voted for Blaine are printed in Roman. Cleveland received 219 electoral votes and Blaine 182.

	Elect-ors.	Con-gress		Elect-ors.	Con-gress
Alabama	10	8	Mississippi	9	7
Arkansas	7	5	Missouri	16	14
California	8	6	Nebraska	5	3
Colorado	3	1	Nevada	3	1
Connecticut	6	4	New Hampshire	4	2
Delaware	3	1	New Jersey	9	7
Florida	4	2	New York	36	34

Maryland	8	6	Vermont	4	2
Massachusetts	14	12	Virginia	12	10
Michigan	13	11	W. Virginia	6	4
Minnesota	7	5	Wisconsin	11	9

The organized territories—Arizona, Dakota, Idaho, Montana, New Mexico, Utah, Washington and Wyoming—are each entitled to elect one delegate to Congress, who is permitted to speak but not to vote. These delegates will all be elected to-day.

The several regularly nominated candidates for President and Vice-President at this election are:

DEMOCRATIC.
President.....Grover Cleveland
Vice-President.....Allen G. Thurman

REPUBLICAN.
President.....Benjamin Harrison
Vice-President.....Levi P. Morton

PROHIBITION.
President.....Clinton B. Fisk
Vice-President.....John. A. Brooks

UNITED LABOR.
President.....Robert H. Cowdrey
Vice-President.....W. H. T. Wakefield

UNION LABOR.
President.....Alson J. Streeter
Vice-President.....Charles E. Cunningham

AMERICAN PARTY.
President.....James L. Curtis
Vice-President.....P. D. Wiggington

The total popular vote for President in 1888, as compiled by the American Almanac was;

Cleveland (Democrat)	4,911,017
Blaine (Republican)	4,848,334
Butler (Greenback)	133,825
St. John (Prohibition)	151,809
Cleveland's plurality	62,683

All the States except Maine, Oregon and Vermont will elect Congressmen to-day. State officers will be chosen in all except Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Mississippi, Oregon, Rhode Island, Vermont and Virginia. In California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, West Virginia and Wisconsin State Legislatures will be elected.

In the election of 1884 the four States doubtful by common consent voted as follows:

CONNECTICUT.

Cleveland (Democrat)	67,182
Blaine (Republican)	65,898
Butler (Greenback)	1,635
St. John (Prohibition)	1,494

INDIANA.

BLAKE AGAINST MOWAT.

The Two Leaders on Opposite Sides in the Red River Valley R.R. Crossing Case.

TORONTO, Nov. 6.—Mr. Blake will probably be in Toronto this evening, returned from British Columbia. He will argue before the Supreme Court at Ottawa the case of the Canadian Pacific Railway in the matter of the Red River Valley crossing, as against Mr. Mowat who holds the brief of the Red River Valley Railroad and the Province of Manitoba.

MURDERED IN CHICAGO.

A Young Canadian Stabbed to Death for Shouting for Harrison.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Frank Day, a young Canadian, was stabbed and killed at Clark and Jackson-streets at midnight by an unknown man. Day, with two friends, was on his way to the Polk-street depot. Just before they reached Jackson-street they were met by another party of three, all more or less intoxicated. As they passed the strangers shouted, "Hurrah for Cleveland!" Day shouted back, "What's the matter with Harrison?" The strangers immediately assaulted them and several blows were struck. A moment later one of the strangers plunged a knife into Day's breast, and the latter sank to the pavement with a groan.

The assassin and one of his companions started off on a run, but the other remained standing on the spot, overcome by the horror of the act. Day's friends seized and held him until an officer came. He proved to be Wm. H. Warder, an engineer in the Government building. Warder pretended when questioned regarding the affair to be drunk, and declared he knew nothing about it. He even answered that he did not know who the men were that were with him. Deceased was 28 years old, unmarried, and had only been six months in this country. His relatives live in Toronto.

The father of the young man referred to above is David Day of Eramosa, up in the County of Wellington. Frank's brother, Frederick, works for the Toronto Electric Light Company. Young Day lived in Toronto for a short time in the early part of this year and then moved to Grand Crossing, Ill., and thence to Chicago. L. C. Smith of the high school, Oshawa, is his brother-in-law. At one time the young man was a member of "A" Battery, Quebec. It is understood the remains will be brought to Canada for interment.

SCORING THE GRAND TRUNK.

Wretched Service—Whitby Town Council Voices the General Indignation.

WHITBY, Nov. 6.—In the Town Council here last night F. Annes, seconded by Reeve G. Y. Smith, introduced a resolution, which was adopted, giving expression to the general and strong feeling of indignation amongst Whitby's business men at the present mail service from the west in the morning given by the Grand Trunk under the new time table put in force last week. Mailt cannot now be distributed here before 10.30, and once already it was noon when the papers and letters were first received. Mr. Hickson is urgently requested to have an early morning train run again. Mr. Wm. Smith, M.P. for South Ontario, was asked to lay the matter of serious loss of time and inconvenience resulting from the Grand Trunk's present service before the Postmaster-General with a view to making better arrangements.

Keho to be Hanged.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 6.—Jack Keho was found guilty of the murder of Thomas Donnelly yesterday afternoon, and sentenced to be hanged on Dec. 14.

The Fate of the Pigeon.

PICKERING, Nov. 6.—Mr. Wm. Gold shot in Pickering township the other day a handsome pigeon which was in the company of some wild pigeons. On the under side of its wing is stamped, apparently by a rubber stamp and with the customary ink, "Geo. Jupp, Buffalo, N. Y." There is a patch of color (presumably marking ink) on its right shoulder. The bird has been stuffed, and is at present at the Gordon House. No doubt it crossed the line free of duty, which it was not accustomed to pay on the air line which it took.

SUDDEN DEATH AT HAMILTON.

A Drill Instructor Charged With Assault—Terrible Mistake of a Druggist.

HAMILTON, Nov. 6.—Thomas Renwick, a well-known insurance man, awakened his wife about 4 o'clock yesterday morning by his struggles and exclamations. Mrs. Renwick immediately alarmed the household but by the time her father reached the bedside Mr. Renwick was dead. The physicians attribute his death to apoplexy.

Sergt.-Major Athawes, drill instructor of the Thirteenth Battalion and the school boys, appeared at the Police Court yesterday to answer the charge of assault laid against him by Walter B. Champ, who attends the Queen Victoria school. In his evidence young Champ said that they were marking time and the instructor ordered "right turn." He turned but stopped marking time, and Mr. Athawes struck him on the leg with a short cane he carried. The boy told him not to do it again, and with that the drill instructor struck him on the thigh. Young Champ called him a crank and received another blow. Then he ran away and fell backwards. In trying to save himself he sprained his wrist. Sergt.-Major Athawes testified that he had occasion to speak to Champ about getting out of the line, and he struck him with the cane to make him more attentive. He struck him again because he spoke insolently. The Magistrate reserved his decision until Saturday.

It was learned yesterday that the death in Los Angeles of Robert Balfour, second son of Peter Balfour, chief assessor, and brother of the architect of the new City Hall, was the result of an accident. Mr. Balfour went to a drug store in Los Angeles on Saturday for some wine of pepsin, as a remedy for dyspepsia. He was given carbolic acid by mistake, and, on swallowing it, was immediately seized with violent pain. Three doctors were quickly on hand, but they could not save him.

Powder Mill Explosion.

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 6.—About 11.30 yesterday forenoon a terrible explosion was heard at South Windham. It was soon learned that the powder mills at Gambo, two miles distant, had blown up. Only two men were in the mills at the time, and both of them were terribly mangled and fatally hurt.

The Smallpox in Sarnia.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Surgeon Farnum reports to the Marine Hospital, Port Huron, that he has investigated the outbreak of smallpox at Sarnia, Canada, and finds three cases perfectly isolated, with a strict quarantine maintained.

REVOLUTIONARY POLACKS

REGRET THE FAILURE OF THE PLOT AGAINST THE CZAR.

King's Councillor Jackson—The Sackville Incident—A Revolt in Servia Looked for by the Porte.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—A despatch to The Daily News from Nice in regard to the Wurtemburg scandal says that King's Councillor Jackson, whose appointment at a modest salary was sanctioned by the Wurtemburg Cabinet, is wrongly confounded with the other American favorites of the King; that Jackson is surrounded with none of the luxury displayed by the others and that he had nothing to do with their introduction.

The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Daily Telegraph says Gen. Gourko has sent a telegram to the Minister of the Interior announcing that he has discovered the existence of a revolutionary society in Poland with numerous branches. Many members have been arrested, including a number of students, a magistrate and several Government officials, all of whom are in prison at Warsaw. The society has issued a manifesto regretting the failure of the recent attempt on the life of the Czar at Kutais and threatening a repetition of the attempt.

Florence Toole, daughter of John L. Toole the comedian, died to-day. She was the last of his children and her death has completely prostrated the veteran actor.

With reference to the Sackville incident, The Standard says: The real grievance is not the letter written by Lord Sackville but his verbal explanation of it. It will, however, surprise the people of England to be told when Lord Salisbury asked for an accurate statement of what Lord Sackville really said the American Minister was unable to finish the desired information and immediately after and before Lord Salisbury was enabled to act, Lord Sackville received his papers.

Advices from Shanghai say that the King of Corea has demanded the removal of the Chinese residents at Seoul. English and German gunboats have been ordered to Formosa to protect the interests of foreigners there. A rebellion has broken out among the Chinese residents against excessive taxation.

The Times' correspondent at Rome says that trustworthy advices have been received from Constantinople to the effect that the Government there is expecting a revolt in Servia.

GLADSTONE AT BIRMINGHAM.

The Fisheries Question and the Sackville Incident Discussed.

BIRMINGHAM, Nov. 6.—Mr. Gladstone arrived here yesterday. The city was en fete in his honor. Mr. Gladstone will remain in Birmingham most of the week and will make several speeches. He was driven to the Town Hall in a carriage drawn by four horses. A great crowd awaited him and numerous deputations presented him with addresses. Mr. Gladstone, in a speech, said the addresses fully recognized the fact that the Irish question was really the English, Scotch and Welsh question, and that until the question was settled the country could know neither solid peace nor effectual progress.

He said that all efforts to solve the fisheries question with the United States had been egregious failures. The Liberals did not wish to increase the difficulty of settling the matter in dispute, but they were desirous by a judicious choice of persons and the suggestions of measures that the question should be settled in a manner tending to draw both countries into closer relations.

The Sackville incident, he said, was extremely unfortunate. It had resulted in the infliction of a serious slight and disparagement upon England. He hoped the matter was susceptible of satisfactory explanation. The incident ought to serve to moderate a little the spirit of vaunting and bragging which is in vogue among the Tories.

The Cut in Provision Rates.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—The Chicago Freight Committee of the Central Traffic Association met yesterday to consider what steps should be taken by the Chicago lines in view of the five-cent cut in the provision rates from Kansas City to the seaboard by the lines leading eastward from East St. Louis. It was proposed that all lines put the reduced rates into effect at the junction points south of Chicago, but this proposition was voted down. It was finally decided to refer the matter to Chairman Blanchard or his authorized representative with a request to confer with the East St. Louis lines and induce them if possible to restore the provision rate. An adjourned meeting will be held to-morrow to hear the result of the conference.

Purely Imaginative.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Nov. 6.—Captain Healy of the steam revenue cutter Bear was a visitor by invitation at the Board of Trade rooms yesterday. He made an address on the Arctic Ocean, its winds, currents, ice packs and scanty means of living open to wrecked crews who might escape to the shore. He said that when the alarming reports were circulated to the effect that thirteen whalers had been locked in the ice in September he gave them no credence whatever and that the statements with respect to expeditions being fitted out at the Fox Islands and at San Francisco for their relief were purely imaginative.

Election Excitement in Gotham.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Such turbulent crowds gathered in front of the Republican and Democratic State headquarters last night about 9 o'clock, shouting wildly for Cleveland and Harrison and berating each other that officers were ordered out, and the street was cleared to prevent a riot.

Already the police have ready for use more than 500 warrants for persons who have illegally registered. The men will be arrested if they attempt to vote.

Attempted Murder in a Courtroom.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 6.—At Webster Grove, a suburb of the city, while two negroes were under examination for attempted criminal assault on two white girls, the girls' father stood up in court and began firing at the prisoners. The negroes dropped on their knees and begged piteously for mercy. The infuriated father was prevented by the crowd from killing both men as he had evidently intended.

Moxie Thompson Must Pay.

BOSTON, Nov. 6.—Judge Mason of the Superior Court yesterday gave his decision in the case of Mira Beals v. Dr. Augustus Thompson, refusing to set aside the verdict of $30,000 for alienating her husband's affections, which was given a few days ago.

Sued the G. T. R. for $5000.

SARNIA, Nov. 6.—The widow of Wm. Bailey, an old Sarnia boy who was killed on the Grand Trunk Railway near Detroit last July by the night express on the engine of which he was fireman being ditched by an open switch, has entered an action against the Grand Trunk Railway for $5000.

A Dedication at the Capital.

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—The new Orange hall was dedicated here yesterday afternoon by R. W. Bro. James Clarke, Deputy Grand Master of Ontario East. The ceremony was a success in every way.

The Daily Review.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1888.

THE PRESIDENT MADE RIDICULOUS.

THE United States papers are not all pleased with President Cleveland's action in dismissing Lord Sackville. The New York Herald attacks Secretary of State Bayard and handles him severely for his part in the affair—none too severely, though it is surprising that the Herald should speak as it has done at such a time. The Herald says:—

"What strikes us disagreeably, and will so strike all Americans jealous of their country's honourable fame, is that Mr. Bayard, in the conduct of this Sackville matter, has utterly failed to advise the president rightly, and has conducted himself in a manner which must make every American ashamed. Mr. Bayard has allowed himself to scold to the reporters at Lord Sackville, day after day, with a lack of dignity and decency of which we hope no other American public man than Mr. Blaine is capable. Mr. Bayard scandalously forgot all the responsibilities and decencies of his position and descended to the level of a mere stump orator. We do not remember any public man who, in such a position, has so utterly forgotten himself and the proprieties attached to his important place.

"This country will not, we believe, applaud this part of Mr. Cleveland's official life. He has been a wise, honest and dignified ruler of the union. We regret that in the treatment of this case he has, under the evil influence of an incapable and hysterical secretary of state, acted in a way to forfeit something to the high opinion which his fellow citizens had of him.

"We trust he will make haste to dismiss Mr. Bayard and get himself a secretary of state on whose self-possession, calmness and serious advice he can more safely depend. A secretary of state who, in an emergency, scolds like a hysterical woman is not a safe man for any president, but least of all for one like Mr. Cleveland, who, with the best intentions, is not as fully at home in the conduct of our foreign relations as though he had made these a study of his life.

"If Mr. Cleveland had quietly asked the British government to send him another minister in place of Lord Sackville no one would have objected, least of all Lord Salisbury, who could not afford to put himself and his government in a false and absurd position by hesitating to comply with such a request. But under Mr. Bayard's advice, Mr. Bayard's mismanagement, and Mr. Bayard's scolding the British minister to the reporters the president has been made ridiculous, and Lord Salisbury has, by mere silence, gained the advantage for his government."

There is no doubt that the Herald is correct when it says that every American should be ashamed, but in placing all the blame upon the Secretary of State it errs. Mr. Cleveland is responsible and he alone is responsible to the people. It has been suggested that the Herald expected a Democratic defeat and wished to be able to ascribe the defeat to Mr. Bayard, but even in this time of trickiness in politics across the lines it might be as well not to impugn the Herald's motives, at least in acknowledging that a mistake had been made, although in trying to relieve Mr. Cleveland it does not give him credit or discredit for his full share of the responsibility for the action he took.

PROBABLY not in the history of churches in Canada has a gift so munificent been so unostentatiously made as was Mrs. Nicholls' gift to St. Andrew's Church when she placed a cheque for $12,000 upon the collection plate.

TO-DAY the electors of the United States decide whether the administration will be in Democratic or Republican hands during the next four years.

A Success in Toronto.

The Toronto Mail of Oct. 9, says:—The McGibney family opened a three nights engagement in Association Hall last evening, under auspices that paid a high tribute to the reputation they have sustained during the last fourteen years all over the continent of America. It is safe to say that the hall since its opening was never so crowded, it being estimated that over fifteen hundred people were present. When it is stated that over one hundred persons were not able to obtain seats, but had to stand in the aisles and other places throughout the evening, it will be seen how anxious the citizens of Toronto were to hear the talented musical family. The appearance of the family is unique in the history of musical entertainments in Toronto, the father and mother being ably and cleverly supported by thirteen of their children. The applause and encores given throughout the evening must have convinced them that the audience appreciated their music. The programme was taking and popular. The youngest portion of the family created no little amusement and merriment by their kindergarten songs and other neat specialties, while the parents, assisted by the older members, executed with taste and finish their several parts. Among the most pleasing features were the orchestral selections, vocal solos and quartettes. They were all encored and good-naturedly responded to. Miss Viola and Mrs. Hugh McGibeny gave a very pretty cornet duet. Master Dockis, a boy scarcely ten years of age, showed great ability in his clarionet solo. The gem of the evening was the violin solo by Mr. Hugh. The family will undoubtedly be greeted by large audiences to-night and to-morrow night, and the matinee Wednesday afternoon." ONTARIO'S HARVEST.

The Report of Mr. Blue's 870 Correspondents on the Year's Operations.

TORONTO, Nov. 6.—Mr. A. Blue, Secretary of the Ontario Bureau of Industries, has just issued a review of the harvesting operations of the year, together with the yields of all field crops. The review is based upon the reports of 870 correspondents. Fall wheat was so thinned out by the dry and cold weather of early spring that the yield has hardly reached a good average in any part of the Province, but the ripening season was so favorable that the grain matured well in respect of quality. It is plump and hard, and generally exceeds the standard weight. The spring crops were superior both in yield and quality throughout the southwestern part of the province, and to some extent also in the extreme eastern part; but throughout the counties on Georgian Bay and as far east as Brockville on the St. Lawrence the drouth of June and July had an almost disastrous effect. Spring wheat suffered least, but oats, barley and peas were greatly stunted in their growth. The following table gives the produce of the several grain crops, computed from averages of yield on the threshing floor:

Crops.	Acres.	Bushels.	Bush. per acre.
Fall Wheat:
1888	836,537	13,830,787	16.7
1887	897,743	14,440,611	16.1
Spring Wheat:
1888	367,850	6,453,559	17.5
1887	484,821	5,633,117	11.6
Barley:
1888	895,432	23,366,569	26.1
1887	767,346	17,134,830	22.3
Oats:
1888	1,849,965	65,466,911	35.4
1887	1,682,463	49,848,101	29.6
Rye:
1888	84,087	1,295,302	15.4
1887	68,362	894,887	13.1
Peases:
1888	696,653	14,269,863	20.5
1887	726,756	12,173,332	16.8

Corn and beans have proved excellent crops this season, but late planted fields were affected to a limited extent by the rain and frost. Sorghum and buckwheat have suffered greatly from drouth, followed by heavy rains. Acreage and yield:

Crops.	Acres.	Bushels.	Bush. per acre.
Corn (in the ear):
1888	222,971	17,436,780	78.2
1887	163,893	8,404,752	51.3
Buckwheat:
1888	57,538	1,222,283	21.2
1887	64,143	1,025,353	16.0
Beans:
1888	22,700	534,526	23.5
1887	20,275	275,975	13.6

The latter part of the growing season turned out most favorable for field roots, and as a consequence the reports are of a more cheerful character than was expected from August returns. Potatoes are a magnificent crop. Area and yield:

Crops.	Acres.	Bushels.	Bush. per acre.
Potatoes:
1888	153,915	22,273,607	144.7
1887	140,283	10,678,000	76.1
Mangel-wurzels:
1888	21,459	10,020,659	467.0
1887	17,924	5,695,761	317.8
Carrots:
1888	11,524	3,898,584	338.3
1887	9,110	2,105,686	231.1
Turnips:
1888	113,188	45,466,183	401.7
1887	105,322	31,413,456	298.2

The experience of clover this year has been almost identical with that of 1887. The majority of returns describe the crop as a complete failure.

The reports emphasize the statements made in the August report regarding fruit and fruit trees. A large yield of apples is the rule, but the fruit is uneven in size and quality. In some sections the apples are described as clean and free from worms, but from many points complaints come of small size, wormy fruit and heavy windfalls. The peach was poor in yield and quality, and the "yellows" appeared in places. Grapes, however was an immense yield, and the later small fruits were nearly an average.

Fall pasture was not in good condition, although much better than was expected when the last bulletin was issued.

The drouth has had a marked effect upon the dairying industry. There was a falling off in the milk supply to so great an extent that in several localities cheese factories were temporarily closed. The low price for cheese early in the season was also discouraging to patrons of factories, but during the last month a more hopeful feeling prevailed. Butter was in good demand all summer, and the good prices compensated to a large degree for the scarcity of milk and cream, resulting from poor pastures. The popularity of creameries and cheese factories has never been more severely tested than during the present season.

In almost all cases correspondents report the supply of labor as adequate, their being a scarcity only during harvest, and while securing roots and fruit. The complaints of too high a rate of wages and of unskilfulness of laborers are becoming fewer each year.

FIRE AT MONTREAL.

A Sash and Door Factory Completely Destroyed Last Night.

MONTREAL, Nov. 6.—Fire broke out in Joseph Paquette's sash and door factory and planing mill at the corner of Lacroix and Perthius-streets last night. The fire blazed away for three hours and the building was completely destroyed. Mr. Paquette estimates his loss at $70,000 with no insurance.

Soap Factory Burnt at Windsor.

WINDSOR, Nov. 6.—Cross' soap factory took fire at an early hour Sunday morning. The building being of wood and well saturated with oil, the flames spread rapidly, and for a time it was thought the surrounding cottages would go. The fire, however, was confined to the factory. Loss $8000; insurance $4500. It is supposed to be incendiary.

A Big Blaze at Macon.

MACON, Ga., Nov. 6.—The oil and paint store of T. C. Burke, adjaining stores of Musbourn, Van Sickle & Tyndall, hardware dealers, of H. D. Adams & Co., wholesale grocers, and of Charles Taylor, furniture dealer, were burned last night. Loss $125,000.

$10,000 Stock of Boots at 40c. on the Dollar.

An upheavel taken place in leather and the boot and shoe trade shattered to pieces. On Saturday we are going to run a special Boot Sale. Good Goods and Low Prices have gained for us the admiration of close buyers. Our 25c. Boots have completely demoralized the high priced dealers. One man says Goughs are selling below cost, so we are! That is we sell lots of Goods below the first cost of manufacture and still make a living profit. Some people would naturally like to know how we do it. "Here is the Secret." A wholesale man gets hard up, wants money, must have it. He knows Goughs are spot cash buyers. They send for the Wonderful Cheap Men. They arrive on the scene. The wholesale man says, Gough what will you give for 300 cases of these boots; Goughs took them over carefully, find them good desirableselling lines and make a bid of 40c. on the dollar; after hard fighting we get them. They arrive in Peterborough, are sold at 50c. on the dollar, we therefore sell them at half price and make a living profit for ourselves. These are a few of the many reasons why posterity has raised up and christened us GOUGHS, the Tireless, Sleepless, Wide-Awake Boot Men, GOUGHS, the Kings of Clothiers, GOUGHS, the Original Agitators of Small Profits, GOUGHS, the Wonders of the 19th Century. ADVERTISING

When Newspapers first began to be published in London, an editor took opportunity one day to say that a certain man desired a certain something—no matter what. That was the invention of advertising, though the inventor may not have known what he had found. From that time to this people have made more or less use of the papers to publish their wants, and tradesmen their wares; but we doubt very much whether any real improvement upon the first advertisement has ever been made. It was a frank statement that somebody wanted something and what it was that he wanted. Doubtless he got it. We want something. Want to sell goods. Good goods too. The best of the best in Groceries. The range of stock is a wide one. It has to be wide to suit all customers. That we do suit is positive.

If there is one thing we do better than another it is in TEAS.

It is our specialty. Years of experience tell us how and where to buy. We use that experience and select the best.

Do you like a good article? Do you value flavor and strength in Tea? If so give us a trial order.

In addition, every line of groceries you can call for we have.

Pearson will preside and addresses will be delivered by Rev. P. Clifton Parker and Rev. S. J. Shorey. Other clergymen of the town will take part. The musical service will be under the leadership of Mr. Carter. A collection will be taken up in aid of the Barnardo Home. The choirs of the different churches will unite for the day and the members of the choirs are requested to meet with Mr. Carter at the George-st. Church on Thursday evening next.

A Strange Manuscript.

Mr. J. Theo. Robinson, of Montreal, has issued a popular edition of the story "A Strange Manuscript found in a Copper Cylinder." The manuscript gives the account of a man who, lost from his vessel, was drawn by the currents to the south pole and lived among the people there. The tale abounds in incidents and the imagination rivals that of Rider Haggard, while at the same time it does not shock, and the theory of the lives of the people in this southern world is an interesting study that gives a charm to the book. The social system of the people and their ideas of life are the reverse of what they are here. For instance, the highest position among them is that of a pauper, while to load with riches is the severest punishment. It is a very interesting reading.

POISON IN HEAD-CHEESE.

Five Members of the Cronin Family have a Narrow Escape from Death.

At 66 Elm-st., in a small two story rough-cast house, lives the Cronin family, consisting of father, mother, two boys and three girls. A calamity of a most dreadful nature has just passed over this family, which was nothing less than the narrow escape from death in a most mysterious manner of five members of the household. It is supposed that some of the food that the family had been eating contained a poison, and from several circumstances connected with the case it is suspected that the poisonous substance was in some head-cheese of which the family had partaken at breakfast on Saturday morning. The poisoning occurred on Saturday, but nothing was heard of it until late last night.

This morning a REVIEW reporter went up to the house where the case was said to have happened, and from Mrs. Cronin learned the particulars of the case. She said that she had indeed had a very narrow escape from losing five members of her family—her husband, the two boys, aged 19 and 17 years respectively, and two little girls. "We suppose it was some head cheese which a neighbor had given us which caused the sickness. The children are all better now, but my husband is still unable to work on account of the

and at one time we thought he was going to die. He was far worse than any of the rest. We ate some of the head cheese on Thursday night for tea, but it was all right then and nothing followed. On Saturday morning we had the rest of the cheese for breakfast, and my husband, the two boys and two of the little girls ate of it, while I did not eat it as I did not like it and the youngest little girl did not get up in time to get any of it. My husband and the two boys went to work and I went to market. Upon returning home I found the two boys home sick and both the girls were also vomiting. I could not make out what was wrong, and about eleven o'clock my husband came from work also sick. I immediately sent for a doctor, and he blamed it on SOMETHING THEY HAD EATEN.

My husband was sure it was the head-cheese and I guess it was. I had an awful scare, but it might have been worse."

From the fact that the two—the mother and youngest child—who did not partake of the head-cheese were the only members of the family who escaped the sickness, it would seem that the head-cheese was the death-dealing edible. The neighbor who gave the cheese to Mrs. Cronin made it herself, and thus how the poisoning got in the head-cheese is a mystery, unless the meat that was used had been bad. It was a narrow escape and the results might have been too dreadful to think of.

Two Nights Only,

Indicted for Murder.

If a merchant sells a pair of shoddy boots to a boy and the boy through the shoddiness of the boots, gets his feet wet, catches cold and dies, can the merchant be legally arrested for murder? The court, after argument decides:—No. The boy knew, or should have known, or his father, if he had a father, which is likely, should have known for him, that Kidd, the boot man, sells J. D. King's make of boots, in which there is no shoddy. Besides, they cost no more, and it would be difficult to prove that the shoddy man really intended to kill the boy. (Signed) SWITCHEM I.

Notice of Visit.

N. Stanley, 18 Jewin-st., London, Eng., and 79 Bay-st., Toronto, Can., intends sending a practical optician, Prof. L. S. Druiff, of London, Eng., to his agent to Peterborough at regular intervals, who will be competent to measure and accommodate every defect of the eyesight that is prevalent. He will in every instance use the firm's Celebrated Spectacles and Eye-glasses, so well known for the delightful ease and comfort they confer on the wearer. There is no glimmering, wavering, dizziness or other distressing sensations so common in the many inferior grades at present in the market, but they comfort, strengthen and preserve the sight. Take care that you are not at present wearing a spectacle which is not exactly adjusted to your sight and consequently acting as a severe strain on the optical nerves, and remember that such a delicate organism as that of the eye requires exact accommodation. No charge made for examination. Remember the date, Saturday, November 10th, at Ormond & Walsh's, Druggists, Peterborough, Ont. 5d105-1w45

Friday and Saturday,

The Proud Bird of Freedom.

When Mr. John Minore rode up on the train from Hastings on Wednesday night he had a whole seat at his service. Not that Mr. Minore is at all exclusive, quite the reverse in fact. It was owing to the company he kept at the particular time, for with him was a magnificent American eagle with talons like gigantic fish hooks and a beak like an old fashioned sickle and quite as sharp. He had a bad eye in his head and stared at Mr. Minore as if mentally resolving to square the account some other day. The bird was bound wing and foot, a rather helpless captive. He was taken on the Ryan farm near Hastings, having been shot while on the wing with a rifle ball, disabling the left wing. After something of a scrimmage he was captured and secured by Dr. Coughlie, who sent the bird up to town by Mr. Minore. He, the bird, not Mr. Minore, will be fed for a week or two and then executed to be afterwards stuffed. He measured 7 feet 2 inches from tip to tip of wings and is in color a dark brown mixed with gray. Tied by a rope to one leg he stands, apparently in deep silioloquy, at Mr. Minore's shop, where he was regaled this morning on oyster crackers and sodas.

ADDRESSES BY LOCAL DIVINES AT ST. ANDREW'S.

Congratulating the Church on its Good Fortune—The Anniversary Celebration Concluded—Good Music—Splendid Supper.

The celebration of the anniversary of St. Andrew's church was concluded last evening by a soiree under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the church. Hard and faithfully did the ladies work yesterday afternoon preparing the tables for the tea which was served in the vestry from six o'clock until eight, and their efforts were rewarded by the praises of the large number who partook of the excellent spread. At eight o'clock an adjournment was made to the church, where a good sized audience had assembled to hear the programme of music and addresses. Rev. Mr. Bell, pastor of the church, presided over the meeting, and was supported on either side by the following divines:—Rev. Messrs. Grant, Parker, Torrance, Pearson and Shorey. The choir was present in full volume and sang in excellent voice.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.

Rev. Mr. Bell in opening the meeting referred to his eleven years' pastorate over the congregation, and then spoke of the magnificent gift of the day before which had freed the church of debt. They must thank God first and then the agents in God's hands next for this. They were not, he said, to let this piece of good fortune cause them to sit down and say "We have no more work to do." They were not to think of themselves, but looking out into the world help in the work of church. He could not express the united thanks of all the congregation to that kind and liberal heart and hand which had placed them in the position they occupied that night.

CHARLOTTE-ST. METHODIST CHURCH.

The chairman then said he would call upon one of his brothers who were present, and he would commence at the south of the town. He then called upon the Rev. Mr. Shorey to address the audience. The rev. gentleman expressed his pleasure at being present on such an occasion, and said he would feel it a pleasure under any circumstances to be with that people, but it gave him pleasure to be present with them and congratulate them on the very successful anniversary of the Sabbath past. He was glad, he said, to be in a church upon which there was no debt. He stood connected with a church upon which there was a debt, not perhaps burdensome, but it was a new experience to stand in a church free of debt. He warned them against attaching too much importance to minor matters and forgetting the great end of true religion. Everyone would expect greater work from them for he said, "to whom much is given much will be expected." He closed with the words "May God's blessing rest upon this church and this people."

Mrs. VanEvery then sang a solo in an excellent manner, and the chairman said he would go to the west, and called upon Rev. Mr. Parker for a short address.

THE BAPTIST CHURCH.

Rev. Mr. Parker expressed his pleasure at being present and congratulated the congregation upon the fact that the debt was off the church. He spoke of the many acquaintances he had made in St. Andrew's during his year's residence in Peterborough and hoped that he would make many more. He said he felt no envy at the position the congregation was in, but sympathized with them in their good fortune. The hand that gave that cheque had touched every Christian heart, and everyone would feel the gift and be benefited by it. He spoke of the work they were to do, and said that there were some people who thought that all they had to do was to fill their seats in church and pay their pew rents. That was not what they had to do. They were expected, as a congregation, each man to occupy himself in some part of the work and the next eleven years would be better than the first part. He closed with the hope that it would be so and that he would stand again upon that platform to congratulate them upon this work.

ST. PAUL'S, PRESBYTERIAN.

Miss Bibeck then rendered a very pretty solo in a remarkably pleasing manner, and Rev. Mr. Bell said he would take a look to the east and called upon Rev. Mr. Torrance to make a few remarks.

The pastor of St. Paul's said he was not out very early that morning, but he was told that all the St. Andrew's people had a smile on their faces, but he was sure that had he been seen he would have had as large a smile as any of them. Such a thing had never been accomplished in any other town or city in Canada. There was no case, he said, where a debt of $12,000 had been wiped off one church and $3,000 off another. He would always remember this fifth of November, with as much pleasure as the chairman and his congregation. He spoke of the visit of Rev. Mr. Grant here five years ago. In closing he said he was afraid Mr. Grant would be compelled to resign his charge in Orillia and go around the country preaching, so great would be the number of invitations to attend anniversaries when the news of the success of the day before became unknown. (Applause.)

Little Lillie Jackson then sang a solo "Thy Kingdom Come," in a very sweet and pleasing manner for such a young child.

ANOTHER PRESBYTERIAN.

With a few flattering words of introduction the Chairman called upon Rev. R. N. Grant to speak a few words. The rev. gentleman said he often felt proud of several things. He was proud that he was a Highland Scotchman, proud of his birthright as a Canadian, proud that he was a Presbyterian and he was proud that he was born in Peterborough. He knew no better place to be born, than in a town where $15,000 is given in one Sunday towards church debt. He had really, he said, first seen the light near there, and he felt proud that he had been there to preach the anniversary sermon at such a time. He remembered having heard how his mother had been once requested to carry the baby that was crying out of church, but he hoped they would not order him out this time. He remarked that he noticed that they called him "Dr." He had not been given that title as yet, and said he was beginning to think as the illustrious Samuel Jones had said that it would come pretty soon as it was coming down and down and would soon be far enough down to strike him. He quite agreed with all the other speakers that they were not to rest upon their laurels as all would expect great things from them, and, he thought, it would be rather a small thing if they did not do something for their neighbors. They had a fine manse, good enough for any ordinary or extraordinary minister, a splendid school room and fine yards, and there was nothing for them to do unless it was to add $500 to their pastor's salary and $1,000 to the schemes of the church. He then spoke of Christian work under three heads—its motive, its manner and its measure, and quoted a passage of scripture illustrating each. He spoke of the motive that should move a man, and said that no passage that suggested more clearly and favorably the proper motive than "The love of God constraineth us." There were the congregational, the ecclesiastical and patriotic motives, which were all good as far as they went. As to the manner he gave them the Lord's words to His disciples: "Be ye wise as serpents and harmless as doves." He spoke at some length on these points and closed by thanking them for asking him to preach their anniversary sermon, for their kind attention yesterday and that night.

Mr. Carter then rendered an organ solo in grand style, manipulating the keys as only a skilled organist can do.

GEORGE-ST. METHODIST.

The chairman then said, last but not least, he would call upon Rev. Mr. Pearson to say a few words. The pastor of George-st. said he must on behalf of another congregation congratulate the church upon the magnificent success of their anniversary. He was not of the same denomination, but he had wondered if there could not be a union for financial purposes. The great lights of the several churches had talked about a union on several bases, and he would strongly favor the selecting of the financial basis that they might experience the benefit of such liberality. He spoke of the love of the church of their denomination and said a man had no right to belong to a church unless he thought it was the best and offered the largest facilities for carrying on the work for which God had had raised him up. They only differed in spiritual agriculture. He thought that his brother before him had omitted one of the most important motives—the denominational motive. He enlarged somewhat on this point and said he hoped no person would be discouraged by this munificent gift because he or she could not give so liberally. He intended to use this harp of 12,000 strings to advantage with congregations to whom he might minister. He closed by telling them that they should start out from this anniversary to try and pay their debt to God with a thorough and spiritual consecration to His service.

Rev. Mr. Bell thanked the ladies who had been engaged arranging for the evening's entertainment and also the brethren for their kindly words of sympathy, and the choir closed the meeting with "God Save the Queen."

Personal.

At a meeting of fire insurance agents in Toronto on Monday, Mr. Geo. A. Morrison was appointed on the executive of the Association.

Mr. W. H. Hill has so far recovered from the effects of the fever attack that he was able to leave the hospital yesterday. In a few days his friends will welcome him back to his office. Mr. Annesly will probably leave the hospital this week and Mr. Scott continues to improve.

Mechanics' Assembly.

The assembly under the auspices of the Trades Associations on the eve of Thanksgiving Day gives promise of being very successful. An enjoyable time is expected and the committee is leaving nothing undone that could assist in making it a success.

A Success at Walkerton.

NEVER better, never cheaper, is what Kidd can say of his Goods at The Pantry.

Good Music.

One of the finest musical instruments is the clarionet and when played by a skilled musician it always delights those who hear it. Mr. McGuire, of the Uxbridge organ works, is one of the best clarionet players in the Province. He was one of the first paid men of the Toronto city band and ranked high in that organization. Mr. McGuire will take part in the military concert on the evening of Thanksgiving Day.

Thanking Her Personally.

The managers of St. Paul's church held a meeting last night at which the magnificent gift of Mrs. Nicholls to their building fund was brought up. The feeling of surprise was only surpassed by that of gratitude and the thanks of the whole congregation will be personally conveyed to the liberal-hearted lady by a committee appointed for that purpose, consisting of Messrs. Peter Hamilton, Walter Paterson, Wm. Walsh and D. B. Gardner.

A Successful Ball.

Yesterday was the fifth of November and Orange Lodge No. 80 celebrated the Gunpowder anniversary by a ball and supper in their hall. There were about fifty-five couple present, and, with the excellent music of Mr. Shorewood's Orchestra, a most enjoyable time was spent. The supper was served in the hall by Mr. Thos. Hooper and gave great satisfaction. Indeed everything passed off splendidly, and dancing ceased at an early hour this morning, everyone having enjoyed the night.

No Sales at the Cheese Board.

The Cheese Board met to-day, when 1755 boxes were boarded by 13 factories. The board was the same as last week with the exception that some of the factories had sold off the Board since last week, and Fenelon Falls was the only factory from the Victoria Section boarding any cheese. The buyers present were Messrs. Cook, Clurton, Wrighton, Fitzgerald and Bower. Mr. Cook started the bidding with 9½c., but Mr. Clurton went 9 9-16c. Mr. Cook then raised it to 9¾c., and there being no more bids the board was called off at this figure. All refused to sell. Mr. Cook then asked what they wanted, and was told 10¾c. "You'll never get it," he replied, "but I'll give you 10c." The board was called again at 10c. and Beasfort (50) and Shearer (150) sold at that figure, the rest all refused. There were no more offers and the the board adjourned for one week.

An Excellent Programme.

Vice-President Wesley occupied the chair at the meeting of the Young People's Association of the George-st. Methodist church last night. There was a fair attendance and a good programme had been prepared. The opening number was an instrumental solo by Miss Owens and number two was a song by Miss Allen, both of which were well rendered. Miss Ames gave a good reading and was followed by an excellent recitation given by Miss Sanders. After an intermission of five minutes the orchestra of the Y.M.C.A. gave a selection in fine style, and Miss Pearson was next on the programme with a well-rendered instrumental solo. Mr. Gallagher gave a humorous reading and an instrumental solo of just merit by Miss Wrighton brought the programme to a close. A business meeting was held afterwards and the date of the next meeting fixed for the 19th.

An Unfaithful Wife.

In the month of August last a Peterborough young man who had been working in the camps on the North Shore, struck Toronto with about $250 or $300 in his pockets. While doing the Queen City, the young man met a young lady there with whom he immediately fell in love, and as his affections were reciprocated in the most hearty manner the young man and young lady were made one with the assistance of a minister. The couple then came here and started housekeeping in the southern part of the town, and the river of their married life ran as smoothly and as peacefully as the Otonabee for some time. It finally was discovered that the young wife was corresponding with a young man in Toronto with whom the girl had kept company before her marriage. Whether the husband was suspicious of wife cherishing affection for another of the masculine gender or not, is not known, but he was a surprised man when upon returning home Friday night from work he found the house empty and his better half no where to be found. The husband worked in the upper part of the town and took his dinner with him, and while he had been away his wife had sold all their belongings and taken the train for Toronto.

COME! Brace Up!

That's the Idea. Brace Up! Entirely, we mean, in a clothing sense.

Fall weather is on us. Warmer Clothing is a necessity.

Take a look at our Suitings. Worth buying, you say. Right you are, absolutely right.

Our top price suit of Scotch Tweed are excellent. They look well and wear well.

But it isn't every man that cares to pay the top price even if he gets a tip-top article. Then we catch him with a Canadian Tweed Suit that's a daisy, every time.

And so on down the range of goods and prices. But the fit and finish, mind you, is identical in all cases. You get the style no matter what you order.

The Council then adjourned.

It's positively the chance of a lifetime to get 3 boxes of matches for 10c. at M. R. Kidd's.

A Pleasant Evening.

The regular weekly meeting of the Endeavor Society was held last evening in the school room of Charlotte-st. Methodist Church. The President, Mr. A. Tebb, occupied the chair. Arrangements were made for a Thanksgiving dinner on the 15th from 5 to 8 p. m., after which a fine programme will be provided. After intermission, Mr. L. Cluxton gave a reading, entitled "Old times and new." Mr. Barry, the editor of the "Casket," read an answer to the query, "Is it possible to prevaricate under any circumstances?" The article, which was well written, maintained that there were times when it was premissible. A good article of a humorous character was also read on the subject. "What is Love" in answer to a query on that subject. Master H. Cowle made his maiden speech on the subject of "Beechnuts" and was loudly applauded. Mr. Rowse read "Trouble in the Apothecary Corner," in his usual able manner, after which the meeting adjourned, all having spent a pleasant evening.

Brevities.

—The Board of Education meets to-night.

TOPICS FROM THE CAPITAL.

MR. JUSTICE PATTERSON TO BE SWORN IN TO-DAY.

The Canadians Commissioned in the Regular Army to Report on Nov. 25—The Reported Indian Fight Discredited.

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—Mr. Justice Patterson has arrived in the city and was to have been sworn in yesterday morning by Chief Justice Ritchie but his commission not having been received the ceremony was postponed until to-day at 11, when the Supreme Court meet for delivery of judgments and will afterwards take up the October list. It is probable however, that after Mr. Justice Patterson is sworn in the next business will be an application to fix a day for the hearing of the appeal in the Manitoba railway case.

The Militia Department has been informed that the seven commissions in the regular army annually granted to Canadians have been awarded and that these gentlemen are to report at the School of Military Engineering: R. E. Panet, Ottawa; T. Joly de Lotbiniere, Quebec; W. B. Leslie, Kingston; C. B. Farewell, Sherbrook; R. P. Bremner, Halifax, N. S.; P. C. Girouard, Dorval, P. Q.; T. Adams, Kingston.

Mr. Robert Sedgewick, Deputy Minister of Justice, left for New York yesterday, en route for England, to appear before the Privy Council in the appeal about the ownership of minerals in the railway belt in British Columbia.

The Comptroller of the Northwest Mounted Police has been informed that there is no truth in the reported fight a few days ago between the Blood and Stoney Indians south of Calgary. There was no encounter whatever, and it is doubtful whether there are any Bloods in that neighborhood. One Indian was accidentally shot by his own party and this probably gave rise to the story.

It is rumored that Lord Sackville-West will shortly arrive in Ottawa and be the guest of His Excellency the Governor-General at Rideau Hall for a few days.

The Public Works Department has let the contract for the Riding Hall at Regina to Maj. John Stewart of Ottawa, and for the Postoffice at Goderich to Tambling & Co. of London.

Captain John Murray of St. Catharines is said to be the successful tenderer for the work of deepening the Galops Canal.

Sir Hector Langevin leaves for Montreal this afternoon to take part in the annual trip of the Montreal Harbor Commissioners on Wednesday. He will go on to Quebec for a few days.

There was a meeting of Council yesterday but Sir John being in Kingston on account of the illness of his sister, only routine business was transacted.

Digging for a Treasure.

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—There is a peculiar kind of excitement existing in the fourth range of the township of Hull just now. A farmer there named Charley Pink owns a farm. A week or so ago a brother of his named John returned from the States. While there he consulted a clairvoyant, who told him that in his brother Charley's farm were buried three crockfuls of gold and named a cellar of an old house knocked down where the treasure lay hidden. One crock has been found, so the story goes, and the search still continues.

Drowned in a Well.

CORNWALL, Nov. 6.—A lad named Leduc, aged 7 years, was drowned in a well on his father's property here last evening. The young lad was sent out in search of his father. The evening was very dark, and it is supposed he did not observe the well and fell into it.

TRADE AND TRAFFIC.

Leading Features of the Grain and Produce Markets at Home and Abroad.

TORONTO, Nov. 6.—St. Lawrence Market yesterday morning was quiet. The supply and the demand were small and there was no change in prices.

On the hay market trade was flat. The receipts were small and the few loads of hay offered were picked up at $23 and $24. Straw sold at $15.

On the street market 200 bushels of wheat sold at $1.21 for fall, 97 and 98c. for goose, $1.20 and $1.21 for spring; 3000 bushels of barley at 67 to 75c. and 300 of oats at 41 and 42c.

On the Call Board $14 was bid for bran, Toronto freight, and one car was sold at that rate.

Eggs were quoted at 18c.; butter, rolls, 22c.; butter, tubs, 18c.

BEERBOHM'S REPORT.

Beerbohm reports: Floating cargoes—Wheat quiet and firm, corn nil. Cargoes on passage—Wheat and corn, quiet and firm. Mark Lane—Wheat firm; corn, American, quiet; Danube, turn dearer; flour, firm. Spot good Danube corn, 24s 9d, was 24s 6d; prompt, 24s 6d, was 24s. Spot good No. 2 Cal. wheat, 37s 3d, was 37s; present and following month, 37d 9d, was 37s 6d; do., good American corn, 23s, was 23s 6d. Am. flour, 27s, was 27s. Good cargoes—Australian wheat off coast, 42s 6d, was 42s 3d, present and following month, 43s, was 42s 9d. French country markets steady. English farmers' deliveries of wheat during the past week, 61,972 qrs.; average price, 32s 3d, was 32s 2d. Liverpool—Spot wheat inactive; corn firmer, held higher. No. 1 Cal., 8s 5½d; No. 2 Cal., 8s 2½d; both ½d dearer.

LIVERPOOL MARKETS.

Liverpool reports: Wheat, quiet; demand poor; holders offer freely; Corn, firm; demand good. Spring wheat, 8s 2½d; red winter, 8s 2½d; No. 1 Cal., 8s 4½d, and 8s 5½d. Corn, 4s 7½d. Peas, 6s 1d. Pork, 82s 6d. Lard, 42s 6d. Bacon, short cleared, 46s 6d; long cleared, 45s. Tallow, 30s. Cheese, 51s.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Probably on account of the overshadowing importance of election the attendance at the Utica Board of Trade yesterday was small. The exports have been growing less and less, and last week only about 6000 boxes were shipped abroad. Canada seems to be very largely supplying the English market. The home trade has taken about all the September cheese and has stocked up to such an extent that there is at present no active demand from any quarter. Yesterday's prices declined ½c. Transactions were: 34 lots, 2449 boxes, 9¼c; 12 lots, 979 boxes, 9¾c; 15 lots, 1215 boxes, 10c; 4 lots, 390 boxes, 10½c; 6 lots, 360 boxes, 10½c; 17 lots, 1348 boxes, on commission. Total transactions one year ago 12,064 boxes, ruling price 10½c.

Less attention was paid to the cheese question than to the election on the Little Falls market yesterday. Sales were light and prices off one-sixth cent from last week. The principal demand has been from the home trade and exporters have made very light purchases. Colored cheese has the preference and no sales of white stock were made at more than 9¾c. Following are the transactions: 40 lots at 9¾c, 26 lots at 10c, and 12 lots commission; total 4985 boxes. Farm dairies—Sales amount to 415 boxes and were at 9¾c to 10½c, bulk 10½c. Butter—Fifty-five packages of farm dairy butter sold at 22c to 23c.

TORONTO TOPICS.

The Gambling House Case—Ex-Treasurer Harman Given an Annuity.

TORONTO, Nov. 6.—At the session of the University Senate last night Mr. T. D. Craig, B.A., M.P.P., was unanimously elected a member of the Senate in the place of the late W. A. Foster.

The Chancery Court Room, the Chancellor presiding, was crowded all day yesterday by lawyers and students, watching the appeal case of J. Baldwin Hands against the resolution of the benchers of the Law Society disbarring him for unprofessional conduct. The case was not concluded when the court adjourned.

The amount expended to date on the Don improvements is $236,000, of which $155,341 has been advanced to the contractors. The amount required to complete the work will be approximately $315,094.

Tilly White, the girl who is charged with stealing a quantity of jewelry from the boarders at No. 116 Peter-street while they danced away the hours of Hallowe'en, was arraigned in the Police Court yesterday. She was remanded for a week for examination.

"Phip" Spohn was charged in the Police Court yesterday with keeping a gambling house at 112½ King-street. E. C. Crane was arraigned as a frequenter. The parties will come up for examination to-morrow. They were allowed out on their own bail.

At the meeting of the City Council last night the Executive Committee's report containing the letter of resignation of City Treasurer Harman, the acceptance of it by the Executive Committee, the appointment of Assistant City Treasurer R. T. Coady to the position, the promotion of Cashier John Patterson, and the recommendation that the retiring Chamberlain be given an annuity of $2000, was put through.

Notice was given at the Board of Trade yesterday afternoon that on Nov. 12 freight rates on flour and grain would be advanced on the whole Grand Trunk system to last year's rates. This means an advance on present rates of about one-third.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings healt and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

"It is simply the ideal young people's magazine, and holds the first place."—BOSTON JOURNAL.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR '89.

An All-Around-the-World Year.

THIS world-renowned magazine "for young people and their elders" is to have a great programme for the new volume beginning with November, 1888. The editor, Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, calls it "an all-around-the-world year." Of course the bulk of the contents, as heretofore, will relate to American subjects; but young America is always glad to learn what goes on in the world outside, and these stories and descriptive papers are not of the dry geographical order, and they will be strikingly illustrated. We have space here for only a few prominent announcements.

America.

"Little Saint Elizabeth," by Mrs. Burnett, author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy"; "The Routine of the Republic, how the Government is carried on"; "College Athletics"; "Amateur Photography"; "Boys and the National Guard"; "The Girls' Crusade"; Indian Stories, School Stories, etc. "The Bells of St. Anne," a serial about Canada. South American stories—"A Railroad in the Clouds"; "Indians of the Amazon," by Mrs. Frank R. Stockton, etc.

Europe.

Life in Norway, by H. H. Boyesen; "Holland and the Dutch," by Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge; "The Queen's Navy," by Lieut. F. H. Smith, R. N.; "The Winchester School"; "English Railway Trains"; "Ferdinand de Lesseps"; German, Italian (art) and Russian papers, etc., etc.

Asia.

Yan Phou Lee writes of "Boys and Girls in China," and there is a decription of "Some of John Chinaman's Inventions," Mrs. Holman Hunt describes "Home Life in the East"; papers on Siam, Japan and other countries.

Africa.

"The White Pasha," by Noah Brooks, a sketch of Henry M. Stanley; How an American Family Lived in Egypt"; "Sailor-Boy Dromios" a story of the siege of Alexandria.

Australia.

A series of interesting articles imparting much novel and amusing information concerning the history, the animal and plant life, etc., of a wonderful land.

The Arctic Regions and the Sea.

"How we made the Farthest North," by Gen A. W. Greely, of the Greely Expedition; "A Dash with Dogs for Life or Death," by Lieut. Schwatka; "A Modern Middy"; "A Submarine Ramble," etc., etc.

Subscription price, $3.00 a year; 25 cents a number. Subscriptions are received by booksellers and newsdealers everywhere, or by the publishers. Remit by P. O. money-order, Bank Cheque, draft, or registered letter. The new volume begins with November. December is the Great Christmas Number.

Turnbull's Column.

This Column Tells What is Doing at Turnbull's.

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it takes an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Fannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap. Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's. We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

SACKVILLE'S RECALL.

His Recall Was Not Based on the Murchison Letter.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The papers in the Sackville case were made public this evening. The first is a letter from Lord Salisbury to Lord Sackville, dated Oct. 27. It is as follows:

"Mr. Phelps, who is staying at my house, informs me that Mr. Bayard's request for your recall is not based upon the letter to Murchison, but upon a newspaper interview. I replied that I was glad it was not true that the request was due to the writing of the letter, which was made public only by a betrayal of confidence, and it was hardly practicable to lay down the principle that a diplomatic representative should be prohibited from expressing even privately any opinion upon events passing in the country to which he is accredited. The language of an interview is different. You must be taken as having intended it for publication. Before admitting the need for a recall I was bound, in justice to you, to know exactly what the alleged objectionable language was. I therefore asked Mr. Phelps for a copy of the interview in order to ascertain from you whether you had been accurately reported, and I told him I would then bring the matter before my colleagues. Mr. Phelps replied that he had not received the text of the interview, but would take steps to procure it. It was consequently understood that until the copy was received there should be no answer to the request for your recall."

On Oct. 28 Lord Sackville sent the following communication to Lord Salisbury:

"The letter was a political Republican plot. I have mailed an explanation. The plot was due to the approaching election. If my recall is demanded, I beg to express deep regret at what has occurred."

On Oct. 30, Lord Sackville cabled that he had received a passport.

On Oct. 31 Phelps informed Lord Salisbury that the United States Government had given Lord Sackville a passport, and added that President Cleveland hoped that another minister would be sent to Washington. On the same day Lord Sackville sent the following despatch to Lord Salisbury:

"I beg to repudiate Mr. Bayard's statement of the reasons for my dismissal as an unjust attack on my integrity."

JUDGE PATTERSON SWORN IN.

The Hearing of the Manitoba Crossing Case Fixed for Nov. 21.

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—The Supreme Court did not meet until after 1 o'clock to-day when Judge Patterson was sworn in by Chief Justice Ritchie and took his seat on the bench.

Mr. Gormully, on behalf of Attorney-General Martin, applied for fixing a date for hearing the case submitted by the Railway Committee of the Privy Council on the crossing question, and after a short discussion Wednesday, Nov. 21, was fixed.

The Joliette election case was then taken up and the argument was not concluded when the court rose.

Mr. Cassels, Registrar of the Supreme Court, recently dismissed a motion to quash the appeal in the Manitoba case of Shields v. Leacock, involving the settlement of the affairs of the Northwest Lumber Co. Yesterday Mr. Dalton McCarthy, Q.C., renewed the application on behalf of the respondent before Judge Fournier in chambers. Judgment was reserved.

Judge Wurtele will be transferred from Aylmer to Montreal on Nov. 20.

ALL QUIET AT FORT WHYTE.

The Charges Against the Members of the Cabinet to be Fully Investigated.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 6.—All is quiet at Fort Whyte.

It is learned that the Government will take such action touching the accusations made against the members of the Cabinet as will elicit all the evidence.

Chief McRobie has been sustained by the City Council by the casting vote of the Mayor.

Velie and McKittrick, charged with complicity in the $40,000 Union Bank robbery, have been acquitted.

Ald. Mulvey is in the field for the mayoralty.

FIRE AT BELLEVILLE.

Baker's Carriage Factory Burnt—Incendiarism Suspected.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 6.—Baker's carriage factory, Mill street, with all the contents, including tools, patterns and twelve vehicles in various stages of construction, was burned at about 3.30 this morning. The fire is thought to have been incendiary. Loss $4000, insured in the Western for $1400.

A Peculiar Death.

MONTREAL, Nov. 6.—A report received here from Lachine states that a well known Canadian lady named F. Caisse has just died under peculiar circumstances. A few weeks ago she took ill and the services of a leading physician were secured. She grew worse and died. A number of reports began to be circulated throughout the locality that the lady had died through the ignorance of the doctors, who, it was alleged, had not properly treated her. As Mrs. Caisse was about to become an heiress to a large fortune, it is feared that something has been done, so the report says, to shorten her days. An inquest will be held and the whole matter thoroughly sifted.

The Marriage Declared Off.

MONTREAL, Nov. 6.—About 1½ years ago a glassblower named Gardner came to Montreal and obtained employment in the American glass works in the East End. He became acquainted with a young lady who resides on Gain-street. From mere acquaintance the parties fell in love and marriage was resolved on. On the morning of the intended wedding the prospective bride was informed that Gardner had a wife and several children in England. The marriage has been declared off.

A Narrow Escape.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 6.—Mary, the 7-year-old daughter of Wm. May, miller, of St. Thomas, had a narrow escape Saturday morning from instant death. When near the elevator her dress was caught by the end of the shaft of the pulley and she was dragged towards the pulley and whirled round and round, her head striking violently against the floor several times. She was rescued before life was extinct, and it is thought she will recover.

BEN HARRISON!

The Man Who Will Live in the House Uncle Sam Built.

The Republican Candidate Elected — A Close Contest.

The returns of yesterday's election in the United States received up to the hour of going to press leave the result involved in considerable uncertainty, with a strong probability, however, of Harrison's election.

There is nothing to indicate that any of the states counted upon as "sure" for either party have furnished any surprises.

The South is solidly Democratic and the North, with the exception of Connecticut, Indiana, New Jersey and New York, is certainly Republican.

Of the four states which have been classed as doubtful, New Jersey has probably given the Cleveland electors a plurality. The Democrats claim 8000 plurality. Since the organization of the Republican party New Jersey has always been Democratic in a Presidential election except in 1872, when Gen. Grant received a majority of 14,570 over Horace Greeley.

Connecticut has also gone Democratic by about 450 majority.

The returns from Indiana are meagre, indicating Republican gains, and the state is claimed by both parties. The New York Herald says there is every indication that the state has gone Democratic.

As so often before New York determines the result. Returns from New York and Kings Counties complete and from half the balance of the state indicate that Harrison has carried the day by about 12,000 majority and is elected President.

The very latest returns ensure a Republican plurality in New York and render certain the election of Harrison and Morton.

If the results are as indicated above the ballot of the Electoral College will be cast as follows:

Total Number of Votes Necessary to a Choice ..... 401 / 201

Harrison.		Cleveland.
California	8	Alabama	10
Colorado	3	Arkansas	7
Illinois	22	Connecticut	6
Iowa	13	Delaware	3
Kansas	9	Florida	4
Maine	6	Georgia	12
Massachusetts	14	Indiana	15
Michigan	13	Kentucky	13
Minnesota	7	Louisiana	8
Nebraska	5	Maryland	8
Nevada	3	Mississippi	9
New Hampshire	4	Missouri	16
New York	36	New Jersey	9
Ohio	23	North Carolina	11
Oregon	3	South Carolina	9
Pennsylvania	30	Tennessee	12
Rhode Island	4	Texas	13
Vermont	4	Virginia	12
Wisconsin	11	West Virginia	6
Total	218	Total	183

A UNIQUE FEATURE.

The Vote in Cleveland's Home—How it Looks at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Nov. 6.—A unique feature of the contest which closed this evening was the vote of this city and county. This, Erie County, is reckoned as safe for 3000 Republican majority. It gave Harrison for President about 2000, but Hill, the Democratic candidate for Governor, carries it by 5000, receiving the solid saloon vote.

It would seem that Harrison has carried New York State by 12,000 and is elected President. Returns from New York and Kings Counties complete and from half of the balance of the State are to this effect and there is nothing in the returns as they come to hand to indicate that places yet to report will alter the estimate given herein.

Connecticut is very close and is claimed by both sides with the possibility that it will take the official vote to decide.

Indiana sends meagre returns but these indicate that Harrison has secured the State by a small plurality.

New Jersey is Democratic.

The Western and Northwestern States, including Michigan have on the face of light returns received remained true to their Republican allegiance.

There is some doubt as to Virginia and West Virginia, but the Democrats claim both states.

THE MAJORITIES.

Latest Returns from the Various States—The Solid South.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 6.—Returns have been received from different points in all the districts and show a solid Democratic delegation to Congress. Cleveland's majority will be as large as in 1884, when it was 32,457.

North Carolina.

RALEIGH, N.C., Nov. 6.—The vote in this state was by far the largest ever polled. The returns so far show that the Democrats are making gains.

South Carolina.

CHARLESTON, S.C., Nov. 6.—No disturbance at the polls and nothing to indicate a decrease in the Democratic majority of 1884, when Cleveland's majority was 48,031.

Georgia.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 6.—Indications are that Cleveland's majority in his State is about 25,000. The solid Democratic congressional delegation is elected.

Rhode Island.

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Nov. 6—Harrison's plurality is 4000.

New Hampshire.

CONCORD, N.H., Nov. 6.—Harrison has carried New Hampshire. Goodell (Rep.) has been elected Governor; the Republicans have carried both congressional districts and have secured control of the Legislature.

Maine.

AUGUSTA, ME., Nov. 6.—Blaine has sent the following telegram to Gen. Harrison: Returns thus far received indicate that Maine has given you a majority of 23,000. It will be more rather than less.

New Jersey.

JERSEY CITY, Nov. 6.—The Hudson County Democrats made almost a clean sweep. Their Presidential electors will have fully 6000 majority, thus assuring the State for Cleveland.

Indiana.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 6.—Returns are coming in slowly. On the basis of gains shown by the returns from 20 precincts the Republicans will have a plurality of about 3500 in Indiana.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 7.—Thirty precincts in Indiana show net Republican gains of 575. At this rate the plurality for the Republican ticket will be over 25,000. Republicans at the committee rooms now claim the state by 12,000.

Wisconsin.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 6.—Fifty-one towns out of a total of 1200 in Wisconsin show a net Republican gain of 344.

California.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6.—Returns coming in slowly. Much scratching, nothing can be given at present.

Florida.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The Herald Bulletin says Florida is probably Democrat by 1500.

Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6.—Chairman Cooper of the Republican State Committee claims the state for Harrison by about 90,000 majority. This would be a Republican gain of 9000.

New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—1023 election districts outside of New York and King's counties give Harrison a plurality of 47,695, in the same districts Blaine's plurality was 36,749.

Connecticut.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 7.—Complete returns from Connecticut, except one town gives the following result: Harrison 74,407, Cleveland 74,815. It is estimated that Cleveland's majority will be 400 in the State.

Delaware.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 6.—No definite returns can be had from the State to-night. It has gone Democratic by a reduced majority.

Tennessee

NASHVILLE, Nov. 7.—The congressional delegation will be unchanged. The State gives about the usual Democratic majority on the national ticket.

Michigan.

DETROIT, Nov. 7.—Estimates from Democratic sources agree with those of the Republican on national and state tickets, but differ on the result in the congressional districts. It is conceded that Harrison has carried the state by about 12,000, and that Luce (Rep.) will have some 3000 less for Governor.

Minnesota.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 7.—The Republican State Central Committee claim the State for Harrison by 25,000.

Colorado.

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 7.—The Republicans claim the election of the National and State tickets by 8000.

West Virginia.

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 7.—The chairmen of both the State Committies claim the State. This city is not to be counted before 11 a.m. to-day. The result in the State will probably not be known before Thursday.

In the Cities.

Cleveland's plurality in New York City is 56,000.

Boston gives Cleveland a plurality of 8847.

Cleveland carries Chicago by from 5000 to 6000. In 1884 Blaine carried the city by 2890.

Brooklyn gives Cleveland 11,541 plurality.

Buffalo gives a Republican majority of 1509, a gain of 456 over 1884.

The Next President.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 7.—The city is wild with enthusiasm over the reports from New York. Gen. Harrison is receiving the returns in his library surrounded only by his family, Gen. Miller, his law partner, and a few intimate friends. He is being deluged with despatches congratulating him on his prospects but will not make them public to-night.

Congress Republican.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The Tribune bulletin says the next House of Representatives will be Republican by 20 to 25 majority.

Gotham's New Mayor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The New York City Press Association says Grant's (Tammany Democrat) election is assured by from 20,000 to 25,000.

From Chairman Quay.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 6.—The following has just been received by General Harrison:

We have New York.

(Signed) M. S. QUAY.

Election Notes.

Of the five great morning papers of the City of New York four of them were strong advocates of the re-election of Cleveland. Only one of them, The Tribune, favored the election of Harrison. The World, The Herald, The Times and The Sun were all Cleveland papers.

There seems to be good reason for believing that a deal was made between the local managers in the City of New York to this effect, namely, that if the Democratic managers could induce their followers to vote for Harrison certain other Republican managers would bring their followers over to Hill for governor of the State of New York. Practically this was what was called "knifing" Cleveland, and it seems to have been practised very largely throughout the State.

The election of Grant as Mayor of New York is a triumph for Tammany Hall and gives that institution the large patronage of the city.

William D. Hoard, the Butter candidate for Governor of Wisconsin, is elected by a large majority.

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS.

Democratic Supremacy Sacrificed to Personal Ambition.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The Herald this morning says: "At the hour of going to press with our first edition the probabilities indicate the election of General Harrison. This opinion is based upon despatches received from all the states in the Union and which may be divided as follows:

"Cleveland—Alabama, Arkansas, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, New Jersey, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, and West Virginia—168.

"Harrison—Colorado, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York, Vermont, and Wisconsin—207.

"Doubtful—California, Nevada, Indiana—26.

"Conceding the votes of Connecticut and New Jersey to Mr. Cleveland and regarding Indiana, California and Nevada as doubtful, Gen. Harrison has a majority in the electoral college.

"The figures show the election of David B. Hill as governor and of Hugh J. Grant as mayor. Mr. Hill has made a strong canvass.

"The nomination of Mr. Hewitt had the effect which his supporters principally intended, namely: the defeat of Mr. Cleveland by the division of the Democratic forces in New York.

"The political lesson of the election is that the national supremacy of the Democratic party has been sacrificed to the ambition of David B. Hill and A. S. Hewitt, and the fact which Democrats throughout the country should lay to heart is that in this game of politics their possession of the imperial patronage of New York City is of far more importance than the government of the Union."

Won't Give Up.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The Times says: "At 1 o'clock a.m. the election returns received by The Times from the interior of the State show diminishing gains for Harrison, and it is by no means certain that the full returns will not altogether destroy the plurality that the early returns indicate for him, and give the State to Cleveland.]

The World says: As this edition of The World goes to press (2 a. m.) the indications are that Harrison has carried the State of New York by a small plurality—3000 to 5000.

Somebody Was Educated.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The Sun this morning says: "When a party deliberately buries out of sight the principles on which it was founded and of which it has been for a century the custodian and trustee; when it runs some of its best men to the rear, and surrenders the management of its affairs to a syndicate of cracked intellects, theorist-enthusiasts, with just enough shrewdness to half disguise their ultimate purpose; when it abandons politics in the sane sense and makes itself an engine for the propagation of a theory, in short when it goes in for an educational canvass somebody is bound to be educated.

"That is what happened yesterday. The great mass of the Democracy, sound to the core, loyal as ever to the essential and eternal truths of its creed, hopeful even in defeat and courageous and unshaken this dismal November morning, is the victim of the educational campaign. It has been educated with a vengeance and at a tremendous cost. It has learned its lesson and is not likely to forget the same.

BENJAMIN HARRISON. LEVI P. MORTON.

Benjamin Harrison of Indiana was born in 1833—fifty-five years ago. A lawyer by profession. Served in the war and came out of it a general. He was married in 1851 and has two children, a boy and a girl. United States Senator for Indiana. He is a Presbyterian and a Protectionist.

Levi P. Morton of New York was born in Vermont in 1824—sixty-four years ago. His father was a minister, he was brought up in a store; became a successful Boston merchant, then a banker in New York and London. Has been Minister to France and Congressman. A Protectionist.

An Action for $20,000 Damages.

MONTREAL, Nov. 6.—An action for damages of $20,000 has been taken by Hon. James Armstrong of Sorel against the Hochelaga Cotton Company. The action is based on Judge Armstrong's arrest on a charge of criminal libel in connection with the remarks made by him during the session of the Labor Commission here.

THE WORLD OF LONDON.

GOSSIP ABOUT GREAT MEN AND GREATER MEN.

The Appointment of a successor to Lord Sackville Likely to be Indefinitey Postponed—A Story of Gladstone.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—I think it is fair betting that there is not a man in the Queen's dominions who, during the last twenty years, has spent so many nights in railway travel as has her majesty's eldest son. During his Indian tour all the prince's railway journeys were made by night. Look at his recent record. On one night he travels by rail from Roumania to Vienna, the following night he spends in the train on his way to the shooting grounds, he shoots all day, comes back the same night to Vienna without a break, quits Vienna by night on a journey to Paris, and travels by night from Paris to London. The night between Friday and Saturday of that week he spent traveling from London to Balmoral; the night between Monday and Tuesday of last week he spent on the return journey to town, and his royal highness is never fitter than after a night of railway travel. He seems to rise from his railway couch adequately refreshed—certainly in excellent form for either pleasure or business. There are few who will not envy the royal traveler his ironclad nerves. The Prince went to Sandringham on Friday afternoon to join the Princess and the three princesses, who, after witnessing Baldwin's descent at Alexandria palace last Tuesday, returned to their country residence. His Royal Highness will now live at Sandringham, with little intermission, till about the end of February, though he will spend a few days at Marlborough House next month and also pay a visit to Windsor just before Christmas. On Friday evening the Prince and Princess will give their annual ball to the country people of Norfolk in celebration of His Royal Highness' birthday. A large and distinguished house party will be entertained till Monday, when the Prince goes on a visit to Derby.

The United States Government having thought proper to send Lord Sackville a "safe conduct," to use Secretary Bayard's expression, the representation of Great Britain at Washington passes abruptly from a diplomatist of 40 years' experience to a junior secretary with the commission of charge d'affaires. Mr. Herbert, who now holds that position, is a brother of Lord Pembroke and of Lady de Grey. He is only in his 31st year. The first secretary of the British legation in Washington, Mr. Edwards, Lord Kensington's brother, is in England, and was not expected to return to America. But, possibly under the altered condition of affairs, he now will take over the duties of charge d'affaires from Mr. Herbert, as the appointment of a successor to Lord Sackville is likely to be indefinitely postponed.

Miss Phipps, Miss Cavendish, Miss Drummond and Miss Moore have no intention whatever of renouncing the fortune left them by the late Lord Sackville. The uncertainty which prevails as to the precise terms of the bequest has caused a number of other ladies, not equally lucky, to receive premature congratulations from their friends. It is Lady Derby, Lord Sackville's sister, who has entered a caveat against the will. Her solicitors are sanguine of success.

Lord Tennyson, who is still ill Surrey, has been sick for some months, and was so seriously ill at the beginning of last week that grave apprehensions were felt by his family for the moment. The most urgent symptoms have passed away, but he is still very prostrate and weak. The attack he suffered from, after developing symptoms of rheumatic gout, suddenly assumed those of rheumatic fever. His weakness and age still causes his family great uneasiness.

Notwithstanding the favorable bulletins of the Speaker which have appeared since his return from Switzerland, I have reason to believe that his health is still in a very unsatisfactory state. It is in the highest degree improbable that he will be able to occupy the chair next year. Sir Matthew White Ridley will most likely succeed Mr. Peel, and be the first Conservative Speaker since 1835.

A curiously characteristic story of Gladstone is told as having occurred during the summer. Gladstone had occasion to come into contact with Frederick Harrison, who had just published his study of Oliver Cromwell. A good deal of conversation took place on the book, and Gladstone asked Harrison if he really considered Cromwell a very great man. Harrison answered warmly, in the affirmative, giving his reasons, and in return asked Gladstone what was his estimate of the lord protector—what position he would assign him in the political hierarchy. Gladstone is said to have replied: "Well, somewhere after Lord Althorp."

A correspondent writes to ask me who invents the reports circulated with so much gusto, at intervals, that Lord Randolph Churchill is in a very bad state of health and means to retire from public life. The story last appeared in what is supposed to be a friendly quarter at Birmingham. Lord Randolph was never in better health in his life than at this moment.

Nobody can have been surprised at the result of the prosecution at the Old Bailey of Vizetelly, the publisher of certain notorious translations of some of the worst and most offensive of Zola's novels. On neither the legal principles or the questions of fact involved in the case was there any room for doubt or hesitation. Nothing can be clearer than that the publication of what is technically termed an obscure libel—that is, an indecent or immoral book or writing—is a misdemeanor, or that such works as LaTerre, or Pat Boville, or Nana, are in the highest degree immoral, indecent and obscene. It must, however, be confessed that the literary censorship has been of late years so uncertain and capricious that Vizetelly may very possibly have imagined that he was not breaking the law. When he knew that unredeemed, unmitigated filth, like that contained in Maiden Tribute of Modern Babylon, could be hawked about the streets with impunity he may have supposed that Zola's productions would be tolerated.

The Duke and Duchess of Marlborough leave England shortly to pass the winter at Monte Carlo, where they have taken a villa for five months. The duke has sold his fine house, Palace Gate, to Mr. Labouchere, as the duchess prefers to reside at Carlton house terrace.

The pictures at the institute are rather depressing. There are 629 all told, none either good enough or bad enough to be worth much critical powder and shot. The painters, while more or less skilful, are not inventive and not original, and cannot even see color and form with their own eyes. The exceptions are John R Reid, to whom nature always appears extraordinarily red in the face; Edwin Ward, who certainly has his own way of looking at a sitter; David Murray, who gives us a pleasant, charmingly natural glimpse of a tall cottage, the chimney peeping through the dusk, with a curtained window dimly glowing on a hillside in the evening; Blair Leighton's work shows increasing power and resource; F. D. Millett's Tender Chord—printed Thunder Cloud in the catalog—is beautifully delicate in color, contrasting strongly with the heavy richness of the President's portraits of Miss Meredith Crosse.

I regret to learn that Lawrence Oliphant's illness, which had taken so favorable a turn that he was preparing to leave Barbitton for his house at Haifa, in Syria, in a few weeks, has now become so grave that but slight hopes are entertained for his eventual recovery.

Mr. Oliphant is suffering from an old affection of the chest. It is now feared that cancerous symptoms have developed themselves. His condition is pronounced very critical.

A SHUFFLING DEFENCE.

THE attempt Mr. Stratton made last night on the School Board to defend the Ontario Government's dealings with the Board was of a shuffling and weak character. His arguments were two: 1st, that the Government has for three years consistently complained that the Institute did not come up to the requirements, and, 2nd, that the Government could not misappropriate moneys by paying the grant to a school that did not comply with the law.

1st. The Government has been consistent to the extent that it has complained each year. But the grounds of complaint have differed. Mr. Stratton read from the Inspectors' reports, but he was very careful to read only a sentence or a part of a sentence from each report. If he had read more the bottom would have been knocked out of his argument.

He read from the report of 1885 this sentence:—"The Institute does not in all respects comply with the requirements of the statute." But he did not read the next sentences of that report, which are as follows:—

"1. The grounds are limited in extent, and there is no gymnasium or other appliances for physical training.

"2. The library of reference is meagre and requires supplementing.

"3. The supply of chemical and physical apparatus is defective. Unless these deficiencies are supplied within a reasonable time the Institute will be in danger of being reduced to the status of a high school."

Why did not Mr. Stratton read that part of the report? Because "these deficiencies" have all been supplied; because it would have shown that the Government was inconsistent in its demands, and caused the Board to expend money and, after it was expended to meet the demands made, the Government was still not satisfied. He omitted that part of the report because it would have spoiled his defence of the Department. Mr. Stratton read a portion of a sentence from Mr. Seath's report of 1886. Why did he not read further? Because it would have shown that in that year the grounds of complaint were different. In 1886 the closets were made a matter of special complaint, although in 1885 they were reported "satisfactory." In 1885 the desks were said to be "good," in 1886 it was remarked that they were double, and this year they are a matter of complaint. In 1885 the school building was "fair," the next year the accommodations were "much improved," and this year the Inspector did "not think the present building could be remodeled so as to answer collegiate institute requirements and at the same time give the accommodation for public school pupils it was found necessary to have."

The building was "fair" one year, the next year the larger building was in use and "the accommodations were much improved," and now the building is condemned. That is the "liberal" manner in which the Government has the Board, to use Mr. Stratton's words, "by the throat." The Government has acted in a fault-finding, irritating and tyrannical spirit all through, and if there is a disposition to resent its action in taking the Board "by the throat" it is not to be wondered at.

2nd. Mr. Stratton said that the Government could not send the collegiate institute grant contrary to law. But he did not read from any statute to show that the Department could not legally have forwarded the grant. If it would have been a misappropriation of money to have sent the grant now, was it not a misappropriation last year and the year before, when the equipment of the school was not so good? The demands made three years ago have been complied with, and what changes have been made in the law since? If the law was changed so frequently the same Government would be responsible for the trouble caused by the repeated changes, but the law in this regard is the same. The Government can change its regulations, but that would not improve its position in saying to the Peterborough School Board, "You must make the improvements we now point out," and after the expense of making these improvements is incurred, coming forward with further demands and withholding the institute grant.

Mr. Stratton did not improve matters by making such a shuffling defence of the Government, bolstered up by quoting single sentences and parts of sentences from the reports.

Wlhen Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Indicted for Murder.

If a merchant sells a pair of shoddy boots to a boy and the boy through the shoddiness of the boots, gets his feet wet, catches cold and dies, can the merchant be legally arrested for murder? The court, after argument decides:—No. The boy knew, or should have known, or his father, if he had a father, which is likely, should have known for him, that Kidd, the boot man, sells J. D. King's make of boots, in which there is no shoddy. Besides, they cost no more, and it would be difficult to prove that the shoddy man really intended to kill the boy. (Signed) SWITCHEM I.

An upheavel taken place in leather and the boot and shoe trade shattered to pieces. On Saturday we are going to run a special Boot Sale. Good Goods and Low Prices have gained for us the admiration of close buyers. Our 25c. Boots have completely demoralized the high priced dealers. One man says Goughs are selling below cost, so we are! That is we sell lots of Goods below the first cost of manufacture and still make a living profit. Some people would naturally like to know how we do it. "Here is the Secret." A wholesale man gets hard up, wants money, must have it. He knows Goughs are spot cash buyers. They send for the Wonderful Cheap Men. They arrive on the scene. The wholesale man says, Gough what will you give for 300 cases of these boots; Goughs look them over carefully, find them good desirableselling lines and make a bid of 40c. on the dollar; after hard fighting we get them. They arrive in Peterborough, are sold at 50c. on the dollar, we therefore sell them at half price and make a living profit for ourselves. ADVERTISING

When Newspapers first began to be published in London, an editor took opportunity one day to say that a certain man desired a certain something—no matter what. That was the invention of advertising, though the inventor may not have known what he had found. From that time to this people have made more or less use of the papers to publish their wants, and tradesmen their wares; but we doubt very much whether any real improvement upon the first advertisement has ever been made. It was a frank statement that somebody wanted something and what it was that he wanted. Doubtless he got it. We want something. Want to sell goods. Good goods too. The best of the best in Groceries. The range of stock is a wide one. It has to be wide to suit all customers. That we do suit is positive.

If there is one thing we do better than another it is in TEAS.

It is our specialty. Years of experience tell us how and where to buy. We use that experience and select the best.

Do you like a good article? Do you value flavor and strength in Tea? If so give us a trial order.

In addition, every line of groceries you can call for we have.

Don't try to Rescue Your Cow.

An assault case of some little interest was before the Magistrate this morning. Wm. Ford charged Walter Squires with committing an assault upon him. Mr. John Green defended the accused and Mr. R. M. Denn'stoun appeared for the complainant. It appears that Ford was driving to pound a cow which had stray into his garden, when he met Squires, who recognized the bovine as his. He immediately attempted to rescue the cow and in doing this the alleged assault was said to have been committed. Police Magistrate Dumble said the case of assault was not clearly proved, but Mr. Squires had done a very serious thing in interferring with Ford when he was performing a legal act. He, therefore, enlarged the case until to-morrow morning to allow the complainant to bring more witnesses to establish the assault if possible.

The following communication was read:

To the Secretary:

DEAR SIR,—With reference to your letter of the 4th inst. and previous correspondence, the Minister has certified for payment by the Treasury Department the sum of $509.47, being the amount of the High School grant, exclusive of the amount that may become payable in virtue of Collegiate Institute standing. The Collegiate Institute special grant remains in abeyance pending the vote for the amount mentioned in your letter of 30th July as about to be demanded from the Town Council, and the sum thus temporarily withheld will be paid as soon as it is clear that the local aid required to effect the essential improvements already mentioned has been provided.

Your obedient servant,
ALEX. MARLING,
Secretary.

The letter was, on motion, received.

COMMUNICATIONS AND REPORTS.

A circular was read from the secretary of the Association of High and Public School Trustees, urging the board to send a delegation to the meeting of the Association in Toronto.—Received.

A report was received from Inspector Tilley, in which he stated that since his appointment as inspector he had spent four days in the school to become acquainted with the teachers and school accommodation. He did not propose to report on the matters observed in these visits, as after his regular inspection he would be in a better position to report fully. He stated, however, that he found all the teachers properly or legally qualified with the exception of two. He reserved any extended remarks until after a closer examination.

The reports of attendance for the month of October were read as follows:—Central School—on roll, 722; average, 601. West Ward—on roll, 163; average, 134. Collegiate Institute—on roll, 137; average, 118. South ward school—on roll, 259; average attendance, 204.

The statement of fees for the month of October totalled $132.50. High School, $127; Central School, $5.50.

Two accounts were presented:—W. Wallbrooke (services as teacher), $3.75; J. J. Turner, $24.42. Referred to the Finance Committee.

COMPLYING WITH THE REQUIREMENTS.

Mr. DUMBLE said the High School matters should be dealt with at once and he would therefore move,—"That an estimate and plans for the adaption of the Collegiate Institute to the requirements of the Government be procured and submitted to the Board for consideration, that Messrs. Wrighton, T. Rutherford, English and the mover be a committee to procure such plans and estimates." Mr. Dumble said everything required had been complied with except ventilation, and this could be remedied with little expense. They could use the present building at a cost of perhaps $6,000 and this would, on the whole, be a saving to the town. They should get plans and estimates at once and then they could consider it. The building belonged to the public school and, if the boards separated, the public school should have the building. He advocated building a school of their own. In answer to Mr. O'Meara, he said the High School supporters would only be taxed for the increased rent.

The motion was carried.

Mr. T. RUTHERFORD asked if the Board refused to meet the requirements of the Government would they still get the High School grant?

THE CHAIRMAN.—Yes.

Mr. DUMBLE.—Not necessarily. It does not follow.

Mr. HUGHES said that if the Board was certain that the present improvements required by the Government would be all that would be demanded, they might go in and do it. But the Government was continually requiring improvements year after year. If these improvements now asked would do for some years they might make them.

THE CHAIRMAN said the Government had reported the building satisfactory one year and then repudiated it.

THE GOVERNMENT'S DEALINGS.

Mr. STRATTON denied that the Inspector had ever reported the building as satisfactory. In 1885, he said, Inspector Hodgson reported, "The Institute does not in all respects comply with the requirements of the statute." In 1886 Inspector Seath said, "The accommodations are much improved; but, as I pointed out, they are still defective." In the following year Inspector Seath again reported that the school had "not reached the standard required for a Collegiate Institute," and this year Inspector Hodgson had stated that "deficiencies still existed." Mr. Stratton said that the Minister of Education could not supply the funds to the Institute without the requirements of the law being complied with. It had been said that the goverment had dealt tyrannically in this matter. He would like to ask them if the Minister of Education could be accused of tyrannical dealings. He (the Minister) had rather dealt liberally and in good spirit with the Board when they considered the slow way in which they had moved in the past. The Minister had to take the Board by the throat until the necessary changes were made. He again said he thought the treatment of the Board had been most liberal and that the government had shown an inclination to do what was right. They could not expect the Minister to make a grant if the law was not complied with.

The CHAIRMAN said that three years ago the inspector had threatened them if certain changes were not made up to requirements. These changes were made and now another inspector came along and demanded further improvements—for instance the widening of the halls.

Mr. STRATTON said Mr. Stevenson had gone through with both Mr. Hodgson and Seath and had heard the necessary improvements pointed out.

The CHAIRMAN.—They did not mention the widening of the halls.

Mr. STRATTON.—I beg your pardon, sir, they mentioned the widening of the halls and showed that the lighting of the hall was not good, and and pointed out the easiest manner of complying with the regulations.

The discussion then dropped.

THREE RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. DENNE then moved, seconded by Mr. DUMBLE.—That the Mayor and Messrs. Dumble, Wrighton and J. R. Stratton, be appointed delegates to the meeting of the Association of High and public school trustees in Toronto.—Carried.

Mr. DENNE also moved, seconded by Mr. STRATTON.—That the secretary be instructed to ask several architects to supply plans for the North Ward public school buildings, with the understanding that the plans selected, if any, be paid for, the building not to cost more than $8,000.—Carried.

It was then moved by Mr. A. RUTHERFORD, seconded by Mr. STRATTON,—That this Board require the election for the school trustees of this town for the year 1890 to be held on the same day and in the same manner as municipal councillors are elected and that all things be done for the purpose of effectuating the intent of this motion.

The Board then adjourned.

FOR THE POOR.

A Crowded House and an Excellent Programme.

The crowd that wended its way to the Murray-st. school last evening to attend the social and oyster supper under the auspices of the Ladies' Sewing Society of St. Peter's was of such proportion that the crowded state of the room interfered slightly with the rendering of the programme. However, a most enjoyable evening was spent. The social was held for the benefit of the poor. A very choice programme was rendered, and the contributors are all so well known and rendered their several numbers in such an excellent manner, that suffice is it to publish the programme, as comments would be invidious. The selections of the Fire Brigade Band, however, were much enjoyed, while the chorus of the Convent children was perhaps the most pleasing feature of the evening. It was of kindergarten style and reflected greatly on the careful tuition of the Sisters at the Convent. The programme was as follows:—

PART I.

Selection.....The Band
Chorus.....Convent Children
Vocal Solo....."Alice where Art Thou"
Miss Annie Dunn.
Violin and piano.....Misses K. and L. Hurley
Vocal Solo.....Mrs. McIntyre
Instrumental Solo.....Miss Eastland
Vocal Solo....."It is not True"
Mr. Tierney.
Instrumental trio.....Misses Hurley

An intermission was then given and the large number sat down to the plentifully supplied tables and satisfied the inner man.

PART II.

Selection.....Band
Vocal Solo...."Jamie".....Miss Annie Dunn
Duet, violin and piano.....Messrs. K. and L. Hurley
Vocal solo..."Sweet Sabbath Bells".....Miss Jackson
Selection.....Band
Vocal Solo...."Day Dreams".....Mrs. McIntyre
Vocal Solo....."Waiting".....Mr. Tierney
God Save the Queen.

The programme was a splendid one as will be seen, and was arranged by Miss Hurley, while Mrs. Dr. O'Sullivan and Mrs. J. Hackett attended to the other arrangements. The accompanists for the evening were Mr. Carter and Misses. Hurley and Ealand. The social was a most pronounced success.

Messrs. Elliott & Tierney have purchased the entire choice crop of apples, the product of Mr. G. W. Hatton's "Walkerfield orchard" consisting of Snow, Spitzenburgh, H. Pippins, Northern Spy, Beauties of the West, etc. All hand picked and in prime order. Call and taste. Prices reasonable. d89

The Concert of the Season.

In addition to the many other attraction for the Military Concert on the evening of Nov. 15th, Thanksgiving Day, Mr. T. Dunn will contribute vocal selictions. Mr. Dunn is a popular vocalist and his songs will be a very pleasing feature. The exercises, tableaux, etc., and the instrumental music will make up a programme that it would be almost impossible to excel.

A Good Deal of Interest.

There was a great deal of interest manifested in the Presidental race here last night and the telegraph offices were kept open all night. Considerable money was placed on the result—odds of five to three and fifty to forty being given by Cleveland men. There is nothing so uncertain as elections and horse races. To-day every despatch was waited for by quite a crowd and eagerly swallowed, although the reports were rather conflicting. However, even money was being put up this morning, and bets ran up as high as $200 even.

Two Nights Only,

Should not Have Been There.

Three accidents occurred at the Brookbank Gymnasium last night. Two of the boys hurt had no business in the building whatever and the fact of their meeting with the mishaps should not cause people to speak against gymnastics, as if the youths complied with the rules of the Sergt.-Major the accidents would not occur. Two young fellows had their ankles sprained while tumbling, and a twelve year old boy by the name of Tromley, who is not a member of the gymnasium, had his arm broken while monkeying on the rings.

Notice of Visit.

N. Stanley, 18 Jewin-st., London, Eng., and 79 Bay-st., Toronto, Can., intends sending a practical optician, Prof. L. S. Druiff, of London, Eng., to his agent to Peterborough at regular intervals, who will be competent to measure and accommodate every defect of the eyesight that is prevalent. He will in every instance use the firm's Celebrated Spectacles and Eye-glasses, so well known for the delightful ease and comfort they confer on the wearer. There is no glimmering, wavering, dizziness or other distressing sensations so common in the many inferior grades at present in the market, but they comfort, strengthen and preserve the sight. Take care that you are not at present wearing a spectacle which is not exactly adjusted to your sight and consequently acting as a severe strain on the optical nerves, and remember that such a delicate organism as that of the eye requires exact accommodation. No charge made for examination. Remember the date, Saturday, November 10th, at Ormond & Walsh's, Druggists, Peterborough, Ont. 5d105-1w45

LATEST ELECTION NEWS

Harrison Probably the Next President.

NEW YORK REPUBLICAN

BY A PLURALITY IN THE REGION OF 12,000.

The New York Tribune Estimates the House of Representatives to stand 175 Republicans and 150 Democratics—Republican Gains All Over—Returns from All Parts of the Republic.

By Telegraph to the Review.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 7.—The Herald's San Francisco despatch says the returns as far as heard from, indicate a majority in the State of from 5,000 to 6,000 for Cleveland. The Herald's Chicago despatch says the State Democratic Committee claim the State for Gen. Palmer. The electoral docket is in doubt.

THURMAN THROWS UP THE SPONGE.

The Herald's Columbus, Ohio, special says Judge Thurman last night made the following statement through his son:—"I estimate the Republicans have certainly carried New York by at least 10,000. New Jersey seems to have gone Democratic, but that is small comfort. We here have learned only one report from Connecticut and that was anything but favorable. As to Indiana we have nothing except what everybody knows. In fact it looks as if the people of the United States have decided that a tariff is not a tax and they are the arbitrators in the case. If they have decided so no body will acquiesce in their decision more quickly than I." "What is your estimate as to Ohio?" was asked? "We have received full returns from about 150 precincts, which showed an average Democratic gain of 91¾ to the precinct. If we should raise the average to 100¾ to the precinct we could carry the State. The precincts heard from are largely city and town voting places, and we expected to make our greatest gains in the country, so there is no telling what will happen yet. At the best the Republican piurality will not be 10,000 and I believe it will not be 5000. I tell you if the National Committee had listened to us and had done as I wished them to do we should have carried Ohio, but they not only gave us no money, they took from us money that we had collected. It was a great mistake and has lost us the election." "You give up the entire election, then?" "I do; we are defeated."

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7.—Thirty precincts in the State of Nevada, out of a total of 172, gave Harrison 2359 and Cleveland 1695. In 1894 the same precincts gave Blaine 2334 and Cleveland 1797.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 7.—The Congressional delegation will stand 14 Republican and 6 Democratic. The Republicans will have a majority of not far from 32 on a joint ballot in the next general assembly. The re-election of a Republican to the United States Senate is thus assured. The Tribune estimates that the next House of Representation will be composed of 175 Republicans and 150 Democrats.

DETROIT, Nov. 7.—The Free Press conceded the election to the Harrison electors, but says the vote on Governor will be extremely close. The Tribune claims the election of both National and State tickets.

INDIANA REPUBLICAN.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 7.—220 precincts from over the State out of 1806 give Harrison 29,745, and Cleveland 24,493, a net Republican gain of 1322. This shows a net Republican gain of 6 votes to a precinct, and if maintained throughout the State will give Indiana to Harrison by 4,000 plurality.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 7.—Returns from 34 counties in the State out of 43 give Harrison nearly 12,000 majority and Cooper (Rep.), for Governor, between 8000 and 10,000.

SAN FRANSISCO, Nov. 7.—Returns from 19 precincts outside of San Francisco, gives Harrison 11,225 and Cleveland 9,434.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—The Tribune says Harrison has carried Illinois by at least 20,000 majority and it may be more.

CONGRESS REPUBLICAN.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 7.—The World says the indications are that the Republicans will control the next House of Representatives.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 7.—Eugene Wilson is elected Governor and Harrison and Morton will carry the State by about 12,000.

HOW NEW YORK WILL GO.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The Mail and Express puts Harrison's majority in New York State at 10,000 and says Hill's plurality in New York City will probably reach 65,000. The World says its returns indicate Hill's election by 16,042.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 7.—Thirty precincts in Nevada give Harrison 2397, Cleveland 1695.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The opinion formed last night which gave the State of New York to Harrison, Republican, for President, and to Hill, Democratic, for Governor, is confirmed by later scattering returns. The districts yet to be heard from cast in 1884 a total of 346,000 votes. Reports by counties indicate a further gain of 5200 for Harrison. If the scattering precincts not heard from keep up the drift shown in adjoining precincts heard from, Harrison's plurality will be from 5,000 to 10,000 and Hill's about 10,000.

DETROIT, MICH., Nov. 7.—Michigan has gone Republican by a plurality ranging from 13,000 to 18,000 on the electoral ticket, Luce, Republican, for Governor, runs behind the rest of the tickets, but not more than 5,000. The Republicans have two congressmen certain and perhaps three. The Legislature is Republican on a joint ballot insuring the election of a Republican senator to succeed Palmer.

REPUBLICAN GAIN IN INDIANNA.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 7.—Three hundred precincts in Indiana show a net Republican gain of 1938.

HARTFORD, CONN., Nov. 7.—Connnecticut gives Cleveland for President a plurality of 429 with two towns to hear from which will reduce it to about 350. Morris, Democratic, beats Bulkeley, Republican, for Governor by 1,500 with three towns to hear from. Bulkeley will be elected by a Republican legislature.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 7.—Three hundred and sixty precincts in Indiana gives Harrison 51,113, Cleveland 45,610, the same same precincts in 1884 gave Blain 47,464, Cleveland 44,027.

THE SACKVILLE CASE.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The Daily News says the Blue book on the Sackville affair considerably improves the position of President Cleveland and Mr. Bayard. Lord Salisbury's error lay in not perceiving that the recall of Lord Sackville involved no personal descredit. The Standard considers that the blue book acquits the foreign office, shows that Lord Salisbury acted with dignity and discretion and removes the only extenuation it was possible to plead for Cleveland. The Times says the blue book confirms our previous opinion. It emphasises Lord Sackvilles indescretion.

12,000 IN NEW YORK.

ALBANY, Nov. 7.—The Evening Journal estimates a plurality of 12,000 for Harrison and 7000 for Hill in New York State. The Republicans gain 9 assemblymen, congressional delegation unchanged in political proportion.

SAN FRANSISCO, Nov. 7.—The Chronicle (Republican) says Harrison has a plurality from 10,000 to 12,000 in the interior. The Examiner, (Democratic), says there is hardly a doubt that the State is Democratic and by a good majority.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Additional returns do not justify any change in the estimate giving a plurality of 20,000 to 25,000 for Harrison, and of 5,000 to 10,000 to Fifer for Governor.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 7.—Five hundred and sixty precincts in the State give Harrison 86,512, Cleveland 77,236. The same precincts in 1884, gave Blain 79,041, Cleveland 74,097.

INDIANA CLEVELAND'S SURE.

INDIANAPOLIS, 1.23.—Chairman Jewett, of the Democratic State Committee, in answer to interrogatories said: "Our reports show that we have carried the State by from 3000 to 5000 unless the returns are tampered with. Governor Gray thought the State was safely Democratic. Col. Matson, candidate for Governor, said "The result is very doubtful." S. P. Sherin, Secretary of the Democratic National Committee said: "I can only repeat what I said last night that we have surely carried Indiana. I have no doubt of it. By what plurality of course I cannot estimate as I believe it will be very close."

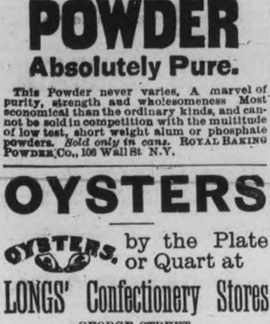
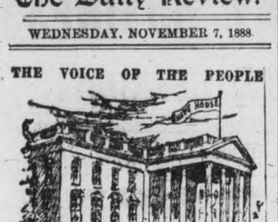
WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1888.



THE VOICE OF THE PEOPLE



This is the house Uncle Sam built.

This is the man who will live in the house Uncle Sam built.

This very fat fellow has suffered a rout,
And much to his sorrow will have to get out
To make room for the man who will live in the house
Uncle Sam built.

This is the bill that encompassed the rout
Of the very fat man who will have to get out
To make room for the man who will live in the house
Uncle Sam built.

Cleveland's Soliloquy.

Farewell, a long farewell, to all my greatness!
This is the state of man: Today he puts forth
The tender leaves of hope; to-morrow blossoms
And bears his blushing honors thick upon him;
And when he thinks, good, easy man, full surely
He's good for four years more, the campaign ends,
And then he falls, as I do.
* * * * * * * *
Daniel, I charge thee fling away ambition.
By that sin fell the angels; how can man then,
The image of his Maker, hope to win by it?
Love thyself last, cherish those hearts that hate thee,
Corruption wins not more than honesty.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

Something Has Dropped.

G. C.—Daniel, did you hear anything
D. L.—Yes, sire.
G. C.—And what was it, do you think
D. L.—I fear, sire, that it was grandfather's hat.

Algoma's Potato Liar.

LITTLE CURRENT, Nov. 6.—James Stone of the Township of Mills planted three quarters of an acre with potatoes, from which he has dug over 200 bushels, some of the potatoes weighing 4 pounds. One hill yielded 103 potatoes, 65 of which were fit for table.

Highwaymen in Middlesex.

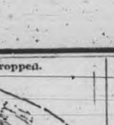
LONDON, Nov. 6.—Footpads and highwaymen have been doing some effective work hereabouts lately. Two farmers have been robbed by these gentry, but in neither case did they get any money. The county police are on the lookout.

Windsor's Inducement to the C. P. R.

WINDSOR, Nov. 6.—The Council has passed a by-law for the benefit of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, granting exemption for ten years on condition that they build an independent line from London to Windsor before August, 1890.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.



The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings healt and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack whenever there was a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Turnbull's Column.

This Column Tells What is Doing at Turnbull's.

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it takes an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Manties and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap. Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's. We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

THAT LITTLE ACCOUNT.

FOR THE EXPENSE OF THE MILITIA IN MANITOBA.

Winnipeg Will be Asked to Settle—Subscriptions Collected for the Sharpshooters' Monument Unaccounted For.

OTTAWA, Nov. 8.—In view of the statement made by Mayor Jones of Winnipeg that he would refuse to pay the expense of the militia called out in connection with the railway trouble, it has been ascertained from the Militia Department that a demand will be made on the Corporation of Winnipeg in the usual way for payment. General Middleton said that he thought the Mayor of Winnipeg would not be able to escape payment of the cost, although it might possibly lead to a great deal of litigation. "The militia regulations," said the General, "specify that troops may be called out on a requisition signed by three justices of the peace, including the warden, mayor or other head of the municipality or county in which any riot, disturbance or emergency occurs. The magistrate can act without the mayor, it is not obligatory for him to consent to troops being called out. Under the circumstances I do not see how Winnipeg can avoid the payment of these expenses."

Hon. John Robson, Provincial Secretary of Manitoba, arrived here yesterday for the purpose of discussing with the Dominion Government the questions pending between the Provincial and Dominion Governments. Amongst these is the payment of the expense, some $10,000 or $12,000, incurred in the recent Skeena River expedition. The Provincial Government contends that as the Indians amongst whom the trouble arose are wards of the Federal Government and the complaints were against the Dominion and not the Provincial Government, the expense should be borne by the former.

In the Supreme Court yesterday argument in the Joliette election case was concluded and judgment reserved.

The case of Chesley v. the Queen was then taken up and was not finished when court arose.

The time for receiving tenders for building the lock for the proposed Sault Ste. Marie Canal closed yesterday. A large number of contractors are here, and it is understood that many tenders have been received. The time for dredging the approaches and entrances to the lock has been extended to Dec. 6.

Quite a sensation has been caused by the statement that all the money collected for the Sharpshooters' monument has not been accounted for. One man is said to have gathered in something like $150, and the names of the parties who paid this money to him do not appear in the published list of subscribers. The assistant secretary of the fund states that the names of a number of gentlemen who claim that they subscribed are not on the official list.

There is a row in the Ottawa Ladies' College between Principal H. W. Scott and the five lady teachers. Some days ago Mr. Scott informed the teachers that in future they must march in to meals behind the pupils and march out in the same manner. In other words they were to leave the table before him and not remain to talk over the business of the day, as they were wont to do. This order the teachers refused to obey. Tuesday when they went to dinner they found the table laid only for the principal and the pupils; no plates, etc., were laid for the teachers, and although they sat out the meal the principal never spoke to them nor did the servants offer them anything. At supper the teachers did not appear but sent out and bought their own supper. Mr. Scott left on a canvassing tour yesterday morning and will not return for a couple of months, and the ladies meanwhile remain in possession. They are highly indignant at the conduct of the principal and threaten to resign in a body unless he is dismissed. The matter will be brought to the attention of the board at once.

Sir John and Lady Macdonald returned from Kingston yesterday morning. Sir John's sister being somewhat better. She is still, however, in a critical condition.

RELIEF FELT IN ENGLAND.

Demand for a Minister to Washington Who is Posted on Canadian Affairs.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—There seems to be a general feeling of relief here that the Presidential election is over and hope is expressed on all hands that the people of the United States will speedily regain their habitual soberness of mind and co-operate in an early settlement of outstanding disputes.

Regarding the Sackville incident a noteworthy demand is arising here for a new Minister to Washington, who shall have a closer personal knowledge bearing on the grave matters affecting Canadian interests than an ordinary diplomatist would possess.

The Pacific Cable Company are making efforts to explain the survey route to the Admiralty, and it is suggested that the question be raised in Parliament.

The tone of the Stock Exchange has been fairly good during the past week. Dominion issues have further improved, Quebec going 1½ up, the dealers, according to the Canadian Gazette, feeling that those against forcible conversion are stronger than the promoters. Canadian Pacifics have more than regained the fall caused by the Manitoba trouble. Grand Trunks have also improved.

The Manitoba Mortgage Company, at a meeting called for Nov. 13, will consider reconstitution.

A Scotch broker has petitioned the Court of Sessions for winding up the Scottish Canadian Asbestos Company, on the ground that the concern is unsuccessful.

TORONTO TOPICS.

A Chicagoan Fleeced by Skin Gamblers—"Phip" Spohn in Hot Water.

TORONTO, Nov. 8.—Liquidators Howland, Cooderham and Lye of the Central Bank yesterday presented the name of William Ralph Meredith, Q.C., of London to Master Hodgins for confirmation as the successor of the late Mr. Foster as their solicitor. The Master at once confirmed the selection, and complimented the liquidators on their choice. Mr. Meredith was in town yesterday and left in the evening for London.

W. H. Payne, a stranger from Chicago, presented himself at Police Headquarters yesterday and swore out warrants against Ted Fawcett, Henry alias "Slim" Wynne, and Powley on a charge of having swindled him out of $150 in a skin game of poker. Wynne was the only one of the party arrested up to a late hour last night, Detectives Davis and Slemin effecting his capture. Although Payne is from the rapid city of Chicago, the home of brace faro games, keno sharps and crooked poker players, he fell, as he claims, an easy victim to a put-up job by which he was fleeced out of $150. He was steered by Fawcett to No. 21 Mercer-street, and there despoiled of his cash by various methods known to the professional card player.

A general information was sworn out against "Phip" Spohn by Staff-Inspector Archabold yesterday. He and his friend, "Major" E. W. Crane, were charged in the Police Court with keeping a gaming house at No. 15½ King-street west. "Phip" wanted to compromise matters by offering through his lawyer, Ald. Galbraith, to close up his game if the police would let him go. He would not ask for the return of the tools which the police had seized. County Crown Attorney Badgerow would not consent to any such arrangement, and "Phip" and the "Major" were booked for a hearing next Monday, their own bail being accepted for their appearance.

The dismissed G. T. R. conductors are awaiting a reply from the company's headquarters at Montreal, to their demand for information as to the cause of their being cut off the roll. They have placed the matter before the Brotherhood of Conductors, which will also take action.

At the residence of the bride's mother, in Queen's Park, yesterday afternoon there took place a charming wedding which made man and wife of Mr. Augustine Foy, barrister-at-law, and Miss Constance, youngest daughter of the late Lieut.-Col. F. W. Cumberland, and sister of Mr. Barlow Cumberland. Rev. Father Laurent, assisted by Rev. Father Brennan, officiated.

The Jeffery case crops up in some way nearly every day. The latest addition to the voluminous literature of the subject is the publication this morning of Treasurer Gage's denial of Rev. Mr. Jeffery's charges touching an alleged failure to account for a portion of the building fund. The treasurer is backed up by the auditors and trustees.

MANITOBA'S LEGISLATURE.

Probable Contents of the Governor's Speech—The War Ended.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 8.—The second session of the seventh Legislature opens this afternoon, and will be attended with the usual pomp and parade. In the Speech from the Throne his Honor will likely assign the crisis in the railway matters as the reason for the calling of the House together. It will be suggested that if the present uncertain state of affairs continues between the Provincial and Federal Governments in regard to the railway question an appeal will be made to the Queen in Council to have our rights under the British North America Act clearly defined. It is unlikely that any mention will be made of retaliation. It is possible that the Government will ask to be clothed with power to assist needy municipalities. This undoubtedly means in the matter of furnishing seed grain to those who lost all their crop. Mention will likely be made of the intention of the Government to amend and consolidate several important Acts.

Altogether it is expected that the session will be a most important one and it will probably last about two weeks, when an adjournment will be made until January.

The trouble at the crossing is apparently at an end and the Infantry School was withdrawn yesterday. It is apparent that there is nothing to be done until the decision of the Supreme Court has been rendered.

COLLISION AT KINGSTON.

The Kingston and Pembroke Mixed Train Runs into a Grand Trunk Freight.

KINGSTON, Nov. 8.—A collision occurred yesterday on a siding running into the city between a Kingston and Pembroke Railway mixed train and a Grand Trunk freight. The Kingston and Pembroke baggage car was broken by the tender of the Grand Trunk locomotive. The brakemen jumped in various directions to escape being killed. The passengers in the Kingston and Pembroke coach were thrown against each other and two ladies fainted. The coach was injured. The Grand Trunk train was not badly damaged. The tender was broken and a part of a flat car destroyed.

A Cruel Father.

HAMILTON, Nov. 8.—John O'Grady was summoned to appear before Police Magistrate Cahill yesterday charged with assaulting his son, Andrew O'Grady. The lad is a bright and intelligent little fellow. He transgressed Tuesday and did not go to school. His father chastised him for playing truant, and his punishment was exceedingly severe. The boy told the magistrate that O'Grady knocked him down and kicked him on the head. His head was badly bruised, especially on the forehead. He was not well enough to attend court and the case was adjourned until to-day. The magistrate refused to allow O'Grady to leave the court-room until he obtained bail.

A Painful Accident.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 8.—Ambrose Haywood, of the Lorne House, has been down some weeks with tyyhoid fever and was just recovering when he met with a very painful accident. Monday morning he was assisting in unloading some hay when the planks he was standing upon gave way, precipitating him to the ground. Several ribs were broken, and he received a bad gash in the forehead and a wound in the neck caused by the fork entering it.

Lenham Girl Miss...

CHATHAM, Nov. 8.—Zoe, the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. Valade, tailor, of North Chatham, has been missing since Friday last. Before her departure she purchased a quantity of wearing apparel, etc., which she had charged to her father. Her parents are at a loss to account for her leaving, as she had always been a good steady girl, of correct habits, and seemingly quite contented.

Three Toughs Taken Care Of.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 8.—Three toughs who boarded a train at Tilsonburg on the Michigan Central Railway acted in a disorderly manner and were warned by Conductor Foxal that if they did not desist they would be fired off. This enraged them and they drew revolvers and threatened to shoot the conductor. They were handed over to the police here.

A Missing Farmer.

MONTREAL, Nov. 8.—The police have been informed that a farmer named Gedeon Rheaume, of Beauharnois, who came to Montreal on Oct. 29, with $600 on his person is missing. Foul play is suspected.

YOU CAN PAY BETS TO-DAY

HARRISON AHEAD IN NEW YORK BY OVER 11,000.

And Cleveland is Beaten—Indiana Probably Republican—California Claimed by the Democrats.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—The unofficial vote of all counties in the State as far as returned shows pluralities for Cleveland of 78,956, and for Harrison of 90,147, giving Harrison a plurality in the State of 11,191.

Both Claim Indiana.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 8.—Full returns have been received from 27 counties out of 92 in Indiana, which show a net Republican gain of 2365. The News says: "The Republican committee claims to have returns from 30 counties showing that Harrison would carry 5000 plurality. Governor Gray claims that the State is democratic by 6000."

Probably Republican.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 8.—The Indianapolis Journal has returns from 80 counties showing gains for Harrison of 7000, which would give 3500 majority for the national Republican ticket.

He Changed His Mind.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 8.—Mr. Sheerin, Secretary of the Democratic Committee, when asked last evening for an expression regarding the result in Indiana said: "We have heard from fifty-four counties officially and taking the figures claimed by the Republicans for the rest our returns give the State to Cleveland by from 1500 to 2000. I think we have carried it for State officers and have gained three and possibly four congressmen, and we have a good working majority in both branches of the Legislature."

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 8.—Secretary Sheerin of the Democratic National Committee said last night that it looked now as if Harrison had carried the state but it would require the official returns to decide.

Democrats Claim California.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—The following telegram was received at Democratic headquarters late last night:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 7.

Hon. C. S. Brice: We have carried this State for Cleveland and Thurman by a safe majority. W. D. ENGLISH.

Cleveland Captures Connecticut.

HARTFORD, Nov. 8.—Complete returns give Cleveland 74,940, Harrison 74,514, Fisk 4181; Cleveland's plurality 385.

Ohio Safe For Harrison.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 8.—All the counties (unofficial) except six show a plurality for Harrison of 20,331. The six counties not reported gave Foraker (Rep.) for Governor in 1887 a plurality of 436.

Chairman Quay's Claim.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Senator Quay, chairman of the National Republican Committee, authorizes the following: The Republicans on Tuesday carried by increased majorities all the states that were carried by Blaine in 1884, and in addition have New York by a plurality of 15,000 and Indiana by a plurality of from 4000 to 6000. West Virginia is in doubt. Gen. Harrison's election is secured.

The Next House Republican

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Secretary McPherson of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee says the Republicans will have about 12 majority in the next House of Representatives.

Conservative About Congratulations.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 8.—General Harrison is receiving hundreds of congratulatory telegrams from all sections of the country. He is very conservative about congratulations, however, and wants to feel sure he is out of the woods before he answers any of them. There were a great many callers at the house yesterday.

Charged With Intimidation.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Assemblyman Charles Smith was held in $2000 bail yesterday on the charge of intimidating voters Tuesday.

An Election Riot.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 8.—A riot occurred in Portsmouth between whites and blacks last night. Four hundred negroes marched down High-street, the principal thoroughfare in the city, singing "Hang Grover Cleveland on a Sour Apple Tree." At the corner of Dinwiddie-street a large party of white men were congregated and a white boy and a negro had a scuffle. The negroes came to the rescue of their comrade and were charged upon by the whites. Hardly had the fight commenced before shots were fired by the negroes. Then the wildest confusion prevailed and after about forty shots had been fired the negroes retreated.

The whites then discovered that three of their men had been wounded, two probably fatally. Immediately after the riot and after the negroes had retreated the whites began arming themselves. Everybody is now armed. Mayor Baird has called out guards and 100 special policemen have been sworn in. Intense excitement prevails and the negroes are reported forming outside the city.

VIGILANT REPUBLICANS.

A Statement to the Public From the National Committee.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—The Republican National Committee makes the following statement to the public:

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL HEADQUARTERS,

In view of the claim being promulgated by the Democratic National Committee that they have carried the State of New York for Cleveland and that they are sending telegrams to their local committees all over the state to that effect, the Republican National Committee have sent out to the chairman of each Republican County Committee of the State the following telegram:

"Although full returns from every county in the State show New York safely for Harrison by upwards of 15,000 plurality, the Democrats are telegraphing to their county chairmen, claiming the State and urging them to pay attention to the returns. See to it that the returns are thoroughly guarded until officially canvassed. Prevent frauds at all hazards. In case of necessity employ counsel. Notify us of any tampering with returns. Communicate with your committee at once if necessary by special messenger."

SENSATIONAL EVIDENCE.

Promised by the Parnellites in the Case Before the Commission.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—It is stated that Sir Charles Russell, counsel for the Parnellites, will call a witness to swear that he forged The Times letters and will show by enlarged photographs on a magic lantern that in tracing beneath the signature the pen was repeatedly stopped in the course of writing.

Ambassador to Italy.

PARIS, Nov. 8.—M. Marine has been appointed Ambassador to Italy.

He Went Afloat.

QUEENSTOWN, Nov. 8.—On the arrival here of the steamer Catalonia from Boston a passenger named Moriarity was arrested. A revolver and a quantity of ammunition were found concealed in his trunk. He was taken before a magistrate and remanded for further examination.

LAKEFIELD.

Correspondence of the Review.

A CORRECTION AND YET NOT A CORRECTION.—A member of the School Board waited on your correspondent and wished to have corrected the statement in last week's REVIEW that "Mr. Campbell, of Keene, was appointed as Principal of the Lakefield public school for the year 1889." He stated the Board had not as yet made any appointment. Your correspondent did not state that the Board made the appointment, but that "Mr. Campbell was to be the Principal for 1889," and we will most cheerfully leave it with "Old Father Time" to tell whether he is correct or not.

CURTAIN POLES with ring and end pelces, finished in brass, complete for 60c. at Henderson's Pharmacy, sold elsewhere at 85c. to $1.00. Call and see them.

PERSONAL.—Miss Lister left on Monday last for England, our winter climate being too severe for her. She expects to spend the winter months in the south of France. Her brother accompanied her to Montreal. We wish her bon voyage.... Mrs. Helliston has gone to Toronto on a visit to her friends.

SPORT.—Reeve Casement and party have gone for a few days sport, to have a crack at the deer. Good luck attend thee.

THE RINK.—Mr. R. O. Strickland some little time ago bought out all the shares in the rink. He is having it thoroughly overhauled. The building is being raised, the centre pillar taken out, and the bottom filled with sawdust. The lovers of skating will this winter have a good many blessings to shower on his head, as the rink will be wonderfully improved. Everything is being made convenient for the public.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.—A special meeting of the Council was held in the Council Chamber on Friday evening, to receive the report of the several committees appointed at the last meeting of the Council regarding plans for town hall, fire engine, &c. All the members present. A communication was received from Mr. McDonald, Secretary of the School Board, stating that it was found necessary to have another junior department added to the Public School, and asking that the Council grant the use of the Council Chamber for that purpose, with a request that the Board have the building by Jan. 1, 1888. Moved by Councillor Hull, seconded by Councillor Henderson,—That the communication from the School Board be received, and that they be granted their request, provided proper arrangements can be made, and that the Finance Committee meet with the committee of the School Board to make arrangements, and have power to close with them.—Carried. Mr. Henderson, chairman, submitted the following report of the Road and Sidewalk Committee:—"GENTLEMEN,—Your Road and Sidewalk Committee, since submitting their last report in connection with the snow fence to be placed on Queen-st., south of Mr. Crickmore's, have received a generous offer from Mr. Samuel Nelson to lend a fence for the winter of 1888-9—twenty-four sections 13ft. long, and twenty-four triangles—nearly enough required. Your committee recommend that this Council accept his offer, as the Council would be able to test the effectiveness of said fence with very small outlay. The corporation to see that the fence is returned in good condition by April 1st, 1889." Moved by Councillor Hull, seconded by Councillor Moore,—That the report of the Sidewalk Committee be received, and that we accept the offer of Mr. Nelson to lend us a snow fence.—Carried. The Building Committee reported that they had secured plans for the new hall, which were produced. The plans, prepared by Messrs. Ranney & Ludgate, Peterborough, were in the main passed, only a few minor alterations being suggested, such as doors, &c. On motion of Councillor Hull, seconded by Councillor Moore,—The plans were ordered to be changed as suggested, and to be submitted to the Council again for approval. Moved by Councillor Henderson, seconded by Councillor Nelson,—That this Council tender Mr. Geo. Mollmoyl a vote of thanks for his past services as village constable.—Carried. Mr. Wm. Trude addressed the Council and complained that although the butchers in the village paid a license of $25 per annum, they received little or no protection, as outsiders came into the village and sold meat contrary to the by-laws of the corporation. If the Council expected the butchers to see that the by-law was enforced he thought that the license should be no more than $10, same as it was in Peterborough. On motion of Councillor Henderson, seconded by Councillor Moore,—The matter was laid over until the next meeting of the Council. Moved by Councillor Nelson, seconded by Councillor Hull,—That the Clerk be instructed to prepare a by-law to appoint Geo. Mollmoyl constable for the remainder of the year, without salary.—Carried. The by-law was prepared, passed, signed and sealed by the Reeve and Clerk. The Council then adjourned to meet at the call of the Reeve.

ANOTHER SESSION.—A special meeting of the Village Council was held in the Council Chamber Tuesday evening. Present: Reeve in the chair, Councillors Hull, Nelson, Moore and Henderson. Moved by Councillor Hull, seconded by Councillor Moore,—That the building committee report be referred back with instructions to have windows put in west side of engine room and a door to connect the engine room with the firemen's hall.—Carried. The Building Committee report was then received and adopted. Moved by Councillor Hull and seconded by Councillor Moore,—That the Building Committee are hereby authorized to have plan and specifications prepared, and advertise for tenders for the new corporation building.—Carried. Councillor Nelson gave notice that at the next meeting of the Council, he will move that a memorial be prepared and adopted by this Council, to the Dominion Government, praying that they will assume the wharf built last season by this corporation. The same Councillor also gave notice of motion that at the next regular meeting of the Council he will introduce a by-law to establish a market on certain days of the week, and provide regulations for the same. Moved by Councillor Henderson and seconded by Councillor Moore,—That the Reeve and Clerk are hereby instructed to have prepared a by-law governing the fire brigade.—Carried. Moved by Councillor Moore and seconded by Councillor Henderson,—That this Council go as a committee and locate the engine stands along the river bank, and that the Road and Sidewalk Committee be empowered to build said stands. The Council then adjourned to meet at the call of the Reeve.

Chronic Coughs and Colds

And all Diseases of the Throat and Lungs can be cured by the use of Scott's Emulsion, as it contains the healing virtues of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites in their fullest form. See what W. S. Muer, M. D. L. R. C. P. etc., Truro., N. S., says: "After three years' experience I consider Scott's Emulsion one of the very best in the market. Very excellent in Throat affections." Put up in 50c. and $1 size.

Will the Notorious Rawson Divorce Case May be Compromised.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—It is announced that the notorious Rawson divorce case, which has had so many strange and startling phases during the two years it has been in the courts, is almost at an end. It is understood among the lawyers that a compromise has been made between the banker and his wife, and Judge Jamieson, before whom some of the issues of this extraordinary suit have been tried, is the reported mediator. The terms of settlement are these: Mr. Rawson agrees to give his wife $40,000, and her divorce suit on the ground of desertion will be allowed to go by default. All other civil suits—which are legion—will be dropped. Mr. Rawson retracts his charges against his wife's character, and the criminal prosecution against her for shooting Col. Whitney will be discontinued.

The history of the troubles of the Rawsons would fill a book. Stephen W. Rawson is one of the wealthiest men in Chicago, and is about 64 years old. Four years ago he married Miss America L. Lee, a remarkably handsome woman, more than twenty years his junior. She had been twice divorced, was once a Treasury clerk at Washington, and before that something of a watering-place belle. Mr. Rawson lived with his bride in a magnificent marble-front residence on the West Side, but in a few months it was common talk that the couple did not get on well together, and in the fall of 1886 Mr. Rawson began suit for divorce on the ground of unfaithfulness. The only witness he had was a sleeping-car porter, and this man afterward confessed that he had sworn falsely and the case was thrown out of court. Since then Mr. Rawson has filed amended bills, his wife has filed cross bills, there have been rejoinders and sur-rejoinders, affidavits, depositions, and traverses, until the accumulation is far beyond any precedent in even a Chicago divorce case. Both parties to the suit have had detectives watching each other, and whenever a detective saw a chance for an affidavit one was immediately added to the pile.

Mrs. Rawson had a son, Ralph Lee, and he was the cause of a good deal of the trouble between the banker and his wife. On Sunday, Oct. 15 of last year, young Lee crept up behind Mr. Rawson as he was leaving church and shot him in the back. The wound was supposed to be fatal, but Mr. Rawson got well and young Lee was sent to prison for a year. His mother was indicted for complicity, but the trial was postponed several times and finally the case dropped. June 1 Mrs. Rawson's lawyers went before Judge Jamieson to urge a speedy hearing of the suit. Col. A. R. Whitney was arguing against them, when Mrs Rawson dashed into the room and shot him twice. His wounds were also supposed to be mortal, but he is alive, though very feeble. Mrs. Rawson was indicted, but has not yet been tried. Last week she filed a new bill of divorce for desertion.

DRUNK AND PLAYING COWBOY.

Six Roisterers on Horseback Run Over and Kill an Old Man.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Six men, headed by a fellow whose hair fell upon his shoulders after the fashion of a cowboy, carried consternation into Flushing and Cottage Point, L.I. They were all mounted upon mettlesome horses and were considerably under the influence of liquor. It was not the first time they had visited the town. They are attaches of a riding academy in the neighborhood of Graham-avenue and Skilman-street, Brooklyn. They rode abreast at full speed, regardless of the terrified pedestrians, who fled into doorways to avoid being run over. At Cottage Point they visited several saloons, and metaphorically painted the town red, whooping and shouting like Indians.

Opposite Shuck's saloon they drew up six abreast, still howling, and their leader gave the command, "Let her go." They gave rein, dashed off at full gallop, just as Jos. Kroger, a market gardener, 50 years old, was crossing from his house to the opposite side of the road. In an instant he was under the hoofs of the horses. The men saw what they had done, but paid no attention to their victim. At a mad gallop they passed through Flushing and made their escape.

When Kroger was picked up he was dead. Three ribs on the left side were crushed in, and death resulted from the pressure on the heart. Two of the reckless party were recognized. They are said to be John McCormick and a man named Meyer. Warrants have been issued.

BLOWING UP THE FOUNDATIONS OF HIGH PRICES.

CARRYING THE EARTHWORKS BY STORM!

KING WINTER CAPITULATES AND WELL HE MAY.

His icy fetters are broken, knocked to splinters and worse than useless. GOUGHS, the Wonderful Cheap Men, have purchased a slashing stock of Clothing that is within the reach of all, no matter how poor. GOUGHS can cover any man that walks with clothing that will shed the rain, turn the cold and entitle the wearer to respect.

HURRAH FOR GOUGHS

The friends of the working man, the champions who crush down the giant of big prices, who have cut the cords and poured out the benefits of Cheap and Good Clothing to the thousands of this Noble Country.

$25,000 Stock of Clothing bought at 37½c. on the Dollar

Are you after Clothing? If you are, read our bill of fare. 25,00 OVERCOATS any size from 3 years old up to size 45 breast, ranging in price from 98c. to $17.00. 2,800 SUITS all sizes, we can fit the smallest boy in the Country or the largest Alderman in the Councel, ranging in price from 68c. to $18.00 Underwear and Cardigan Jackets, 1,000 doz to choose from. See our All Wool Shirts and Drawers, 39c each. 100 doz. Wool Socks to be sold for 20c. per pair.

$10,000 Stock of Boots at 40c. on the Dollar.

An upheavel taken place in leather and the boot and shoe trade shattered to pieces. On Saturday we are going to run a special Boot Sale. Good Goods and Low Prices have gained for us the admiration of close buyers. Our 25c. Boots have completely demoralized the high priced dealers. One man says Goughs are selling below cost, so we are! That is we sell lots of Goods below the first cost of manufacture and still make a living profit. Some people would naturally like to know how we do it. "Here is the Secret." A wholesale man gets hard up, wants money, must have it. He knows Goughs are spot cash buyers. They send for the Wonderful Cheap Men. They arrive on the scene. The wholesale man says, Gough what will you give for 300 cases of these boots; Goughs look them over carefully, find them good desirable selling lines and make a bid of 40c. on the dollar; after hard fighting we get them. They arrive in Peterborough, are sold at 50c. on the dollar, we therefore sell them at half price and make a living profit for ourselves. These are a few of the many reasons why posterity has raised up and christened us GOUGHS, the Tireless, Sleepless, Wide-Awake Boot Men, GOUGHS, the Kings of Clothiers, GOUGHS, the Original Agitators of Small Profits, GOUGHS, the Wonders of the 19th Century. For roaring value in Clothing, Boots Shoes or Furnishing Goods don't buy until you see the far famed

ADVERTISING

When Newspapers first began to be published in London, an editor took opportunity one day to say that a certain man desired a certain something—no matter what. That was the invention of advertising, though the inventor may not have known what he had found. From that time to this peor'e have made more or less use of the papers to publish their wants, and tradesmen their wares; but we doubt very much whether any real improvement upon the first advertisement has ever been made. It was a frank statement that somebody wanted something and what it was that he wanted. Doubtless he got it. We want something. Want to sell goods. Good goods too. The best of the best in Groceries. The range of stock is a wide one. It has to be wide to suit all customers. That we do suit is positive.

If there is one thing we do better than another it is in TEAS.

It is our specialty. Years of experience tell us how and where to buy. We use that experience and select the best.

Do you like a good article? Do you value flavor and strength in Tea? If so give us a trial order.

In addition, every line of groceries you can call for we have.

He also offers to meet the Chairman of Streets and Bridges and hear any suggestions which he may have to make as to the work.

Bobcaygeon Wants a Dry Dock.

An Ottawa despatch to the Empire says:—"Mr. Hudspeth, M.P., was in town on Tuesday with a petition for presentation to the Minister of Railways, praying for the construction of a dry dock at Bobcaygeon. The petition was unanimously signed by captains of steamers plying on the Trent Valley canal system. It represented that at present steamboat owners have no place where they can go for repairs, except to Trenton, and that to those vessels which confine their operations to the back waters of the Trent much loss of time is entailed in going such a long distance. A dry dock at Bobcaygeon would be central and cheaply constructed in connection with the work of building the dam now in progress at that point, the only thing required, say the petitioners, being the extension of the present piers and the driving in of stop logs at either end. A departmental engineer will be sent to report on the proposed work."

The Rescuing of the Cow.

The assault case of Foord vs. Squires which was enlarged from yesterday about the rescue of a cow which was being impounded was up at the police court this morning, and was dismissed without costs. The complainant had another witness present, but the magistrate said he could not see that the charge of assault had been established, and, as there was no law under which he could convict the defendant for rescuing his bovine he would have to dismiss the case.

Two Nights Only,

The Value of Five Cents.

To most people a five cent piece is an insignificent piece of money. This may be because people have got into a habit of buying things for which a nickle did not amount to much. But there is a place right here in Peterborough where five cents has its own way and is respected because it is of some account. The place is at gough bros. where things are going so cheap that five cents tells on the value. Every person spending a dollar on boots and shoes at gough's gets two dollars worth of goods. A seven thousand dollar stock, bought at a great bargain enables this live firm to sell the best of boots and shoes at less than half the regular price. When you want boots and shoes go straight to gough bros., you will get big bargains and twice the worth of your money. 1d109-1w45

The first duty of man is to array himself in decent clothes. They may not be expensive; it is not necessary they should. The exegencies of the weather will govern and with some allowance for taste and funds at disposal. To expend money judiciously and get a good article calls for a good place to buy at. Then try Clarke. Clarke makes it his business to keep good clothes, to do good work and to give every garment style and fit. The neatest dressed men in town get their clothes at Clarke's. Keeping well up with the times the new fall stock is unusually well selected and the goods handsome. Splendid suitings and overcoatings, the newest styles. Then there is the matter of shirts. Get a comfortable article by having them made to order at Clarke's. Plain, white or fancy. Every style desired and sure to fit well. Order at once from Clarke, the clothier, George-st.

Friday and Saturday,

A Prolemical Passage-at-Arms.

It is understood that the Y. P. A. of Simcoe-st. Methodist church, Oshawa, have forwarded a challenge to the Endeavour Society of Charlotte-st. Methodist church, that representatives from both societies should engage in debate. There is no doubt the challenge will be accepted. The intention is to have the discussion take place at the Simcoe-st. church school room, at Oshawa on a date to be mutually arranged. By the rule of the duels Peterborough representatives are entitled to name the subject and will suggest fighting it out on the resolution, "Resolved that the United States is a better country to live in than Canada." Peterborough taking the negative side of the question. Should the preliminaries be satisfactorily adjusted, Mr. O. C. Bowes and Mr. A. Tebb will do the talking for the Endeavour Society, which both are well qualified to do.

Notice of Visit.

N. Stanley, 18 Jewin-st., London, Eng., and 79 Bay-st., Toronto, Can., intends sending a practical optician, Prof. L. S. Druitt, of London, Eng., to his agent to Peterborough at regular intervals, who will be competent to measure and accommodate every defect of the eyesight that is prevalent. He will in every instance use the firm's Celebrated Spectacles and Eye-glasses, so well known for the delightful ease and comfort they confer on the wearer. There is no glimmering, wavering, dizziness or other distressing sensations so common in the many inferior grades at present in the market, but they comfort, strengthen and preserve the sight. Take care that you are not at present wearing a spectacle which is not exactly adjusted to your sight and consequently acting as a severe strain on the optical nerves, and remember that such a delicate organism as that of the eye requires exact accommodation. No charge made for examination. Remember the date, Saturday, November 10th, at Ormond & Walsh's, Druggists, Peterborough. Ont. 5d105-1w45

GREENFIELD IN COURT.

CHIEF ROSZEL BRINGS HIM HERE FROM BUFFALO.

A Young Looking Criminal—Recognized by his old Acquaintances—Pleads "Not Guilty"—Elects to be Tried by Jury—Preliminary Trial on Tuesday.

When the 11 34 train on the C. P. R. pulled into the station and drew up alongside the platform last night, there were about seventy men eagerly stretching their necks and straining their eyes to catch a glimpse of Greenfield, or Ferguson, the Gough burglar, who was expected to be on the train in the custody of Chief Roszel. As the train came to a full stop, Chief Roszel made his appearance accompanied by the youthful but noted criminal. The officer's left wrist was chained to Greenfield's right, so that the Chief had free use of his right arm and hand in case of emergency. Thus they had traveled during their trip. The Chief, Constable Adams and Greenfield immediately entered a hack and were driven to the castle on the hill.

AT THE POLICE COURT.

This morning many were the footsteps which were turned in the direction of the Police Court, and at ten o'clock the room was packed with a large crowd, all anxious to catch a glimpse of the man who is supposed to have committeed the burglary and fought the duel with Constable Stewart which caused such an excitement on September 6th last. They had to wait for some time until an assault case was concluded, but they did that without a murmer. Just as this case was finished Chief Roszel entered the doorway and chained to him was the man who is supposed to have been guilty of as long a list of burglaries and, the last anyway, as

DARING AS MANY MEN

who have served a much longer apprenticeship in the service of crime. They saw a young man, well dressed in a dark suit of clothes, who, in the face, hardly looks his twenty-one years, is of ordinary stature, but well built, with a well shaped head, covered with close, curly hair and possessing bright, sharp eyes, a high forehead, an aqualine nose and a mouth which indicates that its owner has a will of his own and would be the last man to throw up the sponge if cornered and

COMPELLED TO FIGHT.

Greenfield has altogether a rather good-looking, intelligent face and would not by any means be put down as a criminal from appearances. "He has not changed in the least," remarked several who had known the boy Ferguson, when he lived in Peterborough, and who had recognized him immediately when he entered the room. He kept his eyes steadily fixed on Constable Stewart, who was present, and that officer returned the stare with interest. They seemed to be sizing each other up. He looked at the crowded room, and smiled slightly as he took his seat on the prisoner's bench. He seemed to be a little nervous, but talked and laughed with the Chief and his counsel. He did not seem to feel his position a great deal.

THE TRIAL ON TUESDAY.

Mr. R. E. Wood, County Crown Attorney, who will, of course, conduct the prosecution, was present, and Mr. E. B. Stone appeared for the prisoner. Police Magistrate Dumble read the charge "of feloniously shooting on the morning of the sixth day of September, at Joseph Stewart, with intent to kill or maim," to the prisoner, and asked him if he was guilty or not guilty. "Not guilty" replied the prisoner. "Are you ready to go on with your trial?" asked the magistrate. The prisoner signified he was, and was then asked if he would be tried summarily by the magistrate or by a jury. "By a jury" he replied.

The magistrate then remanded him until Tuesday next, when the witnesses will be summoned and the preliminary trial takes place.

Mr. C. W. Sawers has been retained by Greenfield to defend him at his trial.

Thanksgiving Day.

The first rehearsal for the services to be held in the George-st. Methodist Church on Thanksgiving Day will be held in that church this Thursday evening at 8 o'clock precisely. The members of the several choirs will kindly meet Mr. Carter at that hour.

Brevities.

—There were no arrests last night.

—The fall of snow this morning made things look wintery.

—A common meter—"What's the latest about the President?"

—The trotting race announced for this week has postponed indefinitely.

—The Band of Hope will be reorganized at 4.15 o'clock to morrow afternoon in the W.C.T.U. hall.

COME! Brace Up!

That's the Idea. Brace Up! Entirely, we mean, in a clothing sense.

Fall weather is on us. Warmer Clothing is a necessity.

Take a look at our Suitings. Worth buying, you say. Right you are, absolutely right.

Our top price suit of Scotch Tweed are excellent. They look well and wear well.

But it isn't every man that cares to pay the top price even if he gets a tip-top article. Then we catch him with a Canadian Tweed Suit that's a daisy, every time.

And so on down the range of goods and prices. But the fit and finish, mind you, is identical in all cases. You get the style no matter what you order.

Literary Notes.

We have received a copy of a pamphlet, "An Irish Revolution," by Mr. Watson Griffin, in which the federal idea is advocated. The pamplet is an interesting essay on an important subject, and whether the reader agrees with the author or not, its perusal will be profitable.

Mr. Wm. Bryce, publisher, Toronto, continues to supply the market with the latest novels, neatly printed in popular form. Among his latest publications are the Canadian copyright edition of "Under-Currents," by the author of "Phyllis," "Molly Bawn," etc., (price 30 cents), and a Canadian edition of "A Gallant Fight," by Marion Harland, author of "Alone," "True as Steel," etc. (40 cents).

It's positively the chance of a lifetime to get 3 boxes of matches for 10c. at M. R. Kidd's.

A Delightful Sensation.

If you want real delight, as well as lasting benefit after eating use the Quill Pick and Floss Silk between your teeth; now conveniently supplied by Dr. Mason's Combination Tooth Pick. Then apply thoroughly, the Ideal Felt Tooth Polisher and note the feeling of cleanliness, freshness and smoothness imparted. Tais habit, continued, will preserve your teeth in their natural beauty and lustre. 6d105

THE PREMIER'S OPINION

ON THE RESULT OF THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.

Is a Matter Touching Which Sir John Declines to Take the Public Into His Confidence.

OTTAWA, Nov. 8.—The Republican victory in the presidential election has caused no excitement here, the general opinion appearing to be that it makes no difference to Canada, as now that the election is over it will be as easy, or easier, to negotiate with the Republicans as it would have been with the Democrats, had they won. An attempt to interview Sir John was made yesterday afternoon, but he was too cautious to express any opinion on the result. The following is the interview as published in The Journal :

"What do you think of the result ?"

"I have no opinion to offer on that point," replies Sir John, with a smile.

"There is an impression that the Dominion Government favored the return of Cleveland."

—"Not at all, not at all. We were quite colorless on that point as well." Sir John said this with emphasis, and he looked as though he meant what he said.

"What secured Cleveland's defeat ?"

"I canhot tell the causes which won the election for Harrison."

"And the international difficulties ?"

"President Cleveland remains in power until March next. What course he will adopt I cannot say. I have no reason to believe the Republicans are hostile to Canada. They favor a protective tariff not unlike our own. There is no great urgency in settling the fishery question. The fishing season is over for this year and operations will not be resumed until next year."

"Are you hopeful of a settlement of the difficulty ?"

"You know I never allow myself to be interviewed," was the response. "The treaty negotiated last year is dead. It was rejected by the United States Senate, not by the Canadians. Of course if negotiations were resumed a new treaty could be framed on the same terms. At any rate the negotiations will have to be commenced anew. The Washington treaty of 1872 was negotiated by a Republican president with a Republican majority in the Senate. Is it not reasonable to suppose that the Republicans will manifest in 1889 the same spirit which actuated them in 1871 ?"

Hon. Mr. Foster was rather more free in his expression of opinion. He is reported as having said : "So far as the election goes I have no decided sympathy with either party. It is impossible to forecast what line the Republicans will adopt in their relations with Canada, fiscal and fishery, as it was impossible to learn from the contradictory course of the Democrats during last year what its policy would have been for another administration had it been successful. The different lines put forth seem to have been more to influence the presidential election than indicative of a settled policy which should rule after the election was over. I have no reason to think that the administration of Harrison will be anything else them friendly towards Canada, and that opinion is backed by Harrison's letter of acceptance in which he took reasonable ground."

Mr. Foster in conclusion said he thought the United States should take the initiative in negotiating a new fishery treaty.

THIS HUSBAND WAS CRUELLY ABUSED

He Got a Divorce Because His Wife Talked Too Much and Hit Too Hard.

DETROIT, Nov. 8.—In 1884 Maxwell M. Fisher, 59 years old, a millionaire of Detroit, and Frances A. Garrison, 55 years old, were married. They went on a wedding tour to California. A month later, while in Santa Barbara, he alleges that his wife yelled at him so long and so loud one night that half the people in the Arlington Hotel awoke and listened. They traveled around California for about two months, and at almost every hotel where they stopped Mr. Fisher alleges that his wife repeated the occurrence. On May 1 this curious honeymoon terminated and they settled down in this city. Then their difficulties began in earnest.

Mr. Fisher charges that his wife circulated scandalous stories about him and an innocent young woman living in the household, and even went so far as to give such stories circulation through a newspaper. One evening in November, 1885, Mr. Fisher states, his wife "began to talk at him," and continued until 3 o'clock the next morning without stopping. At that hour Mr. Fisher timidly ventured to attempt to talk back, when she sprang from bed, he says, and hit him in the face several times, knocking him out in the first round, as he confesses. On May 29 last he filed a bill for divorce, and alleged the foregoing acts of cruelty on her part. Mrs. Fisher did not file an answer, and Judge Gartner yesterday granted the divorce. Mrs. Fisher is worth $150,000 in her own right, and both parties to the suit are well known in Detroit.

He Stuck Fast in the Mud.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Victor McDonald, a hardware dealer, of Stamford, Conn., got drunk in Harlem and walked into the river near McComb's dam bridge. It was low tide and McDonald soon found himself up to his waist in mud and stuck fast. He struggled desperately, but the more he twisted and turned the deeper he sank, and, fearing the tide would rise and drown him, he began to yell for help. Policeman Convers, of the Highbridge station, heard him and went to his assistance. The officer found he could do nothing for McDonald without wading out to him in the mud, and out he went. When the two finally reached solid ground they were sorry-looking objects. McDonald presented a ridiculous sight when arraigned in the Harlem Court. The black mud had formed in hard cakes all over his clothing and in his beard and hair, and the legs of his trousers and shoes were so filled with it that he could scarcely walk. He was discharged upon his promise to go to his home at once.

Burglary at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Nov. 8.—Seven or eight pairs of buckskin gloves were stolen out of Messrs. Gardner & Thompson's store yesterday morning. A hole, about six inches across, was cut in the panel of the door near the ground. Some hats were near the hole, but they were too big to be taken out. The place was not entered and nothing has been missed.

James Cushing's Injuries.

ELORA, Nov. 8.—Tuesday evening James Cushing, a farmer, was returning home, when his horses became unmanageable and turned sharply, throwing out the occupant with the load on top of him. The man lay for about fifteen minutes under the load and it is feared that he is injured internally, besides being scratched about the head and face.

The Drayton Pact in Trouble.

GUELPH, Nov. 8.—T. Claude Dean, poet, litterateur, etc., of Drayton, against whom an action for libel was brought at the assizes here by H. S Mitchell, offered to apologize and submit to a verdict of $1 damages and $50 costs. This was accepted by the plaintiff and a verdict rendered accordingly.

Sudden Death of an Ontario Man.

MONCTON, N. B., Nov. 8—Mr. D. Cameron, of Lucknow, Ont., employed by the contractor for the Cape Tormentine breakwater, was killed suddenly by the tipping of the rigging of a derrick. He fell a distance of 30 feet and died a few hours afterwards.

Fire at Oshawa.

OSOAWA, Nov. 8.—Shortly after 6 o'clock yesterday morning fire was discovered in a frame house on the corner of Colborne and Princess-streets, which was partially burned on July 1 last. The flames were soon extinguished but the building is nearly a total wreck.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order. Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember: — No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings healt and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2 00, 2 50 and 3 00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it take an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Fannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's. We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

THE MORMONS IN THE N.W.

A DELEGATE AT THE CAPITAL TO SECURE A TOWN SITE.

Another Meeting of the Provincial Treasurers of Ontario and Quebec With the Minister of Finance to Take Place.

OTTAWA, Nov. 9.—Messrs. C. O. Card, M. Lyman and J. W. Taylor, representing the Mormon Colony at Lees Creek, N.W.T., are in the city for the purpose of endeavoring to secure from the Government a town site at Lees Creek. In an interview yesterday Mr. Card stated that the colony numbered 125 souls. He said there was no intention of making a wholesale transfer of the Mormons in Utah to the protection of the British flag and when asked whether the Mormons in Canada proposed to practice polygamy replied that they did not propose to break the law.

It is expected that another meeting of the Provincial Treasurers of Ontario and Quebec with the Minister of Finance will take place about the end of the current month with a view to adjusting the outstanding accounts between those provinces and the Dominion.

The tenders for the lock at Sault Ste. Marie, fourteen in number, were opened yesterday. It will take some time to extend them and it is not likely the contract will be awarded before next week.

Father Labelle, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Quebec, Prof. Chartur, Prof. Choquette, Mr. Birnatchez and Mr. Pilon of Quebec were in the city yesterday. They form a committee which is investigating the resources of the province. They inspected the Central Experimental Farm and expressed themselves as well pleased with what they saw. The visitors left last night for Guelph to visit the Ontario Agricultural College there. Hon. Father Labelle proposes to establish an experimental laboratory at Quebec. He proposes to make tests with fertilizers and soils from various parts of the province.

Mr. McMillan of Petrolia interviewed the Minister of Customs yesterday and asked that sterine, which is used in the manufacture of wax, should be placed on the free list. At present sterine is not produced in Canada, and there is a duty of 2 cents a pound on it.

There is some talk of Mr. C. H. Mackintosh, ex-M.P., being a candidate for the mayoralty. A French Canadian convention, to consider the propriety of bringing out a candidate, will be held on Nov. 15.

BETTER THAN WATER.

A Poor Well-Digger Strikes a Rich Bed of Mica—A Chance for Speculators.

HAMILTON, Nov. 9.—Mr. Robert Ledex, an old well-digger, who for over forty years has been digging in the bowels of the earth in search of "bright, sparkling water," is in luck. When engaged at his usual avocation on a farm within four miles of Hamilton, he struck something bright and sparkling, which was not water either. It proved, on examination, to be mica of the pure white type, and knowing ones pronounce it the genuine article. Mr. Ledex says that the vein was found between seven and eight feet below the surface, and is over nine feet in depth. He says he has been for years looking for something of this sort in the vicinity of Hamilton. Frequently has he come across iron ore, which led him to believe that mica was not far off, but not until yesterday did he find the perfect article. Mr. Ledex is a poor man, and, of course, is anxious to make something out of his find.

A Brilliant Wedding at Montreal.

MONTREAL, Nov. 9.—A brilliant marriage took place last night at the Church of St. John the Evangelist, when Oswald de Normandy Cammon, barrister of New York, was wedded to Miss Maude Church, daughter of Judge Church of the Court of Queen's Bench. Rev. Messrs. Wood and French officiated. The happy couple will reside in New York.

The marriage of Mr. V. H. Meredith, assistant local manager of the Bank of Montreal, to Miss Isabel Brenda Allan, daughter of Mr. Andrew Allan, will take place next week.

Belleville Briefs.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 9.—Dwelling houses in Milltown occupied by Wesley Reed and B. Reed were burned Wednesday. The former, owned by its occupant, was insured; the latter, owned by L. A. Appleby of this city, was uninsured; loss $1000.

James Lattimer, a merchant of Madoc, has gone to the States, after borrowing money from all who would lend it to him.

Mr. J. J. Kelly, head master of the Separate School, has tendered his resignation. He will at the end of the year retire to study medicine.

St. Thomas and the G. T. R.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 9.—The City Council are about taking steps towards representing to the Grand Trunk the injury done to individuals and the city by the removal of a large number of Grand Trunk Railway employes to London. The Mayor and Ald. Martyn were appointed a committee to visit Hamilton and wait upon Mr. Stiff with a view towards inducing the Grand Trunk to permit the crews ordered to London from the city to remain here.

She Failed to Cremate Herself.

COLUMBUS, Wis., Nov. 9.—A widow named Brewer fastened her young son outdoors, lay down on her bed, and set it on fire. Her son called the neighbors who broke open the house and saved the woman, who was unconscious but little injured. Mental depression from sickness was the cause.

VOX POPULI VOX DEI.

NOT THE LEAST DOUBT ABOUT HARRISON'S ELECTION.

A Clear Majority of 71 in the Electoral College—West Virginia the Only Doubtful State.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—The election returns to-day serve only to accentuate the Republican victory. New York, Indiana and California are as certainly Republican as New Jersey and Connecticut are Democratic. There remains one doubtful state—West Virginia—and the latest returns, showing considerable Republican gains, indicate that the state has swung away from the "solid south."

According to the latest returns the roll of states in the Electoral College stands:

Total Electoral Vote	401
Necessary to a Choice	201
Harrison and Morton	233
Cleveland and Thurman	162
Doubtful (West Virginia)	6

In 1884 the vote of the Electoral College was:

Cleveland and Hendricks	219
Blaine and Logan	182

New York (37) and Indiana (15) are the Republican gains assured, with West Virginia (6) still doubtful.

The Tariff Issue.

ALBANY, Nov. 9.—Governor Hill in a speech last night said that Democrats must face the issue of tariff reform so courageously and unselfishly raised by President Cleveland, and that issue must be the party's platform in the main until its triumph has been accomplished.

Depew Will Not Be in the Cabinet.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—In an interview Chauncey M. Depew states that Cleveland's chance was good for a walk-over until he sent his message to Congress, and until it was embodied in the Mills Bill. That action placed the Democrats on the defensive and lost them the election. Mr. Depew says the tariff must be revised; but the protective principle must be preserved. Mr. Depew said he would not accept a seat in Harrison's Cabinet, if offered.

A Weathercock Policy Unprofitable.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Globe says: President Cleveland has not gained anything by fussing with the fisheries question nor by brusque, rude treatment of Lord Sackville. It is satisfactory to find that even in America a weathercock policy is not always profitable. Their defeat is a heavy blow to the Democrats. It may help to compensate Mr. Blaine for his previous failure, as he will probably become Secretary of State. Mr. Blaine may not be able to revive the remarkable foreign policy which helped to create distrust and secure his defeat, but his alliance or understanding with the Irish element may not tend to soften his conduct in international affairs.

Friends in Both Camps.

DUBLIN, Nov. 9.—United Ireland expresses indifference at the result of the Presidential election in the United States, as it says it has friends in "both camps." Harrison, the paper thinks, owes his election to the Sackville affair, as the Irish voters suspected President Cleveland of being friendly with Lord Salisbury. "While it is flattering to the Irish to be able to turn the scale in such a contest, the fact is regrettable, as it is also humiliating and menacing to America. The Irish vote exists as a separate and menacing factor to American politics, because the fact that Ireland is without Home Rule rankles as a spear head in the relations between the English speaking races. It would be cheaper for America to establish Home Rule in Ireland, even at the cost of a war with Great Britain. We need not comment upon the value to England of a settlement of the Irish question."

TORONTO TOPICS.

A Shower of Bullets—Policeman Welch's Peril—Chevalier MacDonell.

TORONTO, Nov. 9.—Policeman John Welsh was walking his beat last night when he was deliberately fired at by one of two men walking on the opposite side of the street. The first shot was immediately followed by a second, the man doing the popping walking into the road to take better aim. About this moment Welsh thought it time to defend himself, and drawing his revolver fired at his assailant, with the object, however of only frightening him. Nothing daunted the man fired a third shot, but none of the three shots took effect. Welsh, realizing that his life was in danger, then began firing in earnest. Then his assailant started to run towards Queen-street, Welsh continuing to fire with the object of winging him. He succeeded in bringing him down by a shot in the leg. When taken to the station the man gave his name as John Kennedy from Rochester.

The World this morning says that a conspiracy has been organized to defeat the College Federation scheme in connection with Victoria.

The Mayor yesterday had an interview with the Attorney-General with reference to the $300,000 that is required to complete the Don improvements, now at a standstill owing to the appropriation having run out. Mr. Mowat said his government would in all probability authorize the City Treasurer to at once borrow the necessary sum without waiting for the people to vote on the by-law on Nov. 13. This means that the Government will pass the necessary legislation when the House meets and the work can go ahead at once.

Mr. Henry Godson, Inspector of Inland Revenue for the district of Toronto, receive a telegram from Hon. John Costigan last evening stating that ex-Ald. James Pepler had been appointed Inspector of Hides for Toronto.

There was a private meeting of the council of the Imperial Federation League of Canada at the Queen's Hotel yesterday. A committee was appointed with instructions to take steps towards the holding in Canada of a conference of colonial representatives. Steps were taken with regard to the establishment of more branch leagues throughout the Dominion and for the facilitating of the circulation of the league organ, Imperial Federation.

W. J. MacDonell, the aged Vice-Consul of France, who is best known in Toronto by his connection with many public charities, has been honored with the distinction of being created a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor of France.

Fell Down the Hold.

MONTREAL, Nov. 9.—About 8.30 o'clock last night a man named James O'Hagan whilst walking on the deck of the Dominion line steamer Quebec fell into the hold a depth of fifteen feet on to a lot of deals. In falling he turned a somersault and alighted on his feet and fell. When picked up he was insensible. The ambulance of the General Hospital was telephoned for and the injured man conveyed to that institution. On the doctors examining the man it was found that he had sprained both his ankles and was suffering from internal injuries. On enquiry at a late hour he was reported to be doing as well as could be expected.

M. E. Bishops in Secret Session.

BOSTON, Nov. 9.—The Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church began their semi-annual session yesterday forenoon. The bishops in council represent more than 2,000,000 members. The councils are secret, though some matters of general interest are made public.

STRANGE SHOOTING AFFRAY.

Mrs. Stokes of Philadelphia Shot by Fred Raimos a Cuban.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 9.—A mysterious shooting affair, which will in all likelihood cause the death of Mrs. Rettie Stokes, residing at No. 331 Greenwich-street, occurred last night. Quite early in the evening three shots were heard in the house, and an officer upon investigation found that a Cuban named Fred Raimos had shot Mrs. Stokes three times, two of the bullets taking effect in her face and the third one in one of her lungs. The officer arrested Raimos, but only succeeded in doing so after the prisoner had fired a shot and had been clubbed into insensibility. Both Mrs. Stokes and Raimos were taken to a hospital, where the former is dying and the latter either feigning or is actually unconscious. Not the slightest clue as to the motive for the crime can be learned, the woman being unable by reason of the wounds in her face to talk, and the prisoner being silent. Mrs. Stokes has a 7-year-old child and lived with her husband in the house she received her wounds. Her husband, who returned to the house shortly after the affair, can throw no light upon it.

ANGERED AND ASTONISHED.

Queensland Doesn't Like the Appointment of Governor Blake.

BRISBANE, Nov. 9.—The Premier has sent a cable despatch to the Queensland agent in England saying that the appointment of Governor Blake of Newfoundland, to the Governorship of Queensland has excited general anger and wonder. Ex-Premier Griffiths agrees with the Premier in condemning the appointment.

Last month the Government here urged the English Government privately to submit the name of the proposed new Governor before the appointment was made, but Lord Knutsford replied that it was impossible to allow the Colonial Ministers to share in the responsibility for the nomination.

ACTION FOR BREACH OF PROMISE.

The Bride was Ready, But the Bridegroom Failed to Appear.

BROCTON, Mass., Nov. 9.—Miss Susie B. Leach, the daughter of Lemuel Leach of Campbell, 24 years of age, an attractive young lady, has brought suit claiming $10,000 damages against Henry H. Litchfield of Boston and Plymouth for breach of promise of marriage. Mr. Litchfield is 40 years of age, is in the real estate business in Boston, and has considerable property. Miss Leach and Mr. Litchfield met in the spring of 1887 at Plymouth, and in the fall the wedding was fixed for December. Miss Leach gave up her situation and prepared her trousseau, but Litchfield failed to appear.

CANADIAN LADY KILLED.

A Railway Disaster on the Hudson River Railway—Collision at a Railway Station.

NEWBURGH, N.Y., Nov. 9.—At 10 o'clock yesterday morning when the Rochester express on the Hudson River Railway was stopping at the Fishkill depot a freight train from the south dashed into the rear of the passenger train. The engineer and fireman of the freight train jumped before the collision. Mrs. Edward S. Shivel of St. John, N.B., jumped from the rear car and fell, alighting on her head, fracturing her skull and died in an hour. A lady member of the "Hearts of Oak" company and a child which she carried in her arms were knocked down and injured.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT.

Four School Girls Entrapped by a Philadelphia Villain.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—Redmond Steinecke, of Hancock and Cumberland-streets, has been held in $1500 bail, charged with a serious crime. The prisoner keeps a candy store in a cellar at the above place, which is opposite a public school. He is accused of assaulting four little girls whose ages range from 9 to 13 years, who are pupils at the school.

Murder of a Brickmason.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Nov. 9.—Charles Walker, a brickmason, was killed yesterday, and the murder is charged to Herman Burns, also a brickmason. In the morning the men quarrelled and a fight occurred, in which Burns got the best of it. In the afternoon Walker went down to the brickyard, followed by Burns, and a few hours later Walker's dead body was found with one bullet hole through the back of the neck and another in the abdomen. Either would have caused death. Burns was arrested and is now in jail. Walker, the murdered man, is reported to have wealthy relatives in Alleghany City, Pa.

A Persistent Reporter.

ROCHESTER, Nov. 9.—John E. Brown, a reporter of The Democrat and Chronicle, called at the residence of Mathias Kondolf, 170 Oak-street, at 1 o'clock yesterday morning for the purpose of obtaining information about the proceedings of the Park Commissioners' meeting of the day before. Mr. Kondolf refused to give this information, and the reporter left. The latter returned and again rang Mr. Kondolf's bell. This provoked the commissioner and he caused the arrest of Mr. Brown on the charge of disturbing the peace. The latter was taken to police headquarters, where he was paroled until 9 o'clock. In the police court the reporter was arraigned and his case was set down for Nov. 13.

Nearly Blew Up the Dentist.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 9.—When Dentist Potter of Chicopee entered his office last evening a vulcanizer that had been at work all the night before exploded with a terrific report that was heard several blocks distant. A portion of the wall and a window of the house was blown out, numerous holes were made in the ceiling and a quantity of valuable dental work was destroyed. No one was injured, though the doctor in another moment would have been standing over the instrument and would probably have lost his life.

Death by Gas Suffocation.

YORK, Pa., Nov. 9.—Catherine Sors, aged 88; Barbara Arnold, aged 42, and Lydia Fetrow, inmates of the County Almshouse, were suffocated by gas in their room last night. Two of the unfortunate women were dead when discovered, and the third, Mrs. Fetrow, is expected to die. The cause of the calamity was the leaking of the gas pipe in a room, at a joint, filling the room with gas.

Rescued by Hackett.

WINDSOR, Nov. 9.—About 1 o'clock Sunday morning Andrew Hackett, living on Bois Blanc island, was awakened by the cries of some parties in distress off the lower end of the island. He started at once, and found it was part of the crew of the schooner Onward, who, while trying to drop anchor, were capsized. Their names are Lewis and Albert Talbot, and they were nearly exhausted when rescued. This makes the fifth rescue for Mr. Hackett this season.

Intercolonial Brakeman Killed.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 9.—Between 7 and 8 o'clock yesterday morning a terrible accident occurred all the Intercolonial roundhouse, by which Henry Bagnall, 30 years old, a brakeman, lost his life. He was engaged coupling cars, when he slipped, and before he could recover himself was crushed between the buffers so badly that he lived but a few minutes afterwards. The deceased lives at Indiantown, where his wife and two children reside.

MANITOBA'S LEGISLATURE

PREMIER GREENWAY DENIES THE NEWSPAPER CHARGES.

A Resolution for a Royal Commission to Investigate the Subject Adopted—The Speech From the Throne.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 9.—The Legislature met yesterday afternoon. The speech from the throne intimates that the reason for calling the House together is to consider the propriety of petitioning the Queen and to have the position of the Province in its relation to the Dominion clearly determined.

Premier Greenway entered upon an exhaustive reply to the charges of boodling brought by The Call and Free Press, and denounced them as falsehoods, quoting from letters from Solicitor Macarthur of the Manitoba Central to his brother-in-law to show how little foundation there was in them.

After recess Mr. Greenway moved a resolution for a Royal Commission to investigate the charges, which was adopted and the house adjourned.

The session will probably last ten days.

The Manitoba Central deny any connection with the boodling charges.

THE FRENCH NAVY.

A Tiff in the Chamber of Deputies over the Estimates.

PARIS, Nov. 9.—In the Chamber of Deputies yesterday M. Dreyfus moved that the 42,000,000f. asked by the Government to fortify the harbors of Bresland, Cherbourg, be spent in building cruisers and torpedo boats. The German and Italian navies, he said, were superior to the French navy, and the German Government was about to demand 250,000,000 marks to build more vessels.

Admiral Krantz, Minister of Marine, said that when the Germans demanded that amount he would demand a similar sum. [Applause.] The French navy should not be underestimated. The year 1889 would see it in a respectable condition.

Mr. Dreyfus withdrew his motion.

Mr. Dorian moved to reduce the estimate for naval supplies by 1,500,000 fr[illegible]

Admiral Krantz opposed the m[illegible] ing that the full amount was n[illegible] order to complete the storing of [illegible]

The Budget Committee accept[illegible] tion, whereupon Admiral Kran[illegible] at he should regard it as a mark o[illegible] of confidence.

This declaration caused great excitement and M. Dorian withdrew his motion and declined to participate any furthrr in the debate.

An Astounding Find.

BERLIN, Nov. 9.—In addition to the unhidden letters from the late Emperor Frederick found in Baron von Roggenbach's house the police discovered in a secret drawer in a writing desk two bundles of telegrams and letters from Frederick, written when he was Crown Prince; his wife, Queen Victoria, the Prince of Wales, Prince Alexander of Battenberg, Dr. Mackenzie, the Duke of Cumberland, Count von Seckendorf, Dr. Arndhorst and others.

He Desires No Addresses.

VIENNA, Nov. 9.—Emperor Francis Joseph has officially intimated that it is his special wish that on the occasion of the anniversary of his accession to the throne he shall receive neither addresses nor deputations and that no fetes be held that would involve expense. He desires that his accession be commemorated with acts of public charity.

Italian Emigration to America.

ROME, Nov. 9.—In the Chamber of Deputies yesterday Signor Unijaro questioned the conditions under which emigration to America was effected. He withdrew the question on Premier Crispi making an explanation, but he intends to speak on the same subject in the debate on the Emigration Bill.

The Parnell Commission.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Parnell Commission spent the whole day hearing witnesses of outrages. Mr. Harrington objected to the interpreter prompting Irish witnesses and Justice Hannen cautioned the interpreter. Police testified that a large force was occupied in protecting boycotted and threatened persons.

Robbed His Brother.

MONTREAL, Nov. 9.—A young man named Patrick Carroll, about 25 years of age, was arrested last night by Sergeant Charboneau and Constable Gauthier, on St. Maurice-street, for stealing a coat, valued at $20, and a silk umbrella, valued at $5, from his brother's house on St. Maurice-street. The coat he sold to a carter for $2, and the umbrella he pawned.

The 7th to be Disbanded.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—There has been considerable dissension among the Seventh Fusiliers since their return from the Northwest, and at the present time the battalion can only muster fifty or sixty men. It is understood at the end of this month the district adjutant-general will recommend that the battalion be disbanded.

Horrible Tragedy at Dresden.

DRESDEN, Nov. 9.—A family by the name of Scott lives in Dawn township. Scott was in the habit of getting intoxicated when in town and going home to abuse his wife shamefully. Last night she procured an axe or a club and going to the bed beat him to death with it. She is insane.

The Herons Acquitted.

COBOURG, Nov. 9.—The trial of William Heron and Elizabeth Heron, husband and wife, for the murder by strychnia poisoning of their niece, Caroline Heron, in Cartwright township last December, was concluded at the Assizes here yesterday. The jury were out nearly four hours and returned a verdict of not guilty.

Sydney Miners on Strike.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Nov. 9.—Representatives of the coal mine owners and the miners had a conference yesterday but failed to come to an agreement, and the men have gone on strike.

Struck Down With Paralysis.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 9.—Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Sanders was stricken down with paralysis while passing through the lecture room of the First Methodist Church. Her condition is critical.

The Ashbourne Act.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—It is understood that the Government has abandoned the idea of an extension of the Ashbourne Act during the present session of Parliament.

A Big Blaze in Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 9.—The upper story of Jacob Wellauer's wholesale grocery was gutted by fire yesterday morning. Loss $100,000.

Seven Anarchists Arrested.

PARIS, Nov. 9.—Seven waiters and anarchists have been arrested in connection with the explosion of dynamite bombs Wednesday in the registry offices.

Safe in a Dwelling House Blown Open.

BOSTON, Nov. 9.—The residence of Mrs. M. P. Kidder, of Milton, has been robbed by burglars. The safe was blown open and its contents, consisting of silverware, jewelry, valuable coins and medals, were stolen. It is claimed the loss will amount to $3,000.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1888.

POOR BUT ECONOMICAL.

If our Provincial Ministers are not absolutely striking for higher pay they are at least making, through their old organ, a piteous appeal to the people of Ontario to relieve them from the destitution caused by their giving their valuable services to the Province for the miserable pittance of four or five thousand dollars a year. They are so used to devoting large amounts of the peoples' money to reward mere party services that they naturally have an idea that they ought personally to be very liberally treated, as they treat (at other people's expense) their own partisians. But if they are disposed to be profuse in regard to their own salaries and in rewarding their partisians, in must in fairness be admitted that they can in other cases practice strict economy. In fact, they do not fear in pursuance of parsimony to incur the odium of being stingy, mean and even unjust. Such a case is now before the public. The authorities of the town of Peterborough have with much public spirit, followed up the notorious and persistent criminal Greenfield, so that by their exertion his extradition has been secured on the charge of an attempt to murder. Their Chief of Police, Rossel, is now bringing this hardened malefactor from his lair at Buffalo for trial at Peterborough. Considering that Greenfield had committed a long series of burglaries and other crimes in various parts of Ontario, and was the ringleader of a dangerous gang, the Peterborough authorities have plainly done a public service, and of conrse it has not been without incurring considerable expense. Their chief constable had to pay a previous visit to Buffalo, and the whole evidence carefully obtained and completely prepared for the extradition proceedings. At this stage, with everything made easy for them, the matter had to be handed over to the Provincial authorities. Those who do not know Attorney-General Mowat might imagine that he would compliment the Peterborough authorities on their public spirit, energy and liberality in protecting the people from law-breakers, even if he did not ask for a memorandum of their expenses that he might provide at least a part of the outlay. But those who would so expect do not know the rigor of Mr. Mowat's economy—when he has no personal or party end to serve. What he did was to make a demand for and obtain from the town of Peterborough $125 as a contribution to the expenses of his department in the extradition proceedings! And for this very criminal, the damages he had inflicted in Peterborough and elsewhere, the trouble and expense of bringing him to justice, the province and its officials under Attorney-General Mowat's guidance were responsible. He could have committed no burglary, have tried to murder no men, have caused no expense to secure and punish him if the officials under Mr. Mowat had not let this criminal go when they had him in their hands. His escape from the Central Prison, where he was serving a term for a previous crime, would, one might imagine, have made Mr. Mowat feel an especial responsibility for his subsequent attacks on property and person. Yet Mr. Mowat squeezes every dollar he can from the municipality that was putting itself to trouble, inconvenience and expense to re-capture his escaped jail-bird.

Some people might call this mean, even to dishonesty, but we are disposed to believe that Attorney-General Mowat is willing to face even contumely in his eagerness to spare the Provincial treasury, that the money may be applied to a less ignoble purpose than the capture of runaway prisoners and would-be murderers. If Mr. Mowat can only squeeze a few more municipalities like this for doing public service there will soon be a sufficient accumulation to increase the Attorney-General's insufficient salary of $5,000 a year by adding another $500, without augmenting the threatened deficit in the Provincial accounts.—Toronto Empire, Nov. 7.

ZION.

Correspondence of the Review.

OBITUARY.—After a long and serious illness, Mrs. Robinson, wife of the late Richard Robinson of Otonabee, died on Saturday evening. Mrs. Robinson leaves eight children, four boys and four girls, to mourn her loss. All the children are grown up and a number married. The family have the sincerest sympathy of a large circle of friends in their bereavement. The funeral took place on Monday afternoon at 2.40 o'clock to Zion cemetery.

HALLOWE'EN PARTIES.—Zion has got the right sort of people for enjoyment, and they get there every time. Hallowe'en is supposed to be a night for sports and parties were the fever. Every other house or so was filled with merry folks and a pleasant evening was spent, and, in general, a very large supper was prepared and you bet many a fowl met its doom.

PAT LEARNS.—I am pleased to understand that some of the Keene people in their liberal manner have shown Pat the uses of iron and rails—for keeping reckless drivers on the road—which no doubt he would never have learned without their instructions. Also your Keene correspondent goes further to say, what will those heavy drinkers in that part of the country do when the road is blocked with snow? Why, to be sure, they will never see fences, stumps or anything else.

ELOPEMENT.—An elopement in the Campbellown direction, which took place a few days ago, caused considerable gossip throughout this part. However, both parties turned up alright.

Chronic Coughs and Colds

It is extremely interesting to visit some of the leading manufacturing houses in Toronto. Perhaps the most interesting and surprising of them all are the extensive Ornamental Stained Glass and Decorative works of the McCausland & Son. TUESDAY, Nov. 20th, 1888.—Bona-fide sale of Farm Stock and Implements, the property of Mr. Matthew Young, to be sold on his premises, Lot 10, Concession 7, in the Township of Ennismore. Sale to begin at 12.30 o'clock, noon, and to be conducted strictly without reserve, as Mr. Young is giving up farming. The stock is in A-1 order.

IS SHE OFF TO FILLIBUSTER?

A Haytian General and His Staff Said to Have Sailed from New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—The report that the United States revenue cutter Chandler had chased down the bay Monday night the Clyde line steamship Saginaw, supposed to have on board a cargo of arms and ammunition for the use of the rebellious inhabitants of Hayti, caused considerable consternation in shipping circles.

It was a fruitless expedition for Uncle Sam's little cutter, for the Saginaw had several hours' start and was a good distance seaward when plucky Capt. Smith started to overhaul her. As to whether she really carries the contraband articles which the Haytian Consul in this city thinks she does, opinion differs. Her actions after leaving the city, however, were very suspicious, and the explanations given by the Clyde line people are not considered very satisfactory. The Saginaw left her wharf at the foot of Wall-street about 11 o'clock Monday morning. The operator at Sandy Hook says that after steaming down in the forenoon she disappeared on her course to the south. At 2.30 p.m. he observed her coming back. She came to anchor in the Horseshoe and remained there until late in the afternoon. She passed out at 6 o'clock on her way south and was not again seen. The operator at the Hook had complete observation of the movements of the steamer but failed to see anything suspicious going on about her.

It is said that while the steamer was at anchor down the bay a lighter went alongside of her and transferred to her large quantities of powder, small fire-arms and cannon. It is almost certain that no lighter passed through the Narrows, for if it did seamen say it could easily have been seen, but instead of going down through the Narrows Capt. Smith, of the Chandler, is of the opinion that a lighter did approach the steamer through the Kills by the way of Perth Amboy. The Haytian authorities also assert that a tug was seen alongside the Saginaw, and that Gen. Papillon, who is said to be the leader of the insurrectionists who are attempting to overthrow the present Government of Hayti, and his staff were seen to get aboard the steamer.

Gen. Papillon arrived in this country from Hayti only a few weeks ago. As soon as he and his staff got aboard the steamer began her journey to run the Haytian blockade, it is said.

The Clyde line people are very indignant about the published reports, and characterize them as nonsense. They declare most positively that the steamer does not, to their knowledge, carry any contraband articles and is not on a filibustering expedition. "The Saginaw is not going to Hayti," said a representative of the line. "She was to have stopped at that island, but in consequence of the revolution there, and the fact that her ports are closed against all foreign vessels, the idea of touching at Hayti was given up. It is simply absurd to say that we did not take certain cargo to make room for the munitions of war, which it is said the Saginaw took aboard down the bay. It is a fact, however, that there is a large quantity of freight on our pier which the Saginaw did not take. This is general merchandise consigned to parties in Hayti. When we concluded not to touch at Hayti we refused to take it."

He admitted that one of Raymond's tugs went down to the steamer to take off a Mr. Hand of Philadelphia, who went down to the Hook to adjust a new binnacle compass, which was placed in the steamer last week. Mr. Hand went down the bay, he said, to "swing" the compass, claiming that to do this it was necessary to head the steamer towards the various points of the compass to ascertain whether the needle was true or not.

They slide forward the Snap of the Season, and drop on the market a $10,000 Stock of Clothing, bought from an Eastern Manufacturer at 43½C. ON THE DOLLAR.

Come in with the rush; don't wait to be shoved in. Hitch your horses, tie your oxen, leave your ploughing and make straight for Peterborough. Drive to Wyatt & Turner's to the Grand Opening on SATURDAY, Nov. 10th. We are at last on and we mean to stay there, we have got the backing and we mean to make use of it. This is a direct benefit to the honest tillers of the soil and all classes of people. We are going to make all the clothiers sick. We don't only mean to make them sick, but we mean to paralyze you with prices that will tell. Remember this Stock was purchased at 43½c. ON THE DOLLAR, and we are busy every night marking goods down. Don't forget the opening of this Great Clothing Sale, Saturday, Nov. 10th. We will just give you a few prices to let you see what we will do:—

TOP OF THE HEAP

Men's Heavy Full Cloth Suits, worth $9 for $4.95.
Men's Heavy All Wool Tweed Overcoats for $4.25, these are A 1. Also Men's Overcoats at $2.25.

ADVERTISING

When Newspapers first began to be published in London, an editor took opportunity one day to say that a certain man desired a certain something—no matter what. That was the invention of advertising, though the inventor may not have known what he had found. From that time to this peop'e have made more or less use of the papers to publish their wants, and tradesmen their wares; but we doubt very much whether any real improvement upon the first advertisement has ever been made. It was a frank statement that somebody wanted something and what it was that he wanted. Doubtless he got it. We want something. Want to sell goods. Good goods too. The best of the best in Groceries. The range of stock is a wide one. It has to be wide to suit all customers. That we do suit is positive.

If there is one thing we do better than another it is in TEAS.

It is our specialty. Years of experience tell us how and where to buy. We use that experience and select the best.

Do you like a good article? Do you value flavor and strength in Tea? If so give us a trial order.

In addition, every line of groceries you can call for we have.

Stands and Zincs. 6 Wood Stoves, Stands, and Zincs, Heaters, Pipes, etc. Chas. Stapleton, Auctioneer. 2d108

Another Legal Partnership

The barristers of Peterborough seem to be afflicted with a partnership fever at present. The last reported case of a movement of this character is that of Messrs. R. M. Dennistoun and Arthur Stevenson, who have to-day opened an office at No. 417 Water-st. Mr. Dennistoun has been practising for a few weeks in temporary quarters, and judging from appearances must be rapidly picking up business. Mr. Stevenson is as yet untried in the practice of the law, but is too well known about town to need any commendation from us. We wish the new firm every success, and trust each member of it may be as fortunate in securing public favor as their fathers have before them.

A Paris Actor.

Within the four walls of the Foresestra' Hall there assembled last night over one hundred ladies and gentlemen to see Monsieur Leon Florestan, of Paris, in his Shakespearean characters. The rain had no effect on the attendance, as the tickets were sold before hand, Monsieur Florestan requiring a guarantee before he would appear. His accent is rather strong when rendering English, but he put remarkable expression into his acting. As Shylock in the "Merchant of Venice," he was excellent, and the audience enjoyed it immensely. As Charles I he was good, and the selection from "Phedre" was given with such expression that, although a large number were not sufficiently familiar with the French vocabulary to follow the French as rapidly as he spoke it, yet they enjoyed the impersonation greatly. On the whole the evening's entertainment was of a high order, and was of the character which are rather too few in these days.

ROBBED LEBRUN'S

In Conversation Greenfield Admits this—Significant Smiles.

A criminal must, as a general thing, be a rather unsociable travelling companion to a detective, when he knows that the latter will all the time be trying to get admissions from him in all conceivable ways. Chief Roszel found Greenfield none to talkative, for the young criminal is too cunning a man to give his tongue a chance to betray. However, some considerable talking was done by the pair on their journey between Buffalo and here, and, with an eye to business, the Chief repeatedly tried to bring the prisoner out into conversation relative to his visits to Peterborough, but Greenfield was mute as a mummy on these points until after they passed Hamilton. Between Hamilton and Toronto, however, he talked a little. In his attempts to get the man started in conversation about his jobs here the Chief remarked: "Say, Greenfield, why did you use me so mean, what have I ever done to you, that you should come and make Peterborough the scene of your operations just as soon as I went there?" "When did you go there?" inquired the burglar. "On the 11.34 train on the night of May 2nd, last, and you must have came down on pretty near the same train. The train was late that night if you remember." "By——, I was exclaimed Greenfield, "I got out of the Central at half past four in the afternoon and caught that train." "And you did up LeBrun's store that very night?" asked the Chief, "and only left an old suit of clothes and an overcoat behind you, in one of the pockets of which I found an order on a G. T. R. conductor." "Yes, in the overcoat pocket," broke in the prisoner. Greenfield remarked that they could not touch him for anything but the charge upon which he had been extradicted, and this was the reason he made this admission. The Chief asked him if he did the job at the priest's house, but he flatly denied it and said, "I was in Chicago at the time that was done. As soon as I got fixed up in Peterborough I got right out." He talked a little more, but nothing incriminating leaked out. After leaving Toronto Greenfield would not talk at all. A short distance from town, the Chief and his prisoner were sitting with their feet perched on the seat in front of them, when the former remarked, "Greenfield, I have a better pair of boots in my office than you have on, and are just about your fit." Greenfield looked at his custodian a grave a peculiar smile, but said nothing. "I got them in Gough's store" continued the Chief, and again a significant smile overspread the face of the prisoner.

ON THE SAME TRAIN,"

Mechanics' Institute Classes.

Classes in Mechanical and Freehand Drawing will commence shortly under Mr. A. Macallum, draughtsman for the Hamilton Manufacturing Co. Intending pupils should hand their names to the Librarian at once. 4d103-2w45.

Of Special Significance.

Yesterday Mr. J. J. Turner received from the Secretary of the Victoria Agricultural Society a very handsome diploma as a special mark of the high character of the display of tents and awnings, which he made at the exhibition of the Society named. It is a very handsome work of the lithographer's art and was the only diploma given outside of the regular prize list.

Cut his Foot.

The Lindsay Watchman says:—"John Duval, of Peterborough, who was chopping in Mr. Boyd's limits, near Minden, cut his foot badly on Friday last. It was not dressed until he came to Lindsay. On Saturday, from the continued loss of blood, he became very weak. He was able, however, to continue his journey to Peterborough next day."

St. Andrew's Society.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough St. Andrew's Society will be held at 8 o'clock on the evening of Thursday, Nov. 15th. The annual reports will be received, the officers elected and the celebration of St. Andrew's Day considered—business of such importance that all members should be present, and of such interest that all Scotchmen should attend.

A Bonanza for the Boys.

If a pair of boots cost $1.25 (J. D. King's make), and wear 12 months, how much ought the shoddy man get for a pair of shoddy boots that wear out in 17 days? The first boy who brings the correct answer—worked by himself—to the above problem and can wear a pair of No. 2 boots (or smaller) will receive a pair of King's make of boots for nothing. R. J. Kidd, 366 George-st. d109

Winter.

Some say we will have an early winter, others think it will be late in coming, but we Canadians know it will "get there all the same," and therefore it is foolish to put off getting what is necessary to keep you warm. W. W. Johnston has a full assortment of Dry goods suitable for winter use. Blankets, Flannels and Dress Goods, all bought at low prices, to be sold cheap. Don't forget to look at our Millinery before looking elsewhere. 410 George-st. d100tf

Ecclesiastical Reciprocity.

A communication has been forwarded by the Secretary of the Endeavor Society of the Charlotte-st. Methodist church asking the Y. P. A. of the George-st. Methodist church if they would be willing to furnish one half the programme for the entertainment in the Charlotte-st. church on the evening of Thanksgiving day. We understand that a favorable answer has been sent to the Endeavor Society, also asking them to reciprocate on a further occasion.

Engaged for Two Years Ahead.

The Winnipeg Sun gives the following, a portion of an interview with Messrs. Crossley and Hunter, who are holding revival services there and will be here this season: "Messrs. Crossley and Hunter are really engaged for about two years ahead, and if they accepted all the invitations on hand they would lay out work for five years. Next year they purpose visiting Hamilton and London, where they labored successfully for five months four years ago. This year they were urged to go to Toronto, where they could have spent six months in the Metropolitan, Queen and Elm-st. Methodist churches. They do not expect to be able to reach Toronto for a considerable time. From this city the ministers leave for Detroit, where they will hold services in the largest church in Michigan." From there they will come to Peterborough, Kingston and other cities.

Another Grover in Hard Luck.

Constable Adams sat in the police station last night talking to a friend, when the door of the station opened to admit a man, who, raising his hat in the most approved manner, said, "Good evening, gentlemen." From his general make-up the officer knew that this was one of the army of American aristocrats who toil not, neither do they spin, and good naturedly returned the salutation. "Keep a boarding house here?" asked the man of leisure. "We do," was the reply. "Anything softer than a plank to sleep on? You see I have run against hard luck and will be unable to stop at a first-class hotel." The officer proceeded to register the tramp's name and was a little surprised when the "gentleman" informed him it was Grover Cleveland, "and I come from Buffalo and my occupation is a tramp," he said. The man did not look unlike the President who would have remained where he is, having a dark moustache, a round, good natured face and was inclined to be corpulent. "Yes," he said, "I am Grover Cleveland, at least everybody has called me that for three days past, so I guess I might as well take the name." The name was registered "Grover Cleveland, tramp, Buffalo," and after a few more jesting remarks the tramp sought his couch of pine and soon forgot in gentle slumbers that all outside was wet and he in the morning would be very dry.

The Town's Reply.

Messrs. Hall & Hayes have received a reply from the Town Clerk in regard to the gravel taken from Mr. Carnegie's lot at the Bridge Works. The town claims that Mr. Carnegie's fence is on part of the street.

Teachers' Bible Class.

Rev. S. J. Shorey will be present and take charge of the Bible class for teachers, officers and larger scholars, this evening in the lecture room of the Charlotte-st. Methodist Church. Subject, "Caleb's Inheritance," Joshua 14,5-15.

Apples! Apples! Apples!

Messrs. Elliott & Tierney have purchased the entire choice crop of apples, the product of Mr. G.W. Hatton's "Walkerfield orchard" consisting of Snow, Spitzenburgh, R. Pippins, Northern Spy, Beauties of the West, etc. All hand picked and in prime order. Call and taste. Prices reasonable. d89

A Building's Collapse.

During last night part of the wall of a house on Wolseley-st., Smithtown hill, which is being built for Mr. G. Little, came down. Part of the stonework of the foundation and the brick wall in the front part of the house were found in the cellar this morning. The damage amounts to about $100.

McGibney Family

A Balmy Breeze.

A writ has been issued by a firm that makes a proprietory medicine against Messrs. Ormond & Walsh, for alleged infringement of their copyright. Mr. Walsh says the medicine he makes is different and has a different name, and has retained Messrs. Hall & Hayes for the defence.

A Good Yield.

The Cobourg Sentinel-Star says:—"Last week Mr. R. Croft threshed his barley, and the yield far exceeded his expectations. One field yielded fifty bushels to the acre, and the general average was forty-five bushels. Mr. Croft is a good farmer, and if there is any goodness in the land he knows how to use it."

Assault at Arms.

In addition to the other purely military features of the concert on the evening of Thanksgiving Day, an assault at arms, sword vs. bayonet, will be an interesting event. The programme is such a varied one, introducing so many different kinds of events, that it will be an entertainment that cannot fail to hold the attention of and delight the audience.

Two Nights Only,

YOU'LL save your credit as a judge of good tea by buying from M. R. Kidd.

For Decency's Sake.

Ralph Fowler, one of three tramps arrested for stealing in London and who got three months yesterday, gave his home address as Peterborough. He is not known here, and his action can only be explained by supposing that the poor fellow probably wanted to have some redeeming feature connected with himself and so gave the name of perhaps one of the best towns in the Dominion.

"The Church and the Bible."

The tickets for the lecture to be delivered by His Lordship Bishop Dowling, on the evening of Nov. 18th, are being disposed of rapidly. The Bishop's reputation as a lecturer preceeded him to Peterborough, and as this will be his first lecture in this town great interest is felt regarding it. There is every indication that the attendance will be very large. The proceeds will be for the fund of the St. Vincent de Paul Society for the benefit of the poor.

To the Cemetery.

The road on Crescent-st. has become packed down since the work was done there and is in good condition. Mr. A. Williams has planted a row of trees along the shore opposite his property, an example others might follow. Several property owners have sodded the bank formed by the street being cut down, and Crescent-st., instead of being an unnightly road, is now a fine street. It would be a great improvement if Lock-st., from Lake to the corner of Crescent-st., could be widened.

Personal.

Mr. R. Salisbury has recovered sufficiently from his recent serious illness, says the Cobourg Sentinel-Star, to be about again.

Mr. W. Keith, of Smith's Falls, is in town for a few days taking in the proportions of our town and making note of its progress. Mr. Keith at one time was engaged in publishing the Smith's Falls News, and became comparatively wealthy, a singular thing for a newspaper man. For the last two years he has filled the position of town clerk and having investments in property in that town is pushing it along as well as possible.

Friday and Saturday,

A Happy Time.

The roof of Mr. A.L.Davis' spacious residence sheltered from the descending rain a most happy gathering last night. A parlor social held in connection with the Charlotte-st. Church was the announcement which had attracted them together. The rain undoubtedly was the cause of preventing a large number of those who intended to attend from being present, but as it was, there was a goodly number present who spent, perhaps, a far more pleasant evening than had the rooms been crowded. Refreshments were served in one room and an excellent programme of instrumental and vocal music was rendered. The ladies and gentlemen who contributed were:—Mrs. Shorey, Misses Errett, Wrighton, Brundrette, Fairweather and Mr. Schneider. Mr. Duff gave a fine reading and the selections rendered by the orchestra which was present were, as usual, first class, and altogether a most enjoyable time was spent by those present.

A State of Affairs to be Stopped.

Last night about 6.30 o'clock during the rain and drarkness two men driving along Rubidge-st. unaware of the peculiar state of affairs by which that thoroughfare drops off into nowhere back of the Protestant Home, pitched over the high bank and got into trouble. Neighbors were called out and found the men prostrate and stunned, the buggy smashed and overturned, the horse struggling in the harness and an assortment of goods pitched about and spoiled. It took half an hour of work to straighten things up and make temporary repairs. When one of the unfortunates recovered his breath he in concise and succinct form delivered an opinion on the town council, road inspector and all concerned. His remarks were such as none but a layman could utter, and they did justice to the situation. Something should be done before a bill of damages be saddled on the town. To one not well versed in the locality the opportunity affords a splendid chance to break one's neck, should the wrong turn be taken when driving. Prevention is a heap sight better than $2,000 damages to the town. Besides the neighbors object to acting as wreckers and a life-saving corps without remuneration.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth it relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. it soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether arising from teething or other causes 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

THE PACIFIC CABLES.

What is Being Done to Promote the Scheme in London and Australia.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—Systemstic efforts are being made to promote the Pacific cable project. It is believed that the recent frequent breaks in the existing cables and the promises of hearty Australian assistance is leading the Imperial Government to adopt a more favorable attitude than was evinced at the Colonial Conference. A public meeting of city merchants and others will be held on November 22 to urge the Admiralty to expedite the survey route. Reports already received of the operations of the steamer Egeria are stated to confirm the previous accounts of the great depth of the Pacific in the line of the proposed cable.

Glenelg Mills Burned.

ALVINSTON, Nov. 9.—The Glenelg flour mills, owned by William and J. G. Greey, of Toronto, were destroyed by fire early yesterday morning. There were over 8000 bushels of wheat besides a large quantity of flour and feed stored in the mill, which is a total loss. The fire is supposed to have been caused by a lamp explosion. The insurance is not known. The total loss is over $20,000. Warner's woolen mills, situated near the fire, was saved by the hard work of the citizens. Several dwelling houses and barns in the village caught fire from flying cinders, but were saved without much damage.

A Smashup in a Fog.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—A dense foggy atmosphere prevailed in this section yesterday morning and one of its results was a railway smash-up near Cragin, a suburban station on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad. A heavy freight train crashed into the rear of a passenger train, smashing two cars and fatally injuring one passenger in the rear car. Passengers in the other cars were badly shaken and some slightly hurt.

A Canadian Horse Wins.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—At the National Horse Show at Madison-square Garden last evening, the Canadian horse Salisbury, owned by Dr. Moorhouse of Toronto, won the first prize for the best performer over six successive jumps, 4 feet high, beating such clever performers over timber as Theo, Majestic, Punch and fifteen others.

Ford Did Not Poison His Wife.

HUDSON, N. Y., Nov. 9.—The jury in the second trial of Andrew S. Ford, charged with poisoning his wife, has rendered a verdict of not guilty. The prisoner, who has been confined in jail for over a year, received the warm congratulations of his friends on his discharge.

The Only Exception.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Radical Star is the only paper to disparage the knighthood of Mr. Blake, Governor of Newfoundland, and its appointment as Governor of Queensland. Newfoundland's new Governor, Sir Terence O'Brien, now Governor of Heligoland, has been much active service in India.

NEWBURGH, N.Y., Nov. 9.—D. J. Herty, the pedestrian covered 33½ miles in 4 hours on Nov. 6, breaking the best American four-hour record.

Sudden Death at Windsor.

WINDSOR, Nov. 9.—Mrs. John Kiley, about 50 years of age, was found dead by her husband upon his waking from sleep yesterday morning in his residence on Glengarry-avenue. The deceased was up and about her work as usual on Wednesday and retired for the night without complaining of ill-health. Her taking off was evidently as quiet as it was sudden and is supposed to have been caused by heart disease.

This liberal offer will altogether likely be accepted by the church authorities.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—On the 1st Nov. Mr. Stewart Wood, while felling trees in Gilmour's shanty near Oak Lake, township of Belmont, met with an accident which has since proved fatal. It is the old story—the tree fell in an opposite direction to that in which he had intended and crushed him to the earth while endeavoring to escape. A day or two later he succumbed to his injuries. Deceased was only in his 20th year. His parents reside near Havelock.—Register.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1888.

Van Deckermann's Bargain.

By M. THEED.

It was between 3 and 4 in the morning when I awoke, for I took note of the time afterward, but what it was that caused me to awake I cannot say. All I know is that the room was as light as day, and that I was not alone in it.

Creeping stealthily across the room, and feeling his way with his hands as one might who was blind, was the figure of Andrew van Deckermann. He had his profile toward me, and his head was even more shrunk within his shoulders than usual, so that I could not rightly distinguish his features; but his gait and dress were as familiar as they were remarkable. About the cut of that brown coat, as about the peculiar inclination of the head and body, there could be no mistake. But how and with what object had he come thither? I had left him in his own house—true, there was nothing to prevent him from following me, but what could be his motive? Was it possible I was the dupe after all of a madman, and that the traits I had regarded as mere eccentricities ought, in reality, to have given me the clew to the truth? Was it to be accounted for in this way, or was it that the sarcastic humor, of which I had seen a good deal in my intercourse with him, had prompted him to subject my boasted scepticism to an ordeal which, malicious though it might be, was, perhaps, not undeserved? But this last hypothesis would not hold water for a moment. Granted that the old Dutchman had the will to conceive a practical joke of this sort, he would assuredly, were he in his right mind, have chosen a more convenient season for carrying it out in his own proper person. There was but one elucidation of conduct so extraordinary—my first conjecture was the right one—Mr. Van Deckermann was not accountable for his actions.

It is not an agreeable sensation, that of being tete-a-tete with a madman, even though he be old and feeble, and you apprehend no violence from him. In the moonlight, too, things have a strange, uncanny look with them. I tried to flatter myself that I was keeping silence and pretending not to be awake, partly in order to see what my visitor was about to do, partly to defeat his insane malice; but I was conscious, in spite of myself, of a fascination against which I was powerless. To lie and watch from between my closed eyelids was all I could do.

Still with hands outstretched, still with the same tottering gait, past the foot of the bed, and toward the fireplace where, turning round in the midstream of the moonlight, face and figure alike stood revealed. The same and yet not the same, a mask rather than a face—the lips parted, the eyes open and staring fixedly before them, with a terrible, unmistakable stare of vacuity—the face of one more dead than alive. Terrible as the sight was, it brought with it a sudden and unlooked for relief. The first look at those apparently sightless orbs and that expressionless countenance assured me that the old man was as genuinely unconscious of his surroundings as I was endeavoring to appear to be of mine. Once before, I had seen a man walking in his sleep, and I had not forgotton that ghastly phenomenon.

He was still groping about with his hands, and it did not occur to me at the moment as altogether opposed to the theory I had so readily adopted that what was in his normal state only nearsightedness should be exaggerated in his present condition into almost if not total—blindness. Suddenly, while I was still watching him, for my eyes had not quitted him for a moment, one wandering hand found a resting place on the arm of the big chair I had noticed upon entering the room as having been put for my accommodation. The effect upon the frame of the old man was as though there were connected with the wood a galvanic battery. Every nerve in his body seemed to be put in motion, but though his teeth chattered and his eyes moved in their sockets, no sound escaped him—it was as though one had electrified a corpse.

So strong as that, and yet not strong enough to awaken him! A chill that I could not account for, and that seemed to be numbing all my faculties, was creeping over me. The face that I was staring at, with eyes which refused to leave it for the shortest moment of time, seemed more and more the distorted image of that I was familiar with; I felt as though break this unnatural silence I must, but no words came to my assistance.

Had I, too, been struck dumb and helpless? If only he would speak, rave, do anything!

I was scarcely conscious of the longing that was upon me, before it was gratified; the trembling figure erected itself, as if determinedly getting the better of the shock it had received, and once more, but this time as of fixed purpose, the thin grasping fingers were stretched out in the direction of the chair. As they closed upon it, the whole face changed, an expression of eagerness and avidity took the place of the vacant stare I had hitherto confronted, what looked like a flash of triumph seamed to quicken into life, beneath their bushy brows, the eyes whose power of vision I had thought suspended, and with a strange, unearthly sound, half cry, half chuckle, which made my blood creep, the old man flung himself on his knees before the chair.

In this attitude, and with his back to me, what was it he was doing, or attempting to do.

I raised myself a little in the bed and saw to my increased mystification that he had taken hold of the chair—a ponderous old contrivance, swathed in a loose cover of faded damask—and was apparently endeavoring to tilt it up. The chances were he would upset it, and not escape without more or less injury to himself in doing so. Yet how to withdraw him from it without awakening him, and that roughly—a measure always, so I had been instructed, to be carefully avoided in cases of somnambulism.

"Mr. Van Deckermann," I said, finding my voice at last with an effort, "can I come and help you?"

There was a short, sharp sound as of something falling, but there was no answer—and where was Mr. Van Deckermann?

The old chair was still standing—and standing on terra firma in the track of the moonbeams—of the homely elderly figure in the brown suit, which had been kneeling before it a moment before, there was not a trace. I sprang out of bed, fired with a sudden overmastering indignation at finding himself, as it were, baffled and cheated, and flung open the doors of the closet, of the emptiness of which I had assured myself before retiring for the night. It was as I had left it. The only other way in which, even supposing my senses for the moment to have deserted me, my visitor could have eluded me was quitting the room outright.

I went to the door—it was locked, as I had taken the precaution of locking it a few hours previously, on the inside.

I stood for a moment in an utter hopeless bewilderment, and then I burst into a laugh, which sounded even to myself forced and unnatural.

"Faha!" I exclaimed, "I must have been dreaming."

The words had scarcely passed my lips when something, the like of which I had never heard before—something between a laugh and a wail—an indescribable mingling of pain and mockery—sounded close at my elbow. Turning sharp round to see whence it came, I lost my balance and fell face forward on the bed, dragging the sheet, at which I clutched to save myself, to the ground. As I did so, something fell on the floor with a thud. It was my watch, which failing its accustomed receptacle, I had stowed away under my pillow, but of this I did not satisfy myself until the morning, when, upon finding and picking it up I discovered that it had stopped at a quarter to 4 o'clock. Of the rest of that night I have no remembrance, save a confused one of scrambling into bed with, I think, the most fervent prayer to be delivered from evil I had ever uttered on my lips.

"And you expect me to believe that you were in your sober senses when you saw, or imagined you saw, this—what shall I call it?—double of myself?" said Mr. Van Deckermann when I had related as briefly as I could my experience of the night before.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings healt and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

This Column Tells What is Doing at Turnbull's.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2.00, 2.50 and 3.00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it take an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's. We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

A GRATIFYING SURPLUS.

THE DOMINION'S REVENUES CONTINUE TO INCREASE.

Expenditures Kept Below Last Year's—Statement for the First Four Months of the First Year.

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.—The statement of revenue and expenditure for the month of October shows that while the revenue continues to increase the expenditure is being held down below last year's figures and a very gratifying surplus is the result. For the first four months of the fiscal year the revenue has been:

Customs	$ 8,352,108
Excise	2,312,742
Postoffice	626,375
Public works (including railways)	1,350,000
Miscellaneous	307,294
Total	$12,949,054
Expenditure	9,255,012
Surplus	$ 3,694,042

This shows an increase in revenue over the same period last year of $1,246,103, and a decrease in expenditure of $124,110. The increases in revenue are:

Customs	$703,305
Excise	484,470
Public Works (including railways)	297,900

The decreases are:

Postoffice	$ 59,787
Miscellaneous	179,985

Sir John Thompson and Sir Adolphe Caron returned from New York yesterday. They both say that they know nothing about being shadowed by detectives, but were pestered to death by reporters. Said Sir Adolphe; "The New York reporter is the greatest nuisance I ever met in my life. If he were only satisfied to say what you tell him and take "no" for an answer, but he won't. The only interview accorded was one to The New York Herald the day after the election. Other reported conversations with us were purely imaginary. Altogether we had a pleasant time."

The Mormon delegates had an interview with Hon. M. Dewdney, Minister of the Interior, yesterday, and explained what they want. Amongst other things they want a town site, a water power for a grist and saw mill, exemption, for a time at least, from timber dues, the free admission of their cattle as settlers' effects, etc.

No militia general orders were issued to-day, but there will be a batch next week, which will be the last for this year.

Lord Sackville, who is related to Lord Stanley by marriage, will visit the Governor-General shortly. Lord Stanley's aide-de-camp gave information to that effect to the newspapers here yesterday.

To-day's Canada Gazette contains the return of General Laurie for Shelburne.

Alexander M. Cameron of Meaford has been appointed outport Collector of Customs.

Notice is given of application to Parliament for the incorporation of the Red Deer Valley Railway and Coal Company to build a railway from a point on the Canadian Pacific Railway, at or near Cheadle Station, Alberta District, to the coal fields of the Red Deer Valley, with a branch to Calgary.

An order-in-council has been passed on the recommendation of the Minister of Railways and Canals with a view to checking the steam-whistle nuisance. It provides that the following shall be added to section 2 of the order-in-council of May 31, 1878:

"Provided, however, that such horn, bell or steam whistle shall be used only as much as is necessary in the opinion of the Canal Superintendent to give the lockmaster or bridgekeeper timely warning to make preparations to receive vessels or boats or allow them to pass a lock or bridge within the limits of any city or town, between the hours of ten o'clock at night and 6 o'clock in the morning. Horns only will be used when approaching a lock or a bridge, and if the person in charge abuses or allows an abuse to be made of the steam whistle, principally at night in cities or towns, he may be subject to a penalty of not less than $1 and not exceeding $10."

An order-in-council has been passed on the recommendation of the Minister of Finance prescribing regulations for Government Saving Banks. The rate of interest is retained at 4 per cent.

Notices are given of applications to Parliament to incorporate the Hawkesbury Lumber Company and the Belleville Harbor Commissioners.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Dr. McCully Held for Trial but Liberated on Bail—Victoria and Federation.

TORONTO, Nov. 10.—The adjourned charge against Dr. McCully, of having feloniously wounded Henry H. Oldwright by shooting him in the leg, came before the Police Magistrate yesterday. The defendant was committed for trial but liberated on his own bail in the sum of $1000.

At a largely attended meeting in the Metropolitan Church yesterday for the purpose of consultation as to the best means of furthering the erection of Victoria College in Queen's Park, Toronto, Dr. Potts, Chancellor Burwash, Rev. Hugh Johnston, ex-Governor Aikens of Manitoba, Senator Macdonald and others spoke in favor of the scheme, and a resolution endorsing it and pledging aid to raise the funds necessary for the purpose was unanimously passed.

The man who died suddenly on a Yonge-street car on Thursday night has been identified as William Riches, a shoemaker, who worked for Robert Mayfield of 372½ Yonge-street and who boarded at 374 on the same thoroughfare. He was unmarried, but has a sister in St. Thomas and another in Chicago.

SOME AWFUL DISASTERS,

SIX MEN PERISH AT A FIRE IN THE FLOUR CITY.

Leaping to Escape the Flames They Die Within an Hour—Five Others Fatally Injured—Terrific Explosion.

ROCHESTER, Nov. 10.—The most disastrous fire ever experienced in this city occurred last evening at the works of the Steam Gauge and Lantern Company. It was located in a building of seven stories with two basements, situated on the brink of the Genesee Falls. The fire broke out at 7.35 o'clock. About forty people were at work mostly on the third floor. The smoke was very dense and the men could not reach the fire escapes and they were forced to jump from the third-story windows. Fourteen jumped on the west side of the building and were frightfully injured, six of them died within an hour. Four others will die. The names of the dead are:

JOSEPH DARNER.
JOHN GREMOUR.
JOSEPH WEBBER.
HARRY SCHNEIDER.
JOHN GALE.
An unknown man.

The fatally injured are Richard Paast, Frank Siddons, Daniel Watkins, John Jeffs. It is thought that four or more bodies are in the ruins, including one or more girls.

Loss on building $65,000, insured for $40,000. Loss on lantern plant $175,000, insurance on plant $179,000.

DEATH IN A MINE.

Fearful Explosion—160 Men Thought to Have Been Killed.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 10.—A Journal special from Pittsburg, Kan., is as follows:

The most dreadful disaster in the history of Kansas occurred at 5 o'clock Friday evening. When the men were preparing to leave off their work at shaft No. 2 at Frontenac, a suburb of Pittsburg, a terrific explosion was heard that shook the earth for a great distance and completely shattered the shaft. Upon investigation it was found that 160 men were within the mine at the time of the explosion. Being 112 feet below the surface it is almost certain that all are dead. The only exceptions were two men who were in a car coming up and being near the top of the shaft managed to escape.

Twenty Miners Drowned.

VIENNA, Nov. 10.—The Balgotarjo coal mine, Hungary is flooded with water. Twenty miners were drowned.

Six Killed by This Collapse.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—A house collapsed in Litchfield-street yesterday, causing the death of 6 persons and the injury of 20.

A Collision at Sea.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—A telegram from Havre states the Cunard line steamer Nantes came into collision 37 miles off the Lizard with the German ship T. Ruger, Captain Meyer, from Havre, and both vessel's sank. A portion of the ship's crew has landed at Trouville. The fate of the rest of her crew and of the steamer's crew is unknown.

THE CROFTERS AND CANADA.

The Question Will be Considered in the English House of Commons.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The whole question of crofter emigration will be raised in the Commons shortly upon a vote to defray the expenses of those sent last season for settlement in Manitoba. It is understood that the Scotch Radical members intend to use Duncan McIntyre's criticisms with a view to impede the development of the state-aided scheme next spring. Mr. Smith stated in the Commons to-night that the Government intends to propose a vote at an early day in order that the House may discuss the course adopted by the Government, and expressed the hope that the full discussion would be deferred until the proposed special parliamentary emigration committee had considered the question. The Radical members entertain the strongest feeling that an immediate discussion is desirable.

The Pacific Cable Scheme Almost Assured.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Earl Winchelsea will preside at the conference on Nov. 22 to consider the Pacific cable project. All the leading commercial and shipping houses interested in Canada and Australasia are invited. The conference will be asked to strongly approve of the cable as a benefit to commerce during peace and a safeguard to the Empire during war and to petition the Government to obtain the necessary soundings with the least possible delay.

It is said the necessary imperial and colonial guarantee of £75,000 per annum is already practically assured, and the early completion of the survey is alone needed to enable the project to proceed.

Queensland's Protest Against Blake.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Queensland's official protest against the selection of Mr. Blake, late Governor of Newfoundland, as the new governor of Queensland, is exciting great interest in colonial circles. Mr. Childers, ex-minister, asked a question in the Commons to-night in reference to the time the official protest was received. Baron de Worms, replying on behalf of the Government, said the Colonial Office only received the protest at the same time as the published papers. The Colonial Secretary would consider the subject. Some think the incident will not unlikely raise the question whether self-governing colonies should not have some advisory voice in the selection of their governor.

Election Protest to be Dropped.

MONTREAL, Nov. 10.—It is currently reported here that the contested election case of Mr. Meigs, M. P., and Mr. Spencer M.P.P. for Missisquoi, will probably be dropped. The leading politicians are not disposed to put the electors to a contest before the general elections.

Highway Robbery at Thamesville.

THAMESVILLE, Nov. 10.—While Mr. Aubroy, who lives a few miles from town, was going home last night, three men attacked him, beat him severely and ran him into the gravel pit, where they took $6 from his pocket. The old man shows signs of having been roughly handled.

He Made Restitution.

WINDSOR, Nov. 10.—The night clerk at the Manning House here skipped the other morning for Detroit, taking $100, all the money there was left in the safe. He has sent the money back to his employer with a letter stating that he did not know what prompted him to do as he had done.

Montreal's Ice Carnival.

MONTREAL, Nov. 10.—The Carnival Committee have raised $18,000 towards the expenses of the carnival. It is understood that Mr. Hopkins' design for the ice palace has been accepted.

Brodie the Bridge Jumper.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Nov. 9.—At 6 o'clock this morning Steve Brodie ascended to the top of Poughkeepsie bridge 212 feet above the river, made a spring and jumped into the river. Three of his ribs were broken.

Juvenile Burglars.

UXBRIDGE, Nov. 10.—For some time past merchants of this place have missed goods from their stores, but the thefts were so adroitly committed that it could not be positively asserted that the articles were stolen. Two young lads, Charles Comb and Richard Welch, aged 15, have been committed for trial.

THE AMERICAN GIRL.

Britons Begin to Feel Alarmed at the Importation of Yankee Brides.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—American politics have almost been forgotten and the American girl has the call. The newspapers all over England are devoting columns of comment to Chamberlain's approaching marriage with Miss Endicott. Society people are making enquiries everywhere for information about the bride that is to be. Independently of political considerations the doors of a large number of the great houses in England are always open to Chamberlain, and in London, Birmingham and in the midland counties in particular his wife will at once become a figure of great social prominence.

Birmingham feels somewhat slighted by the mystery which Chamberlain has observed in taking his departure and at the manner in which he excluded even his most intimate friends from his confidence. He anticipated this, and when the matter began to be talked about his son Austin went to the editor of The Birmingham Post and furnished the explanation which has since been telegraphed throughout the length and breadth of the land. The reason generally given here for the mystery which has been observed in the matter is that Mr. Endicott had stipulated that the engagement should be kept a strict secret because of the possible influence of the Irish vote on the presidential election if it were made public that the daughter of a member of Cleveland's cabinet was going to marry the man whose hostility to the cause of home rule has made him hated by Irishmen all over the world.

Austin Chamberlain declines to say whether this is the real reason for the secrecy which has been observed or not. The young man is quite enthusiastic about his new American stepmother though he is old enough to marry her himself. He says that the date of the marriage has not yet been fixed, but that it will take place very soon after Chamberlain's arrival. Meanwhile the English papers are good-humoredly scolding Chamberlain for going across the sea for a wife, even though she is a lineal descendant of the pilgrim fathers. The Pall Mall Gazette says:

"The advent of an American girl into English society was at first a curiosity. It soon became a portent. It is now assuming the dimensions of a menace. Before long it will be recognized as a calamity. Of all forms of competition there is none so deadly as this. We can stand our farmers being ruined by American corn, we can listen unmoved to the wails of graziers made bankrupt by the influence of American beef, but the American girl is too much. Already we hear the murmur and the drawing room growl of the despairing Belgravian mother, who sees season after season American girls swoop down upon the most eligible and cut our girls out before the very eyes of the distracted parents. That murmur is growing and before long will rival the lament of the Pacific coast over the influx of the heathen Chinese. We are being ruined, not by Chinese cheap labor, but by the bounty-fed competition of the American girl. How can we cope with it? What is to be done? Are we to impose a prohibitive tariff on this description of American produce? The Prince of Wales is, of course, most to blame in this matter. Instead of discouraging the disastrous influx of American beauty, as was the bounden duty of every good Briton, this unconscionable prince took the fair intruders under his special patronage. An ingenious correspondent recently sent us a suggestion that there is a true way in which to give the Americans tit for their recent tat in re Sackville. This was for his royal highness to boycott the American element in London. We fear, however, that the prince is too much of a free trader to listen for a moment to any suggestion as to reprisals, and that we must look elsewhere for remedies, if remedies there may be, for this intolerable competition."

THE GUILDHALL BANQUET.

Lord Salisbury on the Government's Policy—The Peace of Europe.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The usual banquet of the Cabinet Ministers was given at the Guildhall last evening. Lord Salisbury delivered a long speech. He denied that the Government had yielded to their opponents on the question of policy. They were never more resolute or more confident in advancing a policy which they honestly believed they could successfully execute.

England had perhaps noticed that popular institutions existed to the westward. [Laughter.] Events in America would add more to the history of electioneering than to the history of politics. [Laughter and cheers.] If there was any complaint against the Washington statesmen it did not involve the two nations. [Cheers.] The Washington statesmen had not apparently commended themselves to the approval of Americans. [Cheers.]

In regard to the peace of Europe Lord Salisbury said it appeared that all of the rulers had an earnest and intense desire to maintain the peace. He trusted that they would continue in their present attitude. The only danger might be an outburst of the peoople of some country who might disregard the wise counsel of those in power. Year after year saw larger armaments and vaster expenditures for defensive purposes. If the process continued, where would it end? He had heard on good authority that the five great powers maintained 12,000,000 of armed men. He did not suggest that that fact ought to diminish the confidence of the public in the maintenance of peace, but he thought that amid such preparation the English Government must not remain unready. [Cheers.] If England's commercial community felt that the Government's power of protection was insufficient the terror that would result would cause a greater loss than any expenditure necessary to maintain confidence. But European nations must view their armaments with misgiving. England only sought to protect her shores and her commerce.

The Week's Failures.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days number for the United States 94 and for Canada 32, or a total of 226, as compared with 275 last week, and 234 the week previous to the last. For the corresponding week of last year the total was 245, made up of 225 in the United States and 20 in Canada.

The Tragedy in Dawn.

PETROLIA, Nov. 10.—The verdict of the coroner's jury who investigated the tragedy which took place in Dawn Township Thursday morning was: "That James Scott came to his death by a gunshot wound inflicted by his wife while laboring under a fit of insanity."

MRS. Scott passed through here yesterday afternoon on her way to Sarnia Jail.

Shut Down for Lack of Orders.

READING, Pa., Nov. 10.—The new pipe mill of the Reading iron works recently erected at a cost of $100,000 was shut down yesterday, owing to a lack of orders, for an indefinite time.

Preferred Jail to Work.

MONTREAL, Nov. 10.—A young English woman named Anne Ryan, aged 27, applied to the police yesterday to be sent down for six months. She preferred going to jail to working. She was sent to the Recorder.

ANOTHER LONDON HORROR

A TERRIBLY MUTILATED BODY FOUND IN SPITALFIELDS.

The Victim's Head Severed and Placed Under One of Her Arms—The Bloodhounds Lose the Scent.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The murder fiend has added another to his list of victims. At 11 o'clock yesterday morning the body of a woman cut in two pieces was discovered in a house in Dorset-street, Spitalfields. The body was disfigured in the same horrible manner as those of the women murdered in Whitechapel.

The appearance of the remains was frightful, and the mutilation was even greater than in the previous cases. The head had been severed and placed beneath one of the arms. The ears and nose had been cut off. The body had been disemboweled and the flesh was torn from the thighs. The pubis had been torn off the forehead and cheeks. One hand had been placed into the stomach.

The victim, like all the others, was a fallen woman. She was married [illegible] husband was a porter. They lived together at spasmodic intervals. Her name is believed to have been Lizzie Fisher, but to meet the habitues of the haunts she visited she was known as Spitalfields Kate. She had a room in the house where she was murdered. She carried a latch key, and no one knows at what hour she entered the house Thursday night, and probably no one saw the man who accompanied her. Therefore it is hardly likely that he will ever be identified. He might easily have left the house at any time between 2 and 5 o'clock yesterday morning without attracting attention. The doctors who have examined the remains refuse to make any statement until the inquest is held.

Three bloodhounds belonging to private citizens, were taken to the place where the body was and placed on the scent of the murderer, but they were unable to get [illegible] any great distance and all [illegible] the assassin down with them [illegible] been abandoned.

The murdered woman sold [illegible] Thursday evening that she [illegible] money and unless she obtained it she would commit suicide. It has been learned that a man respectably dressed accosted the victim and offered her money if she went to her lodgings on the second floor in the Dorset-street house.

No noise was heard during the night and nothing was known of the murder until the landlady went to the room [illegible] morning to ask for her rent. The first thing she saw on entering the room was the woman's breast and [illegible] table.

Dorset-street is short and [illegible] situated close to Middlesex-street.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1888.

THE PRESIDENTAL ELECTION.

ALTHOUGH Mr. Harrison has secured the prize, and will be President of the United States for four years, the people of Canada do not appear to be either elated or frightened. There is no doubt that a short time ago the feeling in the Dominion was favorable to Cleveland, but after he sent his celebrated retaliation message to Congress, and after he dismissed Lord Sackville, that feeling was not so strong, and people became more indifferent regarding the result of the struggle.

The fisheries question remains to be settled and it will be dealt with by a Republican administration on one side and a Conservative government on the other. The treaty negotiated last winter is dead, It will not be revived, though an arrangement on similar lines is not impossible. But it is more probable that arbitration will be resorted to and that the difficulty will be settled in that way. Sir John Macdonald has expressed himself as being favorable to that method of ending the trouble, and in a recent speech Mr. Blaine, the moving spirit of the Republican party, took credit to the United States and his party for settling international difficulties in that way. With this spirit manifested on both sides it is probable that arbitrators will compose the court to which each country will appeal.

Cleveland's policy regarding the tariff was doubtless one of the causes of his defeat, for the Republic is protectionist and has again shown that no other policy will be approved of by the people. And his contradictory course in regard to the fisheries must have done him harm.

There is this to be considered now, the administration and the Senate will both be Republican and there will no longer be a deadlock.

THE difficulty that has arisen regarding the maintenance of the Pigeon Creek floating bridge is not the fault of Victoria County Council, but of the mean efforts of Peterborough to get out of its fair share of the cost of maintaining boundary county bridges.—Lindsay Post.

Peterboorough does not make efforts, fair or unfair, to get out of a fair share of its responsibilities, but does not believe in doing work not theirs. Anyway, the position of Victoria county, as explained by the Post, is not a very creditable one, for if Victoria only refuses to assist with the Pigeon Creek bridge because Peterborough has not aided in other bridges, it must feel that it is its duty to assist to keep up the Pigeon Creek one, although it refuses to do so.

From Generation to Generation.

The commendable European custom—or perhaps it might more properly be called institution—of the transmission of a business from father to son through generations of the family is strikingly illustrated by an incident related by a leading St. Paul citizen. This gentleman was in Antwerp with his wife twenty-five years ago, and while there purchased the latter a dress of the celebrated Antwerp silk. Last summer the daughters of this same gentleman were in Europe, and in the course of their travels visited the same store at Antwerp that their parents had patronized more than a quarter of a century ago. For curiosity, they asked the gentleman in charge if he had any record of a sale of silk to their mother. They told him her name and the year that the purchase was made, and he very soon produced a record showing the identical sale. The concern had a complete record of all its transactions through many years, the books having been kept with great exactness and nicety.

The young ladies found that this particular line of business had been in one family for 700 years, having been handed down from father to son through all these centuries. It had a small and probably a rude beginning in the far off ages, but it had enriched the later generations. There is no road without a turning. The ladies discovered that the business was now, after furnishing sustenance and wealth to one family for seven centuries without a break, about to be sold out to another firm. But think of it. There is no business in America that will remain in any family for 700 years, or for anything but a very small fraction of that period. Americans are too restless to do business in that sort of way.—Pioneer Press "Listener."

Appearances are Oft Deceitful.

Enamored Youth—Your father treats me with the most distinguished consideration. The other night he called to me as I was leaving and reminded me that I was forgetting my umbrella.

Sweet Girl—Yes, papa was afraid you would be coming back after it the next evening.—Philadelphia Record.

Honest Jim.

Foreigner—Why do you call that man "Honest Jim?"

American Citizen—Well, sir, it's this way: He was once treasurer of this county and had a chance to run off with a whole year's boodle, but the honest old fellow took only $150,000.—Philadelphia Record.

Chronic Coughs and Colds

And all Diseases of the Throat and Lungs can be cured by the use of Scott's Emulsion, as it contains the healing virtues of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites in their fullest form. See what W. S. Muer, M. D. L. R. C. P. etc., Truro., N. S., says: "After three years' experience I consider Scott's Emulsion one of the very best in the market. Very excellent in Throat affections." Put up in 50c. and $1 size.

It is extremely interesting to visit some of the leading manufacturing houses in Toronto. Perhaps the most interesting are surprising of them all are the extensive Ornamental Stained Glass and Decorative works of the McCausland & Son. It is from this establishment that the finest wiglows have come for the principal edifices, hroughout our country.

Dudes and Their Canes.

The silver knobs on dude canes are growing bigger and bigger every week. A poor little imitation cockney was seen the other day trying to patronize the universe through half a pair of eyeglasses and to extract nourishment from the head of a cane that he could hardly get between his teeth, and the attempt gave him the appearance of being in a state of stranguiation. A few canes have appeared with oxidised silver heads that, if solid, must weigh five pounds at least, and the impossibility of nursing from them must fill the soul of the dude with misery. They do say it is becoming the correct thing to have an imported valet to toil along the streets behind the dude and carry his cane for him, the physical powers of that choice mortal being too severely taxed by the weight to allow him to carry it himself. But suppose the dude can neither afford a valet nor suck his cane; what will poor dudie do then, poor thing!—Brooklyn Eagle "Rambler."

Small Boy at School.

There is a greater bore in this world than a man who has just fallen in love, and that is a small child who has lately entered a new class at school. "My teacher" sezuh to have said something on every topic that can be imagined, and he has no idea of keeping her wisdom to himself, but repeats it to everybody at all hours. He even rises earlier, "because my teacher said the other day when a fellow was late that a boy who could not get up early would never make a great man," and he goes to bed without a murmur because "my teacher says that sleep is necessary to make us grow." And in a month he will call her "old Ma'am Smith," because he will have found out that she, like all his other teachers, insists that he shall learn, whereas he knows that he was sent to school to have fun.—Boston Transcript.

ADVERTISING

When Newspapers first began to be published in London, an editor took opportunity one day to say that a certain man desired a certain something—no matter what. That was the invention of advertising, though the inventor may not have known what he had found. From that time to this poor's have made more or less use of the papers to publish their wants, and tradesmen their wares; but we doubt very much whether any real improvement upon the first advertisement has ever been made. It was a frank statement that somebody wanted something and what it was that he wanted. Doubtless he got it. We want something. Want to sell goods. Good goods too. The best of the best in Groceries. The range of stock is a wide one. It has to be wide to suit all customers. That we do suit is positive.

If there is one thing we do better than another it is in TEAS.

It is our specialty. Years of experience tell us how and where to buy. We use that experience and select the best.

Do you like a good article? Do you value flavor and strength in Tea? If so give us a trial order.

In addition, every line of groceries you can call for we have.

Literary and Musical Institute.

There was a fair attendance last night at a meeting held in the Foresters' Hall, at which a Literary and Musical Society was organized. Officers were elected and a programme outlined that will make the meetings of the Society interesting and beneficial. The Society will meet every two weeks.

The Contests.

The programme for the military entertainment on the evening of Thanksgiving Day includes several contests that will be exciting and interesting. There will be a fencing bout, in which the skill of two officers will be displayed; a single stick bout, an assault at arms, bayonet vs. sword, and two tug of war contests. These will be in addition to the music and singing, the exercises and the tableaux, in all an excellent programme.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dark, dull days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 55 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember Jas. Best's stand, 39 George-st. d111tf

A Culminating Cataclysm.

It appears that a cataclysm is coming. In fact to be accurate the cataclysm is here. Not devastating things in one big swoop, but getting up steam and gathering momentum as it grows older. A cataclysm, it may be explained, is something that the average fellow does not understand. This is quite natural for one is not met at every corner, by no means. Cataclysms are born and not born tired either. The particular cataclysm under discussion is in connection with the gigantic sale of the Sheppard bankrupt stock, now in the hands of gough brothers. Bought at a mere trifle on the dollar the goods are bought to sell. Now is the people's opportunity. Here is their chance. Here is the opening to save money. The sale commences to-day. The large stores were crowded, the reduction in prices is such as to alarm all other dealers and carry dismay into the hearts of traders all about. Get out and buy if your realize what this big sale means. It will save you money and make you happy.

PETERBOROUGH IRISHMEN.

Raising a Defence Fund for Mr. Parnell —A Good Start.

At the hour of eight o'clock last night there were assembled in the commodious library of the Murray-st. Separate school a goodly number of Irish gentlemen, who had gathered there "as friends of Ireland" to discuss and take action towards raising a fund to assist in the Parnell defence in the celebrated case with the London Times. The meeting was called specially by the Peterborough Land League, but the invitations included a number of outside gentlemen. Rev. Father McEvay was present, and Mr. T. Dolan, President of the League, vacated the seat of honor, and the rev. gentleman was unanimously voted to preside as chairman of the meeting, which he did in a most happy manner.

AN ELOQUENT SPEECH.

In taking his seat and opening the meeting Father McEvay made an eloquent and rattling speech explaining the object of the meeting. He gave a resume of the history of Ireland during later times and spoke of the great suit now going on in the London courts of the Times against Mr. Parnell. He discussed the case and said that when fighting the Times Mr. Parnell was fighting the English Government, and doing this, also, in the cause of the Irish nation, and, he said, should receive the support and the assistance of every true Irishman.

Short stirring addresses dealing with the Times' suit against Ireland's great Home Ruler, and calling upon all Irishmen and friends of Ireland to assist towards raising the defence fund, were made by Councillor Cahill, Messrs. Fitzgerald, O'Meara, Leonard, Hayes, Ball, Mahoney and Dr. Kincaid. All these gentlemen were unanimous in their expressions that this attack on Mr. Parnell was being made by the Times in league with the Tory Government for the purpose of injuring Mr. Parnell and Home Rule in Ireland, and all were equally unanimous in the opinion that

THE IRISHMEN OF PETERBOROUGH

—town and county—would come to the assistance of Mr. Parnell whose character is being put to a crucial test, and enable him to fight "these influential and soulless corporations" with their own weapons—money. It was a crisis in the history of Ireland and the Home Rule leader should be given the support of all Irishmen. The immense cost of the suit was also mentioned, and will run up to over half a million of dollars, as Mr. Parnell has among his counsel such men as Sir Charles Russell, a gentleman without, perhaps, a peer in English courts,

The hearts of those present were those of true Irishmen, and the cause of Ireland was not to be fought without the Peterborough sons supplying some of the powder and about $135 was handed in before the meeting adjourned.

Committees were appointed for each ward and Ashburnham to canvass and take any subscriptions from any who may desire to assist in the cause.

The meeting adjourned until Monday, the 19th inst., when a number of resolutions will be brought up bearing on this matter.

Week of Prayer.

The meetings in the Y. M. C. A. Hall during the week of prayer (Nov. 11th to the 17th) will be conducted as follows:—

SUNDAY, Nov. 11.—Rev. E. F. Torrance.
MONDAY, Nov. 12.—Rev. M. L. Pearson.
TUESDAY, Nov. 13.—Rev. Alex. Bell.
THURSDAY, Nov. 15.—Rev. S. J. Shorey.
FRIDAY, Nov. 16.—Rev. P. Clifton Parker.
SATURDAY, Nov. 17.—Rev. A. C. Wilson.

A Bonanza for the Boys.

If a pair of boots cost $1.75 (J. D. King's make), and wear 12 months, how much ought the shoddy man get for a pair of shoddy boots that wear out in 17 days? The first boy who brings the correct answer—worked by himself—to the above problem and can wear a pair of No. 2 boots (or smaller) will receive a pair of King's make of boots for nothing. R. J. Kidd, 366 George-st. d109

The Ball of the Season.

The managers of the ball to be held under the auspices of the trades and labor unions have the preparations in good shape. The ball will be given in the Opera House on Wednesday evening next. The programme has been well arranged, the best of music will be provided and everything will be carried out in a first-class manner. A large attendance and an enjoyable time are assured.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The Young Men's Christian Association will hold a series of meetings, beginning Sunday, Nov. 11th. These will continue for one week and will be conducted by the local pastors as given elsewhere. The subject for each evening will be announced in the papers. It is hoped that the young men will show their interest in the work by trying to secure a large attendance at these meetings.

Winter.

Some say we will have an early winter, others think it will be late in coming, but we Canadians know it will "get there all the same," and therefore it is foolish to put off getting what is necessary to keep you warm. W. W. Johnston has a full assortment of Dry goods suitable for winter use. Blankets, Flannels and Dress Goods, all bought at low prices, to be sold cheap. Don't forget to look at our Millinery before looking elsewhere. 410 George-st. d100tf

Lindsay Wants Car Works.

So far this season Mr. M. Boyd & Co. have shipped about 18,000,000 feet of lumber, besides large quantities of lath, fence pickets, etc., and two or three millions more of lumber will be brought to port before the close of navigation. This quantity, although very large, would have been considerably augmented had sufficient cars been available. The firm's yards in Albany have at times been almost depleted owing to delay in shipment, and some sales have been lost in consequence. The railway authorities might remedy this state of affairs by establishing car works in Lindsay.—Lindsay Post.

A new Firm.

A new name will be added on the first of the year to an old established, well known and reliable business house. Mr. LeBrun, of the "City Clothing Store," has formed a partnership with Mr. Joseph Picard, who has been connected with the business for a long time and is well and favorably known. The change takes place on the first of the year, and in the meantime Mr. LeBrun will offer his stock of clothing at greatly reduced prices, as will be seen by his announcement in another column. The stock has been bought in the regular way, is made up of the best lines purchased in the best markets, is not a bankrupt stock hastily caught at without examination, and from the extensive and comprehensive assortment one cannot fail to be suited. The clearing sale will be begun on Nov. 17th, and unexpelled opportunities for splendid bargains will be offered.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

SCALDED TO DEATH.

Little Johnnie Heenan Meets With a Fatal Accident.

Yesterday what proved to be a fatal accident took place at the Temperance House, owned by Mr. P. Heenan, on Hunter-st. The floor in the kitchen was being scrubbed, and a pail of boiling water sat in the middle of the floor where it was being used. Playing around the room was little Johnnie Heenan, bright, fine little boy about three years old. Johnnie was amusing himself with a pet pup and had taken the animal by the front feet and was walking backwards, laughing merrily, when he backed against the pail of boiling water, the League, vacated the seat of honor, and the rev. gentleman was unanimously voted to preside as chairman of the meeting, which he did in a most happy manner. tripped up and fell in. The water was very hot and scalded the poor little fellow fearfully, and what had been a merry laugh was changed to cries of the greatest agony. Dr. King was immediately summoned, and did everything in his power to relieve the suffering of the little fellow, but to no avail. The boy bore his suffering with a bravery which many an older person would not have shown, and seemed to try in his own way to assist the doctor in his efforts to relieve his sufferings. Last night, however, about nine o'clock, the little heart ceased to beat and the torture of the little fellow was at an end.

The funeral takes place this afternoon.

The Old Roman This Time.

The genius tramp who registered as "Grover Cleveland" at the police station night before last, has given the police register quite an aristictic appearance, as to-day the illustrious name of Thurman was placed beneath it. Last night officer McGinty found a man out in the damp rain that was falling as wet inside as he was out. The officer took him to the cells and looked him up. At the Police Court this morning he told the Police Magistrate that his name was Allen G. Thurman, and he was duly inscribed in the court register under that cognomen. He was discharged with a caution by the magistrate.

It's positively the chance of a lifetime to get 3 boxes of matches for 10c. at M. R. Kidd's.

Friday and Saturday,

Unsympathetic Gaol Bird.

When Greenfield was in gaol here four years ago for the stealing of a watch he had as a companion Alex. Ritchie, from Galway, who was lying in gaol having been unable to procure sureties that he would keep the peace with his wife. It will be remembered that Greenfield made a confidant of Ritchie in reference to where the furs of Mills Bros. were concealed, and Ritchie blowed on him and by his evidence got Greenfield three years in the penitentiary. A rather strange thing is the fact that Ritchie has been placed in gaol again for stealing, just in time to meet Greenfield as a brother gaol bird. When Greenfield heard that Ritchie was in gaol he was greatly pleased, and said, "I'm d——d glad he is in; he squealed on me once, the old——, and I hope he stays there!"

Obituary.

This morning Rev. J. C. Wilson, of Cobourg, formerly of Ashburnham, passed through town to Norwood where Mrs. Wilson had been called by the death of her brother-in-law, Mr. Joseph Jory. Mr. Jory's death occurred on Wednesday last. He was a son of the late Jos. Jory, sr., a native of Cornwall, Eng., who settled in Dummer in 1832. He resided on a farm in Dummer until about five years ago, when he retired upon a competence and had since lived in Norwood. He had been troubled with diabetes some years ago, and thought he had been cured, but the ailment returned and carried him away on Wednesday. Mr. Jory was about 55 years of age. His first wife was a Miss Barry, who died shortly after he settled in Norwood, and a couple of years ago he married Mrs. Tindle, daughter of Mr. John Ivison, of Peterborough, and sister of Mrs. Wilson, who survives him. He also leaves one son, Mr. J. M. Jory, and two daughters, both married. The funeral took place on Friday afternoon. Mr. Jory was a highly respected and esteemed resident of Dummer and citizen of Norwood and his death will be greatly regretted.

A NEW SOCIETY

Organized in Peterborough—The Order of Chosen Friends.

For a few weeks past a number of ladies in Peterborough have been interesting themselves in the inauguration here of a council or court of Chosen Friends. Their efforts originated with and were headed by Miss M. B. Failis, a lady who is now going to different towns and cities organizing, where possible, the Order of Chosen Friends. They were most successful, so much so that last night saw the formation in our midst of the "Stanley Court of Chosen Friends, No. 45," which from the officer installed and the interest taken by those who identified themselves with the Order will undoubtedly prove one of the most flourishing councils in Canada. The society is organized for "Fraternity, Aid and Protection," and claims to give "fraternal protection at actual cost." It is also spoken of as the "Paternal Assodation that originated the plan of providing for its living members," has a republican form of government and secures to its living members death benefits, disability benefits and sick benefits. It was first established May 28th, 1879, in the city of Indianapolis, Ind., and is now one of the strongest organizations in the States and is rapidly going forward in Canada.

OFFICERS INSTALLED.

Mr. J. Gowanlock, A.S.C., and Dr. Lennox came down from Toronto yesterday to assist the deputy organizer, Miss Failis, in the institution of the society. There were about twenty ladies and gentlemen initiated as members last night, and there is no doubt that a short time will see this number swelled to much larger proportions. The name of the Peterborough council will be the "Stanley Council of Chosen Friends," and the following officers were installed:—

PAST COUNCILLOR—Mrs. W. J. Green.
COUNCILLOR—Mr. J. R. Stratton.
VICE-COUNCILLOR—Mr. R. R. Hall.
SECRETARY—Mr. Z. Gallagher.
ASST. SECRETARY—Mrs. J. R. Stratton.
TREASURER—Mr. Geo. Stevenson.
PRELATE—Miss Richardson.
MARSHAL—Mr. F. Might.
WARDEN—Miss Armstrong.
GUARD—Mr. C. H. Allison.
SENTRY—Mr. A. E. Dickson.
MEDICAL EXAMINER—Dr. Goldsmith.
TRUSTEES—Messrs. Brooks, Green and Gibson.

The society meeting nights will be the first and third Tuesday in every month.

Votes of thanks were tendered to the Peterborough Lodge, I. O. O. F., in whose hall the meeting was held, for the use of that hall, and another was passed to Mr. Gowanlock and Dr. Lennox, of Toronto, for their visit and assistance in the initiation.

Artistic Work.

Early in the summer Mr. T. Kelly gave Mr. MacFarlane Wilson a photograph of his store on the corner of George and Simcoe-sts. This photograph was sent to Germany, and Mr. Kelly received to-day through China Hall several dozen china cups, with saucers, from the German manufacturers, upon which—are—an excellent picture of the store. The china is good material and the picture is really a work of art, being true to the smallest details. These cups and saucers will be given as Christmas presents to Mr. Kelly's best customers, and will be a fine souvenir in after years, when Mr. Kelly has retired from business and is living in well-earned comfort after a prosperous business career.

Brevities.

—An inebriate had the cells to himself last night.

—There will be a number of Scott Act cases next week.

—Campbellford is about free from diphtheria.

—This weather would almost drive a man to drink.

—The date of which Henry George will lecture here has not been fixed.

—There was a fair market this morning considering the disagreeable weather.

—The man Thurman who was at the cells last night was found asleep standing up at the Bank of Montreal this afternoon and again locked up.

—Mr. W. D. Hoard, editor of a Wisconsin agricultural paper and who attended the Dairymen's Association meeting here last winter, has been elected Governor of Wisconsin.

—The Blairton correspondent of the Campbellford Herald says:—"Mr. T. P. Pearce, has just sold and shipped to Mr. P. Hamilton, Peterborough, about 80 tons of cast scrap iron, consisting of car jams and wheels, broken by dynamite here last year." This iron was part of the plant at the mines.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,

At the Sunday evening Song Service in the Y. M. C. A. hall, Rev. E. F. Torrance will take for his subject, "Have you Seen Him?" John 1-29. All are welcome.

PIGEON CREEK BRIDGE.

An Annexation Meeting—Lindsay Market best for Pumpkins.

The King's Wharf, Emily, correspondent of the Post writes:—"A meeting of interested parties was held in No. 5, Verulam school house, on the 27th Oct. Notwithstanding the darkness of the night the house was filled to its utmost capacity. Mr. John Sullivan ably filled the chair, and Mr. Quigley acted as secretary. Mr. J. O. Leary was called on and on arising said the object of this meeting was to discuss the matter of annexation to Peterborough county, and also to raise a fund to bear the temporary expenses which had already occurred and were likely to occur in promoting this object. Mr. Patrick Gilleece was then appointed secretary-treasurer and a subscription started. About twenty-five dollars were raised, and you may judge from the spirit of the meeting that they mean business. The matter of annexation was again brought before the meeting. Messrs. Morgan O'Neill, O. Milloy and several other gentlemen gave their views on the matter. It was decided to leave it over until we hear the dicision of the county council in December. Jas. O. Leary and William Deyell were appointed delegates to meet the county council in December with petitions from Emily and Verulam. ....Now, Mr. Editor, in looking into your bright, intelligent eyes we are surprised at the view you take of the matter. You say Lindsay has the best market. Well it may be for pumpkins and water-melons, but not for general produce. I will not ask to convince you on this matter, I will leave it to better judgment—to those that sell and buy. But there is a matter that I must convince you of, that is the mails that come to this office. We get our mail from Peterborough twice per week. About fifty papers come each week, and out of that twenty-five are Canadian Posts, and, now in the face of this, how can you condemn the bridge that carries you over. There is another reason why we want the bridge. Several of our young men have sweethearts living in Eenismore. On young man can stand at his father's door and look across the floating bridge to his intended father-in-law's house. Why, it is the craziest thing in the world to ask a young man to go by Cowan's bridge or stop at home."

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth it relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether arising from teething or other causes 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

SHORT and sweet is our cut on sugar; come and try a $'s worth from M. R. Kidd.

A Delightful Sensation.

If you want real delight, as well as lasting benefit after eating use the Quill Pick and Floss Silk between your teeth; now conveniently supplied by Dr. Mason's Combination Tooth Pick. Then apply thoroughly, the ideal Felt Tooth Polisher and note the feeling of cleanliness, freshness and smoothness imparted. This habit, continued, will preserve your teeth in their natural beauty and lustre. 6d105

COME! Brace Up!

That's the Idea. Brace Up! Entirely, we mean, in a clothing sense.

Fall weather is on us. Warmer Clothing is a necessity.

Take a look at our Suitings. Worth buying, you say. Right you are, absolutely right.

Our top price suit of Scotch Tweed are excellent. They look well and wear well.

But it isn't every man that cares to pay the top price even if he gets a tip-top article. Then we catch him with a Canadian Tweed Suit that's a daisy, every time.

And so on down the range of goods and prices. But the fit and finish, mind you, is identical in all cases. You get the style no matter what you order.

THE CROWNING BARGAINS OF THE YEAR!

All Other Clothing Sales to be Thrown in the Shade.

AN IMPORTANT BUSINESS CHANGE IN THE CITY CLOTHING STORE.

H. LeBRUN,

After having been favored with a large and Prosperous Business during the past fifteen years, has decided to dispose of a share of his business, in order to give the faithful boys a chance. Therefore about the beginning of the New Year, an important change will take in the Business Management of the City Clothing Store, when Mr. JOSEPH PICARD,—who has been in my employ ever since commencing business—will be taken into the firm, and become an active partner of the same.

MAMMOTH PREPARATION SALE!

"Now comes the Tug of War." Previous to the above change taking place, I intend to place the whole of my Extensive Stock of Clothing, Cloths, Gents' Furnishings, &c., amounting to

$27,000 worth of Sterling Goods

at the disposal of the people of the Town and County of Peterborough, and will commence a Sweeping Preparatory Sale, Unequaled for Good Value and Big Dividends,

ON SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17.

In the meantime, the Goods will be all gone over, and re-marked down, including everything in the Store, from cellar to garret. Nothing will be reserved—all MUST go, no matter what the Sacrfice. No tricks during this Sale.

The Goods are all Clean and New, Fashionable and Seasonable—bought originally at Closest Prices, for Cash, in the Best Canadian Markets; besides a large proportion has been imported direct from the Old Country. The Goods do not contain any Bankrupt Stocks, or culls from slaughter houses, but have been manufactured for this season's trade.

In addition to the above regular Stock, I have just made a Splendid purchase of $4,000 worth of Ready-made Clothing, which was offered to me by the manufacturer, at a very Low Figure for Cash. These Goods will be sold along with the rest of the Stock at about Half their ACTUAL VALUE, and are bound to go off like hot cakes.

The Customers of the City Clothing Store are aware that our advertisements are always a simple statement of facts. No Brag, No Bluster, No Extravagant and Misleading Talk. When we advertise Positive Bargains, the Public are sure to get them.

Wholesale Prices to be Completely "Snowed Under"—Bankrupt Stocks to get a Rest.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1888

THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.

Like Cleveland, Harrison Failed to Carry His Own County.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 10.—Official returns from all the precincts show that Gen. Harrison carried the city of Indianapolis by a plurality of 156, the vote being: Harrison, 13,326; Cleveland, 13,170. Blaine carried the city by 625 plurality. Official returns for Marion County including the City of Indianapolis give: Cleveland 17,517, Harrison 17,139; Cleveland's plurality 378 against 226 plurality for Blaine in 1884.

It is pretty definitely settled that Gen. Harrison's plurality in Indiana will be about 2500. The official figures on the State will probably not be known for several days yet, as only three counties have been received by the Secretary of State. The Democrats concede, however, that the Republican plurality will be about 2500.

The entire Republican state ticket is elected. Gen. Hovey's vote kept very close to the presidential vote.

Both Claiming West Virginia.

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 10—The excitement over the result of Tuesday's election still continues. Bote parties are figuring on the slow-coming returns and claiming the state.

Inaugural Preparations Begun.

WASHINGTON, D. D., Nov 10.—Preparations for the inauguration of Gen. Harrison have already begun.

Blaine Can Have Anything He Wants.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—A report from Augusta says Mrs. Blaine is opposed to her husband taking the State Department; but that she is trying to persuade him to accept the British mission.

Crazed by the Election.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—David Waxman, aged 26, was driven insane by the election excitement, and was taken to the asylum yesterday. He imagines himself to be President-elect Harrison.

Hoosiers' Returning Sanity.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 10. — Indianapolis Republicans are still jubilant, but the remarkable demonstrations of the past two days have ceased. General Harrison is receiving a great many callers.

CHEATING THE HANGMAN.

A Villain Shot in a Scuffle—John Glenn's Awful Crime.

GLENN'S FALLS, N.Y., Nov. 10.—The most intense excitement prevails in the village of Sandy Hill over a series of events which is seldom paralleled in civilized localities. John Glenn, a well-known bas-ballist, formerly of Rochester, made a villainous attack upon the young daughter of Robert B. Sherrill, a prominent business man of the village, and fearfully abused her. The crime was committed in a secluded corner of the school grounds. The child was left in a terrible condition.

Glenn evidently thought that it would be well to get as far away from Sandy Hill as possible. After he committed the crime he at once fled. But the story of his offence became known immediately and a posse of citizens, hastily organized, started in pursuit. Officer Mason overtook Glenn a little way out of the village and captured him after a sharp tussle. Then the officer started for the police station. At a street corner the prisoner made his escape, taking refuge in the house of Hon. M. G. Paris. Officer E. P. Morrison joined Mason at that moment and after a search found Glenn hidden in the cellar of the house. Slipping a pair of handcuffs on the prisoner's wrists the officers placed him in a cart and drove rapidly to the office of Justice D. J. Sullivan.

As the news of the crime spread, hundreds of excited citizens gathered from all points, and arrangements were quickly made for lynching the villain as soon as he was captured. As Morrison stepped from the cart, with Glenn in charge, the crowd rushed upon him. The officer pluckily stuck to his man, and drawing his revolver, commanded the crowd to stand back. In the rush that followed, Morrison's arm was grasped by persons unknown, and the revolver was turned toward the prisoner and fired. The fellow dropped to the sidewalk. The bullet had penetrated the head beneath the right jaw, and lodged in the brain. He was removed to his brother's house. He is still alive, but is doomed to die.

It is said that Glenn has already served two years for a similar offence, and that two years ago he abused his own niece. One year ago he shot at a street car driver, but failed to hit him.

AN ALLEGED RAILWAY DEAL.

The C. P. R. Said to be Negotiating for a Purchase From the G. T. R.

WINDSOR, Nov. 10.—It is again stated here that the Canadian Pacific people are negotiating for the purchase of the Great Western division of the Grand Trunk from Komoka to Windsor. A well-known railroad man said last evening: "I know positively that the Canadian Pacific railway officials have been for a month past trying to buy the Great Western. Two Weeks ago there was only a difference of $450,000, and this is a mere bagatelle when the magnitude of the road is taken into consideration. The Grand Trunk leased the Western with the hope of forever shutting out the Canadian Pacific, and it is a loss to them. Besides, they have another road running into Detroit. Now that they see the Canadian Pacific is bound to come they will get rid of the Western as soon as possible.

MANITOBA MATTERS.

Retaliatory Measures Against the C. P. R. Likely to be Referred.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 10.—The Sun says that the Legislature will probably defer action on the proposal to impose retaliatory measures against the Canadian Pacific Railway till the January session and even then cooler counsels will prevail.

Godin, a Montana outlaw, has been captured by Indians near Edmonton.

Judge Bain is likely to be the commissioner to investigate the charges made by The Call and The Free Press against the members of the Government.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

WERE I A BIRD.

Were I a bird, oh, where my set wings, whither
Would ye be soaring to find some shelter blest?
Far from these scenes that keep our lodgings hither,
Filled with the shadow of an infinite unrest.

Would there no pain be mixed with every pleasure?
Any scented sweet with savage thorn astrew?
Joy know no tear, solace shed her treasure,
In that distant somewhere that ye would waft us to?

Hope tries her wings and lifts her vaulting pinions,
Eager through this vex to be away—away;
Strong in the faith that in those far dominions
There will be the finding of some sweet ideal day.

—Margaret C. Bisland in New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Superstitious Ladies of Gotham.

A New York woman, remarkable for her unique literary gifts and her social charms, carefully preserves a square chunk of the great Chinese wall, which she is firmly convinced is imbued with some special occult power. Why or wherefore she could not tell you to save her soul. Another, when she rises in the morning and before she begins her toilet, tells her fortune with a pack of cards, and in accordance with their cabalistic significance she is guided in her actions throughout the day. She has unfailingly kept up this habit for years, and believes firmly in its importance. An odd fetich is kept by a well known young married woman. It is a Japanese porcelain, representing an idol of remarkable anatomical proportions. The face is of repulsive ugliness, the expression at once sensual and diabolical. Yet such is the veneration in which this monstrosity is held that its owner never undertakes a final step of any kind without closely studying the features of the image, in whose leering eyes she thinks to read encouragement or dissuasion.—Clara Lanza in Philadelphia Times.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings healt and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

Turnbull's Column.

This Column Tells What is Doing at Turnbull's.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2 00, 2 50 and 3 00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it take an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Manties and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Fannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's. We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

TWENTY-FIVE DEAD MEN

TAKEN OUT OF THE PITTSBURG (KAN.) MINES.

Nine of the Wounded Rescued—Twenty-Five Missing and Supposed to be Dead—Heartrending Scenes.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 11.—A special from Pittsburg, Kan., gives details of the horrible holocaust in shaft No. 2 of the Pittsburg and Cherokee or Santa Fe Mining Company near that place on Friday night. The company had more orders than they could fill and in their attempts to keep up they have been running an unusually large force of miners. Friday morning 164 men were lowered into the mine. At noon the shots were fired all right and later the miners descended for afternoon duty. At 5.30 they were ready to fire their shots again. The first shot had been fired but before a man could be hoisted a terrible rumbling noise was heard above and a black cloud of dirt, slate and dust shot into the air from the mouth of the shaft, tearing away the tracks upon which the cages are hoisted and filling the shaft with debris.

The explosion occurred in the east side and is attributed to the inexperience of some of the new men. Before the men outside could recover their senses, one of the miners appeared at the air shaft nearly suffocated. He was helped out and followed by others until a large number had escaped—how many is not known. There was plenty of help at hand, and those at the top devoted their attention to rescuing their entombed companions. The fan house, only slightly damaged, was first repaired, canvas being tacked over the holes that had to be closed. About 12 o'clock the fan house was ready and fresh air was pumped into the mine, driving back the poisonous gas and averting suffocation. Attention was then turned to repairing the cribbing so that the cages could be lowered. Men lowered into the shaft by rope and bucket could accomplish nothing.

At 2 a. m. the cage was ready to descend and the first rescuing party were lowered into the shaft. Owing to the bad air they could not remain long. On the first return of the cage it contained a number of uninjured but badly demoralized men. The bottom of the shaft was badly damaged and it was difficult to get at the dead. As found they were piled together at the bottom and the living and badly wounded were hoisted to the top. At 4 a.m. five had been rescued and at 1 p. m. four more were brought out alive. At this time they struck an entry containing twelve more dead and at 2 p. m. twenty-five dead and nine wounded had been found, with 25 missing who are supposed to be dead. A large number of the killed are French and Italians.

A temporary hospital was prepared in a blacksmith shop near by, where the most heartrending scenes were witnessed as the mangled and badly-burned men were carried in. David Tweed and W. Elwood, two of the badly injured, died soon after being taken to the hospital.

For hours after the explosion snuffed out the lives of nearly 100 men the scene at the pit was distressing. Poorly clad women, with babies clasped to their breasts, came through the darkness by the light cast from the bonfires, like haggard, uncanny beings from another world. Some shrieked above the storm, and mutered as they fell helpless on the shoulders of the stronger neighbors, others were mad in their despair and tore their hair and garments and would have dashed into the tomb headlong but for the strength exerted by miners from other shafts. One poor woman whose husband and two sons were in the pit laid her three youngest children beside a blazing fire and fell into hysterics among them. She lay unnoticed in this position until morning when she was removed to her home a raving maniac.

At one time the crush of women and children at the shaft was so great that it was feared that violence would be necessary in order to clear the way for the rescuers. The poor creatures fought each other in their despair and in some instances inflicted severe punishment. As the night wore on the work of recovering the bodies continued until the floor of the engine room was strewn with mangled men. Then bodies were placed in rows upon the ground where the rain and snow beat upon them. Most of the victims were shockingly mutilated and some were so disfigured as to be unrecognizable. All were covered with blood and dust, and many were almost stripped of their clothes. There was nothing left of the first man brought up from the dreadful hole but a bleeding, pulpy trunk. The head and arms and legs had been blown off. Many of the searchers fainted at their work.

Burned by an Explosion of Fire Damp.

SCOTT HAVEN, Pa., Nov. 11.—By an explosion of fire damp in Brown & Son's coal mine, near Boston, Pa., yesterday afternoon, four miners were severely burned, one fatally.

Death of John L. Bush.

NIAGARA FALLS, Nov. 11.—John L. Bush of Clinton Place, Niagara Falls, Ont., one of the most respected citizens of the Niagara peninsular, died at 10 o'clock yesterday morning in the 79th year of his age. He caught a cold three days ago which turned into pneumonia. He was owner of the Clifton House, which he purchased with the "Zimmerman" property at the time of that gentleman's lamentable death at the Desjardins Canal accident some 30 years ago. Mr. Bush came from New York State and always retained American citizenship. He had been in the New York State Assembly.

Pauper Emigration to Canada.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The Local Government Board's report shows that only 411 poor children emigrated to Canada last year, at a cost to to the poor rates of $4193. The board only authorized 369 other poor persons to go to the colonies and the United States during the year.

LONDON'S LATEST HORROR

THE PEOPLE GROWING CALLOUS TO SUCH CRIMES.

Lizzie Fisher's Murder Awakens Less Excitement Than Jack the Ripper's Former Deeds of Blood.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Although the latest Whitechapel murder is of such a nature that it cannot be passed over without great public stir, the popular excitement it has created is less than that which was noticeable after the other frightful crimes came to light. The frequency with which the horrible deeds have been committed have made people callous to them, and if it were not for the shocking details of yesterday's crime and the present denunciation of the police department, the press would chronicle the dead and after a brief ruffling of the surface, London's social tide would continue to ebb and flow in peaceful forgetfulness of the revolting crime. According to statements made yesterday by the neighbors of the unfortunate woman, the victim was alive and chatting with her next door lodger half an hour before her mutilated body was found. The surgeons, however, who viewed the corpse are unanimous in the opinion that the woman was murdered between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning, thus confirming the first reports of the case. The detectives' inquiries elicited the statement that the woman was singing at 1 o'clock in the morning.

Sir Charles Warren is away on a leave of absence, his present locality being a mystery. He was last heard from at St. Petersburg. Urgent telegrams have been sent to him recalling him to his duty, but they have not reached him as yet. He is believed to be en route to Moscow now, but no one seems to know where he is. The fact of his absence has not yet been made public, but there will be a perfect storm of indignation when it is known.

The Cabinet discussed matters relating to the Whitechapel murder, and touching upon Commissioner Warren's efficiency, for three hours yesterday afternoon, and it is rumored that they will make a scapegoat of Warren. This would certainly be a sop to the public and would ward off censure of the government for a time at least.

The favorite theory regarding the identity of the murderer seems to be that he is the Malay formerly spoken of as a cattleman attached to some steamer that makes trips of a week's duration to some European port. The police incline to this supposition. According to this theory the murderer, after killing his victim, could destroy all trace of his whereabouts by immediately shipping and not returning to London for a week or so.

A proclamation in the name of General Warren, Chief of the Metropolitan Police, has been issued offering a free pardon to any accomplice the Whitechapel murderer may have had, provided he will give information which will lead to the murderer's apprehension.

It is learned that the woman whose mutilated body was found in the Dorset-street house yesterday was a native of Limerick, Ireland. She migrated to Wales, where she married a collier, who was subsequently killed by an explosion. After that she drifted to London.

A PREDICTION VERIFIED.

The Story of Whitechapel's Reign of Horror—Nine Victims in Thirteen Months.

When the corpse of the eighth victim was discovered on the Thames Embankment, about five weeks ago, it was suggested that the murderer, tired of the monotonous success attending his blood hunt amongst the most forlorn and friendless and pitiful of all human creatures, might, in search of change and recreation, try a higher range of work and seek victims amongst women of a better condition of life than those amongst whom he had served his novitiate in murder. This prediction has in part been verified. Lizzie Fisher, the market porter's cast-off wife, whose body was found on Friday morning, its parts scattered about the floor, tables and chairs of her bedroom in Dorset-street, Spitalfields, was about one degree higher in the scale of immorality than her eight predecessors. As a set off to this social advantage the murderer had subjected her to a little extra mutilation before leaving her. Otherwise the method of murder was precisely similar to that adopted in the other cases, and no room is left for doubt that the crime was committed by the same hand.

Dr. Forbes Winslow, a recognized authority on questions of mania, has expressed the following opinion in regard to this fresh murder, which is of interest in view of his professional reputation:

"It is," said he, "the work of the same homicidal lunatic who has committed the other crimes in Whitechapel. All the harrowing details point to this conclusion. The way in which the murder was done and the strange state in which the body was left is not consistent with sanity. I stated some days ago that the murderer was then in a lucid interval and would recommence directly this state had passed away. It appears that the authorities were forgetting this theory and that some one had been persuading them that the fact of so long a time intervening between the murders, therefore the murderer could not be a homicidal maniac. I desire flatly to deny this and to state more emphatically than ever that the murderer is one and the same person, and that he is a lunatic suffering from homicidal monomania, who, during lucid intervals, is calm and forgetful of what he has been doing in the madness of his attack."

Dispatches declare that the London police have enlisted the services of bloodhounds in their search for the murderer and that these sagacious animals, after wandering helplessly up and down a few streets, lifted up their heads and bayed their inability to carry the case any further. The result had long ago been foreseen by those who read the ludicrous picture presented to Londoners some weeks ago, when a hapless policeman was detailed to take exercise, and canter up and down the Whitechapel-road, with two star bloodhounds, specially engaged for the purpose of detection in anticipation of the next murder that might come along. One day the bloodhounds broke the bonds that held them to their blue-uniformed captor and disappeared, and then London was treated to the edifying spectacle of the police pursuing the escaped dogs all over the city and the crowd chasing the police.

The only case in which a murderer in England has ever been successfully tracked by bloodhounds occurred a few years ago. A little girl was missed from her home in Bolton, Lancashire, and after several days' vain search her parents reluctantly consented to allow one of their neighbors to try a young bloodhound. The dog took the scent from the girl's Sunday clothing, followed the scent to a barber's shop, inserted his head through one paper which covered a disused chimney and there the body was found. The barber's trial, confession and execution followed.

A Homeless, Shameless Wanderer.

The history of the reign of horror which paralyzes all London with a pang of reaches back for a year. The mutilator's first success was achieved early in the month of October, 1887, when in the dark hours of the morning the frightfully lacerated body of a woman was found lying in the passageway of a narrow alley in the immediate vicinity of Bishopsgate-street east. The victim was an elderly woman, gin-soaked, degraded and lost. No one appeared to be aware of her real name: her friends, if any, had long ago disappeared. She stood alone amongst her kind, a homeless, shameless wanderer. Nobody cared about her, nobody made the least effort to find out why she was murdered, or to discover her murderer. They regarded it as the most natural and fitting kind of death under the circumstances, shovelled her body under ground, and for it the case within two days. The body had been buried about ten months when, on Aug. 7th of this year Martha Turner, another of the fallen, was found on the first-floor landing of the George Yard Buildings, a common lodging-house on the east side of Commercial-street, Spitalfields.

The similarity between the first and second murders was sufficiently striking to attract considerable attention from the officials One fact was settled conclusively by medical testimony; in both cases the murderer had seized the victim from behind, and cut her throat with one long, heavy stroke from a razor or sharp knife, hence it was concluded that the two murders had been committed by the same hand. Martha Turner had received nearly forty stabs. The underclothing had been thrown up over the shoulders and the intestines laid bare by means of a deep, jagged cut. As in the previous case a part of the body had been cleanly cut away and removed with perfect surgical skill. On this the public began to suspect the existence somewhere in the city of a medico-maniac. After this discovery the murderer took a rest of two or three weeks and re-began operations with Mary Ann Nichols, a woman about 42 years old. Here again was the gaping throat wound, the cuts on the abdomen and the completing mutilations. And here there appeared the astounding circumstance that the murderer had actually carried the body a considerable distance from the place of the murder of that where it was discovered.

Eight days breathing space, eight days of excitement and turbulent clamors from the public, eight days of blind stumbling, stupid blundering and impregnable apathy on the part of the police, and then Annie Chapman lay bathed in blood in the backyard of No. 29 Hanbury-street, a short thoroughfare running parallel with and about one block behind Whitechapel-road, on the north side. The circumstances of this murder differed in no respect from those that had preceded it, though it was clearly proved that the deed was accomplished in the light of the day, for the reason that Annie had been seen alive at 5 o'clock on the morning of her death. The police were armed with a description of the man in whose company she had last been seen, but two weeks' search failed to bring them any nearer to the discovery.

The murderer now seems to have considered a temporary change of place desirable, for on Sept. 23 the inhabitants of the quiet little town of Gateshead-on-Tyne, in the far north, became aware of his presence among them by the discovery in a doorway of another unhappy creature whose body bore the sign manual of his handiwork. "Happy Lip Annie," found in Berner-street, Commercial-road, on Oct. 6, escaped with merely a cut throat, the rest of the body having for some reason—probably fear of discovery—been spared the touch of the knife.

Within half an hour of the finding of "Happy Lip Annie" an early-morning worker, going to his work, came upon the bleeding carcass of a seventh victim in Mitre-square, Aldgate. In this case the mutilation had been successfully accomplished. On the following morning the badly decomposed body of the mediocrank's eighth subject was unearthed from under a heap of rubbish on the site of Colonel Mapleson's unfinished Thames Embankment Opera House. After anxious and diligent enquiry the police were able positively to say that number eight had actually been fourth in order.

On the wall of the narrow passage-way where Annie Chapman's corpse lay were written these words: "Twenty before I surrender." Lizzie Fisher, or Mary Jane Lawrence, as some called her, is number nine on the list. Who can doubt that the murderer will complete the course he has mapped out for himself until some morning he quietly walks into the office of one of the London police stations and hands his card to the inspector at the desk!

DRAMATIC AND TERRIBLE.

The Story of Outrage and Crime Presented to the Parnell Commission.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The evidence given before the Parnell Commission has suddenly become striking, dramatic and terrible. Such a story of outrage and crime is being told as impresses the most callous witness, after a witness steps into the box to describe murder after murder in a manner all the more effective from its brevity and simplicity. "Ireland is in the Strand," says the observer most truly. Here it is that a picture of life in that country is given with vividness never before known. None of these stories is new. The Huddy murder, the Blake murder, and all the other awful incidents of this long struggle, were known. But a trial in London brings them nearer to London, and interest in the proceedings of the Commission, heretofore languid, has become intense.

Sir Charles Russell himself has been so much affected as to lose his temper and enter upon a contest with the president of the tribunal, of which Sir Charles was very far from getting the better. He had, in fact, to submit to be rebuked and silenced. He sees, of course, that these stern recitals of ever-recurring tragedies do impress both tribunal and public. He tried to induce the Court to rule that The Times, before producing evidence of crime, should compel the defendants with it. But the court has ruled against him. The plaintiffs are responsible, no doubt, and the Attorney-General is responsible. They are both under legal and moral obligation to establish, if they can, the complicity of Mr. Parnell or some of his colleagues in this crime. But meantime the effect on public opinion is damaging to them all.

RIOTING IN MADRID.

Senor Canovas' Carriage Stoned—Attack on a Newspaper Office.

MADRID, Nov. 11.—The arrival of Senor Canovas, the Conservative leader, from Seville this morning was the signal for a riotous outburst. The mob surrounded and followed his carriage, hooting and throwing stones. The windows of the carriage were smashed by the flying missiles. Senora Canovas who accompanied her husband, was struck by a stone, but was not seriously injured.

Subsequently an attack was made on The Epoca newspaper office and every window in the building was broken with stones.

THE UMBRIA IN COLLISION.

The Queen of Ocean Racers Cuts off the Iberia's Stern.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—That Queen of ocean racers, the Cunarder Umbria, collided with the Pekre line steamer Iberia about four miles off Long Beach Hotel just beyond Rockaway Saturday afternoon at 1.10 o'clock. The Iberia was badly damaged, having her whole stern cut off. The Umbria, after taking off the crew of 30 men from the disabled vessel and lying by all night, came up to her dock this morning for repairs. When she left the Iberia, the latter was sinking badly at the stern and it looked as if she would go to the bottom before noon.

As to the Umbria she was but slightly injured and came back to her dock merely as a precautionary measure. All the marks she bore of the ugly wound she gave the Iberia was a queer triangular ragged-edged hole in her olision bulkhead, in its largest dimension also sixty-three feet. The hole is just abaft of the extreme bow and at its lowest point about five feet above the water line. This is on the starboard line. A small hole through which a swallow might fly was also punched in the plate on the port side directly opposite. The hole appeared to have been made by the revolving screw of the Iberia.

SAULT STE. MARIE CANAL.

THE TENDERS EXTENDED AND A DECISION EXPECTED TO-DAY.

No Notice of Col. Bond's Rumored Resignation Received by the Militia Department—A Big Array of Legal Luminaries.

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—The extension of the tenders for the lock of the Sault Ste. Marie Canal was completed yesterday but no decision will be arrived at until to-morrow. It is rumored that the tender of George Goodwin of Ottawa is lowest.

The Militia Department has not received any notice of the rumored resignation of Colonel Bond of the Prince of Wales Rifles.

Hon. Mr. Dewdney, Superintendent-General of Indian affairs, has strong views in favor of the extension of the industrial school system in the Northwest and British Columbia. The results achieved thus far have been very satisfactory. Father Gendreau of Ottawa College, who investigated the subject on his recent transcontinental trip, came to the same conclusions as Hon. Mr. Dewdney.

There will be quite an array of legal talent in the Manitoba railway crossing case to be argued before the Supreme Court on Nov. 21: Hon. Oliver Mowat, Attorney-General Martin, Dalton McCarthy and J. J. Gormully will appear for the province, and Hon. Edward Blake, Christopher Robinson, G. M. Clark and J. A. M. Aikens for the Canadian Pacific Railway.

While in Quebec Hon. C. H. Tupper inspected the lightship sunk at the Traverse last year, which has been raised and taken to Quebec, and ordered her repaired this winter.

Tenders will shortly be invited for the erection of barracks at Batoche which it is intended to make a permanent Mounted Police force. A small detachment has been there all this summer.

ANOTHER INJUNCTION.

To Be Applied for To-Day in Connection with the Manitoba Railway Dispute.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 11.—An injunction will be applied for to-morrow to prevent the Portage Extension effecting a crossing of the Manitoba Southwestern at Headingly, which place it is expected will be reached on Tuesday.

Judge Killam has been appointed a Royal Commissioner to enquire into The Free Press and The Call's charges against Attorney-General Martin and Premier Greenway. The Commission sits to-morrow morning, when it is probable McNaught and Kendricks of the Northern Pacific will give evidence.

Ald. Mulvey and Ryan are in the field for the mayoralty.

Gilboy was sentenced yesterday to five years in the penitentiary for stabbing Juneau. The jury disagreed in Dugal's case in connection with the mock marriage affair and acquitted Strachan.

A BREAK FOR FREEDOM.

MONTREAL, Nov. 11.—William Elliott, the insolvent oil merchant imprisoned on a capias, was taken to the Superior Court on Saturday as a witness, and after completing his evidence was conducted from the court room by Assistant Jailer Grovel. On the stairs Elliott bolted, ran down Notre Dame to St. Sulpice-street, thence into De Bresoles-street, and there he was lost to sight. After a half-hour's excited search the fugitive was found crouching behind a lot of iron bars.

Elliott told Jailer Payette that his attempted escape was advised by some friends in the court room, as well as by two detectives. Payette made complaint before Judge Dugas, and it is understood the detectives will be arrested for compounding a felony.

TORONTO TOPICS.

The Board of Works Investigation Laid Over—Charged with Larceny.

TORONTO, Nov. 12.—The Board of Works investigation was on Saturday laid over until spring.

Patrol Sergeant Robinson arrested four men on York-street at 3 o'clock yesterday morning for being drunk. While being conveyed to Headquarters in the patrol wagon, they turned on the policemen and succeeded in regaining their liberty.

Henry Smith was arrested in Orillia yesterday on a despatch from this city. He is charged with the larceny of several revolvers from M. and L. Samuel, Benjamin & Co. Detective Black will bring him back to Toronto to-day.

A DASTARDLY CRIME.

Unsuccessful Attempt to Wreck a Grand Trunk Train Near Goderich.

GODERICH, Nov. 11.—An attempt was made to wreck the mixed train, due here at 7:30 last night, by putting two square sticks of timber between the rails. Had it not been that the train being a heavy one and the rails slippery on account of the rain, the engineer had slackened down and the train was moving slowly at the time, there would have been a terrible disaster.

It was apparently intended to run the train down the bank which is on a very sharp curve about half a mile east of the station.

The affair has created intense excitement in this quiet community.

QUITE PROBABLE.

That Mr. W. D. Balfour, M.P.P., Is About to Enter the Ontario Ministry.

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—The Free Press (Lib.) says: "The report that Mr. W. D. Balfour, M.P.P. for South Essex, is about to enter the Ontario Ministry is quite probable. He is likely to be made Provincial Secretary if Mr. Hardy becomes Commissioner of Public Lands. During the five years that he has been in the Assembly Mr. Balfour has made a reputation for himself as a useful and practical legislator as well as a debater of the first order."

The Knights of the Road.

MONTREAL, Nov. 11.—At the quarterly meeting of the Dominion Commercial Travelers' Association last night F. Birks of Belding, Paul & Co., and Thos. Haines of Greenshields, Son & Co., were nominated for the Presidency. G. Piche was elected Vice-President and R. B. Hutchinson Treasurer by acclamation. Nineteen were nominated for directors, of whom five will be elected. The annual meeting will be held on Dec. 15 and the annual dinner on Dec. 20. A motion to allow no wine at the dinner was defeated.

A Mysterious Disease.

GUELPH, Nov. 11.—Several cattle have died here recently from a mysterious disease which lurks on the river banks above and below Sleeman's brewery. The last victims were pasturing in the field where the disease first did its fatal work.

Libel Suit Dismissed.

INGERSOLL, Nov. 11.—The celebrated libel suit of Wilson v. Buchanan, in which damages were laid at $10,000, has been dismissed.

Says Axworthy is in Spain.

MONTREAL, Nov. 11.—Chief Hughes says the last news he has of Axworthy, the defaulting Cleveland City Treasurer, is that he went to Madrid, Spain. The detectives are divided on the question, some holding that he is in Spain, others that he is in Montreal.

A Detective at Work.

On or about the third day of October last the summer residence of Mr. W. H. Cluxton at Pigeon Lake was broken into and a quantity of household effects stolen therefrom. The perpetrators of the burglary were hidden in mystery, but Mr. Cluxton resolved to ferret out the thief if possible. For this purpose a Western detective was employed to work up the case, and an arrest has been made by the western eagle-eyed in connection with the affair. The alleged burglar is Thomas Shouldice, of Harvey township. He was brought to town and this morning he was brought up before County Magistrate Edmison, charged with having broken into and stolen from the house of W.H. Cluxton. Owing to witnesses not being present the man was remanded for a week. No one appeared for the prisoner. Mr. E. E. Wood, C. C. A., appeared for the prosecution.

Business Success and Improvements.

Workmen have been engaged for a short time back making alterations to the interior of the dry goods establishment of Mr. O. C. Rowse, and these changes have made a great improvement in the store which now is one of the finest in town. This is perhaps the oldest dry goods business in Peterborough, having been established and carried on for over thirty years by the late Mr. Isaac Robinson, whom Mr. Rowse succeeded. The enlargement of the store was made a necessity by the increasing business with which Mr. Rowse has been favored. The broad stairway which led to the second storey in the back of the store has been removed and new counters placed the whole length of the store. A handsome new business office will occupy the rear of the shop, where also a new entrance has been made. In this way the store has been made much larger, the space and facilities for carrying and displaying to better advantage a much arger stock of dry goods than heretofore. greatly improved. Mr. Rowse by his success in business has proved that a cash trade is the best, as he does a cash business exclusively.

THE ROCHESTER FIRE.

Twenty-one Men Missing and Supposed to be Dead in the Ruins.

ROCHESTER, Nov. 11.—Friday evening's fire was the worst that ever occurred in this city. At least twelve lives were lost and twenty persons injured. The pecuniary loss will amount to $250,000. The alarm was sounded at 7.30, and the department was soon at the scene. At that time little fire could be seen from the outside. The building was approachable only on one side, and the firemen had only a narrow alley to work in. The building stood on the edge of the upper falls of the Genesee River. These falls are ninety-six feet high. When the firemen arrived the windows on the street side of the building were filled with men calling for help. There were sixty-five men inside. Firemen answered them telling them not to jump that they would soon be rescued. The men paid no attention to the encouraging cries, and soon the air was filled with falling human bodies. At least twenty men jumped from the third story. All of them were more or less injured. They were at once taken to hospitals. Four of them died of injuries before they could be removed.

There are twenty-one missing men. It is supposed that all the missing are dead and in the ruins. Three more bodies have been taken from the ruins of the lantern works building. They were burned t a crisp so that it was impossible to recognize them.

The Union and Advertiser started a subscription list for the benefit of the fire sufferers with $100. In an hour $1200 had been subscribed. The Republicans who intended having a parade in honor of Harrison have decided not to have it, but to donate the amount such a celebration would cost to the sufferers. Several men who won on the election have offered half their winnings for the benefit of the injured and the families of the dead.

Perished in a Burning Dwelling.

UTICA, N. Y., Nov. 11.—Frederick Knan, a laborer, his wife and his year-old daughter Anna perished in their burning dwelling at Vernon Centre at 1 o'clock this morning.

Several Persons Injured at this Fire.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—A fire in the manufactory of Cornell, Bingham & Co., paper men in Mission Place, yesterday morning, caused a damage to that firm of $20,000. Messrs. Benedict & Valentine, bookbinders and printers, sustained a loss of $25,000, while the building was damaged to the extent of $3000. The cause of the fire is unknown.

As the fire was in a thickly populated district three alarms were sent out. These brought the reserves from the Mulberry and Elizabeth street police stations. There was a regular stampede on the part of the employes in the burning building. In the mad rush for the street, several were injured. Among those sent to the Chambers-street Hospital, were William Tracey, suffering from severe contusions on the neck and leg; John Porter, severe scalp wounds; Frank McKee, scalp wounds; Timothy King, fractured arm; William Meyers, fractured arm. Philip Meisberg, a printer, jumped from one of the windows. He sustained a broken leg and a severe scalp wound.

SLAVE TRADING MUST STOP.

The African Agreement—Bismarck Joins in to Pacify the Vatican.

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—The chief event of the week is the African agreement among the powers. For the past half century English men-of-war have carried on a solitary and almost fruitless struggle against slave trading off the African coast. Suddenly all has changed; the leading powers have been found to be willing to co-operate. The reasons for the change are not far to seek. Several circumstances combined to bring it about, but without doubt the leading factor, next to the attacks upon the German settlements, was the intense interest the Pope has displayed in the abolition of slavery. As in the Carolines affair, Prince Bismarck has again seized the occasion, without cost to himself, to conciliate and satisfy the Pope and thereby purchase the good will of the German Catholics. Cardinal Lavigerie's eloquent European campaign has already proved fruitful. Count Kalnoky has intimated his readiness to send a man-of-war to assist in the blockade, and other powers, including Russia and Greece, are disposed to co-operate. A Mozambique dispatch announces the departure of the Italian cruiser Dogali for Zanzibar. The agreement with England gives great satisfaction here, but it is thought that some territorial action is also required.

The Kaiser's strictures on the Liberal press continue to be discussed. An important outcome of the affair was its effect on the Freisinnige party in the Landtag elections, their loss amounting to one-fourth of their whole number.

Count Von Seckendorff accompanies the Empress Frederick to London as equery. It is said to be a probability, however, that the visit will be again postponed.

The rumor that the Kaiser had assented to the betrothal of his sister to Prince Alexander of Battenberg is semi-officially denied.

The Political Correspondence of Vienna denies the statement that the Empress of Austria under medical advice is going on a sea voyage to India or Amerita.

CANADA AND THE AUSTRALIAS.

The Dominion Government Will Invite a Conference With These Colonies.

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—It is understood that the Dominion Government has decided to invite the Governments of Australia and New Zealand to send delegates to Canada at an early date to consider the question of improved trade relations between the Australasian colonies and the Dominion, and especially cable communication via the Pacific.

For years the United States, so far as this continent is concerned, have had the monopoly of trade with the greater Britain of the Antipodes. A conference of colonial delegates at Ottawa could not fail, therefore, to have a good effect.

Another question which will come up for discussion is that of direct steam communication between Vancouver, Auckland and Sydney. The contract for carrying the Australian and New Zealand mails to and from San Francisco, which has been held by the Pacific Mail Steamship Company for the last ten years, terminated in the spring of this year, and was renewed by the Australasian Governments for one year only, owing to the prospective opening of a direct line to Vancouver. Should the C. P. R. or any other company decide to inaugurate direct service to and from British Columbia, and secure the substantial subsidy given by the Australasian Governments a great point will have been scored in favor of the Canadian trans-Continental route. But the question of primary importance involved in the subject of improved trade relations between ourselves and Australasia is that of direct cable communication from Victoria to Auckland and Sydney via the Hawaiian, Fanniag and Christmas Islands. The Imperial authorities recognise that Great Britain is just as much interested in a direct Pacific cable as the colonies, and early in the year sent out H.M.S. Egeria to survey the route. Three years is, however, too long a period to wait for the consummation of a project which everyone who takes an interest in British progress and British unity recognises should be completed without further delay. This fact has been the more clearly brought home by the double break of the Eastern Cable Co.'s line within the past few weeks, and it but needs the united voice of the colonies, combined with that of British sentiment, to spur the Imperial Government on to immediate action.

Weaving Glass Into Cloth.

Mr. Dubus Bonnet, of Lille, France, has invented a process of spinning and weaving glass into cloth. The warp is composed of silk, forming the body and groundwork, on which the pattern in glass appears, as effected by the weft. The requisite flexibility of glass thread for manufacturing purposes is to be ascribed to its extreme fineness, as not less than from fifty to sixty of the original strands are required to form one thread of the weft. The process is slow, for no more than a yard of cloth can be produced in twelve hours. The work, however, is extremely beautiful and comparatively cheap. A French paper, commenting on the discovery, says: "When we figure to ourselves an apartment decorated with cloth of glass and resplendent with light, we must be convinced that it will equal in brilliancy all that the imagination can conceive and realize; in a word, the wonders of the enchanted palaces mentioned in the Arabian tales."—Scientific American.

THE CENTURY

MAGAZINE IN 1889.

WHY has it such an enormous circulation? Experts estimate that between two and three millions of people read each number.

BECAUSE THE CENTURY is above everything a leader. It led the development of wood-engraving in America and it has fostered American authors. It is alive to the issues of to-day. What it prints sets people to thinking and talking.

BECAUSE whatever other periodicals may come into the family, the great reading world has found out that no household can keep abreast of the times without THE CENTURY." "Its success is explained by its contents."

BECAUSE the greatest writers of the world like to have their work read by the greatest number, and therefore to such a magazine as THE CENTURY the best naturally comes. It was for THE CENTURY that Gen. Grant first wrote his reminiscences of important battles.

BECAUSE it is publishing the life of Abraham Lincoln, by his private secretaries. Of this it has been said, "The young man who is not reading it robs himself of that which he will one day hunger for." The coming year presents the most important part of this great history, which may be begun at any time.

BECAUSE it is printing those remarkable articles on "Siberia and the Exile System," by George Kennan, which are attracting universal attention and are being reprinted in hundreds of foreign newspapers, but are not allowed to enter Russia. The "Chicago Tribune" says that "no other magazine articles printed in the English language just now touch upon a subject which so vitally interests all thoughtful people in Europe and America and Asia." They are "as judicial as the opinion of a Supreme Court Tribunal,—as thrilling as the most sensational drama."

BECAUSE during 1889 THE CENTURY is to have a series of engravings of the greatest pictures of the old Italian masters, made by Timothy Cole, the leading wood-engraver of the world, who has spent four years in Italy on this work; a series of "Strange True Stories of Louisiana," by George W. Cable; occasional richly illustrated papers describing the scenes of the current International Sunday-school lessons; interesting illustrated papers on Ireland, and a series of humorous and pathetic Irish-American stories; a striking illustrated novelette, "The Romance of Dollard," by a new writer, and other novelettes to be announced later; supplemental war papers, untechnical and descriptive of special incidents: "Pictures of the Far West," by Mary Hallock Foote, etc., etc. We have not space here to announce all the new features. Let us send you (free) our "Catalogue of Special Publications," with original illustrations, containing full prospectus, special offer of back numbers to beginning of the Siberian papers, etc. The November number, which begins the new volume, is for sale everywhere after Nov. 1st. THE CENTURY costs 35 cents a number; $4.00 a year. Address THE CENTURY CO., 33 East 17th Street, New York.

ADVERTISING

When Newspapers first began to be published in London, an editor took opportunity one day to say that a certain man desired a certain something—no matter what. That was the invention of advertising, though the inventor may not have known what he had found. From that time to this people have made more or less use of the papers to publish their wants, and tradesmen their wares; but we doubt very much whether any real improvement upon the first advertisement has ever been made. It was a frank statement that somebody wanted something and what it was that he wanted. Doubtless he got it. We want something. Want to sell goods. Good goods too. The best of the best in Groceries. The range of stock is a wide one. It has to be wide to suit all customers. That we do suit is positive.

If there is one thing we do better than another it is in TEAS.

It is our specialty. Years of experience tell us how and where to buy. We use that experience and select the best.

Do you like a good article? Do you value flavor and strength in Tea? If so give us a trial order.

In addition, every line of groceries you can call for we have.

New Postal Card.

The post office department will soon issue a new style of postal card. It is much like the double card of the present pattern. The back folds are split diagonally and open like a pointed star. The four corners are folded and joined in the centre, when the card is ready for mailing, with a piece of gummed paper. The card weighs less than half an ounce, and will contain no more writing than the present card, the only advantage being greater privacy.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dark, dull days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 55 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember Jas. Best's stand, 39 George-st. d111tf

Mark-at Church.

The services in the Mark-at. Methodist church, Ashburnham, yesterday were unusually successful. The congregations were large. In the evening after a sermon to young men, based on the text, Daniel i., 8, the pastor held a prayer meeting and invited seekers of salvation forward to the front, when four young persons responded and came out on the Lord's side. Two more manifested their purpose to be Christians by holding up their hands. The Lord is at work in the church and deepening the impression.—COM.

Episcopal Visit.

The Fenelon Falls Gazette of Nov. 10th says:—"On Saturday last Bishop Dowling of Peterborough, paid his first visit to this part of his diocese, and he was accompanied by Rev. Father McEvay. The carriage in which they were driven from the station was preceded by the Fenelon Falls brass band, Father O'Brien having engaged it for the occasion. On Sunday morning his Lordship said Mass here, and was afterwards driven to Bobcaygeon, where he said Mass in the afternoon. Returning to the Falls, he addressed the congregation at Vespers, which were conducted by Father McClosky, of Victoria Road. On Monday the Bishop and Father McEvay returned to Linasay, where they parted, his Lordship continuing his journey to Peterborough, and Father McEvay going to Galway in company with Father Laurent."

Intermediate Lacrosse Match.

The secretary of the Canadian Lacrosse Association has received notification that the Niagaras, of Niagara Falls; Dufferins, of Ingersoll; Stratfords, of Stratford, and Young Torontos, of Toronto, will be at Paris on Thursday to compete for the intermediate championship. The Riversides have not entered, although they might stand a good chance.

A Bonanza for the Boys.

If a pair of boots cost $1.25 (J. D. King's make), and wear 12 months, how much ought the shoddy man get for a pair of shoddy boots that wear out in 17 days? The first boy who brings the correct answer—worked by himself—to the above problem, and can wear a pair of No. 2 boots (or smaller) will receive a pair of King's make of boots for nothing. R. J. Kidd, 366 George-st. d109

Two Nights Only,

Another Present.

On Saturday evening Constable Stewart was the recipient of another gift, presented to him as an acknowledgement of his service and courage on the occasion of the attempted burglary of the stores of Mr. Geo. Stethem and Messrs Gough Bros. Mr. Stethem presented the constable with a handsome bird cage and also several pieces of cutlery—in all a fine gift. It will be remembered that the burglar had a number of revolvers and other articles from Mr. Stethem's store ready to carry away when Constable Stewart surprised him in Gough Bros. and the chase followed.

Notice of Visit.

Mr. P. H. Morris, from the establishment of B. Laurance & Co., the Opticians, of Montreal, will be at the store of the agent, as under, for consultation, and for the purpose of suiting to all difficult and unusual cases of defective sight, the most perfect aids to vision known, the "B. Laurance" spectacles and eyeglasses. Mr. P. H. Morris is eminently qualified to adjust spectacles to every case where relief can be afforded. No charge made for consultation. Note the date of visit. For three days only, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, 7th 21st and 22nd Nov., 1888, at the store of Mr. John McKee, druggist, Peterborough. 9d112-1w46

Opening of the Week of Prayer.

The first of the series of meetings to be conducted by the Y.M.C.A. during the Week of Prayer, was held last night in the Y.M.C.A. hall. It was addressed by Rev. E. F. Torrance, who took for his subject, "Have you seen Him?" His address was well fitted to be the first of the series, and its success augurs well for the rest of the week's work. It is hoped that all who are interested in work for young men, as well as the young men themselves, will turn out and encourage the workers by their attendance at these meetings. To-night the meeting will be addressed by Rev. M. L. Pearson, who will take for his subject "Curious, Serious, Saved."

Friday and Saturday,

Pictorial China.

Mr. Macfarlane Wilson has again given a proof of his enterprise in procuring a novelty in china which arrived with a recent consignment from Germany. It consists of one hundred dozen cups and saucers, and the cups bear an accurate and finished picture of one of the town churches, of the court house or of China Hall. The china was made in Carlsbad, Germany, from photographs sent there last spring. The photographs were engraved on copper and printed on the china, the work being artistically done. The dishes are of nicely tinted pink china, and the pictures include the Court House and Park, St. Peter's Cathedral, St. Paul's Church, St. John's Church, St. Andrew's Church, the George-st. Methodist Church and China Hall. One of these would be a very nice holiday present, and by purchasing such a large number from the manufacturer Mr. Wilson will be enabled to sell them at popular prices.

EDUCATED MINISTERS.

POWERFUL SERMONS ON THE EDUCATION OF MINISTERS.

Educational Services Conducted Yesterday—Rev. Dr. Potts and Chancellor Burwash—Is the Church Losing Its Hold?

Educational services were held in the George-st. and Charlotte-st. Methodist churches yesterday. Rev. Dr. Potts, Secretary of Education, occupied the Charlotte-st. pulpit in the morning and the George-st. in the evening, and Dr. Burwash, Chancellor of Victoria University, preached in the larger church in the morning and Rev. Mr. Shorey's in the evening. The collections were special, and were in aid of the funds of the Methodist Educational Society, which has for its objects the maintaining of the theological colleges and the enabling of the proper education of the ministry.

THE MORNING SERVICE.

In the morning at Charlotte-st. Rev. Dr. Potts preached one of his eloquent and powerful discourses to a large congregation. He chose as the basis of his sermon, the words:

"All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore and teach all nations."—Matthew 23, 18-19.

The rev. gentleman said that it was remarked of the Duke of Wellington that in conversation once with a young minister who was speaking of the great difficulties that lay in the way of the church and who was rather inclined to think the evangelization of the world impossible, that the Grand Old Iron Duke replied "Young man, you have received your marching orders." So this text was the marching orders of the church. All power was given to Him. What was this power? He did not think it was an inherent divinity, but rather a mediatorial power, in view of the glorious redemption scheme. He dwelt on the question of what we were to understand by a "power in heaven" and said that the vital truth of the text was the fact disclosed that the church was linked to Jesus Christ, as it said "Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations." He would take as the theme of his discourse

THE MISSION OF THE CHURCH

to the world. The church, he said, had a great mission. Every church had a mission, every denomination had a mission, every Christian had a mission and their question should be "Lord, what will thou have me to do?" The seeing of their mission depended on their right knowledge and the Christians must let the power clarify their vision, expand their hearts and send them out on the mission for which they were intended. The church's mission was a manysided one. It must be such to reach all men. The first was the mission of testimony—a testimony for the world that no other institution had. Go into the Board of Trade, into the Parliament or Senate, or the University and they would not hear a word of it. The church of Jesus Christ and the church alone had the one testimony that the world required to hear in order that it should find its way back to God and immortality. More depends upon testimony than advocacy, one ounce of testimony being worth more than a ton of advocacy. The simple testimony of a Christian was better than an eloquent sermon of advocacy without the spirit of testimony. What a testimony the church had for the world—to testify of the love of God, of his power to give peace to the troubled conscience and the hope of eternal life. But they were faltering and feeble when they ought to be valiant and strong. The mission of the church was not only one of testimony, but was also a world wide evangelization. It went to the islands of the sea and the nations of every land. The mission, the preacher said, was not only one of personal testimony and world wide evangelization, but also

AN EDUCATIONAL MISSION.

No word in the English language was less understood than the word education. When the word education is spoken ninety-nine persons out of one hundred would immediately think of a high school, collegiate institute or some college. The word education covered all parts of a man—spiritual, intellectual and religious, and, he said, all God's dealings with man were educational. God only had two text books, but, he asked, did they ever think of the great number of teachers engaged teaching these books? Editors, authors, professors, ministers and all who in any or every department are working to uplift the world. The sermons contained in the books were so simple that any child could understand them, but also so profound that no person but the learned and saints could fathom them. The worship of God was educational and so were the workings of Providence. The church was interested in the general education of the world. The man who was not interested in the carrying on of this work was no patriot, no lover of his fellow-men. Ontario, he said, had the finest educational system in the world, and the name of that grandest of men, Egerton Ryerson, would always be remembered. On the 24th May next there would be unveiled before the educational department buildings a monument to the memory of Dr. Ryerson, but his greatest monument would be the educational system of Ontario. The church was particularly interested in the

EDUCATION OF HER MINISTERS,

who were to go in and out among them and teach their children. Each church, as they knew, must support its own ministers, because each church had its own type of Christian doctrine and teaching and, therefore, it was necessary that they should have young men educated so that they could preach there own theological doctrine. He spoke of the great importance of having well educated ministers, and impressed upon them their responsibility as a denomination and individuals for the church's mission to the world, and said they could not serve God by proxy. In closing the rev. gentleman made a few remarks in reference to the Educational Society. He said a year ago he had told them he would not insult their intelligence by urging them to give to this scheme. If their child was sick they did not send for a quack, but called the best doctor possible, and so in law they got the best lawyer. They should also be anxious to have the best educated minister and this was the object of the Society. Some might ask, and they had a right to,

WHAT WAS DONE WITH THE MONEY?

One-third of all the money raised was retained by the Annual Conference and distributed in loans to young men, payable in ten years, without interest. If a young man wished to go into the ministry and had no funds he went to the Society and it gave him a loan, for which he gave his note payable in ten years without interest. When this was paid back it was loaned to another young man and so the work was carried on. There was still two-thirds left, one-fifth of which went to the college at Sackville, N. B., one-fifth to the Montreal college, one-fifth to the ological department of Victoria and the other two-fifths to the other departments of the university. Last year $16,000 was raised, and they were now asking for $30,000, and he felt sure they would have it in five years' time. Two years ago Victoria College got $3,500 now it got $5,100, Montreal then got $100 and now received $1,600 and so it was with Sackville and the others. Two churches in Toronto which last year contributed $105 had this year subscribed $500 to the fund. The Methodist church of the country had given $220,000 to missions last year and it was estimated that it would be raised to one-quarter of a million, and he thought, if this amount could be spent it would be right to give something to this important scheme. He would ask them to raise only $100. This was separated from the Federation matter, of which he would speak to them later. That would only be before them three or four years, but this would be with them as long as they were Methodists. He told them after the next General Conference they would have the Wesley College, Winnipeg, to support. He closed by asking liberal subscriptions.

Dr. Potts in the Evening.

In George st. church in the evening a large congregation assembled to hear Rev. Dr. Potts. Special music had been prepared and the singing of Messrs. Pearson and Huestis was rendered in fine style. The rev. doctor took for the basis of his powerful sermon, which dwelt largely with ministers and their education, the words of seventh verse of 53rd Isaiah:—

"How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings; that publisheth peace, that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation, that saith unto Him, Thy God reigneth."

Rev Dr. Burwash.

Dr. Burwash occupied the pulpit in the George-st. Methodist Church in the morning, and found a well filled auditorium. He took for his text II Timothy, ii, 2, and held his audience for nearly an hour in the closest interest. In the evening Rev. Dr. Burwash preached a very eloquent sermon to a good congregation in the Charlotte-st. church, dealing principally with the requirements of the ministers of to-day and their education. He chose as his text the same words as in the morning.

"The same commit thou to faithful men who shall be able to teach others also"—2 Timothy 2, 2.

In these words, the Chancellor said, they had the Apostle's last charge in regard to the responsibility of the Christian churches, and referred to the circumstances surrounding Paul at the time these words were uttered—in the dark and dismal prison, with only a few faithful friends and only thinking of the church and especially wishing to give counsel to Timothy that he might bring the church through the troubles before it. Foremost among these charges they had the words of the text "the same commit to faithful men who shall be able to teach others also." These words were not only of importance but were common sense. There were two or three things implied. First was the

GREAT CHURCH DEPOSITORY

of Christian inheritance of truth, given by the Master and then enlarged and filled by the apostles after Him. The church was not to be a judge of the Word of God, but a keeper and a witness from age to age that they were true to their trust. The church stood, he said, as the world's great teacher of the Word of God, and the teaching function was one of the most important. In this function there were required two things—fidelity and ability. Thus the first quality of ministers was that they must be faithful men, and the faithful man was he who was true to his convictions, faithful to his duty and responsibility and willing to suffer, labor and die, if necessary. This he could do because he believed that what he was teaching was God's own immutable truth. But Paul referred to something else, he said, besides moral and religious spirit. He required

ABILITY TO TEACH.

What was meant by that? Not brilliant talents, not an eloquent tongue, not great gifts in the common sense of the term, but, as John Wesley said, a clear conception of the Word of God. No minister could start in this work without instruction in the Book. They all would admit this, and in most eloquent language the rev. gentleman proceeded to impress upon his auditors the vastness of the labor before a man who requires a thorough knowledge of the Bible, a book which was not the product of the thought of any one man, not dealing with any one set of circumstances, not the product of any one age, but produced under the guidance of a Divine Spirit. It required great labor to become master of this Book and the riches of wisdom and knowledge therein contained. There ever was, he said, a time when the Christian church required a more through, exact and perfect knowledge of the Word of God than

THE PRESENT DAY.

Why was this? Because the Book of God stood out prominently as it never did before. Owing to the vast system of Sabbath school instruction the minister of the future would preach to congregations who would understand the Word of God as it never was before and he would be subject to criticism as never before. The minister should also understand the book of human life. The Bible was itself a book of human life for in it would be found all phases of human life. The age demanded ministers fitted for the work. Men said that the Christian church was losing its hold upon the world, and there were some things that made him tremble for the future of the Church They might not see it in places where congregations were as large as in this town, but in the large cities the churches were neglected and the people drifting off to the world. The Church must awake all its energies and endeavor to stop the onward course of sin, and never in the world's history was an educated ministry more necessary to the Church. It was for this reason that they were being appealed to. It was not for any particular college, but for an educated ministry. He urged upon them the great importance of a proper ministry, and spoke of the great advance that had been made in this work. Fourteen years ago it had been all up-hill work. Then they had raised $7,000 and last year over $16,000 had been raised, so that they were not standing still.

Church Notes.

The services were well attended yesterday.

The district convention met in the George-st. Church this afternoon.

At St. Andrew's Church last night Rev. A. Bell delivered an excellent discourse to young men.

The total subscriptions at the George-st. church towards the Educational fund was $125. The Charlotte-st. congregation more than doubled their subscription of last year.

The meeting announced for to-night in the Charlotte-st. Church to be addressed by Dr. Potts on the Federation scheme has been postponed, as the doctor will be unable to remain over to-night.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth it relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, it soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether arising from teething or other causes 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

The Wrong Person to Fool With.

A young man was the recipient of a well-deserved surprise party on the market square last night. He was standing in the crowd listening to the Salvation Army, and was "amusing" himself by blowing the smoke of his rank tobacco into the face of a young lady in front of him. He had only been engaged in this pastime for a few minutes, when suddenly the fair object of his smoke-drying process, turned round and made the teeth in his mouth rattle by a stinging blow on the offending chimney. The freshlet was about to retaliate on the heat of the moment, but a friendly witness of the affair interferred. The young lady acted perfectly right, and should have struck harder.

THE CROWNING BARGAINS OF THE YEAR!

All Other Clothing Sales to be Thrown in the Shade.

AN IMPORTANT BUSINESS CHANGE IN THE CITY CLOTHING STORE.

H. LeBRUN,

After having been favored with a large and Prosperous Business during the past fifteen years, has decided to dispose of a share of his business, in order to give the faithful boys a chance. Therefore about the beginning of the New Year, an important change will take in the Business Management of the City Clothing Store, when Mr. JOSEPH PICARD,—who has been in my employ ever since commencing business—will be taken into the firm, and become an active partner of the same.

MAMMOTH PREPARATION SALE!

"Now comes the Tug of War." Previous to the above change taking place, I intend to place the whole of my Extensive Stock of Clothing, Cloths, Gents' Furnishings, &c., amounting to

$27,000 worth of Sterling Goods

at the disposal of the people of the Town and County of Peterborough, and will commence a Sweeping Preparatory Sale, Unequaled for Good Value and Big Dividends,

ON SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17.

In the meantime, the Goods will be all gone over, and re-marked down, including everything in the Store, from cellar to garret. Nothing will be reserved—all MUST go, no matter what the Sacrfice. No tricks during this Sale.

The Goods are all Clean and New, Fashionable and Seasonable—bought originally at Closest Prices, for Cash, in the Best Canadian Markets; besides a large proportion has been imported direct from the Old Country. The Goods do not contain any Bankrupt Stocks, or culls from slaughter houses, but have been manufactured for this season's trade.

In addition to the above regular Stock, I have just made a Splendid purchase of $4,000 worth of Ready-made Clothing, which was offered to me by the manufacturer, at a very Low Figure for Cash. These Goods will be sold along with the rest of the Stock at about Half their ACTUAL VALUE, and are bound to go off like hot cakes.

The Customers of the City Clothing Store are aware that our advertisements are always a simple statement of facts. No Brag, No Bluster, No Extravagant and Misleading Talk. When we advertise Positive Bargains, the Public are sure to get them.

Wholesale Prices to be Completely "Snowed Under"—Bankrupt Stocks to get a Rest.

HERE ARE A FEW OF THE PRICES THAT WILL TELL THEIR OWN STORY:

Van Deckermann's Bargain.

By M. THEED.

"I have told you already, sir, that I was wide awake. Put it to yourself whether I should be likely to be such a fool as to let anything which I could possibly account for to myself as a bad dream or a mere optical delusion stand in the way of my acceptance of so substantial a benefit as that you offer me! I could no more subject my wife"—

"Psh!" he broke in, scornfully; "don't talk about your wife. Be honest and say frankly that you are not prepared to face it yourself."

"I had said as much already, Mr. Van Deckermann. Nothing would induce me, after what I went through last night, to become your tenant."

"And yet you don't believe in the supernatural!"

"I did not," I replied. "I should have said 'no' to anybody who might have put the question to me yesterday in all good faith. To-day I should decline to answer it; I don't know what to believe."

The old man puckered up his brows and regarded me thoughtfully.

"Well, it is your own look out," he said. "I suppose I was mistaken in my man. It would have been better for both of us if your nerves had been stronger. I told you last night I had been too candid with you. I should have hit upon some other expedient, but I was over scrupulous. It is my own fault and I must pay the penalty of it in my disappointment. I am sorry for your wife; you must explain matters to her in your own way. Between you and me there need be no more said about it. You will find your room here ready for the night, and the longer you can stay the better."

He shook me warmly by the hand as he spoke.

"Believe me," I began, "I shall never forget"—

"Not a word about it," he said, "as you value my friendship. The time may come when I shall myself reopen the subject, though I think not—I think not. Until then let it, I beg of you, drop."

I am afraid I took to my work that day a very divided attention. I did not regret my candor, though there were moments—when I was discussing my mutton chop, for example, in my own special smug corner, not unaccompanied by a good tankard of stout—in which I felt more courageous, if not more skeptical. Granted the existence of a ghostly visitant, might one not in time become accustomed to it? What positive harm could anything of the kind do one! But across even these faint efforts at reasoning came the vision of the wife and children scared into sickness or something worse, and I felt that, in any case, I had acted for the best.

I found my host even more cheerful and loquacious than was his wont that evening. He ordered the old Dutchman, who combined with other duties those of butler, to bring up some champagne and tossed it off, while he hospitably pressed it upon me, with a freedom which surprised me. It was this, I imagined, which led him to talk in a bragging and boastful tone not habitual to him, of the wealth which had rewarded the labor of his earlier years, and of sundry past achievements of industry and application of which he had never before made mention. The more he drank the faster he talked, and I was not surprised when his self laudation took another and more offensive form, and he began to enlarge upon his own strength of mind and purpose as opposed to the weakness and mental deficiency of those with whom he came in contact. It would have been the easiest thing in the world to pick a quarrel with him, but I was sincerely grateful to him for one thing, and for another I was satisfied he had taken more than was good for him. I was not sorry, however, when as 10 o'clock struck—the solitary game of cribbage, for which the long monologue to which he had treated me had left time, coming to an end simultaneously—he suggested that I should retire early and make a long night of it.

"You look as if you had not slept for a week," he added complimentarily, "and my pipe is good enough company for me—better than most. You'll find everything ready for you upstairs."

I heard and obeyed, and that night I slept like a top, so soundly, indeed, that when the old servant came to call me in the morning I was only awakened to the fact of his presence by an agitated appeal to me to arouse myself. The scared expression of the man's face, and the concern and trepidation to which it bore evidence, effectually recalled my scattered senses, and I sprang up in bed eagerly demanding what was amiss.

"The master," he gasped out; "what has come to the master? He is not in his room—he has not slept in it. He is nowhere in the house—nowhere about the place. What can have come to him?"

His wife was close at his heels, echoing the inquiry with a look in her face not less anxious and perturbed than his own, but in which there mingled a strange suspiciousness, which even in the shock of the announcement which had just been made to me I could not but mark and resent. "How in heaven's name should I know?" I demanded angrily. "How long is it since you missed him, and where have you looked for him? He was having a pipe in the dining room when I came up last night. You must have seen him later than that. He went round with you last thing, I suppose, as he did the night before—as I understand he always did?"

"Not always. If he gets any sleep in the day is one worth speaking of, he won't go up at his usual time. He'll go round by himself then later on, but I do my duty by the house and by him just the same. I did it last night. I saw to the doors and shutters as usual, and I put up the chain and bolted and barred the hall door—I could not have slept in my bed else—and this morning I found the chain down and the bolts drawn. Lisa here would have had me go straight to the police to set them to find him, but I thought there might have been something in his talk last night might put us on the track. I've been with him these forty years and I've never seen him as I saw him last night. He is not used to strangers, and he is too old to change his ways. He was wandering about yesterday, and talking to himself—Lisa heard him, and if any harm has come to him its the worry and excitement will have done it," the old man wound up viciously.

"Before I went to the police, I would send to your master's other house," I said quietly. There had come back upon my mind as I listened to him very vividly the half veiled taunts and jeers to which I had been subjected the night before, and, with the recollection of them, there flashed upon it the possibility that, wrathful and disappointed at my failure, he had resolved to face the mystery, whatever it might be, himself. I was not prepared, however, for the effect of the suggestion upon the old couple. They stood, as if were, transfixed, exchanging a look full of terror and apprehension.

"The other house!" they murmured. "Gone to the other house!"

The woman was the first to recover herself. "I don't believe you, master! You're trying to frighten us. Don't listen to him, Jan. He knows better than that Mynheer Andrew has gone there, and so do we."

"It is all one if I shall go to look for him, as any ra[illegible] replied. "As to you, you can please yourselves, so long as you leave me to turn out and get into my clothes."

I made no long business of my toilet, being, as may be supposed, anything but easy or happy in my mind. Rather to my surprise, after the tone she had adopted to me upstairs, I found Lisa waiting below to insist upon my swallowing some hot coffee before I left the house, and to tell me that Jan had preceded me to the Cedars.

"I was hasty just now," she said, "and I ask your pardon, but I would sooner have found the master dead in his bed than that he should be where you say he is. Better dead in his right mind—a thousand times better—than alive with us here, out of it; and out of it he will ha' been before ever he went to the old house. You don't know—there's nobody knows but us three—there are those that have seen, but they don't understand. I tell you I would sooner I never saw him again—though God knows how it would be with us without him—than that he should be found so."

It was with this comforting assurance that I set forth. There was no time for thought; what was required of me was action, and I did not let the grass grow under my feet. I met the old Dutchman just outside the gate at the Cedars. Nothing had been seen or heard of Mr. Van Deckermann there. He had been satisfied it would be so, but as for me—

"I am not satisfied yet," I said. "I shall not be satisfied until I have been over the house. You can come back with me or not, as you like."

He did come back with me, though that he thought me headstrong, if not more, and that his opinion was shared by the Minchins, was evident enough. What strange intuition possessed me I do not know, but what had been at first no more than an idea had grown into a conviction. I felt sure I should find my host in the room I had myself occupied the previous night. In vain did they try to persuade me that ever had Mr. Van Deckermann been insane enough to let himself into the house at midnight in midwinter, his entry could not have been made without arousing them. I was bent upon taking my own way, and they had no alternative but to follow.

The Fashionable Fox Terrier.

The fashionable puppy is the bull or fox terrier, with a decided leaning in favor of the last. The fox terrier is, in the first place, a dog easily taken care of, for he enjoys his bath and comes out of it a thing of beauty, for his skin is so glossy. Then he can be taught no end of very clever tricks. Of his abilities in the way of cat and rat catching nothing need be said; but when he is the smart pet of the season he is not asked to devote himself to such material occupation. He wears a rough, black cover piped with orange, for this shade is the color of the legion of honor for dogs. He has a silver collar with his mistress' address on it, but not his name, for it is trusted that if he is lost the ever pervading district messenger boy will return him, and not by reason of the knowledge of his name strike up an acquaintance with him and detain him until the reward has been doubled or even trebled. The fox terrier prefers to walk, so that the coming man will not see the ladies of his establishment carrying around a pet dog.—"Bab's" Letter.

A Badly Puzzled Driver.

A negro got off the train a day or two since and had a small trunk. He asked a drayman what he would charge to bring the trunk to town. The darky driver said, "A quarter." "Won't pay it," said the new arrival, as he shouldered his trunk and started to the city. The roads were very muddy, and the negro drayman was bringing his dray back without a thing on it. The darky said to him, "Let me ride." "Jump up," responded the driver. The new arrival mounted the dray with the trunk on his shoulder and rode to his destination. As he got off the driver said, "Give me a quarter for bringing up your trunk." "But you didn't," said the other darky; "I toted it all the way." "Dat's so," said the driver, "but I tort I was er haulin' it; how is dat anyhow! I tort I'd get a quarter for haulin' dat trunk, an' I didn't haul it nudder. I don't understand it." And he went off badly puzzled.—American (Ga.) Republican.

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you you may depend upon this for certain.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there was a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2.00, 2.50 and 3.00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it take an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's. We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

CANADA AND AUSTRALIA.

THE ACTION OF THE DOMINION GOVERNMENT APPROVED.

Favorable Comments of the Press at the Capital—Increase in the Export Duty on Pine Saw-Logs.

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—The action of the Dominion Government in inviting the Australian colonies to send delegates here to a conference with a view to the establishment of closer trade relations and to the laying of a cable under the Pacific to connect Canada and Australia, meets with general approval here and all the papers have favorable comments. The Citizen says: "The importance of this step cannot be overestimated in view of the fact that both of the self-governments and the crown colonies of Australia are progressing very rapidly."

The Free Press thinks that "no harm can come out of such a conference. The establishment of direct cable communication between Canada and Australia is highly desirable," but questions whether any great amount of trade can be developed on account of the similarity of the products of Canada and Australia.

The Journal gives the proposal very hearty support. In the course of its remarks it says: "We congratulate the Dominion ministers on their report. It is a good time to approach our sister colonies with a view to closer relations. We are pushed back by our neighbors on the south with bitterness and contumely. We must look elsewhere for fair treatment and fair trade, and where else can we look better than to the kindred nations beneath the Union Jack?"

It is understood that an order-in-council has been passed increasing the export duty on pine saw-logs from $2 to $3.

No decision has yet been arrived at in the matter of the tenders for the lock at Sault Ste. Marie. The story that the work has been awarded to an American firm is wholly without foundation. Messrs. Hugh and John Ryan are said to be amongst the lowest tenderers and may secure the contract, but the matter will not be decided until this afternoon.

Application will be made to the Minister of Agriculture to-day by the Royal Electric Company of Boston for a cancellation of the patents held by the Edison Electric Light Company of Montreal on the ground that the Canadian patent laws have not been complied with, inasmuch as the articles patented have not been manufactured in Canada within two years of the granting of the patents as required by the act.

Commander Smith, R. N., the new chairman of the Board of Masters and Mates, has just concluded his first examination at Quebec in that capacity. It is believed that he will go once more to England before taking up his residence in Canada.

DEATH OF LIEUT.-COL. ROSS.

He Passes Away at Picton in His 71st Year—Sketch of His Life.

PICTON, Nov. 13.—Lieut.-Colonel Ross, ex-M.P., died yesterday morning at 6 o'clock. The funeral will take place on Wednesday at 11 o'clock.

[Lieut.-Col. Ross represented Prince Edward county in the Federal Parliament from 1863 to 1878. In 1863 he and Mr. Bog, now Lieut.-Col. Bog, organized the 16th Batt. and he was at once appointed Colonel and retained the command up to 1883, when he resigned. He was mayor of Picton from 1860 to 1864, and again in '85 and '86. In politics he was a Liberal. Col. Ross was in his 71st year and leaves a wife and four children, two sons—W. T. Ross, Collector of Customs at Picton, and Fred Ross of Chicago, and two daughters—Mrs. Gilmore of Chicago, and Mrs. G. A. Simpson of Brandon, Man.]

ATTMPTED WIFE MURDEER

JOHN ARMSTRONG, LATELY OF PORT HOPE, SHOOTS HIS WIFE.

Two of the Bullets Take Effect in the Woman's Hand and Head—The Would-be Murderer Fatally Shot.

COURTLAND, Nov. 13.—Between 7 and 8 o'clock last evening John Armstrong, lately from Port Hope, who parted with his wife last winter, and who has been in this vicinity for the last two weeks, entered the home of his wife at Middleton, in the County of Norfolk, and with a revolver fired three shots at her, two of them taking effect in her hand and head.

Her son, a young man by a former husband and who has been working the farm for his mother this summer, secured a shotgun which was in the house at the time and fired the contents into the head and face of Armstrong.

A neighbor, James Ronson, happened to be in the house when Armstrong came in and was a witness of the whole affair.

After Armstrong had been shot he was secured but the wound is thought to be fatal.

Mrs. Armstrong may survive her injuries.

A DOUBLE MURDER.

Followed by the Suicide of the Assassin—Illinois Tragedy.

WINONA, Ill., Nov. 13.—The village is in a fever of excitement over a double murder, followed by the suicide of the assassin, yesterday morning. The victims of the brutal assassination are Peter Howe, senior member of the banking firm of A. Howe & Son of this place, and his wife, the former aged 73 and the latter 69. They lived in a large two-story frame house, the only other occupant of which was a domestic. At 6 o'clock yesterday morning as she came down stairs from her bedroom to begin her daily duties the light of the lamp, which she carried, fell through the open door of Mr. and Mrs. Howe's bedroom and revealed a ghastly sight: the walls and bedclothes were covered with blood and lying on the coverlet was a car coupling pin to which adhered hair and clotted blood.

She ran to communicate the terrible story to Mr. Irwin, Mr. Howe's son-in-law. The latter at once suspected Charles Burkhart of committing the deed and a watch was placed in the rooms where he resided with his wife over a grocery store. Burkhart was observed walking up and down the hallway apparently in great agitation. It was not long before he discovered that sentinels had been posted outside and he went into his bedroom, procured a razor, cut his throat from ear to ear and was dead inside of five minutes. His wife, who had been in the adjoining room, heard his dying moans. When she entered the room he requested her as best as he could to care for the baby.

The cause of this terrible deed is attributed to a petty spite on the part of Burkhart. The domestic in the house of the murdered couple, Sarah Richardson, a handsome girl of 19, and Burkhart's stepdaughter, was often importuned to come and live with him, but she refused to do so, and he thought the Howes were at the bottom of her objections. He, therefore, concluded to murder them.

The coroner last evening obtained a statement from the domestic, Sarah Richardson. She said that her stepfather, Brukhart the murderer, came to the house Sunday night did his fiendish work down stairs, then came to her room, told what he had done and after an attempt to ravish her left the house. She lay all night not daring to give the alarm lest he waylay and murder her. Apparently the assassin's motive aside from revenge and liquor was to enable his stepdaughter to come into possession of a sum of money promised her by the old couple provided she would stay with them during their lifetime. It would seem that the murderer had a crazy idea that with the girl once in possession of this money it would be an easy matter for him to secure it.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Briefless Barristers and Police Court Clients—The Illinois Poker Flat.

TORONTO, Nov. 13.—For some weeks past Inspector Stephen has suspected that some young lawyers who practise their profession in the Police Court were in the habit of soliciting custom from prisoners in the cells and likewise in the dock. Yesterday morning John G. Holmes, a barrister who has had a brief experience, tried to gain admission to one of the cells, and, on being refused, raised quite a rumpus in court. The inspector's course, however, is supported by the profession.

Louis Cornish, a colored man, who escaped from a Central Prison bailiff about a year ago, was recaptured by P. C. Beatty, whom he assaulted in August, late on Saturday night. Cornish was undergoing a two year's sentence when he escaped. He was yesterday morning handed over to Warden Massie, who will care for him in future.

C. Schuch, of 36 Allanavenue, claims that a 13-year-old daughter of his has been concealed from him since Monday last. This family are divided on religious matters and it is alleged that a brother spirited his sister away and is keeping her in concealment in order that she may be brought up in his faith and not in that of the father.

A young lad named Mearns was run down by a butcher cart on Queen-street yesterday morning, and was taken to his home, where a tracture of the right ankle was reduced.

Judicial clemency was extended towards Lily White, a young girl who in a moment of temptation pilfered from two young ladies with whom she boarded. On account of it being her first offence and the social position of her relatives she was allowed to go.

Young Payne, the drug clerk of Arrowsmith, Ill., who fell into the hands of the Philistines last Sunday night and was cleaned out of $142 at poker, remains here to go for the gang who he says robbed him. Yesterday was the first day's hearing and an adjournment was effected until Nov. 16.

The case against "Phip" Spohn, charged with keeping a gaming house, went over until to-day.

At the meeting of the City Council last night the bylaw granting $150,000 to carry out the Don improvement work now under contract was passed.

The reductions in the St. Matthew's Ward assessments made by the Court of Revision yesterday aggregated $40,000. There were 100 appeals.

The troubles caused by the split between Rev. A. Sanson, rector of Little Trinity, and his old curate, Rev. John Gillespie, is not yet healed, and is spreading to the congregation.

Hungary's Debt Conversion Scheme.

PESTH, Nov. 13.—In the Lower House of the Hungarian Diet yesterday, Prime Minister Tisza, replying to criticisms of the proposed scheme for the conversion of Hungarian loans, contended that the scheme fulfilled the general desire for the abolition of the present method of redemption and would effect a saving of 1,500,000 florins in 1891. The group of bankers which had undertaken to handle the new bonds would not have offered their services had they not been convinced that great confidence was felt abroad in the condition of Hungarian finances, "and I am confident," continued Herr Tisza, "that unless a great revolution of events occurs the finances of the country will become in so favorable a condition as to permit a more satisfactory conversion to be affected ten and fifteen years hence."

THE END OF A SHORT CAREER.

Death of The London London Evening Times—The Proprietor Gone.

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 13.—There was a lively scene around the office of The Evening Times yesterday morning. The paper was started a little less than three months ago by Paul and Harris, the former hailing from Toronto, and the latter being an American. It was understood that Paul put his experience into the business against Harris' money, which amounted to $4300. The type and outfit were supplied from the Johnson type foundry at Toronto, and Johnson took a manufacturer's lien on it as security. About a month ago Paul dropped out of the firm and the paper was continued with John Harris as sole proprietor. On Thursday afternoon last Harris stated his intention of going away to get funds, and that was the last seen of him. He wrote to Johnson from Hamilton, stating that he was going to the other side to raise the wind, but didn't know how he would succeed. He warned him not to be "surprised at any turn events might take." Acting on the hint, Johnson came to London, and about eight o'clock yesterday morning went to the office and advised the men of the condition of affairs. He promised to see them paid, and advised them to quit work and lock up. They, however, decided to hold possession and issue an attachment against the property, so as to get ahead of any of the claimants. In accordance with this resolution they proceeded to barricade the doors and windows. It seems, however, that Mr. J. Ferguson, of the Merchants' Bank, held a chattel mortgage from Harris to cover advances of a little over $200. As soon as he learned that Harris was gone he sent bailiffs to take possession. When they arrived they found the place barricaded and commenced a siege. The side door was fixed upon as the weakest part of the fortifications, and they commenced an attack on it with crowbars. The panels were broken away after considerable trouble, the barricades against it removed and the door opened. The garrison were standing around laughing and offered no active resistance. The employes engaged a lawyer and issued a second attachment. The employes are left badly in the lurch. With the desire of helping Harris through as far as possible they let their wages run. Some eight or nine compositors are two weeks in arrears, amounting in each case to about $25. The office's employes and staff are owed in some cases five and six weeks pay, amounting all the way from $35 to $75. It is understood that Harris owes a considerable amount around the city to other parties. He sank $4,320 in the venture.

THE RIPPER'S LATEST VICTIM.

Gen. Sir Charles Warren's Resignation Announced in the Commons.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Gen. Sir Charles Warren, Chief of the Metropolitan Police, has tendered his resignation. It is understood this action is due to the severe criticism that has been made upon his efficiency recently in connection with the Whitechapel murder.

In the House of Commons yesterday afternoon Mr. Matthews, the Home Secretary, announced Gen. Warren's resignation. The announcement was greeted with cheers.

A Ghastly Spectacle.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—John McCarthy, the landlord of Lizzie Fisher, the Whitechapel monster's latest victim, thus describes the hideous spectacle which met his gaze last Friday in the murdered woman's room:

"When I looked through the window the sight I saw was more ghastly than I had prepared myself for. On the bed lay the body, while the table was covered with lumps of flesh. Soon Superintendent Arnold arrived, and instructions to burst the door open were given. I at once forced it with a pickaxe and we entered. The sight looked like the work of a devil. The poor woman had been completely disembowelled. Her entrails were cut out and placed on a table. It was these I had taken to be lumps of flesh. The woman's nose had been cut off and her face was gashed and mutilated so that she was quite beyond recognition. Both her breasts, too, had been cut clean away and placed by her side. Her liver and other organs were on the table. I had heard a great deal about the Whitechapel murders, but I had never expected to see such a sight. The body was covered with blood and so was the bed. The whole scene is more than I can describe. I hope I may never see such a sight again."

The man with whom the victim has been recently living could not really recognize her, but of course, the surroundings, clothes, etc., indentify her. She leaves a natural son, aged 10, who was absent with a neighbor at the time of the murder and knows nothing of the occurrence.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Saved by a Woman—A Freight Train Stopped Just in Time.

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—On Saturday afternoon through freight No. 18, from Coteau to Ottawa, was coming down a steep grade at a fearfully rapid rate on the line between Maxville and Moose Creek when Engineer Brown noticed a female figure ahead wildly waving a red object. He immediately reversed and whistled down breaks and brought the train to a standstill within a few feet of destruction. It was found that the track had been completely washed away a few feet ahead, through the bursting of an adjacent dam just above a tank house.

ALASKA.

Growth of the White Population—Gold, Silver and Coal Fields.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Governor Swineford of Alaska says in his annual report that the white population has greatly increased during the past year owing to the extension of mining operations and development of the salmon canning industries. The total population is 49,830 and of this number there are 6300 whites, 1900 Creoles and the rest Aleuts. In regard to the settlement of the public lands the Governor states that all settlers in Alaska upon the public lands are mere squatters who are awaiting legislation from Congress which will enable them to secure titles. Gold mines are being developed in Douglass Island and the report notes the sale of four claims for $1,500,000. Promising silver discoveries have been made. As to the Alaskan coal mines the Governor thinks that there is enough coal in the territory to supply the whole of the United States for centuries. In addition to 14 public schools there are 8 Protestant, 2 Catholic and 17 Græco-Russian mission schools, besides the 2 schools supported by the sitka Industrial Training School. The Governor reiterates the charges made in the last annual report relative to the violation of law and the ill-treatment of the natives by the agents of the Alaska Commercial Company.

ELECTION ECHOES.

Official Returns for Pennsylvania—The California Vote.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 13.—Official returns from every county in the State show a plurality for Harrison of 79,179. Blaine's plurality in 1884 was 81,019.

The California Vote.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 13.—Additional returns on the vote for President show a total of 116,734 for Harrison and 108,238 for Cleveland with 5000 or 6000 votes to hear from. The returns have not changed the status of the congressional representation.

THE NEWSPAPER CHARGES

FIRST SESSION OF THE ROYAL COMMISSION AT WINNIPEG.

A Reference Back to the Legislature Asked for Enlarged Scope of the Commission—Evidence to be Taken To-day.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 13.—The first sitting of the Royal Commission to enquire into the newspaper charges against the members of the Government was held yesterday.

Counsel for The Free Press and The Call asked a reference back to the Legislature for enlarged scope on the commission so as to include all the charges made, and intimated that if it was not allowed the matter might be dropped.

Attorney-General Martin claimed that the principal charges were mentioned in the commission and the newspapers wanted to bring in extraneous and irrelevant matter.

Judge Killam adjourned the session till to-day when evidence will be taken.

A REPENTANT DEFAULTER.

Ex-Treasurer Axworthy of Cleveland Explains His Case.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 13.—Thomas Axworthy, the defaulting city treasurer of Cleveland, who left here $480,000 "short" in his accounts and with $150,000 of other people's money, has written Mayor Babcock a letter. It was sent from Montreal on Oct. 29, and when the mayor received it he hastened to Montreal in order to have an interview with Axworthy. He remained there a week, and returned to Cleveland without having seen his man. Yesterday afternoon the mayor gave the newspapers a copy of the letter. It reads:

"There has, no doubt, been considerable comment concerning my absence. I arrived here sometime since. I should have written before, but could not summon the courage to do so. I shall have to remain in some part of the Dominion for perhaps all the time, for the following reasons: I went east about Oct. 1 for the purpose of collecting large sums loaned by me on call, from time to time during the last four years, at the suggestion of prominent Cleveland parties. I had been receiving the interest regularly, but greatly to my surprise and horror, when I demanded the principal, I was answered: "We cannot pay it: in fact it would have been impossible for us to have done so within four months after we had made the loans, etc. In fact investigation showed such to be the case, although I supposed the parties to be worth millions. I need not dwell on this matter. In fact I cannot. It is too horrible for me to think or write about. You will know from the position I occupied in your community how my situation must affect me or any other man that has always been strictly honest to the letter thus overwhelmed by circumstances which, when too late, he finds he cannot control. There was a combination to ruin me and it has succeeded. I am properly and deservedly, perhaps, the sufferer and an exile. I am not writing you, however, in extenuation of criminal carelessness and consequent misery, but writing you as the executive of the City of Cleveland to advise you that as far as in my power lies I desire to make amends by turning over my entire property, real and personal, for the benefit of the city or my bondsmen. An action in the proper court will, I think, make this entirely legal. Below I give in full my entire belongings, to which I waive all right and title, and I will write my wife asking her to quit claim to all the real estate belonging to me in my name for a nominal consideration. My stocks, deeds, bills of sale, etc., are in box 64, National Bank of Commerce. Goodbye, God bless the City of Cleveland and you all, is the earnest prayer of

"THOMAS AXWORTHY."

Mayor Babcock will probably make another trip to Montreal in the hope of having a personal interview with the defaulter.

"RECONSTRUCTED."

What the Canaries Have Been Singing About the New Ministerial Timber.

TORONTO, Nov. 13.—The World says this morning: That the Ontario Cabinet will shortly be "reconstructed" about one hundred little canaries continue to sing to young men of The World. It is now definitely known that poor Mr. Pardee will never take his seat again among the ministers. It is understood that all hopes of his recovery are given up, and his death may occur at any moment, so serious is his condition said to be.

Col. J. M. Gibson of Hamilton will undoubtedly be taken in, and the "Reconstructed" Cabinet should be something like this:

Premier and Attorney-General—Hon. Oliver Mowat.

Commissioner of Crown Lands—Hon. A. S. Hardy.

Commissioner of Public Works—Hon. C. F. Fraser.

Provincial Treasurer—Hon. A. M. Ross.

Minister of Education—Hon. G. W. Ross.

Minister of Agriculture—Hon. Charles Drury.

Provincial Secretary—Col. J. M. Gibson, Hamilton.

The canaries who sang The World this information also sing that they will wager dollars to doughnuts that they sing correctly.

NEWFOUNDLAND ADVICES.

An Important Election Which Shows a Feeling in Favor of Union.

HALIFAX, Nov. 13.—An important election took place at Bonavista, Newfoundland, on Saturday, in which the question of confederation with Canada was a prominent factor. Mr. Morrison, an independent candidate, favorable to confederation, and supported by Mr. Movine, the most enthusiastic Confederalist on the Island was elected by four hundred majority. Morrison is the law partner of Attorney-General Sir James Winter, leader of the confederate wing of the Thorburn Government. The Opposition candidate was Mr. Johnston, law partner of Sir William Whiteway, who was supported on the stump by Sir William Whiteway, Mr. Bond, M.P., Dr. Skelton, M.P.P., and the whole force of the Opposition. Whiteway himself has always been a confederate, but he has recently allied himself with the anti-confederation party in an attempt to defeat the existing Government. During the canvas Whiteway said, if in power he would submit the question of confederation to a popular plebiscite of the people. The result is a great victory in favor of confederation, and a great defeat for the Whiteway party, who are temporizing with the question.

Brown's Time Hadn't Come.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 13.—William Brown, grocer, of Collamer Village, whose family had left him on accounts of his drinking habits, last night placed three kegs of powder in his store where they would be exploded by fire, touched a match to some inflammable material and cut his throat. Two of the kegs exploded, wrecking the building, but Brown will recover.

Cutting Freight Rates.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The Erie Railroad insists on its differential rate and yesterday put in force rates from New York and Chicago ranging from 46c. to 19c., or from 5c. to 1c. per 100 pounds below the New York Central rate. Advices from Philadelphia state that the Pennsylvania road has met the cuts and instead a reduced schedule.

BARRELS OF BUSINESS.

A LONG AND BUSY SESSION OF THE TOWN COUNCIL.

Those Old School Debentures—The Pigeon Lake Bridge—New Sidewalks—Long List of Communications—Reports of Committees—A Great Grist of Motions

Shortly after the town clock spoke out eight o'clock last night, Mayor Stevenson took the chair in the Council Chamber, and gazed on the following councillors ranged round him:—Councillors Cahill, Davidson, Winch, Kelly, E.H.D. Hall, A. Hall, Yelland, Moore, Douglas, Langford and Hartley.

The minutes of previous meeting were read and approved.

LARGE BATCH OF COMMUNICATIONS.

The following communications and petitions were read:—

From R. Pope regarding the sewer from the post office.

From Hall and Hays threatening an action for damages if the town did not stop taking gravel from the property of their client, Mr. John Carnegie, at Lawe's Iron Works.—Street inspector was instructed to take no more gravel.

Mr. E. Pearse sent a communication enclosing the minutes of the meeting of the joint committee which met to take over the Locks bridge.—Referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. J. G. Macklin sent a communication regarding a crossing at Smith-st.—Referred to Street and Bridge committee.

Messrs. Edmison & Dixon, on behalf of Mr. W. H. Manning, asking to have a grade struck on McDonnel-st.—Streets and Bridges.

Mr. H. C. Calcutt sent in an offer to buy the east dial of the town clock to place at Jubilee Point.

Mr. E. A. Peck, by letter, presented the case of John Adium who, it is alleged, was disabled by a constable.—Referred to Finance Committee.

Mr. T. Dolan and thirteen others asked for a hydrant on Brock-st. between Aylmer and George-sts.—Fire, Water and Light.

Mr. Brundbette asked for a hydrant at corner of Bethune and King-sts.—Fire, Water and Light.

A letter was received from Mr. E. Pearce asking to have the assessment remitted on the lot on the corner of George and Dalhousie-sts., which the town had been using.—Finance Committee.

Margaret Plunket wrote re-taxes. Y.M.C.A. also asked for remittance of taxes.—Finance Committee.

Mr. Ed. Slatterly asked to have part of his butcher's license remitted as he only used it three months.—Finance Committee.

Wm. Breckenridge asked the Council to have a sidewalk laid at west end of Chamberlain-st.—Granted.

County Clerk Pearse sent a communication stating that the Pigeon Lake bridge had been closed for repairs and asked if the Council had any objection to the closing.—Received.

Wm. Bogan wrote re-assessment.

Mr. John McNaughton and others sent in a petition asking that a water main be extended on Stewart-st. and that a hydrant be placed at the corner of Sherbrooke and Bethune-sts.—Fire, Water and Light.

Mary Payne objected to having to pay a dog tax as she had no dog and asking a remittance.—Granted.

Rev. E. F. Torence and 35 others asking for an electric light at corner of Rubidge and Charlotte-sts.

They were all referred to the Finance Committee.

RATEPAYERS SPEAK.

On motion Mr. Geo. Hilliard was allowed to address the Council. He said he represented the Auburn Woollen Company, and had come to speak in reference to remission of taxes. The matter had been taken up last year, had been referred to the Finance Committee and had laid there and he thought it should be settled.

Councillor MOORE said there was something in the matter the Committee did not understand and it was allowed to stand, and there it lay.

It was decided that Mr. Hilliard come and meet the Finance Committee and settle the matter.

On motion Mr. Payne was heard with reference to his assessment for a house in which he had only lived four months and had been assessed for the whole year. He said he was to take the taxes out of the rent. They were to pay the taxes according to verbal agreement, and he wanted the Council to take action in his case.

The Council could not take any action in the matter.

Mr. John Kelly referred to the petition of Mr. E. F. Torrance et al. He said he had built a brick store on the corner of Sherbrooke and Rubidge-sts. some years ago, and year after year they had promised to give him a light, and his tenant had bothered him more than he had bothered the Council. He did not think he was being used fairly.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS.

Councillor CAHILL moved that it be referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee, with power to put another light on Rubidge, if in their opinion it appears a necessity. There had been a little rebellion he said down there about these lights, and as usual he came in for the hardest knocks, although he was not a member of the Committee and not responsible for the placing of them. He was, however, present at the Committee meeting and urged that another light should be put on Rubidge-st. There was six blocks between the two lights now on this street, and such a distance did not occur anywhere else in town. He would not favor removing the light at the junction of Reid and Park-sts., except further west, and then putting another light where asked for. When he was before the Committee the Chairman said that if Rubidge-st. was not sufficiently lighted another light would be granted, which he hoped would be now done.

Messrs. T. A. Hay, John Irwin, F. Foote and Fred Mitchell addressed the Council in regard to a petition they had signed last year asking for a hydrant on McDonnel-st. between George and Aylmer. They stated that the Waterworks Company had not carried out the prayer of the petition, and said they understood they would have water service. They objected to paying for the hydrant.

Councillor MOORE said they had not put the main all along the street and had not complied with petition and therefore he did not think they were liable. The company was to supply a "suitable number of hydrants for protection" and the town was to judge whether there was sufficient protection, and he did not think this hydrant was the right place. When the Water Company meet with the requirements of the Council then they would be liable, but until the town accepted that hydrant he did not think the ratepayers or town were liable for the payment of the hydrant.

Councillor LANGFORD agreed with Councillor Moore's views.

Councillor HARTLEY moved that the motion be referred to the Fire, Water and Light.—Carried.

THE TOWN CLOCK.

It was moved that Mr. Muncaster be heard with reference to the town clock. Mr. Muncaster explained that the wires put on to keep the pigeons out came in contact with the hands, and he had in consequence to disconnect the hands on the east side. If they could send somebody up to take the wires off, the clock would be all right. He said if they were extended out a little the evil would be remedied. He advocated the painting of the dials, and he would take the clock to pieces and clean it.

Councillor CAHILL moved that it be referred to the Property Committee with power to act.—Carried.

THE FINANCE COMMITTEE.

To the Mayor and Council:

Your Finance Committee beg leave to report and recommend the payment of the following accounts:—

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth it relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. it soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether rising from teething or other causes 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

Shot by a Demi-Mondaine.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—A Chinese laundryman named Choli Way was shot and fatally wounded yesterday by a disreputable woman named Annie McKay. The shooting grew out of a quarrel in regard to some clothing which the woman claimed to have left with the Celestial to be washed. She has not yet been arrested.

TRADE AND TRAFFIC.

Leading Features of the Grain and Produce Markets at Home and Abroad.

TORONTO, Nov. 13.—St. Lawrence market was quiet yesterday and quotations were generally unchanged.

Roll butter is 25c, and tub 22c per lb. Eggs are quoted at 23c to 24c per dozen.

Hay is quoted at $22 to $25, and straw at $15 to $16. About ten loads of hay were received.

Apples are quoted at $1.50 to $2 by the barrel.

On call yesterday afternoon at the Board of Trade sellers offered two cars of oats on the track to arrive at 38c per bush., buyers bid 35c. One car was offered on the spot at 38c, again the buyers offered 35c; no transaction was made.

Six thousand bushels of barley was received yesterday morning, the price ranging from 67c to 75½c. Of wheat 300 bushels were received; fall and spring sold at $1.20, and goose at 96c to 97c. The receipts of oats amounted to 300 bushels, the price being 40c to 41c. No peas or rye received. The former are quoted at 65c to 70c and the latter 65c to 66c.

BEERBOHM'S REPORT.

Beerbohm reports: Floating cargoes—wheat quiet and steady, corn nil. Cargoes on passage—wheat quiet and steady, corn firm. Mark Lane—Wheat quiet, corn a turn dearer, flour steady. Spot good American corn 23s 6d. was 23s, s. m. flour 27s, was 27s 3d. Good cargoes No. 1 California wheat 43s, was 43s. English farmer's deliveries of wheat for the past week 59,422 qrs., average price 31s 8d, was 32s 3d. Liverpool—Spot wheat, corn quiet.

LIVERPOOL MARKET.

Liverpool reports: Wheat quiet, demand poor, holders offer freely. Corn strong, demand good. Spring wheat 8s 2½d, red winter 8s 3d, No. 1 Cal. 8s 5d to 8s 5½d. Peas 6s, Pork 83s 6d. Lard 43s. Bacon 45s to 47s, Cheese 50s.

CHEESE MARKETS.

The cheese market at Utica manifested no change yesterday from the condition which prevailed one week ago. Prices were the same. The attendance was rather light. The season for making is drawing to a close and many factories have discontinued operations. In another week all the October stock will have been taken. Yesterday's transactions were: 7 lots, 1500 boxes, 9¼c.; 3 lots, 300 boxes, 9½c.; 39 lots, 2877 boxes, 9⅝c.; 13 lots, 1195 boxes, 9¾c.; 17 lots, 1448 boxes, 10c.; 4 lots, 218 boxes, 10¼c.; 6 lots, 1282 boxes, on commission. Total transactions 8820 boxes, ruling price 9¾c. Transactions one year ago 9489 boxes, ruling price 10¼c.

Offerings of cheese at Buffalo yesterday afternoon were 5700 boxes. All the cheese was the last week of September make, except that of the cloverfield combination, which sold their September cheese since the last market here. Bidding opened fairly active, with a good enquiry for September cheese, 10¾ cents being bid. At this price there was no trading, as holders wanted 11 cents, but 10¾ bought 1000 boxes of Marshfield. The balance of the offerings are retained by factories or are shipped east on sale.

There was a little better feeling on the Little Falls cheese market, although there is no increase in the prices paid except for three large lots of fine September cheese which sold at 10¼c. Colored cheese had the preference and no sales of white were made above 9¾c. The transactions were: 2 lots at 9¼c, 39 lots at 9¾c, 29 lots at 10c, 3 lots at 10¼c, 1 lot at private terms and 9 lots commission. Total, 6523 boxes. The sales of farm dairy cheese amounted to 745 boxes and the prices are 9¼c to 10¼c, bulk at 10¼c. Sixty-three packages of butter sold at 21c to 23c, bulk at the latter price.

It is extremely interesting to visit some of the leading manufacturing houses in Toronto. Perhaps the most interesting are surprising of them all are the extensive Ornamental Stained Glass and Decorative works of the McCausland & Son. It is from this establishment that the finest windows have come for the principal edifices, throughout our country.

ADVERTISING

When Newspapers first began to be published in London, an editor took opportunity one day to say that a certain man desired a certain something—no matter what. That was the invention of advertising, though the inventor may not have known what he had found. From that time to this people have made more or less use of the papers to publish their wants, and tradesmen their wares; but we doubt very much whether any real improvement upon the first advertisement has ever been made. It was a frank statement that somebody wanted something and what it was that he wanted. Doubtless he got it. We want something. Want to sell goods. Good goods too. The best of the best in Groceries. The range of stock is a wide one. It has to be wide to suit all customers. That we do suit is positive.

If there is one thing we do better than another it is in TEAS.

It is our specialty. Years of experience tell us how and where to buy. We use that experience and select the best.

Do you like a good article? Do you value flavor and strength in Tea? If so give us a trial order.

In addition, every line of groceries you can call for we have.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

Last night the meeting in the Y.M.C.A. Hall was addressed in an able manner by the Rev. M. L. Pearson. To-night the address will be given by the Rev. Alex. Bell, subject, "Drifting." A meeting of the executive committee is to be held next Tuesday evening. To-morrow (Wednesday) evening delegates will address the different prayer meetings on Y.M.C.A. work.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dark, dull days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 55 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember Jas. Best's stand, 39 George-st. d111tf

The Victoria-Peterborough Case.

Mr. E. B. Edwards received a telegram this afternoon informing him that judgment had been given in the Court of Appeal in the case of Victoria vs. Peterborough. The dispute, it will be remembered, was over the question whether Peterborough County was liable for part of the maintenance of the Bobcaygeon bridge in connection with Victoria County. Judge Robinson decided a year ago that such was the case, but the Court of Appeal has sustained Peterborough and decided that it is not liable.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

THE EVIDENCE IN GREENFIELD'S PRELIMINARY TRIAL.

Positively Identified and Sworn to by Three Witnesses—The Woman who Dressed his Wounds—To be Tried on the 11th of December.

Men jammed and packed themselves into the police court room this morning to hear the preliminary trial of Greenfield for shooting with intent to kill at Constable Stewart on the 31st August last. Greenfield was brought down from his present home on the hill by Chief Roszel and appeared little changed, unless slightly paler.

Mr. C. W. Sawers appeared for the prisoner and Mr. H. E. Wood, County Attorney, conducted the Crown business. After a few preliminaries the taking of the evidence was proceeded with.

CONSTABLE STEWART'S STORY.

Constable STEWART was the first witness sworn. He said he was on duty on the night of August 30th. He then told his story which has already been published, of how he found the iron shutters of Gough's open and how he got up on a box to look in. He said "I then saw this gentleman come out from behind the counter. He ran down the store towards the front and in doing so he went under the bright burning light and turned and looked straight at me. I called out "I arrest you. If you don't stop I'll shoot you." He ran behind a table of clothing and I did not see him until he was down to the third or fourth table and I was in the act of getting in the window. I saw him look over the top of the goods and I sprang right in. As I struck the floor he turned and fired at me; heard the whizz of the bullet; was about thirty or thirty-three feet away; when he fired he ran towards the door;

I SHOT AT HIM

and pursued after him; he had a revolver in his left hand and as I ran towards him he shot at me a second time; he then threw himself lively through the glass; I followed him through the glass but slipped on glass and fell; next I saw him he was between me and the lamp post at Fairweather's corner; shot at him a second time then, and he shot twice at me; I could hear the balls whizzing as I ran; at the corner I fired a third time and he ran out into the street and looked straight around at me; he ran back to the sidewalk and fired three or four times before I lost sight of him, where it was dark; that was last I saw of him. Stewart then told of the hunting for and finding of the blood tracks. Next time I saw the prisoner was when the Chief brought him here.

MAGISTRATE DUMBLE.—"Do you swear he is the man who was in the shop?"

CONSTABLE STEWART.—"I do; he is the same man who shot at me in Gough's store."

JOSEPH WELSH, of Auburn, was the second witness called and sworn. He had seen a tough-looking seed out near Auburn, but he did not look like the prisoner, he was darker.

In cross examination the witness said the man had no boots on and kept his hands in his pockets, and had asked where Billings lived, but did not go there.

THE WOMAN WHO DRESSED THE WOUNDS

Mrs. MCNARN, the woman in Otonabee who dressed the wounds of a wounded man, was sworn:—She had seen about the burglary in the EVENING REVIEW the night of 31st of August; I had scarcely got home from town when that gentleman (pointing to Greenfield) call at my door; I had seen him about three years ago and knew him as Ferguson; he asked me for a drop of warm water; I gave him warm water, sponge and soap, with which he washed his arm on which there was some dry blood and looked as if glass was in them; two fingers of right hand were cut and the wrist of his other arm; I gave him a cup of tea and then I got some clean clothes and castor oil and bound up his cuts; I asked him if he had any others and he pointed to his knee; pants were torn, stockings were muddy, had coat but no vest; he said he fell off the railway and I heard him say he wished he was dead; the wounds were quite fresh; he was in my home about fifteen minutes and then went up to Mr. McMullen's. The vest found in the store was produced, and witness swore it was the same as the coat the prisoner wore.

SWORN TO AGAIN.

THOS. MCMULLEN was then sworn:—Mrs. McNarn first read it to him out of the REVIEW at her house; after he went home the prisoner came up to his shanty and he bid him come in. The witness corroborated Mrs. McNarn's description of the man. He told me he fell off cars; I said "No, you broke into a store"; he asked me how I knew this, and said he had been three years in penitentiary and had to steal to get money; I asked him why he didn't give himself up, and he showed me a pistol and said he wouldn't be taken alive; the prisoner drew my attention to a buggy tied near by, and went out towards it; could not see whether he got in or not; the prisoner is the same man who was at my house.

CONSTABLE ADAMS being sworn, gave evidence as to the finding of the vest, bundle of goods, and the boots at Gough's store after the burglary.

CHIEF ROSZEL was sworn, and gave evidence of receiving the warrant of reciplas and going to Buffalo to bring him. On the first visit, on the 24th of September, he had seen scars on the prisoner's right hand and left wrist, similar to those described by Mrs. McNarn.

WM. KEMP, of Ashburnham, being sworn, told of seeing a man pass his place in the afternoon of the burglary, who had no boots on, no vest, but had a coat. He would not swear that the prisoner was the man or he did not see his face, but he was a young man about his size.

This was all the evidence in the case.

The MAGISTRATE asked the prisoner if he had anything to say and was answered in the negative.

He then committed the prisoner for trial at the next Court of Competent Jurisdiction. This will probably be the County Court Sessions on December 11th.

College Federation.

A meeting of the Peterborough district of the Methodist Church was held yesterday afternoon in the vestry of the George-st. Church. The Rev. M. L. Pearson, President of the Conference, presided. The first business taken up was the consideration of the report of the superannuation treasurer and the distribution of the amount to be raised by the district to the various circuits and missions. The amounts to be raised by the Peterborough Churches are about the same as last year. The most important business, however, was the consideration of the College Federation question. The Rev. Dr. Burwash, the Chancellor of Victoria University, was present, and addressed the meeting. He stated that the amount allotted to the Bay of Quinte Conference was $35,000, and of that amount the Peterborough district was requested to raise $5,000. The address of the Chancellor was listened to with great attention, after which a resolution was moved by R. Gardner, B. A., of Millbrook, and seconded by the Rev. S. J. Shorey, of Peterborough, agreeing to the acceptance of the $5,000 by the district, and pledging the circuits to do all in their power to raise the amount. The meeting then proceeded to distribute the amount between the circuits and missions. Peterborough and Ashburnham are expected to raise $2,800, Lakefield $500, Millbrook $300, Cavan $350 and the other circuits smaller sums. The meeting was a most harmonious one. All were not agreed upon the wisdom of the scheme. For instance, the President stated that when the subject was before the General Conference, he voted against it, but when the Conference decided that federation was best, he, out of loyalty to the church, ceased opposition. All present felt this was not the time for discussing as to whether federation is best or not. The time for such was past. This was the time for action. Fidelity to the decision of the highest court of the church, should make the whole Methodist church a unit in the accomplishment of the plan. From the tone of the meeting it is evident Peterborough district may be relied on to do its share in that direction. The respected secretary of the district will furnish an exact statement of the amounts alloted to the different circuits, which will be published in the REVIEW in a few days.

Thousands Made Happy.

That's the talk. No half-hearted joliness either. A regular thanksgiving. A bang-up joyousness, a sort of poke-your-finger-in-my-ribs-and-I'll-laugh merriment. A genuine feeling of benefits to be received. A whole cargo of unlooked for surprises. An why? The reason is plain. A straight out, positive opportunity to get something for almost nothing. Word has been passed that Gough Bros., the wonderful cheap men, have commenced their gigantic clearing sale of the Sheppard stock, bought at 60c on the dollar. Along the roads, across the concessions, over the farms and homesteads of the county word has flashed that the biggest, the grandest, the most eclipsing chance to buy well has come at last. Gough Bros. have filled the breach and are now ready to throw out the sailing thousands of the suits of business sagacity in picking up this gigantic plum. Clothing, dry goods, furnishings, blankets, tweeds and hundreds of lines are all to be rushed out. Who will challenge the statement that gough bros., the wonderful cheap men, are the true benefactors of the people? Bring in your money. It will go further and secure you more than you ever in your life heard of. Consider the facts. The stock is a bankrupt one. It must be sold. It has to be sold. Prices are made to suit, and you'll miss the grandest chance of your life if you don't buy now.

STREETS AND BRIDGES.

To the Mayor and Town Council:

GENTLEMEN,—Your Street and Bridge Committee would recommend that a bridge and approaches be built on Townsend-st. at and over the creek, the cost of the same not to exceed $400 and that your committee have power to proceed with the work at once.

In reference to the drain on the west side of Park-st. from Weller-st. to the creek, your Committee would not advise the doing of it this year owing to the lateness of the season, but would favourably recommend it to the Council of next year, all of which is respectfully submitted.

WM. LANGFORD,
Chairman.

This report was also carried.—Councillors Hartley, Douglas, Moore and Yelland objecting.

FIRE WATER AND LIGHT.

To the Mayor and Council:

GENTLEMEN,—Your Fire, Water and Light Committee beg leave to report and recommend that the petition of E. C. Hill et al, A. P. Poussette et al, asking for extension of water mains on Brock and Parkets., be granted and that the placing of the hydrants be left to the Council of 1889. Respectfully submitted.

A. HALL
Chairman.

On motion the report was referred to the Council of next year.

Councillor A. HALL, Chairman of the Charity Committee, also submitted the report of that committee, showing an expenditure for August, September and October of $80 55, divided as follows:—No. 1 Ward, $9; No. 2 Ward, $35.55; No. 4 Ward $36; No. 3 Ward had not reported.

MOTION AFTER MOTION.

Councillor KELLY moved, seconded by Councillor E. H. D. HALL.—That the Fire, Water and Light Committee consider the advisability of placing an electric light at the corner of Park and Charlotte-sts. and report to this Council.—Carried.

Councillor HARTLEY moved, seconded by Councillor LANGFORD.—That John Newton's taxes be remitted.—Carried.

Councillor HARTLEY moved, seconded by Councillor LANGFORD.—That the Street Inspector be instructed to put down a sidewalk on the south side of Wescott-st., in front of some new houses that had been built on that street.

Councillor KELLY objected to the building of the sidewalk as it was not usual, without referring it to the Committee. He wanted to treat all alike, and moved in amendment that the matter be referred to the Street and Bridge Committee to report.

Councillor CAHILL said that a new sidewalk should be put down in front of these new houses, and in front of any other new houses. Some residents could get anything they wanted and he did not see why they should not all be treated alike.

Councillor HARTLEY thought it was only right that the sidewalk should be put down when a young man had the enterprise to build three new houses.

On vote Councillor Kelly's motion carried.

Councillor CAHILL called for the yeas and nays, which resulted, Yeas, 6; nays, 3.

Councillor HARTLEY moved, seconded by Councillor LANGFORD.—That a new sidewalk be put down on Cemetery-st. as far as Mr. Tagney's house.—Referred to Committee with power to act.

Councillor E. H. D. HALL moved, seconded by Councillor KELLY.—That a railing be put along the crib work on Crescent-st. He said that a team would go over the bank some day and the town would be liable for damages.—Referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

Councillor DOUGLAS drew the attention of the Council to the dangerous condition of Rubidge-st., at the north end

Councillor DAVIDSON moved, seconded by Councillor WINCH.—That the Y. M. C. A. taxes be remitted.—Carried.

THE NOMINATIONS.

Councillor MOORE moved, seconded by Councillor YELLAND.—That the town clerk direct the town solicitor, to prepare a by-law for holding a meeting of the ratepayers of the town at the old music hall on the market square at 7.30 o'clock in the evening of the proper day therefor, for the nomination of mayor and councillors for the several wards of the town under section ten of the Municipal Act of 1888.

Councillor MOORE supported his motion with a few remarks. He thought the holding of all the nominations in one place would be a good idea, and at seven o'clock in the evening the ratepayers would be able to attend the meeting. It would be less expensive also.

Councillors Hartley, Langford and Douglas objected to the motion on the grounds that the meeting would be an all night affair, and that the "three or four would-be Mayors" would take up all the time and not give the councilors a chance.

Councilor E. H. D. HALL also objected to it and said No. 1 Ward councilor did not want to talk to No. 2 Ward people.

The motion was lost and the yeas and nays were called for and resulted in six nays and five yeas.

OLD SCHOOL DEBENTURES.

Councilor DAVIDSON, Chairman of Finance, said he had an explanation to make relating to the school debentures. They would all remember, he said, that among many of the members of the school board the idea had got abroad that debentures to the amount of $30,000 had been paid off, but really there was no such debentures. He and the Mayor had gone up to Mr. Pearse's office. With Mr. Pearse they went back to 1873, and he would read the auditor's statement giving the figures:—"In November, 1873, your auditors and treasurer in their special report on the school debt announced at the conclusion that the then debenture debt on the school was $19,400 represented by debentures falling due as follows:—$3,000 in year 1875; $1,400 in year 1876, $1,600 in the year 1877; $2,000 in the year 1878, $2,400 in the year 1879, $3,000 in the year 1880, and $3,400 in the year 1876.—Your auditors have adjusted those several sums in debentures now outstanding."

They came to the conclusion that there were $19,400 school debentures. Members of the School Board said at that time the sinking fund was enough to redeem these, but they were renewed at short dates of five and ten years. At that time, the Councillor said, the credit of the town was not as good as it was now, and some debentures bringing six per cent. sold at 82. There was one per cent. credit at that time, and the discount on the debentures more than wiped out this. Several times since $8,000 and $6,000 worth of new debentures were issued, which altogether amounted to $33,000. At present there stood $29,500 worth of debentures and there were $3,000 in the commissioner's hands on the sinking fund account.

SUNDRY MATTERS.

The MAYOR brought up the case of Mr. Bogue who had been assessed for Nicholls Hospital when he was a Roman Catholic.—Referred to Finance Committee.

Councill MOORE asked why Mr. Pearse was so long in reporting as auditor of the Town books.

Town Clerk Macdonald stated that he understood that Mr. Pearse was ready to report.

Councillor MOORE called the Mayor's attention to the gas lamps in the north end of the town not being lighted.

Councillor CAHILL asked how it was that a number of houses in the southern part of the town were not numbered.

Chairman LANGFORD stated that not more than fifty houses in town are not numbered. They were missed in cases only and would be given numbers.

Mr. JOHN MCNAUGHTON was allowed to address the Council in reference to the gas lamps not being lighted. The by-law, he held, said the lamps were to be kept burning until twelve o'clock and he wanted attention paid to the matter.

Councillor CAHILL moved, seconded by Councillor DAVIDSON,—That the accounts of the Times Printing Company, Mr. R. E. Wood and Mr. W. Salisbury be paid.—Carried.

PIGEON CREEK BRIDGE.

The matter of the Pigeon Creek bridge was then discussed.

Councillor HARTLEY did not think traffic should be stopped from this part of the county.

Councillor MOORE moved, seconded by Councillor DOUGLAS.—That the question of the reopening of the Pigeon Lake bridge be referred to the Joint Committee with power to expend $75, if the County Council expend a like sum on repairs.

The motion was carried.

$500 MORE MONEY.

Councillor CAHILL moved, seconded by Councillor WINCH.—That the Town Treasurer be authorized to pay the Street and Bridge pay sheets out of any money that may be in his hands, that the Council indemnify him in 30 days, and that the proper seal be attached to this resolution to give it the effect of a by-law.

Councillor YELLAND and DAVIDSON objected to the motion, and favored carrying over a clear sheet.

Councillor CAHILL did not wish to have to carry a deficit over, but the work ordered could not be done without money, and he did not think it fair to those ratepayers who had been left to the last when the money was spent.

After some discussion the motion was put and carried.

The Council then adjourned for three weeks.

St. Peter's Literary Society.

The second debate of the St. Peter's Literary Society was held last evening in the Murray-st. shool house. In the unavoidable absence of Dr. Brennan, President of the Association, Mr. J. D. McIlmoyle occupied the chair and preformed the duties of critic and judge in a highly efficient manner. The subject for debate was "Resolved, that Robt. E. Lee was a Greater General that Ulysses S. Grant." Mr. C. E. Roach opened for the affirmative in a brilliant and lengthy speech, showing he had given the subject good consideration. The leader of the negative, Mr. Hackett, not being present, Mr. John O'Meara was called by the chairman to fill his place. He was followed by Dr. E. McGrath for the affirmative, who handled the subject in a masterly manner. After an ably speech on the negative side by Mr. J. P. Marsfield; Mr. Roach replied at length to the arguments advanced by the negative side, after which the chairman proceeded to sum up the debate, finally deciding that the affirmative had made out their side of the case. A large number of ladies and gentlemen were present and manifested great interest in the proceedings. Several solos were rendered during the course of the evening, and after a recitation by Mr. John O'Meara, "King Robert of Sicily," the meeting was adjourned. It was decided to hold the next debate in the C. M. B. A. hall, Simcoe-st., on next Monday evening. The subject for the next debate is "Resolved, that a Republician form of Government is Preferable to a Monarchy." Messrs, John O'Meara and J. D. McIlmoyle take the affirmative, and Dr. McGrath and Mr. C. E. Roach, the negative.

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you you may depend upon this for certain.

THE CROWNING BARGAINS OF THE YEAR!
All Other Clothing Sales to be Thrown in the Shade.
AN IMPORTANT BUSINESS CHANGE IN THE CITY CLOTHING STORE.
H. LeBRUN,
After having been favored with a large and Prosperous Business during the past fifteen years, has decided to dispose of a share of his business, in order to give the faithful boys a chance. Therefore about the beginning of the New Year, an important change will take in the Business Management of the City Clothing Store, when Mr. JOSEPH PICARD,—who has been in my employ ever since commencing business—will be taken into the firm, and become an active partner of the same.

MAMMOTH PREPARATION SALE!
"Now comes the Tug of War." Previous to the above change taking place, I intend to place the whole of my Extensive Stock of Clothing, Cloths, Gents' Furnishings, &c., amounting to
$27,000 worth of Sterling Goods
at the disposal of the people of the Town and County of Peterborough, and will commence a Sweeping Preparatory Sale, Unequaled for Good Value and Big Dividends,
ON SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17.

In the meantime, the Goods will be all gone over, and re-marked down, including everything in the Store, from cellar to garret. Nothing will be reserved—all MUST go, no matter what the Sacrifice. No tricks during this Sale.

The Goods are all Clean and New, Fashionable and Seasonable—bought originally at Closest Prices, for Cash, in the Best Canadian Markets; besides a large proportion has been imported direct from the Old Country. The Goods do not contain any Bankrupt Stocks, or culls from slaughter houses, but have been manufactured for this season's trade.

In addition to the above regular Stock, I have just made a Splendid purchase of $4,000 worth of Ready-made Clothing, which was offered to me by the manufacturer, at a very Half their ACTUAL VALUE, and are bound to go off like hot cakes.

The Customers of the City Clothing Store are aware that our advertisements are always a simple statement of facts. No Brag, No Bluster, No Extravagant and Misleading Talk. When we advertise Positive Bargains, the Public are sure to get them.

Wholesale Prices to be Completely "Snowed Under"—Bankrupt Stocks to get a Rest.

HERE ARE A FEW OF THE PRICES THAT WILL TELL THEIR OWN STORY:

Van Deckermann's Bargain.

By M. THEED.

At the door of the room I paused and listened. I could hear nothing, and I was about to open it—when, as I laid my hand upon it, I was arrested by the sound of a low, prolonged laugh proceeding from within. It was succeeded by a sharp cry behind me, and an exclamation in his native tongue, full of piteousness and horror, from Jan. If he could, the poor old fellow would have held me back, but I had not persisted so far to shrink from what lay before me at last, and I turned the handle without more ado and went in.

The arrangement of the furniture had been undisturbed since my brief occupation of the room—with one exception; the old arm chair lay literally upon its back, its dingy damask covering hanging about it in rags and tatters, while at a little distance from it, seated on the ground, smoothing out some crumpled pieces of paper, and chattering and chuckling to himself as he did so, in a manner that made my blood creep as I listened to him, was the object of my search. He looked up as we went in, but he did not cease from his occupation, and for some seconds the silence was unbroken, save by himself. My companions stood huddled together at the door, too much appalled to speak, and I was myself in little better case. By way of attracting his attention I drew the curtain from across the further window and let the light full in upon him. He blinked and shifted his seat somewhat, as if to escape it, but he took no further notice. "Mr. Van Deckermann," I said. "Don't you know it is past breakfast time and you are keeping me waiting?"

But the words conveyed no meaning to him, no more meaning to him than his own wordless, incoherent jabbering did to us.

"It is no good, master," Jan said in a broken voice. "He'll have nothing more to say to any one in this world. He has come at the truth after all these years, and he has got his death blow with it. Where did he find them, think you?"

He had dropped on his knees by the side of his master, and he now held up for my inspection what I now perceived to be a bank note. Van Deckermann still engaged in his monotonous occupation of smoothing out and fondling its fellows, took no notice of the action. The note was yellow with age, and involuntarily, as the strange experiences of the night I had myself spent in the room recurred to my mind, I turned my attention upon the chair which had met with such ungentle usage.

It was even more mutilated than it appeared at first sight; the double webbing, of which the seat was composed, having been partly hacked with a pen knife, partly torn apart, nor had the rifling of this strange repository been so complete as to leave any doubt as to the purpose to which it had been turned.

As I turned away from it, sickened at a discovery which showed me only too plainly, the connection between my own narrative to the unhappy being before me and the fate which had overtaken him, the woman Minchin broke into tears and lamentations.

"If I had only left it where it was! If I had let things take their chance! If I had only seen the end of it!"

It was not without considerable difficulty we got my poor friend home, and the verdict pronounced upon him by the medical man, whom we lost no time in calling in, was no more favorable than I anticipated. His reason had sustained what they had little doubt would prove a fatal shock, and the sudden violent derangement of the nervous system threatened his life. The genuine pity and distress of the old servants spoke well for them and for their master, and while he lay, as he did lie, for many days between life and death, there sprang up between them and myself a certain mutual respect and confidence.

It was from Lisa I heard as much as there was to tell in the way of explanation of what I had myself seen, and of the catastrophe which had befallen Van Deckermann.

According to her, he had been confronted, as I had been the previous night, by the apparition of his father, and had arrived thus at last in his own proper person at the secret, the elucidation of which had been for years the object nearest to his heart.

It appeared that in telling us—my wife and myself—the story of his early life, he had stopped short at what was at once the saddest and the most striking part of it. It was not so much in the bare fact of his cousin's death, but in the terrible circumstances accompanying it, there had lain the overpowering anguish of which we had been permitted a glimpse. Old Van Deckermann, growing more and more miserly and suspicious of all around him as the years went on, had at last, after emptying the house of every servant it contained by a succession of similar charges, accused his niece of the theft of a large sum of money, and had positively gone the length, in what would appear to have been an access of insanity, of giving her into custody. The evidence was insufficient, but the disappearance of the money was proved beyond a doubt, and the fact that she had only the day before her arrest posted a letter to Andrew Van Deckermann at the Cape seemed to give a certain coloring to the theory advanced by his father that the robbery had been committed on his behalf. Had the truth as to the young man's position been known, it must have been seen at once how untenable was the argument, but his cousin in her strangely isolated life had made no confidences, and the poor thing had not the strength of mind to wait for that redress of wrong which time must inevitably have brought her. Whether open or closed to her, within her uncle's doors it was impossible that she should enter again, and she found a refuge from her unmerited shame and sorrow where so many had found it before her, and have found it since—in the river!

The old man never recovered the shock of her death, though he persisted to the end in his belief in her guilt, and he died miserably only two days before his son's return. For a long time past he had become strange in his ways, and had turned night into day, wandering about the house at all hours, so that it was scarcely surprising that, left to itself as it was after his death, the place should have come by the uncanny reputation of which its master had spoken.

Of one thing I was left in no doubt, although I never had it from his own lips, and that was the superstitious horror with which its owner himself regarded the house; but that horror was dominated, as the event proved, by a still stronger influence. That his father's uneasy spirit haunted the scene of his cruelty and injustice he was fully persuaded, and he had confided to Lisa more than once his further conviction that by some means yet—natural or supernatural—the charge brought against the poor creature who had fallen a victim to it would be cleared up. He had employed me as his tool, and, hopeless of my following up the clew I had found, had worked himself up to the required pitch of nervous heaven only knows in what state of mind, to surely as strange an encounter as ever man contemplated.

What he saw can only be matter of surmise; he lived for a year or more, all his faculties restored to him, but minus any memory, and quite gracious and genial.

My own belief is that the missing notes, the hiding place of which I have no moral doubt was discovered to him that night, must have been secreted there by the elder Van Deckermann himself, under the influence of somnambulism, though that he was a somnambulist I have no evidence to show. All I know is that the face I saw was the face of one.

At Mr. Van Deckermann's death it was found that by a will, made some months before his fatal visit to it, he had bequeathed the Cedars, with other more desirable property, to me. To the best of my belief, its supernatural history had come to an end with the catastrophe of which this is the record, but the terms on which it was left to me were happily unconditional, and a terrace of small house, given up to the most prosaic associations, occupies the site of it.

THE END.

RUMORED ASSASSINATION.

Gov. Guy of the Chickasaw Nation said to Have Been Killed.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 13.—A special to the Post-Dispatch from Gainesville, Tex., says: News was received here this morning from Fishonimgo, capital of the Chickasaw Nation, that Governor Guy was assassinated Saturday night. Advices from Chickasaw Nation are that serious trouble is brewing between the followers of Governor Guy and Byrd, his opponent in the late election. The report of the assassination of Governor Guy is not confirmed.

Charged With Intimidation.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 13.—The trial of Dr. H. C. Hill, Evan Mellinger, Colonel Beckham, Frank Davis and Caleb Glascoe, charged with intimidating Government witnesses, commenced yesterday. The men were said to be members of an organization similar to the White Caps of Indiana, and the case promises some interesting revelations.

The Expensive Parnell Commission.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Mr. W. H. Smith, the Government leader, said in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon that an extra estimate would be presented to meet the expenses of the Parnell Commission. He also said that application had been made to the Imperial Government for access to certain documents and that leave to examine these documents would be granted to the counsel of both The Times and Parnellites under certain conditions.

Italy Wishes Peace with France.

ROME, Nov. 13.—Signor Crispi, Minister of Foreign affairs, has assured the French charge d'affaires that Italy would extend a cordial welcome to M. Masiana, the new ambassador of France. He also informed him that it was the desire of the Italian Government to remove all causes of misunderstanding that exist between Italy and France.

A Petrolia Firebug Confesses.

PETROLIA, Nov. 13.—On Saturday morning at 11 o'clock fire broke out in Dr. Loughead's barn. The flames were confined to the barn and after about an hour's hard work extinguished. Harry Bolingbroke, a discharged employe of the doctor's, was arrested four hours later on suspicion of having started the blaze. He made a full confession and said that he did it to get even with Dr. Loughead for discharging him. Yesterday Bolingbroke was committed for trial.

Two Young Kingstonians Missing.

KINGSTON, Nov. 13.—On Saturday two sons of Rev. Mr. Burns, Lionel, aged 20, and Victor, aged 16, started off in a canoe on a shooting excursion. Not having returned home Saturday night, a search was instituted on Sunday afternoon. Their boat was found on Point Frederick, but no tidings of either of the young men was obtained. It is feared they are drowned.

Mr. Chamberlain at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, who is to marry Miss Endicott the latter part of this week, arrived in Washington last evening. He was met at the station by W. C. Endicott, jr., and was driven direct to the residence of his prospective bride. Afterwards he went to the [illegible] where he will stop until his

ST. NICHOLAS FOR '89.

An All-Around-the-World Year.

THIS world-renowned magazine "for young people and their elders" is to have a great programme for the new volume beginning with November, 1888. The editor, Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, calls it "an all-around-the-world year." Of course the bulk of the contents, as heretofore, will relate to American subjects; but young America is always glad to learn what goes on in the world outside, and these stories and descriptive papers are not of the dry geographical order, and they will be strikingly illustrated. We have space here for only a few prominent announcements.

America.

"Little Saint Elizabeth," by Mrs. Burnett, author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy"; "The Routine of the Republic, how the Government is carried on"; "College Athletics"; "Amateur Photography"; "Boys and the National Guard"; "The Girls' Crusade"; Indian Stories, School Stories, etc. "The Bells of St. Anne," a serial about Canada. South American stories—"A Railroad in the Clouds"; "Indians of the Amazon," by Mrs. Frank H. Stockton, etc.

Europe.

Life in Norway, by H. H. Boyesen; "Holland and the Dutch," by Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge; "The Queen's Navy," by Lieut. F. H. Smith, R. N.; "The Winchester School"; "English Railway Trains"; "Ferdinand de Lesseps"; German, Italian (art) and Russian papers, etc., etc.

Asia.

Yan Phou Lee writes of "Boys and Girls in China," and there is a description of "Some of John Chinaman's Inventions." Mrs. Holman Hunt describes "Home Life in the East"; papers on Siam, Japan and other countries.

Africa.

"The White Pasha," by Noah Brooks, a sketch of Henry M. Stanley; How an American Family Lived in Egypt"; "Sailor-Boy Dromios" a story of the siege of Alexandria.

Australia.

A series of interesting articles imparting much novel and amusing information concerning the history, the animal and plant life, etc., of a wonderful land.

The Arctic Regions and the Sea.

"How we made the Farthest North," by Gen A. W. Greely, of the Greely Expedition; "A Dash with Dogs for Life or Death," by Lieut. Schwatka; "A Modern Middy"; "A Submarine Ramble," etc., etc.

Subscription price, $3.00 a year; 25 cents a number. Subscriptions are received by booksellers and newsdealers everywhere, or by the publishers. Remit by P. O. money-order, Bank Cheque, draft, or registered letter. The new volume begins with November. December is the Great Christmas Number.

THE CENTURY CO. 33 East 17th-St, N. Y.

"This prince of juveniles knits together the children of the Anglo Saxon world."—CHRISTIAN LEADER, ENGLAND.

THE CROWNING BARGAINS OF THE YEAR!

All Other Clothing Sales to be Thrown in the Shade.

AN IMPORTANT BUSINESS CHANGE IN THE CITY CLOTHING STORE.

H. LeBRUN,

After having been favored with a large and Prosperous Business during the past fifteen years, has decided to dispose of a share of his business, in order to give the faithful boys a chance. Therefore about the beginning of the New Year, an important change will take in the Business Management of the City Clothing Store, when Mr. JOSEPH PICARD,—who has been in my employ ever since commencing business—will be taken into the firm, and become an active partner of the same.

MAMMOTH PREPARATION SALE!

"Now comes the Tug of War." Previous to the above change taking place, I intend to place the whole of my Extensive Stock of Clothing, Cloths, Gents' Furnishings, &c., amounting to

$27,000 worth of Sterling Goods

at the disposal of the people of the Town and County of Peterborough, and will commence a Sweeping Preparatory Sale, Unequaled for Good Value and Big Dividends,

ON SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17.

In the meantime, the Goods will be all gone over and re-marked down, including everything in the Store, from cellar to garret. Nothing will be reserved—all MUST go, no matter what the Sacrfice. No tricks during this Sale.

The Goods are all Clean and New, Fashionable and Seasonable—bought originally at Closest Prices, for Cash, in the Best Canadian Markets; besides a large proportion has been imported direct from the Old Country. The Goods do not contain any Bankrupt Stocks, or culls from slaughter houses, but have been manufactured for this season's trade.

In addition to the above regular Stock, I have just made a Splendid purchase of $4,000 worth of Ready-made Clothing, which was offered to me by the manufacturer, at a very Low Figure for Cash. These Goods will be sold along with the rest of the Stock at about Half their ACTUAL VALUE, and are bound to go off like hot cakes.

The Customers of the City Clothing Store are aware that our advertisements are always a simple statement of facts. No Brag, No Bluster, No Extravagant and Misleading Talk. When we advertise Positive Bargains, the Public are sure to get them.

Wholesale Prices to be Completely "Snowed Under"—Bankrupt Stocks to get a Rest

HERE ARE A FEW OF THE PRICES THAT WILL TELL THEIR OWN STORY:

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2.00, 2.50 and 3.00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it take an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's. We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

STANLEY ON ANNEXATION

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL MAKES A STIRRING SPEECH.

His Excellency's Reply to an Address from the St. Jean Baptiste Society—The Advantages of our Government.

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—The officers of St. Jean Baptiste Society waited on His Excellency in the Eastern Block this morning and presented an address. In the course of his reply, which was in French, His Excellency, after alluding to the devotion of the French-Canadians to the British flag, as in 1775 and 1812, touched on the question of annexation. He said:

"Your loyalty, as you say, has been subject to many trials and you have overcome those temptations of which you spoke just now in a manner which you can recall to day with just pride. In this, the nineteenth century, the same temptations do not fail to present themselves, although under a changed aspect. For instance, people talk of annexation and of various other cries known to the political world.

"The monarchical constitution gives us complete autonomy without obliging us every four years to be subject to those violent oscillations of politics like those which just now have disturbed the business of our neighbors in the United States, and under the external form of a republic it would be impossible to find a more complete expression of the sentiments and of the wishes of citizens than you find to-day with us.

"Do not therefore, gentlemen, listen to those who would endeavor to disturb you. We know very well the object of such intrigue. Let us remain tranquil. Do not let it be said that the Dominion of Canada mistrusted itself.

"Without doubt the Confederation, like other states, will have her difficulties but she will come well out of them. Strong in the wisdom and the energy of her sons, preserving always what is best in the traditions of our two great nations, pressing forward always in all that concerns liberty and civilization, she will surmount her difficulties and she will overcome her obstacles."

MANITOBA MATTERS.

The Debate on the Address—The News paper Charges Reported Not Proven.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 13.—The Legislature got down to work this afternoon and Mr. Colclough, seconded by Mr. Jerome, moved the address in reply to the speech from the throne.

Mr. Norquay offered no amendment but criticised the Government pretty strongly.

Premier Greenway made a forcible reply and after several members had spoken the debate was adjourned.

Replying to a question the Premier said he hoped to be able to announce the policy of the Government respecting the Hudson Bay Railway aid act before the close of the session.

The Commission to enquire into the charges brought by The Call and The Free Press against the members of the Government came to an end to-day, owing to the non-appearance of witnesses to prove the charges. Counsel for the newspapers stated they were prepared to substantiate the charges they had made, but not those prepared by the Government for the Commission to investigate. Counsel for the Government contended this was a mere subterfuge and the Judge decided he would report the charges not proven.

WHITBY, Nov. 13.—John Ferguson, license inspector for South Ontario, worked up a big list of whisky sellers for Magistrate Horne's court here yesterday. Chas Lynde, Jr., storekeeper at Audley, was fined £50; Walter Hodgson, hotelkeeper at Raglan, a second offence, $100; John A Dean of Oshawa, who has rented an hotel at Columbus, trial adjourned for a week for further evidence; George Brown, bar tender at the Oriental Hotel, Port Perry, $50 Thomas Doncaster, owner of the same third offence, 60 days in jail.

She Worked the Missionary Dodge.

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 13.—A young lady of respectable parents here has got herself into a rather embarrassing predicament lately. She has been in the habit of collecting ostensibly for a missionary society, but in reality for herself. Her excuse when questioned about the matter, was that she did not receive sufficient pin money to clothe her as stylishly as the other girls in her set and she decided upon the course she took to increase her exchequer. She has left the city.

A BOMB AT COBOURG.

THE ANTI-FEDERATIONISTS CARRY THE DAY.

Victoria to Remain Independent—A Senate Vote of 21 Against 14 so Decides—Elements of Intense Excitement.

COBOURG, Nov. 13.—The Senate of Victoria University, composed of the Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, General Superintendent, professors of the faculties, members of the Board of Regents and representatives of affiliated colleges and of the alumni met in Victoria College to-day to consider the question of surrendering the charter and entering into Federation. The result of the meeting was a great victory for the anti-federationists who believe in maintaining an efficient independent university.

Chancellor Burwash took the chair at 11 o'clock. The members of the Senate present were: William Kerr, LL.D., Q.C., Vice-Chancellor; Rev. A. Carman, D.D., General Superintendent; Professor John Wilson, LL.D., Professor Alfred Reynar, M.A., Professor A. R. Bain, LL.D., Dr. Powell, Dr. Rosebrugh, Professor Eugene Haanel, Ph.D., F.R.S.C., Professor E. J. Badgley, LL.D., Professor Arthur P. Coleman, Ph.D., Professor L. E. Horning, M.A., B. M. Britton, M.A., Q.C., M. Lavell, M.D., Rev. E. B. Ryckman, D.D., Judge Dean, M.A., Rev. W. S. Griffin, D.D., J. J. Maclaren, LL.D., Q.C., Rev. E. H. Dewart, D.D., Rev. A. Sutherland, D.D., Hon. W. E. Sanford, Rev. John Potts, D.D., Rev. S. G. Stone, D.D., Rev. J. C. Antliff, D.D., Rev. A. Burns, LL.D., James Mills, M.A., Rev. W. R. Parker, D.D., S. F. Lazier, LL.B., H. C. McMullen, M.A., Rev. D. G. Sutherland, LL.B., B.D., Rev. James Allen, M.A., W. S. Douney, M.A., M.D., C. M. Gould, M.D., H. Hough, M.A., W. R. Riddell, B.Sc., LL.D., D. C. McHenry, M.A., G. N. Bigelow, M.A., LL.B., Rev. Hugh Johnston, M.A., B.D.

A letter was read from Hon Geo. W. Ross, Minister of Education, guaranteeing certain statutory legislation asked for by the Board of Regents. The debate opened on the following motion concurring in University Federation, which was moved by James Mills, M.A., principal of the Agricultural College, and seconded by Rev. Dr. Griffin, Guelph:

Whereas, the joint body consisting of the Board of Regents and the Advisory Committee, by virtue of the powers vested in it by the General Conference at a recent meeting in the city of Toronto, resolved that the proper steps be forthwith taken to place Victoria University in federation with the Provincial University by giving the required notice to the Provincial Secretary provided we have assurance that by special Act of the Provincial Legislature, or otherwise, Victoria University shall continue to exercise her powers to confer degrees as heretofore until removal to Toronto, and that all such graduates be included in the provisions of sections 7 and 11 of the Federation Act as graduates of Victoria University:

Whereas, the Board of Regents subsequently accepted this decision of the joint body and as a matter of courtesy asked the Senate to concur with this action, and whereas the conditions set forth in the resolution of the joint body as presented by the committee of the Board of Regents have been satisfactorily met on all points by the Minister of Education;

Therefore, resolved, that this Senate concurs in the action of the Joint Committee and the Board of Regents in forthwith giving the required statutory notice as to the entrance of Victoria University into federation with the Provincial University as soon as the desired legislation shall be obtained.

It was moved in amendment by H. Hough, M.A., Toronto, seconded by Dr. Gould of Colborne:

Whereas this Senate has been asked to concur in a resolution of the Board of Regents whereby it is proposed to surrender in the near future our degree-conferring power, and to notify the Minister of Education that we are ready to enter into federation with the Provincial University, and whereas it has been declared that the reference of this question to the Senate is a matter of courtesy and not of right, and whereas it is important that the relative powers of the Board and the Senate touching this matter should be clearly ascertained:

Therefore, be it resolved, first, that in our judgment the rights and powers vested by charter and statutes in the Senate of Victoria University are such that the Senate alone has authority to surrender the degree-conferring power and that any act of the Board of Regents providing for such surrender is ultra vires of that body.

Resolved, second, that in view of the fact that the earnest appeals of the past two years for subscriptions in aid of Federation have resulted in securing less than half the amount considered necessary at the last General Conference, showing that the sympathy of the church at large is not with the movement, we consider it highly inexpedient to imperil the very existence of our University by relinquishing the degree-conferring power at the present time. Therefore we decline to concur in the recommendation of the Board of Regents until the amount subscribed is sufficient to enable the entrance of Victoria into Federation financially safe;

Resolved, third, that a committee, consisting of the members of the Senate who are of the legal profession be appointed to consider the legal aspects of this question and to take such steps as may be necessary to protect the rights of the Senate in regard to the surrender of the degree-conferring power, and moreover as we are for the first time invited to a discussion of the question of Federation itself this Senate records its disapproval of a measure which will lower the rank of our institution, which will deprive the Methodist Church of its long-enjoyed advantage of an independent university at a time when it is well able to sustain it, which places beyond its power the carrying out of its long-cherished traditional policy of maintaining an oversight of the training of its students in the higher and more perilous branches of the arts, and which being altogether unlike the federation of all of the colleges of the country first proposed we believe to be calculated only to lead to the absorption of Victoria without securing that essential alization of our educational system which was considered so desirable, and we direct our registrar to transmit to the Board of Regents a copy of this resolution with our urgent request that they take no steps farther committing the church and the University to this measure until they have secured the amount contemplated by the General Conference as necessary to safety and efficiency in entering upon our work in our proposed new relationship.

Principal Mills was granted leave to amend his motion by striking the words, "as a matter of courtesy" out of his motion.

Dr. Stone moved to add the following words as a rider to Principal Mills' motion:

"And the sum of $100,000 in available funds are in the hands of the Bursar of Victoria College, with such further subscriptions as the Board of Regents may deem necessary and adequate to the erection of the necessary buildings, and such income of an endowment as they may deem essential to the success of our operations as a federating college."

The Chancellor ruled Dr. Stone's rider out of order. The vote was taken amid intense excitement at 5.30 o'clock, when Mr. Hough's amendment was carried on the following devision:

Yeas—Kerr, Lavell, Maclaren, Alexander Sutherland, Sanford, Burns, Lazier, McMullen, D. G. Sutherland, Allan, Douney, Gould, Hough, Riddell, Bigelow, McHenry, Reynar, Bain, Horning, Powell, Rosebrugh—21.

Nays—Carman, Dean, Britton, Ryckman, Griffin, Dewart, Potts, Stone, Antliff, Mills, Parker, Johnston, Badgley, Wallace—14.

The announcement of the result, a majority of seven for non-concurrence, was received with deafening cheers, the students singing:

On the old Ontario's strand
Victoria evermore shall stand.

Four of the "nays" said they were prepared to vote against Mr. Mills' motion; neither motion nor amendment suited them.

Mayor Clarke of Cobourg was introduced. He announced that the citizens of Cobourg had authorized him, in addition to the town's grant of $25,000 and 20 acres of land, to offer a sum of $1500 a year for five years toward the endowment of a chair in Victoria University.

Mr. H. A. Massey of Toronto was also presented to the meeting, and said that he would give from $100,000 to $250,000 towards the maintenance of an independent university at Cobourg, provided his bequest was supplemented by a similar sum. These offers were received with tremendous cheers.

The Senate adjourned and the Board of Regents was convened, when, on motion of Dr. Sutherland, it was resolved, in view of the action of the Senate, to defer further action indefinitely.

There was great excitement in town when the result of the meeting became known. This puts an entirely new phase on the Federation scheme, the outcome of which is fraught with much anxiety to the Methodists throughout the country.

THE SAULT STE. MARIE CANAL.

Hugh and John Ryan the Successful Tenderers for the Lock.

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—Although the award of the contract for the lock at Sault Ste. Marie has not been officially announced it is generally understood that the successful tenderers are Hugh and John Ryan, and that they will have associated with them Mr. M. J. Haney of Watertown, N.Y.

No information has been received by the Department of Militia with reference to the rumored disbandment of the 7th regiment of London and it is most probable that if any move in that direction is made it will be strongly discountenanced at headquarters.

A lively time is expected at Rideau Hall during the Christmas holidays, as Lord Stanley proposes having a gathering of all the members of his family.

The hearing of the application to cancel the Edison patents, held by the Edison Electric Light Company of Montreal, for incandescent electric lighting in Canada was commenced before Mr. Richard Pope, Deputy Commissioner of Patents, this afternoon. The petitioners are the Royal Electric Company and associated with them are the Sawyer Manufacturing Company, the United States Electric Company, the Westinghouse Company and the Thomson-Houston Company of Boston, Mass. Cancellation of patent is applied for on the ground that the patentee failed to comply with the patent regulations which provide that the article can not be imported one year after the patent is granted, and also failure to begin the manufacture within two years after the issue of the patent. The petitioners among other things represent that the Edison Company violated the law after due time had elapsed in importing lamps whole and in parts. Mr. R. D. McGibbon appears for petitioners and D. McMay, Q.C., for respondents. A number of witnesses, including several experts, are to be examined and the case will probably take three or four days.

A TRAIN WRECKER ARRESTED.

Henry Romp, Charged with a Heinous Offence, Confesses His Guilt.

GODERICH, Nov. 13.—Henry P. Romp, an engine wiper of the Grand Trunk Railway, was arrested here to-day charged with having placed the obstructions on the track that so nearly derailed the 7.30 train on Saturday evening last. The case was worked up by Grand Trunk Railway detective Charles Spence of Toronto and Constable Yule of Goderich.

Romp, who does not appear to be perfectly sane, wrote a confession of having perpetrated the deed but assigns no cause for his action.

The engine struck the obstruction about half a mile south of the station and had it not been that Engineer Green had it well under control would have jumped the track and been precipitated over a steep embankment which rises from the river side.

After writing his confession the prisoner undertook to plead not guilty, but Mayor Seager after hearing the evidence committed him to stand his trial.

THE CORNWALL CANAL.

Navigation to be Opened To-morrow—Not to be Closed Sundays.

CORNWALL, Nov. 13.—Water will be let into the canal to-day and the dredge will start work to-morrow to dredge out the dam. It is expected navigation will be opened Thursday, providing the bank does not go out once more, which is not likely now.

About 2000 cords of stone has been dumped into the hole besides the large amount of earth.

The mills will not be allowed to use water until Monday and the canal will be kept open for navigation Sundays as well as week days for the remainder of the season.

A MYSTERY OF THE THAMES.

The Body of a Well-Dressed Woman Taken out of the River Yesterday.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The body of a well-dressed woman was taken out of the Thames this morning. There were marks on the body that gave rise to a suspicion that the woman had been murdered, but it is possible that she committed suicide and that the marks were received by contact with objects in the water. The police searched the casual wards of the various police stations in the hope of getting some clue to the murderer, but they were unsuccessful. They arrested a man who had a bowie knife in his possession, but there is no reason to believe that he was instrumental in the woman's death.

Windsor's St. Andrew's Society.

WINDSOR, Nov. 13.—These officers of St. Andrew's Society for the ensuing year have been elected: President, Thomas Gow; vice-president, G. Williamson; secretary, Wm. Kingsley; treasurer, George Bartlet; piper major, J. Rattray; chaplain, Rev. John Gray.

Damages for Seduction.

WALLACETOWN, Nov. 12.—Macdougall & Robertson of St. Thomas, solicitors for Tinsmith W. Cusack of Wallacetown, has entered an action against Furniture Dealer A. Cameron of Wallacetown for $2,000 damages, for the seduction of his daughter, Annie, a young woman 20 years of age, and formerly employed as telegraph operator here.

Heir to a Fortune.

WALLACEBURG, Nov. 13.—Wm. Hall, second son of Col. Hall, an old resident of Walpole, near here, has fallen heir to a fortune, which is supposed to be an annual income of £8,000 from land, and a personalty of some $200,000. The estate is near Mansfield, Nottingham, England.

Vandalism in St. Catharines.

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 13.—Some miscreant mutilated the case of one of the two street clocks which Mr. Jackson placed outside of his place of business for the accommodation of the public. The pendulum of the other clock was taken away.

Three More Rochester Sire Victims.

ROCHESTER, Nov. 13.—Three bodies were recovered from the ruins of the Lantern works this afternoon. There were all crushed and bruised beyond recognition.

On Jack the Ripper's Track.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The police are confident that they are on the right track in their search for the Whitechapel murderer. Two persons have been found who saw the man who accompanied the last victim to her room on the night she was murdered. Their descriptions of the man tally in every respect.

Belleville Condemns the G. T. Time Table.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 13.—At the meeting of the City Council last night a resolution was passed condemning the present time table of the Grand Trunk morning mail from the west and asking the restoration of the old service.

THIS MAY BE THE REASON

WHY GEN. WARREN HANDED IN HIS RESIGNATION.

Lord Randolph Churchill's Trenchant Speech in the House of Commons in Connection with Estimates.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Matthews, Home Secretary, stated that the resignation of Sir Charles Warren as Chief of the Metropolitan Police was solely due to his refusal to submit to the rule which forbids officials to publicly criticize Government service. Gen. Warren in announcing his resignation, said Mr. Matthews wrote that had he known that such rule existed he would never have accepted the post.

In the debate on the estimates in connection with the Supreme Court of Judicature Mr. L. J. Jennings (Con.) moved to reduce the appropriation by a considerable sum.

Lord Randolph Churchill approved the proposed reduction. He said the money squandered on court officials was a public scandal and a national disgrace amounting to malversation of the public money on a large scale. The new Departments of Justice recently added to the machinery consisted of nothing but lawyers. It was absolute brigandage on the taxpayers. Before the Government asked them to vote this money, let them obtain a pledge that these visible evils would receive earnest and immediate attention.

Attorney-General Webster deprecated Lord Randolph Churchill's excessive criticism as calculated to excite the imagination of the country. The Government neither winked at favoritism in the matter of appointments nor showed indifference toward the effecting of reductions, but it could not alter salaries immediately. He promised that attention would be paid to the recommendations of the committee.

Mr. Jennings' motion to reduce the estimates was rejected, 148 to 129.

The Oaths Bill.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The Oaths Bill passed its second reading in the House of Lords to-day without division.

The Parnell Commission.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—At the meeting of the Parnell Commission to-day Presiding Justice Hannen intimated that the court's decision in the matter of the disclosure of document was that all the documents which The Times possessed, including even those which The Times' solicitor thought spurious, should be disclosed in order to assist in the search for the truth.

Sir Charles Russell, counsel for the Parnellites, stated that he had received several threatening letters.

Justice Hannen remarked that he also and probably others engaged in the case had received similar letters. The intimidation of witnesses, he said, was so certain that precautions must be taken not to allow the premature disclosure of their names.

The taking of evidence in relation to outrages was then proceeded with and James Mannion, one of the witnesses called, declared himself both a Fenian and a member of the National League. He said he had taken part in several outrages and had gone on moonlight expeditions. He knew no moonlighter who was not also a member of the League.

Peter Flaherty, a farmer of Galway, testified that he was a moonlighter and was not ashamed to acknowledge it. He was perfectly ready to act with the moonlighters again.

Edward Flannigan said he had been in America since 1879. He had been present at numerous League meetings at Pittsburg and New York, at which Stephen J. Meany had presided. He said that Meany had collected funds for the purpose of buying firearms for use in Ireland.

The court then adjourned.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY K. OF L.

Opening Session at Indianapolis—T. B. Barry Not Permitted to Speak.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 13.—The General Assembly of the Knights of Labor met here to-day. The reports of the Committee on Credentials was first considered. No great fight was made over the report, everything being decided practically as recommended by the committee.

Mr. T. B. Barry was in the hall when the session opened. He endeavored to speak but General Master Workman Powderly told him that having been expelled he had no right there and must go. He again tried, as he said, to say a word of explanation, but was compelled to leave the hall.

Penn Wouldn't Apologize to Uncle Sam.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The Department of State does not anticipate any serious results from the complications between this country and Peru growing out of the seizure of the building in which is situated the United States Consular agency at Molendo, Peru. The Consular records were not disturbed. As the action appeared to be a technical discourtesy towards the United States an apology was requested, but was refused by the Peruvian Government on the ground that it had done nothing to warrant an apology. The State Department is waiting complete details of the affair before proceeding further, but as already stated anticipates no trouble.

This May Beat Carlisle.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 14.—An examination of the ballots in Boone, Campbell, Kenton and Pendleton Counties in the 6th Kentucky district shows that 7502 perforated tickets were cast for John G. Carlisle, the present Speaker of the House. His majority in the entire district was 6051, so that if no further search is made there are enough ballots to defeat him, if it shall be declared upon contest that these perforated ballots are void.

A Philadelphia Murder.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14.—Peter Kratchman yesterday shot and killed Mrs. Matilda Hellerman, aged 38, and then surrendered to the police. The only explanation the murderer gave was that his wife had died about three weeks ago and that she had been ruined and driven to her death by Mrs. Hellerman.

Declined with Scorn.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Steve Brodie, the bridge jumper, has declined the challenge of Thomas Barron of Albany to jump together from the Niagara bridge. To jump with him, he thinks, Barron should qualify himself by leaping from the Brooklyn and Poughkeepsie bridges.

Another M.P. Jailed.

DUBLIN, Nov. 14.—J. D. Sheehan, M.P., who was arrested recently for advocating the plan of campaign, has been arrested again and sentenced to one month's imprisonment for refusing to give bail for his good behavior.

The Late Mr. Tilden's Wines and Whisky.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—The wine cellar of the late Samuel J. Tilden was invaded by an auctioneer and crowds of purchasers today; 520 bottles of Steinberger brought from $3.50 to $9 per bottle. Some double O Madeira brought $3.50 and some blue grass whisky, 40 years old, brought $11.50 per gallon.

A Scarlet Fever Epidemic.

JAMESTOWN, DAK., Nov. 14.—An epidemic of scarlet fever is raging here. The churches, Sunday schools and public schools have been ordered closed. Several deaths have already occurred.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1888.

EAST NORTHUMBERLAND.

MR. COCHRANE and Dr. Mallory are again candidates for the representation of East Northumberland in the House of Commons. Mr. Cochrane received the support of a majority of the electors on the occasion of the last contest and he should be againg elected, as he represents the opposition to the Liberal party fads that would place the Dominion in a position dependent upon the United States.

The people of East Northumberland are in a position to understand the inconsistency of the Liberal party. On the last occasion Dr. Mallory ran as a commercial unionist—as a supporter of the policy advocated by Mr. Wiman and Prof. Smith—and among those who on the platform tried to convince the electors that such a policy would benefit Canada were Sir Richard Cartwright and Prof. Goldwin Smith. The whole force of the Liberal party then tried to pursuade East Northumberland that Canada was helpless and would be hopeless without this particular blessing. It was vehemently denied then that there was anything disloyal in commercial union or that it would lead to annexation.

Since then Prof. Smith has repeated his desire for annexation, and Mr. Wiman, the leader of the movement, has spoken favorably of political union even in Canada. They were both as much in favor of political union before as they are now, but they withheld that with a view to deceiving the people. Since then the Globe has admitted that commercial union would be disloyal, and the Liberal party has given a new name to their policy, again with a view to deceive.

They reject what they advocated before; they acknowledge that the former policy was disloyal and should not be adopted, and they present the same policy under the new name of unrestricted reciprocity.

Before the last general election the Liberal party declared that, if given office, it would retain protection and that the National Policy was a dead issue. After the general election, when East Northumberland was opened, it shifted from that position and commercial union was its platform. Now it comes forward with another change, and it no longer urges commercial union, by that name, but says it has another new policy. How can the people have any confidence in the political integrity or the stability of such a party?

One of the charges made against the Cleveland administration in the recent contest across the lines was that it favored reciprocity with Canada. Those who made that charge will soon control every branch of the United States government. Mr. Cleveland himself turned upon Canada with the retaliation message, and when Sir Charles Tupper offered to settle the fisheries difficulty on the basis of freerer commercial relations the offer was rejected. In the face of this, and in view of the bitter attacks made upon Canada across the lines during the past few months, would it be wisdom for Canada to again sue the States for that which it has so often refused, with the plea that the Dominion could not exist without it? Such a course would be base, and would be national suicide. Senator Sherman, the leader in the Senate of the party now returned to power, is opposed even to commercial union, but advocates the annexation of Canada. Is this a time, then, for the Dominion to put those in office and power who would place this country in a position depend upon the United States—those who would carry out a policy that would exclude commerce with Great Britain, that would injure Canadian manufacturers and the home market, and that would hand over the markets of this country to the United States? Commercial union or unrestricted reciprocity practically means a combination with the United States against Great Britain and one that would not be beneficial to Canada. East Northumberland rejected such a policy at the last election and it should do so again.

AGAIN SUCCESSFUL.

A LETTER from the counsel for the county in Toronto, states that judgment in the case of Victoria vs. Peterborough was given by Judge Burton and was assented to by Judge Osler. The nutshell of the judgment is that the road is not such a diviation as to bring it within the statute and make Peterborough liable for the maintenance of the bridge.

The county is to be congratulated on its success in recent legal cases, as the courts have shown that the positions it took in regard to the important questions involved were right. The County Solicitor, Mr. E. B. Edwards, is also to be congratulate and commended for the successful manner in which he has managed these important cases.

The County of Victoria may not rest satisfied with this judgement. If not, there would be two courses open to it—to appeal to a higher court or to try to get a municipal act amendment through the House that would be sufficient for their purpose this time.

"The Ontario Government, ever alive to the educational interests of the country," is the way a Liberal paper puts it. Of course. Did it not notice and point out the absence of carpet and door mats at the school here?

IN GENERAL NERVOUS PROSTRATION. Dr. A. G. Bissell, Detroit, Mich., says: "I have used it in a severe case of general nervous prostration, and am very much pleased with the result. I shall prescribe it hereafter in similar cases with a great deal of confidence."

A NEW YORK SHOP GIRL.

Her Day's Record of Cheerfulness, Patience and Sweet Temper.

A woman who had occasion to purchase household furnishings there lately tells this story to her friends: "I went down into a basement where they kept these things and I wanted more things than I could begin to enumerate, even to myself, all the way from a rolling pin to a refrigerator—ranging through butter plates, stove lids and waste baskets. Well, I just put myself into the hands of a nice girl with dark hair and a kind countenance, who looked so delightfully capable and self reliant that I confided to her I wanted to furnish a flat and didn't half know what I ought to purchase. 'You see,' I said, 'I never furnished a house before, and it's so confusing to have to buy pillows and flat irons and kitchen clocks. They always seemed just to be there like the walls of the house or the sunlight, and I get all mixed up when I try to remember what people ought to have when they begin life in one of those dreadfully empty new flats. I know I ought to buy a pepper box, and a washboard, and curtain poles, but what else?'—

"That girl had a kind heart, and was too clever and sensible for anything. She gave me one comprehensive glance, and went and fetched a printed list that was made especially for young housekeepers, and has on it the name of everything they could by any possibility be likely to want for the dining room, kitchen and laundry. Then she sat down on one pantry step ladder and I on another, and she read over each thing and checked it off if I thought I wanted it. After that she took me to the front of the shop, got out a huge clothes basket and began to show me samples of each thing we had marked off—seventy in all there were. She knew exactly where each and every one of those seventy things were kept and the prices of all three grades of every one.

"As soon as I would make my selection she would put it in the basket, and in one hour I had filled the whole list, had the bill and paid it. Then she told me where to get everything else I needed and just what it cost and what counter I could find it at and the best sort of goods to buy for my purpose. As far as house furnishing goods were concerned, I found she carried every single detail of that vast establishment in her head. I didn't question her concerning clothes, but I am firmly convinced she could have dressed me from top to toe and then sent me to the book counter and selected the literature best suited to the caliber of my intellect. She had been on her feet since 8 o'clock, working hard all the while, pulling down goods, carrying them about, making up people's minds for them, being continually crowded and jostled and asked four hundred thousand questions on as many different subjects, and yet at 3 o'clock, when I left her, she was gentle, civil, obliging and ready to do anything asked of her, with apparently as much interest in getting the things for my house as I had myself. I doubt if there are many women in the upper world of New York who could show such a day's record of cheerfulness, patience and sweet temper."—New York World.

Across the Mexican Boundary.

The last place at which our train drew up, that proved by far the most interesting, was Tia Juana, part of which lies in the United States and part in Mexico. As we all trooped across the border we were cautioned not to get tangled up in the lines; several of us stood up on the flat, square monument that marks the dividing line, and far away could be seen the tall, white marble mogument that marks more majestically the national limit.

As we bent our heads under the flag of Mexico we found ourselves in an utterly strange and novel environment. Behind us were American frame buildings, the American himself, with all his prosaic, pushing, attributes; before us spread the low, white somnolent adobes, groups of cattle beneath awnings of verdant boughs, and the swarthy Mexican under broad sombrero, booted and spurred, riding like mad on his Mexican mustang, with lasso hurled after some recreant beast, or reclining with a dolce far niente air under an arbor of green branches—a picturesque, posing figure, with scarlet kerchief hiding the glitter of a dirk, while he indolently quaffed his beloved pulque.

The place was made up of a series of poor little struggling adobes, and the people were all evidently of the poorest class; but there were on every hand elements of the picturesque. From the poorest, most crumbling, least habitable home, pretty dark eyed Mexican girls in picturesque blues and reds, smiled out upon us, and everywhere were bowers of green, sometimes with a horse tethered beneath, sometimes with groups of dark visaged senoras in gay gowns tucked up above their well turned ankles, bending over their washtubs. I think it was one of the prettiest pictures I ever saw—a crowd of these handsome women, in their bright costumes, gossiping and laughing—at us perhaps—as they leaned over their foaming suds, against the background of a summer sky. Surely an artist might find in such grouping a bit of color to delight his soul.—Harriet Harper in New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Mosby's Plan of Campaign.

"My purpose," said Mosby, "was to weaken the armies invading Virginia by harassing their rear. As a line is only as strong as its weakest point, it was necessary for it to be stronger than I was at every point to resist my attacks." He tells in these words what he sought to accomplish, and how he proposed to accomplish it.

"I endeavored, as far as I was able, to diminish the aggressive power of the Army of the Potomac, by compelling it to keep a large force on the defensive. I assailed its rear, for there was its most vulnerable point. My men had no camps. If they had gone into camp they would soon have all been captured. They would scatter for safety, and gather at my call like Children of the Mist. A blow would be struck at a weak or unguarded point, and then a quick retreat. The alarm would spread through the sleeping camp, the long roll would be beaten or the bugle would sound to horse, there would be mounting in hot haste and a rapid pursuit. But the partisans generally got off with their prey. The pursuers were striking at an invisible foe. I often sent small squads at night to attack and run in the pickets along a line of several miles. Of course, these alarms were very annoying, for no human being knows how sweet sleep is but a soldier. I wanted to use and consume the northern cavalry in hard work. I have often thought that their fierce hostility to me was more on account of the sleep I made them lose than the number we killed and captured. It has always been a wonder with people how I managed to collect my men after dispersing them. The true secret was I 's it was a fascinating life, and its attractions far more than counterbalanced its hardships and dangers. They had no camp duty to do, which, however necessary, is disgusting to soldiers of high spirit. To put them to such routine work is like hitching a race horse to a plow."—Globe-Democrat Book Review.

A suburban Boston poet has discovered that the order of sequence in courtship is first to get on good terms with the girl; second, with the dog, and, third, with the parents.—Washington Critic.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria

ADVERTISING

When Newspapers first began to be published in London, an editor took opportunity one day to say that a certain man desired a certain something—no matter what. That was the invention of advertising, though the inventor may not have known what he had found. From that time to this people have made more or less use of the papers to publish their wants, and tradesmen their wares; but we doubt very much whether any real improvement upon the first advertisement has ever been made. It was a frank statement that somebody wanted something and what it was that he wanted. Doubtless he got it. We want something. Want to sell goods. Good goods too: The best of the best in Groceries. The range of stock is a wide one. It has to be wide to suit all customers. That we do suit is positive.

If there is one thing we do better than another it is in TEAS.

It is our specialty. Years of experience tell us how and where to buy. We use that experience and select the best.

Do you like a good article? Do you value flavor and strength in Tea? If so give us a trial order.

In addition, every line of groceries you can call for we have.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dark, dull days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 45 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember Jas. Best's stand, 39 George-st. d111tf

Another Railway.

A charter will be applied for at the next session of the Provincial Legislature for a railway to be built from Port Hope to Pontypool. An competent engineer from Toronto, the Port Hope Times says, has made an inspection of the route a the road is proposed to take, and has made a report in writing as to the probably cost thereof. The average cost per mile is placed at $18,-557, not including rolling stock, which generally amounts to $3,000 per mile. Of course the great question will be, where is the $20,000 per mile to come from? The company claim that they are in a position to look after the financial aspect of the prospectus, and if their claim pans out as practical as they estimate it will, why we can be looked for another road very soon.

THANKSGIVING TO-MORROW.

The Events of the Day as They Are Expected to Take Place.

To-morrow being the day which the Government had set aside upon which the people of the Dominion are to return thanks to the Divine Being for His goodness and bounty of the past year, the day will be a holiday throughout the length and breadth of the land. Every person, no matter who he may be, has surely something for which he can say he is truly thankful, and if not, a poor and miserable wretch he must be. In Peterborough the holiday has been seized upon as a favorable date for quite a number of events.

In the morning a union thanksgiving service will be held in the George-st. Methodist Church, by the two Presbyterian, two Methodist and the Baptist congregations, at eleven o'clock. This union service was an experiment last year and proved an excellent idea and the meeting a great success. It will be addressed by the local divines and a service of song will be rendered.

At 2 o'clock in the morning the 57th Battalion will march from the drill shed to the Riverside Park where they will be inspected by Col. Strausbenzie, D.A.G. The battalion in now in first-class condition and will undoubtedly make a good showing under the inspecting eye. Last night there were about two hundred and fifty men out on parade at the drill shed, and everything will be shining—buttons polished, rifles clean, belts pipeclayed and accoutrements brightened—to give the men a soldierly appearance.

In the evening a grand military concert will be given, under the patronage of Col. J. Z. Rogers and officers of the 57th battalion, which for excellency of programme affords an opportunity to musicians and lovers of music which should be taken advantage of by all.

The annual Thanksgiving dinner of the Charlotte-st. Church Endeavor Society will be held from six to eight, after which a programme of interest has been arranged.

The Literary Guild of St. Luke's Church Ashburnham, meets to-morrow night when impromptu speeches will be the feature of evening.

The St. Andrew's Society hold their annual meeting in the evening at Collector Cumming's office on Simcoe-st.

Bazaar and Entertainment.

A sale of useful and ornamental articles will take place in St. John's Church Sunday School Room commencing on Monday, 26th inst., and will continue every afternoon during the week until Friday, 30th inst. Proceeds of sale in aid of the Hazel Brae branch of Dr. Barnardo's Home. d114eod

A Plentitude of Patterns.

Mrs. E. E. Ross has secured the sole agency for Peterborough for McCall's Bazaar Patterns, which are said by New York authorities to be the best issued. Over $800 worth are now in stock and for sale by Mrs. Ross. All sizes and many styles. Ladies should call and see them.

Conservatory of Music.

The Toronto Conservatory of Music has entered upon its 2nd year of successful history under the musical direction of Mr. Edward Fisher in enlarged quarters at the corner of Yonge-st. and Wilton Avenue and with a largely increased attendance. A "Quarterly" concert given on Saturday last by the pupils and professors was attended by an audience of over 2,000 persons. A free prospectus may be had on written application.

Beating Bankrupt Stock Prices.

Remember, remember the 17th of Nov., the date of commencing the big clearing sale of clothing at LeBrun's. An important business change necessitating sweeping out the stock Everything must go by 1st January. Gigantic bargains the rule. Goods sold at less than bankrupt prices. Read the large advertisement and see how you can save money. All hands busy this week marking down prices on all goods. 3d113

The C.P.R. Siding.

Work on the C.P.R. siding to Hazlitt's mill is progressing rapidly. Men are framing the trestle work for the southern gap and are getting along with the job nicely. The laying of the embankment or grade along the island is now almost complete and the end of the week will probably see the embankment built as far as Hunter-st. The track has been started out along the Dickson race and men are engaged levelling it up.

A Poetical Postcard.

Mr. R. J. Kidd, 365 George-st., received the following on a post card through the post office:—

R. Kidd's a kid that gives a kid
More than a kid can do,
That's small enough to get inside
A boot that's numbered two,
Awarded as a prize in ad.
Published in REVIEW.
Yours respectfully,
A BONANZA! A. KID.

Additional Facilities.

The machinery all through Wm. Hamilton's foundry stood idle and silent to-day, the shops have shut down for repairs, and will remain so for the balance of the week. The addition or wing has just been completed, and the machinery will be placed in it this week. The building is 166x34 feet and was built so as to give more room for the machinery at present in the shops, and also to allow of the introduction of some new machinery. The building is one story and is well lighted by windows every three or four feet. Some of the machinery from the old shop will be placed in it as well as a large new lathe and drill, the former of which has arrived already. The works will start up next week under more favourable circumstances for the turning out of first class work, and more facilities to the workmen.

A New Firm.

A new name will be added on the first of the year to an old established, well known and reliable business house. Mr. LeBrun, of the "City Clothing Store," has formed a partnrship with Mr. Joseph Picard, who has been connected with the business for a long time and is well and favorably known. The change takes place on the first of the year, and in the meantime Mr. LeBrun will offer his stock of clothing at greatly reduced prices, as will be seen by his announcement in another column. The stock has been bought in the regular way, is made up of the best lines purchased in the best markets, is not a bankrupt stock hastily caught at without examination, and from the extensive and comprehensive assortment one cannot fail to be suited. The clearing sale will be begun on Nov. 17th, and unexcelled opportunities for splendid bargains will be offered.

Lodges of Legal Lights.

Some weeks ago when there were changes being made in several of the local law firms the REVIEW published some descriptions of a few of the handsome and cosy offices of some of the legal lights. Since that there has been a new shingle hung out in town, which guides a person into a handsome, comfortable and well furnished suit of offices as any barrister-at-law or any other professional gentleman could wish to occupy. The shingle referred to hangs in front of the new Cox block just north of the post office on Water-st. and bears the name of the firm of Dennistoun & Stevenson. The offices are elegantly furnished, and consist of three apartments. On entering you are in the general business office, which is fitted up with a handsome counter and desks. From this you can enter into the private office of Mr. Dennistoun, which is partitioned off in the front of the building by a handsome polished hardwood and frosted glass partition. The room is nicely carpeted, well-lighted and is a very cosy office. In the rear is Mr. Stevenson's private apartments, and this is also fitted up with a fine desk, book case, etc., and the floor carpeted. Opening off from this is a small room which will be fitted up as a wash room, and where is a Goldie & McCulloch vault. The woodwork and wainscotting all through the offices is finished in light and dark stain and looks extremely well. The whole suite is heated by hot water, lighted with gas and is, indeed, handsome.

The new offices of Messrs. Hall & Stratton on Hunter-st., over Muckleston's hardware store, are not yet ready for occupation, but will be shortly.

Mr. Frank Bell, Division Court Clerk, will occupy the office directly over those of Messrs. Dennistoun & Stevenson.

WHISPERS WHISPERED.

Who are the Five Prospective Mayoralty Candidates?

On the motion of Councillor Moore in reference to having the nominations for Mayor and Councillors held at one time at one place in the evening there were quite a few jokes dropped and hints thrown out in reference to the coming mayoralty contest.

Councillor Laogford objected to the motion as he said he understood there would be three would-be Mayors to speak and they would each have to have an hour and the Councillors would have no show to get a word in.

Councillor Douglas agreed with this and said he had heard of five would-bes also.

Councillor Yelland went them one better and announced that he was told there would be five, and in such case His Worship would take two hours to make give his account of his stewardship and the Councillors would then most surely have no chance until next morning.

Councillor Moore suggested that they might adjourn until the next night until all had spoken.

These whispers of three and five candidates should very soon become announcements, and let the public know who are going to break a lance in the municipal arena for the Mayor's chair this election. Rumor has several Councillors in the field, or about the same thing, but the trigger has not been pulled and the gun fired. Let there be a contest by all means, for without a good Mayoralty contest the elections are tame.

Accusations were thrown out Monday night that some of the Councillors were warming their seats for next year and it is quite probable all of them—except the would-be's—will be in the field for another year.

A Change.

We understand that Mr. Walter Stocker has purchased Mr. E. C. Hill's bill posting business and has succeeded Mr. Hill in that business. Mr. Hill is one of the best known bill posters in the province and and has been very successful and given satisfaction. We have no doubt that Mr. Stocker, whose office is at 449 George-st., will satisfy his patrons by careful attention and good work.

"Y." Meeting.

A meeting of the Y.W.C.T.U. was held on Monday evening. The session opened with devotional exercises, the President, Miss L. Sanderson, in the chair. Scripture reading—subject, "Temperance as a fruit of the spirit." Eleven members responded to the roll call. The minutes of last meeting were read and approved. The Treasurer's report showed a paid up membership of thirty-three, eleven of whom are honorary. A committee was appointed who are responsible for next Saturday's "At Home." In addition to the usual attractions of parlor games and refreshment, a literary and musical programme is to be provided consisting of Irish readings and songs, with instrumental selections. Particulars regarding the entertainment to be published in Saturday's issue of the local papers.

FIRE AT LAKEFIELD.

Boothe's Woollen Mill Destroyed—Building and Stock a Total Loss.

On Tuesday morning the woollen mill in Lakefield occupied by Mr. Booth, took fire, and despite the strenous exertions of a large number of those who gathered to render assistance, was entirely consumed. The fire is supposed to have originated in the picker room, and when first observed the flames had taken a strong hold of the building. Being of wood the fire rapidly spread. The building was owned by Messrs. R & G. Strickland, valued at $1,500, on which there was no insurance. The plant and stock was the property of Mr. Boothe, valued at $5,000 with an insurance of $1,000.

During the progress of the fire a piece of hot glass from one of the windows fell and struck Mr. Jas. Campbell on the wrist, inflicting a severe cut.

It is not yet decided that the mill will be rebuilt at once.

Mechanics' Institute Classes.

Classes in Mechanical and Freehand Drawing will commence shortly under Mr. A. Macallum, draughtsman for the Hamilton Manufacturing Co. Intending pupils should hand their names to the Librarian at once.

All Ready.

Those in charge of the arrangements for the assembly this evening in the Opera House, have had the hall beautifully decorated for the occasion with bunting, flags and mottoes. The Fire Brigade orchestra has been engaged and supper will be served at the Grand Central Hotel. The preparations are all complete, and with good music and a large attendance, which is assured, there can be no doubt that the assembly will be a success.

A Needed Work Well Done.

For about a week past Mr. Thos. Irwin has had men working on the alterations which were being made in the fire hall stables, and to-night will find the work completed in a most satisfactory manner and the horses once more stalled in their accustomed places. The foul stench of which there has been so much complaint as hanging in and around the town buildings will now be completely gone or very nearly so, as there is no doubt that the stables were the prime cause of the foul odors. The fluids from the stables soaked through the plank floor and dropped into the cellar beneath, which had become a regular filth hole, but this has all been remedied. Mr. Irwin's first action was to have men go into the cellar and dig out six inches of the earthen floor, which has been filled in with gas lime which gives off a strong and pure amonia odor. The old floor was taken out and a brick one substituted. The blocks used are made of a composition of which iron slag is the principal ingredient. The front feet of the horses will stand on tan bark so that the floor will not be too dry for the animals' feet, as where the hind feet stand is always damp. An iron drain runs along behind the stalls, which drains all the moisture to a pipe in the centre through which it is conducted to the sewer, thus leaving no chance of such smells being prevalent as have been heretofore. There are two single and one double stall and the stable is now a perfect model.

Correspondence of the Review.

SEQUEL OF HALLOWE'EN.—On Monday, the 5th inst., a number of the boys of the village had to appear, at the Town Hall, before Magistrate Crabtree, to answer for their doings on Hallowe'en, and conclusive evidence having been taken against the following, viz:—Masters Robt. McIlmoyle, Robt. Hurst, Herbert Edgar, Sam. Kelly, A. W. Switzer, Chas. Quinn, Jos. Allison, Richard Pearson, J. D. Montgomery, each was lightly fined. The highest fine was $2 and costs, and although the fines were light, we hope it will be a warning to the boys not to play any mean tricks, or so wantonly destroy property, though they do feel hilarious on Hallowe'en night.

THE MANSE.—The Presbyterian Manse here is being veneered with brick, which was badly needed, and which will greatly add to the comfort and appearance of it.

HIGH WATER AGAIN.—The continual rains of late are bringing the water to its usual height in the canal here.

DEER HUNTING.—Dr. Bonnell and his party came home last week from their deer hunt, bringing with them seven nice deer. Three were fine large ones, and all were in good condition.

WEATHER NOTES.—October has been a cold, stormy and wet month. Although no actually severe storm occured, still it rained on 13 days to the depth of 2 inches and 14-100 of an inch, and again fulfilling the old proverb that there is never an October without snow, but it almost caught us napping this time, falling on the 2nd and 1 inch on the 3rd, with some dashes on the 17th. We had hail on the 16th and 18th, with thunder, but only once rain. With that on the evening of the 31st we had no rain. There was some very severe frost during the month On the 11th the 18th and 21st the thermometer went down to 20 degrees. The highest temperature was on the 26th and 28th, rising to 55 degrees at sunset, leaving the mean temperature of the month at 38 20-31 degrees, being a small average for October.—Auroral lights were seen on the 21st, the 22nd and 30th. The first wild geese going south was on the afternoon of the 18th. The following are the different points from which the wind was blowing at sunrise during the month, namely:—South-east, 3 days; north, 5 days; west, 2 days; south-west, 7 days; north-west, 6 days; east, 4 days; north-east, 2 days, and south, 2 days.

A HEAVY STORM.—From 8 a. m. on Thursday morning until 7 a. m. on Friday, water fell to the depth of 1¾ inches in wet snow and rain.

SPRINGVILLE.

Correspondence of the Review.

RESIGNATION.—Mr. H. Strike, who has occupied the position of teacher in the Union School of Cavan and Monaghan, almost without interruption for the last ten years, has sent in his resignation to the school trustees. Too much cannot be said for the teacher who conscientiously labors to give the young a good start in education and lift them to the immense vantage ground of practical knowledge. This is what Mr. Strike has laboured to do with no small ability and consequent success, and no doubt if his decision to retire is irrevocably fixed he will leave accompanied with the regret and well wishes of the entire school section.

SABBATH SCHOOLS.—The Springville Presbyterian and Town Hall Union Sabbath Schools have closed for the winter season. At the closing exercises of each rewards were given the children. The attendance at each was good during the summer season.

THE HOME OF GOOD STOCK.—Springville is fast gaining a most enviable reputation for good stock. Mr. R. D. Dundas has lately had the tails of his large stable of Clyde stallions trimmed off after the fashion of Auld Lang Syne, and a visitor to the establishment, after having been shown round by Sandy, might easily imagine himself in the land of the canny Scotchman. Cattle, sheep, pigs, fanciest strains, are all bred in this vicinity and farming operations carried on with an expertness nowhere excelled.

THE MARKET REPORTS.

Cheese.

In cheese there has been no apparent change and although the undertone is firm with holders confident, there is no animation in the market. The New York state markets were no worse. The ruling at Utica was 9¾c, the same as last week, with the range 9¾c@10¾c, but as the skimmer is operating in that section the low prices probably represent skimmed goods. At Buffalo on the other hand holders asked 11c and 10½c was paid for 1,000 boxes. The cable remained at 59s. A year ago prices were 11¼c@11¾c, with the cable at 59s.

British Live Stock Markets.

The improvement in the British cattle trade noted a week ago, says the Montreal Gazette, has been well sustained under light receipts from Canada and the United States, in fact the supply at to-day's market was small, as the Lake Huron, with 105 head missed the market, which reduced the offering to that extent. The supplies from elsewhere, however, have been full, and there was no actual scarcity of stock. There has been a fairly steady trade at late prices and to-day a steady demand prevailed. At Liverpool prime Canadian steers were at 12c, good choice at 11½c, poor to medium at 10½c, and inferior and bulls at 8c @ 9¾c. In the sheep trade ranche stock has had a poor sale and our cables report low prices for such, which will prove unsatisfactory to shippers. Besh ranche stock were at 13c, while best Canadian sheep made 13c, with the lower grades of each in proportion; and the general supply fair.

Personal.

Capt. Thomas Burke, of the London military school, is in town on a week's furlough.

Mrs. P. C. Parker and family left this afternoon for England via the steamer Sarnia. Mrs. Parker will spend the winter in England and make her home chiefly at "Poplar Grove," Rossendale, the residence of Mr. W. Parker, the father of the Rev. P. C. Parker.

At the Murray-st. Church.

To-morrow afternoon a prayer and conference will be held at the Murray-st. Baptist Church at 4 o'clock. At 5.30 a tea and oyster supper. Immediately after there will be a meeting for fraternal intercourse, with speeches by ministers and laymen. The members of the church and congregation are expected to make a thanksgiving offering for church purposes.

Flattering Reports.

The high standard and unique character of the McGibbeny family's entertainment is being heralded in a manner that cannot fail but convince a reader of the worthiness of their musical treat. Here is another letter from a gentleman whose name is familiar and whose word can be relied on:—

LINDSAY, Nov. 14th, 1888.

Mr. T. E. Bradburn:

DEAR SIR,—The entertainment given here last Thursday by the McGibney Family, was one of the most successful ever given in our town. Every seat in the house was sold before the evening of the entertainment and, notwithstanding a down pour of rain, over a hundred additional seats had to be provided. The entertainment itself is unique and is delightful to the youngster as well as to the most fastidious in musical taste, and to be produced by the members of one family is simply a phenomenon. I hope you may have a full house in Peterborough, as it is worthy of the best patronage.

Yours,
W. FLAVELLE.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Phip. Spohn Committed for Trial—Six Months Added to a Sentence.

TORONTO, Nov. 14.—Phip. Spohn, the well known sport, was yesterday committed for trial on the charge of keeping and maintaining a gambling house.

An additional six months was tacked on to the sentence of Lou Cornish, a colored gentleman who escaped from a bailiff in August last when being conveyed to the Central Prison to do a two years' term.

Louis H. Slonaker, who lit out from Sioux City to Toronto some weeks ago with funds belonging to the Chicago and Northwestern Railway, was tried yesterday at Sioux City for embezzlement and sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Anderson Bros., retail grocers on Queen-street east, assigned yesterday morning with liabilities of about $7000. The assets, however, will cover them.

The examination for solicitors was in progress yesterday at Osgoods Hall. That for barristers takes place to-day.

At the Pavilion last night the Royal Grenadiers had a gala time, the occasion being the reception of the old colors of the regiment from the ladies of Toronto, who had re-decorated them, and the presentation of the prizes won at the regimental rifle match. Gen. Sir Fred Middleton occupied a seat on the platform.

The Provincial Association of Public and High School trustees convened here yesterday. A number of interesting papers were read and the annual address was read by President J. E. Farewell of Whitby. The election of officers resulted as follows: President—Judge Bell of Chatham; Vice-Presidents—Rev. J. Somerville, Owen Sound; George Young, M. A., of Trenton; Secretary—John P. Dow, Whitby; (re-elected); Treasurer—J. I. McCracken, Ottawa, (re-elected.)

Yesterday afternoon Robert Hengham was engaged in the works of Inglis & Hunter moving a cylinder which weighed over five tons. The chain by which the mass was suspended broke and caught Hengham's right foot, crushing it terribly. The injured man was taken to the Hospital, and it is hoped the foot may be saved.

At the Civil Service examinations there are 77 ambitious young men writing.

Mr. W. A. Werrett, of the law firm of Bull & Werrett, whose so nearly lost his life by being accidentally poisoned in a drug store the other day is reported to be out of danger.

Uncle Sam Robbed of $1300.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Some crooked business has been discovered in connection with the transfer of silver dollars from the mint at New Orleans to Washington, for storage in the large new vault in the court yard of the treasury building, which has resulted in the loss of $1500. The silver is shipped by Adams' Express Company and the loss will fall upon it unless it can be proved that the packages containing the money were tampered with before they came into its possession. The money is shipped in wooden boxes containing two canvass bags with $1000 in each bag. The boxes are carefully sealed before they leave the mint for delivery to the express company and carefully guarded from that time until their delivery at the Treasury Department. The shipments average $500,000 a day, and the silver already placed in the vault amounts to over $30,000,000. The shipments from New Orleans were begun only a few weeks ago and it is in these that the discrepancy occurred. As far as known only two boxes were tampered with. In one of them the entire contents of one bag were removed and replaced with bird shot. In the other box only about half the contents of one of the bags was taken and shot and pieces of lead were substituted.

Trying to Catch up with the C. P. R.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—The railway lines running between here and Council Bluffs have served notice on each other that they will not be bound by the present "time" agreement after Jan. 1, and that notice is said to be the forerunner of a revolution in the running time of trains between the Northern Pacific and the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe for through trains west from Chicago, and the Union Pacific will meet this by arranging with one of the Missouri River lines for through trains between here and Ogden. With the advent of fast trains west of Chicago it is certain that one of them will be made a solid limited train from New York to San Francisco, thus carrying out the European-Asiatic express project which has for a year or more been periodically agitated.

Baron Savage was not Dismissed.

STUTTGART, Nov. 14.—The Stuttgart Gazette makes a denial of the statement that Dr. Woodcock, otherwise Baron Savage, one of the American favorites of the King of Wurtemburg, was dismissed by the King. It says he gave up his office of his own free will. The King, it says, will always bear in mind the services rendered to him by Dr. Woodcock during his illness in 1884. The paper also declared it to be untrue that Dr. Woodcock took part in spiritualistic experiments.

Debaun to be Extradited.

MONTREAL, Nov. 13.—Charles T. Debaun the defaulting assistant cashier of the National Park Bank of New York, whose deficit amounted to $95,000, was brought before Judge Church this afternoon to hear judgment on the writ of habeas corpus taken out by his counsel for his release. The judgment was an elaborate one and fully upheld that of Magistrate Rioux of Sherbrooke, who ordered the prisoner to be extradited.

The Trouble in the Chickasaw Nation.

GAINESVILLE, Tex., Nov. 13.—Gov. Guy was not killed Saturday night as reported, the would-be assassin's bullet missing him. Guy's adherents, well-armed, have been ordered to surround the capital tonight at 12 o'clock when if Byrd and his friends do not surrender a war of extermination will begin.

23 of the Nantes' Crew Drowned.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Another survivor from the steamer Nantes, before reported sunk in the English Channel by colliding with the German ship Theodore Ruger, has landed at Liverpool and reported that 23 of the crew of the Nantes were drowned.

THE HEBREW BUTCHER.

His Methods Not So Humane as Those of the Gentile—Details.

The method of butchering employed by Hebrews, while perhaps not so humane as that of the Christian butcher, has its advantages. Bullocks are not hit on the head with a heavy hammer to stun them. The striking process, Hebrew butchers claim, is seldom effective, and the head of the suffering steer is often terribly mangled before its throat is cut. Hebrews tie the animal's hind legs to a rope attached to a windlass, by which it is hoisted in the air, its head just touching the floor. The steer's neck is now in position for the cutter's (by which name Hebrew butchers are called) knife. The knife used for the purpose is twenty inches long and sharp as a razor. In the operation the animal's head is, by one long, quick stroke, nearly severed from its body. The butchery is not pleasant to look upon, and when once seen by a nervous person is not soon forgotten. Owing to its elevation the blood gushes from the animal's throat in a vast stream. The Hebrew religion requires that cattle shall be butchered in this way, so that every drop of blood is allowed to run from the body.

The butchery of sheep is even to my mind more cruel. The white fleeced animals are huddled in a corner awaiting the knife of the executioner. The latter's assistants seize one by the hind legs, holding its throat in position for the knife. Out of twenty sheep I saw butchered the first was feebly kicking when its twentieth brother was being prepared for his fate. Around me were struggling animals, some in the throes of death, others fighting more furiously than their fellows, but all showing life that must soon cease. The scene was not one to lighten the heart of a man in sympathy with the work of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The artist who did all the damage assured me that the sheep suffered no pain. The knife, he said, was so sharp that death was instantaneous, and if the animals did struggle it was due purely to muscular contraction.

The bullock slaughterer, Jonathan Goldschmidt, was good enough to talk with me about his art, for such it undoubtedly is.

"I have been in this business for over twenty years," he began, "and I learned my trade of an experienced Hebrew butcher. Yes, we are more particular than Christian butchers for reason of our religion. I had to undergo many months of training on the anatomy of animals. It is impossible for me to pass a diseased bullock. My touch is so acute that I can at once place the nature of the disease. What I might consider unfit for consumption by Hebrews would not in any way impair the meat in a Christian market. Our religion is strict on this point. If a bullock's lungs have grown against its sides I reject it. The animal's carcass is, however, no less fit for food.—"Sesame" in Brooklyn Eagle.

Disraeli and His Wife.

Disraeli used to joke with his wife by telling her that he had married her for money, to which she always replied. "Ah, if you had to do it again, you would have to do it for love."

Disasters on the Lakes.

ESCANABA, Wis., Nov. 13.—An unknown steamer burned off Poverty Island last night. The schooner Northwest is ashore on Pilot Island reef.

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you you may depend upon this for certain.

"The Great Monthly Magazine of the World." (Pacific Churchman.)

THE CENTURY

MAGAZINE IN 1889.

WHY has it such an enormous circulation? Experts estimate that between two and three millions of people read each number.

BECAUSE THE CENTURY is above everything a leader. It led the development of wood-engraving in America and it has fostered american authors. It is alive to the issues of to-day. What it prints sets people to thinking and talking.

BECAUSE whatever other periodicals carrying out the European-Asiatic express project which has for a year or more been periodically agitated.

BECAUSE whatever other periodicals may come into the family, the great reading world has found out that "no household can keep abreast of the times without THE CENTURY." "Its success is explained by its contents."

BECAUSE the greatest writers of the world like to have their work read by the greatest number, and therefore to such a magazine as THE CENTURY the best naturally comes. It was for THE CENTURY that Gen. Grant first wrote his reminiscences of important battles.

BECAUSE it is publishing the life of Abraham Lincoln, by his private secretaries. Of this it has been said, "The young man who is not reading it robs himself of that which he will one day hunger for." The coming year presents the most important part of this great history, which may be begun at any time.

BECAUSE it is printing those remarkable articles on "Siberia and the Exile System," by George Kennan, which are attracting universal attention and are being reprinted in hundreds of foreign newspapers, but are not allowed to enter Russia. The "Chicago Tribune" says that "no other magazine articles printed in the English language just now touch upon a subject which so vitally interests all thoughtful people in Europe and America and Asia." They are "as judical as the opinion of a Supreme Court Tribunal,—as thrilling as the most sensational drama."

BECAUSE during 1889 THE CENTURY is to have a series of engravings of the greatest pictures of the old Italian masters, made by Timothy Cole, the leading wood-engraver of the world, who has spent four years in Italy on this work; a series of "Strange True Stories of Louisiana," by George W. Cable; occasional richly illustrated papers describing the scenes of the current International Sunday-school lessons; interesting illustrated papers on Ireland, and a series of humorous and pathetic Irish-American stories; a striking illustrated novelette, "The Romance of Dolland," by a new writer, and other novelettes to be announced later; supplemental war papers, untechnical and descriptive of special incidents; "Pictures of the Far West," by Mary Hallock Foote, etc., etc. We have not space here to announce all the new features. Let us send you (free) our "Catalogue of Special Publications," with original illustrations, containing full prospectus, special offer of back numbers, to beginning of the Siberian papers, etc. The November number, which begins the new volume, is for sale everywhere after Nov. 1st. THE CENTURY costs 35 cents a number; $4.00 a year. Address THE CENTURY Co., 33 East 17th Street, New York.

412 Crystal Block, George-St., Peterborough.

THE CROWNING BARGAINS OF THE YEAR!

All Other Clothing Sales to be Thrown in the Shade.

AN IMPORTANT BUSINESS CHANGE IN THE CITY CLOTHING STORE.

H. LeBRUN,

After having been favored with a large and Prosperous Business during the past fifteen years, has decided to dispose of a share of his business, in order to give the faithful boys a chance. Therefore about the beginning of the New Year, an important change will take in the Business Management of the City Clothing Store, when Mr. JOSEPH PICARD,—who has been in my employ ever since commencing business—will be taken into the firm, and become an active partner of the same.

MAMMOTH PREPARATION SALE!

"Now comes the Tug of War." Previous to the above change taking place, I intend to place the whole of my Extensive Stock of Clothing, Cloths, Gents' Furnishings, &c., amounting to

$27,000 worth of Sterling Goods

at the disposal of the people of the Town and County of Peterborough, and will commence a Sweeping Preparatory Sale, Unequaled for Good Value and Big Dividends,

ON SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17.

In the meantime, the Goods will be all gone over, and re-marked down, including everything in the Store, from cellar to garret. Nothing will be reserved—all MUST go, no matter what the Sacrifice. No tricks during this Sale.

The Goods are all Clean and New, Fashionable and Seasonable—bought originally at Closest Prices, for Cash, in the Best Canadian Markets; besides a large proportion has been imported direct from the Old Country. The Goods do not contain any Bankrupt Stocks, or culls from slaughter houses, but have been manufactured for this season's trade.

In addition to the above regular Stock, I have just made a Splendid purchase of $4,000 worth of Ready-made Clothing, which was offered to me by the manufacturer, at a very Low Figure for Cash. These Goods will be sold along with the rest of the Stock at about Half their ACTUAL VALUE, and are bound to go off like hot cakes.

The Customers of the City Clothing Store are aware that our advertisements are always a simple statement of facts. No Brag, No Bluster, No Extravagant and Misleading Talk. When we advertise Positive Bargains, the Public are sure to get them.

Turnbull's Column.

This Column Tells What is Doing at Turnbull's.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2 00, 2.50 and 3.00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it take an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap. Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's. We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

A CANADIAN GIRL ADRIFT

ANNIE LYONS FURNISHES GOTHAM A SENSATION.

Failing to Bring Druggist Scott to Terms She Drinks a Dose of Corrosive Sublimate but is Pumped Out.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—"You villain! You betrayed me, and now you want to cast me adrift!"

This accusation was heard by several persons who had halted in front of W. W. Scott's drug store, on the northeast corner of Seventh-avenue and Fourteenth-street. The words were spoken by a young woman, and the charge was directed at the proprietor of the place. Mr. Scott was also heard. He threatened the young woman with arrest if she did not leave his store. Policemen McVey and Gregg, who had been attracted by the crowd surrounding the drug store, asked what was the matter. The young woman, whose name is Annie Lyons, said that three weeks ago she came to this city from Toronto, Canada; with a letter of introduction to Mr. Scott from one of his nieces. Her story was that the druggist promised to look after her while she remained in New York and took her to places of amusement and finally accomplished her ruin. She said that he had cast her adrift, and that the object of her visit was to come to some sort of understanding with him about his intentions toward her.

Scott, who was quite nervous, told the policeman that there was no truth in what the young woman said, and asked for her arrest on a charge of disorderly conduct. McVey took her into custody, and while she was being conveyed as a prisoner along Seventh-avenue she halted near the corner of Fifteenth street and taking a two-ounce vial from the pocket of her Newmarket cloak, swallowed about half its contents. The vial contained a strong solution of corrosive sublimate, a deadly poison. Without delay an ambulance was called and the sufferer was takan to the New York Hospital. The stomach pump was used with success, and the surgeons, at a late hour last night, were confident that Miss Lyons' life had been saved. Druggist Scott said that Miss Lyons came to his store half a dozen times during the past three weeks and talked to him about Toronto and his relatives there. Scott said that he came to this city from Toronto five years since and denied that Miss Lyons presented any letter of introduction to him from his niece.

Miss Lyons is about 21 years of age. She is a brunette, of stout figure and is not good looking.

SUICIDE AT NEWMARKET.

John Aikey Mixes Strychnine With His Last Glass of Whisky.

NEWMARKET, Nov. 15.—This afternoon a man named John Aikey, after getting as drunk as the money he had would allow, deliberately mixed five grains of strychnine in whisky, drank the compound and died.

Drink and continuous quarrels with his wife were the causes of this suicide. Aikey has no children. He recently served a term in Barrie jail for some petty crime.

Burned to Death.

MONTREAL, Nov. 15.—Mrs. Ann Shephard, residing at 36½ Hermine-street, aged 67, was sitting in her room last night when the lamp exploded, setting her dress on fire. She shrieked and a neighbor named Andy McGarity did his best to save her. He dragged her out and the ambulance being telephoned for she was removed to the General Hospital. She was found to be terribly burned from head to foot, and after lingering in agony for five hours she died shortly before 1 o'clock. Her husband, Mr. J. Shepherd, works in the Canada Paper Company.

RIOTING STREET-CAR MEN.

SCENES OF VIOLENCE IN THE CITY OF CHURCHES.

Attempts to Run Cars in Brooklyn Under Police Protection—Frenzied Attacks Upon the Blue-Coats.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The striking street-car employes in Brooklyn rioted this morning. At 10.30 the company started a car from the stables near King County Penitentiary, adjoining Prospect Park. Twelve mounted policemen and a patrol wagon containing nine officers acted as escort. The vehicle proceeded without obstruction until Myrtle-avenue was reached, when a tremendous body of strikers and sympathizers filled the streets. They stood on the track and surrounded the car, refusing to give way. The officers charged on the crowd and dispersed them several times, but the rioters followed the car, throwing stones and other missiles.

At Flushing-avenue a large wagon was placed on the track. In the meantime the crowd had increased to enormous proportions. Hundreds of yelling and shrieking men stood on the street asking the officers to come on and fight them. Again and again the officers charged the mob, but it was like trying to break a heavy stone wall. They would not yield an inch. A perfect shower of stones, rocks and clubs descended on the heads of the bluecoats.

The locusts did great work and many of the rioters were carried off the scene with cracked heads, bleeding faces and badly injured limbs. Sergt. Sutton was severely injured by being struck in the face with an immense rock. The same rock after injuring the sergeant struck the driver of the car, a man named Hoffman, and also injured him severely.

At Gwynnett-street, where the Lorimer line branches off, the mob succeeded in tearing up the switch and the attempt to run the car any further was abandoned. The police left the car at the mercy of the mob and began to charge in earnest. The mounted officers drove their horses into the crowd, and many were trampled under foot. After clubbing the mob until they grew tired they devoted themselves to the task of arresting the ringleaders. Hugh Garrett, John Burke and six others were taken into custody.

At 10.30 o'clock a car was started from the stable at Park and Nostrand-avenues. One hundred policemen, twenty-five of them mounted, surrounded the vehicle. They had proceeded only a few blocks when a mob of frantic, howling men advanced upon them hurling all kinds of missiles in the air. Inspector Riley ordered a charge and the big body of policemen swept down the street like a cyclone, driving everything before them. Right and left they whacked their long sticks on the heads of the rioters, scattering them. The mounted men drove into the mob, trampling upon them fearfully; still the rioters rallied. The stones, bricks, mud and clubs continued to fly through the air and many officers were badly injured. Finally a last charge was made by the police and the mob was dispersed. Six men were arrested.

At 11.10 another car was started from the Nostrand-avenue stables. The mob made a feeble attempt to re-form its lines and some of the leaders began to roll heavy boulders on the track to retard the progress of the car. Inspector Riley again swooped down upon the miscreants and in two minutes the street was clear. The car then proceeded.

THE CAUSES OF DECAY.

General Master Workman Powderly's Annual Report to the K. of L.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 15.—In the Knights of Labor General Assembly to-day two reports were read, one from General Master Workman Powderly and the other from ex-Secretary Litchman. Mr. Powderly's report took two hours of the time and Mr. Litchman followed for an hour and twenty minutes.

Mr. Powderly in his report says the year ending with this session has been the most trying and discouraging to those whose wish was to see the harmonious blending of all classes of workers beneath the shield of knighthood, since the organization of the order. He holds that their circular of false statements concerning the strength of the order, the extravagance of the general officers, the selfish desires of certain members high in the order, and the fact that the members of the Executive Board were not in harmony with each other drove away thousands of members from the order. The unwise strikes and the recent political campaign, during which members and assemblies were pitted against each other on questions which never were a part of the decleration of principles of the Knights of Labor, also had a depressing effect.

Mr. Powderly states that these trials have resulted in good for the order and denied anything like official dishonesty, inviting a thorough examination of all books and accounts. Many changes are desired in the constitution so as to avoid the frequent changes which are recommended at each session. At present he thinks the financial affairs are entrusted to too many hands. One responsible party should be entrusted with the management of the finances.

The afternoon session was occupied owing to the regular meeting of the Woman's Relief Corps, the Barry appeal which was looked for being a probability of to-morrow's session.

BRAKEMEN ON STRIKE.

The Louisville, New Albany and Chicago Employes Still Out.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 15.—The strike of the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago brakemen continues and no freight has been moved in to or out of Lafayette. The company yesterday afternoon made up a train at Lafayette which was moved under protection of the sheriff and police and without brakemen to a station 10 miles out, where it was sidetracked. The strikers endeavored to board the cars and draw the coupling pins but were prevented. Four arrests were made. The tracks near Lafayette have been soaped and greased for some distance. The company claim that some of the strikers desire to return to work but have been intimidated.

Hanged Protesting His Innocence.

WATERLOO, N. Y., Nov. 15.—Charles Johnson, who murdered John Walters, one of the jail employes in January, 1888, was hanged here to-day. He protested that he did not strike the blow which caused Walters' death and expressed pleasure at the knowledge that he was innocent.

A Colored Brute Lynched.

DONALDSONVILLE, La., Nov. 15.—Tuesday afternoon, on a plantation near this place, a negro seized a 11-year-old white girl and endeavored to outrage her. He was taken to jail, but at night 200 men overpowered the jailers and lynched him.

Death of Mr. Thomas Devine.

MONTREAL, Nov. 15.—Thos. Devine, C.E., F.R.G.S., late Deputy Surveyor-General for Ontario, died here late last night.

A Boston Forger Wanted.

OTTAWA, Nov. 15.—Chief McVeity has received a letter from the Superintendent of the Boston police, asking for the apprehension of Eugene A. Witt, who is wanted at the "Hub" for forging paper to the amount of $10,000. He was a student of the Boston University.

HOW TO WORK MURDERERS OFF.

A Medico-Legal Committee on Capital Punishment by Electricity.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—At the meeting of the Medico-Legal Society last night the committee on capital punishment by electricity made its report. The committee concluded that the death current should be applied to the criminal in a way that is effective and certain. A long perforated table should be laid on a chair overspread with a rubber cloth. The criminal lies down on the table or sits upright in the chair and is bound tight with strong cords. His head fits into a helmet, which is strapped across his forehead, and around his neck. The helmet should be securely fastened and an electroid not over an inch in diameter should be placed immediately under his back and extending down to the feet. A dynamo with not less than 3000 volts should be used.

LYNCHED BY BALD KNOBBERS.

Five Witnesses Who Testified Against the "King" Murdered.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 15.—A special from Springfield, Mo., says: "A rumor reached this city this morning from Christian County, the home of the famous Bald Knobber King Dave Walker, that five of the witnesses who testified against him in his trial for murder have been lynched by ex-Bald Knobbers. It is said the friends of Walker waited until the Supreme Court had passed upon his case, and when it was announced that the ex-chief must hang they wreaked vengeance on the five leading witnesses who brought him within the shadow of the gallows."

GONE TO BRITISH COLUMBIA.

An Express Clerk Skips Out From Tacoma With Several Thousands.

TACOMA, W. T., Nov. 15.—F. S. Simpson, a young man who arrived here from Fresno, Cal., two weeks ago with strong letters of recommendation from the Wells, Fargo Express Company, was given a clerkship in the Northern Pacific Express Company a few days ago. No bonds were required. Monday night Simpson went on duty and Tuesday he was missing and is supposed to have taken a boat for Victoria, B.C. He had checked off several large consignments of money. One consignment to Benj. Snipes of Ellensburg, W. T., a cattle owner, contained $10,000 and one to C. O. Palmer of Palmer Station contained $1,000. It is supposed he took other sums.

The Parnell Commission.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—It is expected that the tedium of the proceedings of the Parnell Commission will be relieved only when The Times produces evidence aiming to connect the accused directly with specific offences. If The Times' counsel to-morrow continues on the general line of exhuming stale facts or fiction, Sir Charles Russell, counsel for the Parnellites, will make another effort to get the court to order the prosecutors to begin the inquiry. The Pall Mall Gazette, defying the law relative to contempt of court, severely criticises the course of the prosecution and advises the defence not to waste its funds by employing the full array of counsel daily but to leave the judge or counsel to watch the case and to bring back Sir Charles Russell and other leaders when evidence is produced affecting the accused. Seven thousand pounds of the defence fund have already been expended.

The Seward Statue at Auburn.

AUBURN, N.Y., Nov. 15.—The ceremony of unveiling the Seward statue took place today in the presence of a large concourse of people, including many distinguished guests from out of town. The statue is of bronze and rises from a pedestal 9 feet in height, the figure of Seward being just one-half longer than life size. It represents him standing in the act of delivering his famous "higher law" sentiments, his right foot extended, his right hand impressively pointing heavenward. With pedestal its height from the ground is 18 feet. The statue is presented to Auburn by the citizens.

King Christian's 25th Anniversary.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 15.—Bells were rung and salvos of artillery fired to-day in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of King Christian's accession to the throne. This morning His Majesty received the diplomats and special envoys, who tendered him congratulations in behalf of their respective rulers, and afterwards attended a special "Te Deum" in St. Mary's Church. A banquet was given this evening.

The Pope v. the Plan.

DUBLIN, Nov. 15.—The Irish bishops have received another papal rescript. It orders them to actively execute the former rescript, which instructs them to denounce the plan of campaign and boycotting. It also orders them to direct the priests to preach against agitation and to forbid them to take part in the boycotting and plan of campaign movements, which they must oppose with all the means in their power.

"Murchison's" Record.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 15.—Francis G. Haley, said to be the author of the Murchison letter, formerly lived at McGrawville, Cortland County, this state, the home of Private Secretary Lamont. The father now resides there. Francis was a soldier in the 157th New York volunteers and after the war removed to Cleveland, O., and was a member of the State Legislature. Four years ago he removed to Pomono, Cal. He is said to be a Republican.

Started in Late in Life.

FORT RIPLEY, Minn., Nov. 15.—Randall, the boy murderer of August Seigler, the German who was shot near here on Oct. 2, yesterday confessed that he had committed the crime. He said he had started in late in life as he was now but 16 years old, and that Jesse James was only 10 when he killed his first man, and he (Randall) had lost 6 years already.

Fatal Wreck on the Pan Handle.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—A construction train was wrecked on the Pan-Handle road near Koonts, Ind., yesterday. It consisted of a caboose and two cars and carried seventy men. Some of the men were imprisoned under the wreckage. Nine men were taken out helpless, and one young Irishman was dead. It is believed that the injured men will all recover.

The Banner Republican State.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 15.—Official returns from all but 15 counties have been received. These with the unofficial figures from the 15 counties which have not yet reported place the Republican plurality at 82,000, making Kansas the banner Republican state of the Union, leading Pennsylvania by 4000.

The Peaceful Muscovite.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 15.—It is denied emphatically in Government circles that the new changes in the organization of the troops in Western Russia have a warlike intent. The object of the movement, it is declared, is merely to develop the defences necessary to preserve a military balance as compared with the forces maintained by neighboring powers.

Died While Eating.

MONTREAL, Nov. 15.—A man named Alphonse Hebert, aged 45, asked for a meal at the St. Patrick's Hospital yesterday, stating that he was starving. While putting a spoon in his mouth he fell back in his chair dead. At the coroner's inquest a verdict of syncope of the heart was returned.

CHAMBERLAIN'S TREATY.

RATIFIED IN ST. JOHN'S CHURCH AT WASHINGTON.

Nuptials of the Fisheries Commissioner and Miss Mary Endicott, Daughter of the United States Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Quietly and simply, in the presence of the bride's relatives and personal friends, a few members of Washington's official society and of several hundred of the general public, Hon. Joseph Chamberlain and Miss Mary Endicott were married at 2 o'clock this afternoon in St. John's Episcopal Church. The church was absolutely without floral or other decorations, and the awning stretched across the sidewalk to the carriage step was the only sign of an unusual ceremony. No cards or formal invitations had been received, there were no best men or bridesmaids and the entire service was characterized by extreme simplicity.

Such of the friends of the family as had been verbally invited to attend took seats in the body of the church half-an-hour before the ceremony began. The Cabinet meeting was ended at an early hour so as to permit the members to be present at the service, and they were in most cases accompanied by their wives. The President and Mrs. Cleveland entered the church just before 2 o'clock and were escorted to seats in one of the pews in the front row. Members of the Endicott family and relatives were seated immediately in the rear, while as many of the public as could find room in the little church filled the gallery and hallway.

Among the notable persons in attendance, besides the President and Mrs. Cleveland, were Mrs. Whitney, Mrs. Fairchild, Mrs. Dickinson, the Misses Bayard, Miss Vilas, Secretary Bayard, Secretary Fairchild, Secretary Whitney, Secretary Vilas, Postmaster-General Dickinson, Justice Lamar, the Misses Hunt, Mr. Samuel Ward, Col. John Hay, Capt. and Mrs. John F. Rodgers, Admiral and Miss Rodgers, Mrs. Biddle, the Misses Macomb, and Gen. Greely, besides a large number of guests from Boston.

Mr. Chamberlain entered the church at 2 o'clock and waited at the chancel. His appearance was the signal to the organist, who immediately began to play the wedding march from Lohengrin and the bride, leaning on her father's arm, attired in a pearl gray travelling dress and wearing a dark bonnet, passed up the right aisle and joining the bridegroom knelt before the altar.

Rev. Dr. Leonard, assisted by Rev. Mr. Franks of Salem, Mass., performed the Episcopal wedding services. Both bride and groom gave back the responses in a firm and audible voice. Prayer was pronounced and Joseph Chamberlain and Mary Endicott were man and wife.

Again the organ pealed forth its strains and the party passed slowly along the left aisle out of the church and into the carriages, and were driven immediately to the house of the bride's parents.

A reception was held at the residence of the Secretary, and the newly-married couple received the congratulations of the invited guests. After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain drove to the Pennsylvania Railway station, and it is supposed that they went to New York, although their destination was not known even to the bride's parents. They will return to Washington within a week and be the guests of Secretary Endicott for a few days. On Nov. 26 they will sail for Europe.

Wedding Bells in the Hoosier Capital.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 15.—A brilliant society wedding occurred here last night in the marriage of Miss Fannie Belle Vajen to Hon. Charles S. Voorhees, son of Senator Voorhees, and the present delegate in Congress from Washington Territory. The bride is a daughter of J. H. Vajen, one of the prominent retired merchants of Indianapolis.

Frederick's Diary.

BERLIN, Nov. 15.—The North German Gazette says that as the advanced democratic papers have continued to falsely interpret the Chancellor's report to the Emperor on the subject of the late Emperor Frederick's diary it must again refer to the fact that Emperor Frederick, owing to his relations with the English Royal family, never concealed his regard for England and its dynasty and policy, not even before his father who, owing to the good feeling towards himself of Russia and her dynasty, was led into a policy of open discussion, which, between father and son, was not advisable from sociable as well as business considerations. The servants of the father were bound by their office and honor not to discuss these matters before the son.

Demented Dougherty.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—James M. Dougherty, who was arrested for annoying Mary Anderson, was arraigned in court to-day and removed to a hospital to be examined as to his sanity. Miss Anderson refused to make a complaint against him, so none was made by the police. Dougherty told a long story of his pursuit of the actress under adverse circumstances and gave evidence of dementia in the narrative. While combing his hair he had heard her voice saying, "What beautiful hair" (he is bald), so he cut a lock from a shock near his ear and sent it to her. There was an irrational note on him as to what should be done with him if he got into a trance. If he should die, he wanted Mary to advise as to the disposition of the remains.

Cheated the Hangman.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 15.—Fritz Anschlog, who was to have been executed on Friday for the murder of Mr. and Mrs. Hitchcock at Garden Grove in January last, and who, in a statement made a few days ago, also confessed to the killing of Julius Feugh, a neighbor, in Butte County in 1885, both of which crimes were committed avowedly for the purpose of securing their landed property or money, committed suicide last night by taking strychnine and died at 12.30 this morning. Anschlog had concealed the strychnine in a plug of tobacco.

Scott Act Convention.

COBOURG, Nov. 15.—A convention of temperance workers takes place here Wednesday, Nov. 28. The object of the meeting is to resist repeal of the Scott Act in Northumberland and Durham.

A Carolina Bank Failure.

DURHAM, N.C., Nov. 15.—Blackwell's Bank, which has been in financial straits for some time, has closed its doors. A number of the business houses of the town are involved and made assignments to-day.

The Baudin Demonstration.

PARIS, Nov. 15.—The Municipal Council has decided to take part in the demonstration at the tomb of the revolutionist Baudin on Dec. 2.

His Head Split Open.

MONTREAL, Nov. 15.—Maxime Monette, 45, caretaker of Laval University, was splitting wood yesterday, when his axe caught a clothes line and came down, splitting his head open and inflicting a severe wound.

It Went all Right.

INGERSOLL, Nov. 15.—F. Norris cleaned his gun and put a charge of powder in it to see if it would go all right. It went, as he found to his sorrow, and his hands and face were badly burned.

VICTORIA VS. PETERBOROUGH.

The Judgment in the Bobcaygeon Bridge Lease.

The Toronto Empire of Wednesday gives the following report of this case:—Judgment allowing appeal with cost. Robinson, Q.C., and Edwards (Peterborough) for appellants (defendants.) Moss, Q.C., and Hudspeth, Q.C. (Lindsay), for respondents. Held, it cannot be said that before the Act, 42 Vic., cap. 47, when the boundary line between the two counties extended in a straight line between the townships of Harvey and Verulam until it struck the waters of the lake, near the front of the township of V., the deviation in question, through the village of Bobcaygeon, until it rejoins the boundary road at lot 16, would not have come within the meaning of the statute, nor can it be said that the line marked down on the plan from that point to the bridge, where the boundary line is again reached, might not have been within the meaning of a deviation. Much would depend upon the circumstances showing the necessity of leaving the true boundary line, but on the assumption that V. had in the original survey extended to the lake. Impossible to hold that a road running for the distance of several miles wholly in the one county, in order to form a junction with the true boundary road at the south, was such a deviation as was contemplated by the Legislature. The enactment declares that the portion of Harvey referred to shall form part of the County of Victoria as fully as it had always formed part of that county, leaving the lake as the only boundary for eight or nine miles between the two counties. If it had been intended to answer the former travelled road as being a road under the joint jurisdiction of the two counties, although not continuing to be the boundary line between them, we should have expected to find a declaration to that effect. No limitation to be placed upon the very general words of the statute, and if according to the original survey the boundary lines between the two counties had run a certain distance, then have been interrupted by the lake for a distance of several miles and afterwards been continued in a southerly course, the words of the Act would not warraut us in holding an extension to unite these two boundary lines for several miles wholly within the one county as a deviation, so neither can we hold that the original boundary line between those two points still retains that character. The road and bridge in question are not part of the boundary road within the meaning of the Act, and the county of Peterborough is not bound to contribute to it. The county having contributed since the passing of the Act cannot affect their liability.

AN INSURANCE CASE.

The Question of a Railway Company's Responsibility.

MONTREAL, Nov. 15.—On August 24, 1887, a barn owned by a man nomed Gardner, in the township of Whitby, Ont., was destroyed by fire alleged to have been caused by sparks from a passing train of the Ontario and Quebec Railway. The barn in question was insured in the Glasgow and London Insurance company for $2400. The company sent up an expert, and after examination paid Gardner $1500, and he transferred to the company any claims that he would have against the railway. They then sued the Canadian Pacific Railway, which pleaded in the first place that the fire was not caused by sparks from their locomotive, and in the second place that, according to the Ontario law, when a railway company uses all modern appliances for cars and locomotives for the protection of property through which said line passes, they are not responsible for such losses as that in question. The evidence in the case was concluded before Mr. Justice Tait yesterday, and His Honor took the case en delibere.

WEBB SENTENCED TO DEATH.

The Brandon Wife-Murderer To Be Hanged on Dec. 28.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 15.—Webb, the Brandon wife-murderer, pleaded guilty to-day and was sentenced to death on Dec. 28. He completely broke down and there was an affecting scene in the court when he was sentenced.

The City Council will probably order immediate re-building of the burned city market.

Thanksgiving Day was thoroughly observed.

The Wrapping Paper Combine.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—The Western manufacturers of wrapping paper yesterday raised the price from $30 to $35 per ton. At the output of the mills is 200 tons per day the benefit to the trust will amount to $1000 per day.

A Lunatic's Suicide.

MONTREAL, Nov. 15.—Dr. Devine, one of the inmates of the Longue Pointe Asylum, committed suicide Wednesday morning by throwing himself into the river. He had been an inmate of the asylum for some time. Deceased was 75 years of age.

Lost His Wallet on His Wedding Day.

OTTAWA, Nov. 15.—A young man, Albert Carroll by name, arrived from the west last night to be married to a young lady here. Having dined at the Brunswick Hotel, he visited the lavatory and went out. He had his wallet, containing $110, in his inside pocket at that time, but when he returned at 9 o'clock it was gone. When or how he lost it is a mystery to him.

A Dishonest Carter.

MONTREAL, Nov. 15.—A young seamstress named Mary J. Renaud, of Longueuil, a few days ago gave a rascally carter four dozen pair of trousers to deliver for her. Instead of doing this the fellow pawned them. The detectives were informed and succeeded in recovering the articles, but cannot find the carter.

Only a Cent a Month.

MONTREAL, Nov. 15.—An appeal has been issued by the ecclesiastical authorities, asking all Catholics to contribute one cent a month in order to complete the St. Peter's Cathedral. It is calculated that this subscription, from 400,000 Roman Catholics of the province, will produce a sum of $100,000.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Fatal Shooting Accident—Alleged Confidence Men in the Toils.

TORONTO, Nov. 16.—On Wednesday afternoon James E. Beswick, agent of the British American Assurance Company, and Edward Apted, of Apted Bros., printers of 40 Colborne-street, started for Ashbridge's Bay for a night and day's shooting. Both carried ordinary breech-loading shot-guns. They rowed across to Sand Island, a small strip of land which lies towards the centre of the Bay, and almost directly opposite the front of Lang-street, St. Matthew's Ward. They rested for a night in a fisherman's hut and went out about 9.30 yesterday morning to shoot at a flock of snow birds which had settled on the shore. Both fired, and Mr. Apted stepped back to reload. He threw open the breech, took out the exploded cartridges and replaced them with loaded ones. The hammers of the gun were down at the time, and the quick action of shutting the weapon caused the plunger to strike the cartridges with sufficient force to explode one of them. Mr. Beswick was standing directly in line with the muzzle of Mr. Apted's weapon, and the charge struck him fairly in the right side inflicting a terrible wound, causing almost instant death. Mr. Apted at once sent across and got Drs. Pickering and Stephenson, but life had fled long before their arrival. The police were notified and the body of the unfortunate sportsman was brought over to the city to the residence of his father. An inquest was held last night when the jury returned this verdict: "That James Edward Beswick came to his death by being accidentally shot at the Island this (Thursday) morning." Mr. Apted, who had been held in custody all day, was at once released. The deceased was a member of the Toronto Gun Club and was a great favorite with all who knew him. He was about 28 years of age and leaves a widow and three children.

A crowd of 10,000 people witnessed the sham fight between the Grenadiers and the Queen's Own Rifles at High Park yesterday. The manœuvres were skilfully performed, the mimic battle reflecting credit on both of the opposing forces.

Detectives Stark and Reburn last night arrested two men, giving their names as William Alexander and Henry Hunter, who are supposed to be the confidence operators who have made many successful hauls recently in Montreal and Toronto.

HOLIDAY FIRES.

A $12,000 Blaze at Laprairie — Whitby Curlers Mourn the Loss of Their Rink.

MONTREAL, Nov. 15.—Bell and Tolmie's arpenter shop was destroyed by fire this morning. Loss $1500, partially covered by insurance.

A fire broke out in the Hospice St. Joseph on Cathedral-street this morning, and before it was extinguished about $2000 damage had been done, covered by insurance in the Royal and London and Liverpool and Globe Companies. The fire started in the garret and at one time threatened to be very serious.

During Wednesday night and yesterday morning the outhouses of Col. Brosseau, Dr. Martin and A. J. Roberge, with their contents, at Laprairie, were destroyed by fire as well as a pile of lumber adjacent. Loss $12,000, covered by insurance.

The Whitby Curling Rink Burnt.

WHITBY, Nov. 15.—Following the late burning of the Bowmanville curling rink devotees of the game will wonder which next! after learning that the same disaster has befallen the Whitby curlers. The building and stones were burned at an early hour this morning. The North British and Mercantile carried $1000 risk and the club will lose another $1000.

Lebel Rifle Works Burnt.

PARIS, Nov. 15.—The Government works for the manufacture of small arms at Chatellerault have been burned. This will necessitate the suspension for a time of the manufacture of the Lebel rifle. The fire is believed to have been due to an accident. Loss 1,000,000 francs.

A Thurlow Farmer's Serious Loss.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 15.—A barn and stable in Thurlow, owned by Cornelius Donovan were burned during the night. Two horses and three cows perished in the flames. Several wagons and sleighs and eight tons of hay were also consumed.

A Stable Burnt.

OSHAWA, Nov. 15.—At 8.30 last night, fire was discovered in a stable belonging to Wm. Reynolds. The brigade was promptly on the spot, but was unable to save the building, which was entirely consumed.

Prairie Fires in Dakota.

ABERDEEN, Dak., Nov. 15.—Reports from the prairie fire in the North-western townships of Brown County show that active fighting upon the part of settlers saved most of the farm buildings. The burned district includes a large area of sparsely settled land.

Two Children Burnt to Death.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Nov. 15.—The residence of Frank Knecht in Plymouth was burned yesterday morning and two small children perished in the flames.

An Illinois Village Wiped Out.

JOLIET, Ill., Nov. 15.—The business portion of the village of Plainfield was burned yesterday. Loss $25,000.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,

ADVERTISING

When Newspapers first began to be published in London, an editor took opportunity one day to say that a certain man desired a certain something—no matter what. That was the invention of advertising, though the inventor may not have known what he had found. From that time to this poor's have made more or less use of the papers to publish their wants, and tradesmen their wares; but we doubt very much whether any real improvement upon the first advertisement has ever been made. It was a frank statement that somebody wanted something and what it was that he wanted. Doubtless he got it. We want something. Want to sell goods. Good goods too. The best of the best in Groceries. The range of stock is a wide one. It has to be wide to suit all customers. That we do suit is positive.

If there is one thing we do better than another it is in TEAS.

It is our specialty. Years of experience tell us how and where to buy. We use that experience and select the best.

Do you like a good article? Do you value flavor and strength in Tea? If so give us a trial order.

In addition, every line of groceries you can call for we have.

POWT HOPE gave the McGibeny Family a great crowd last night. 1d115

A Good Suggestion of a Lady.

In the short wait between the first and second parts of the programme at the military concert last evening, Mr. J. R. Stratton advanced to the platform and said he had thought that it would be a most fitting time to throw out a suggestion which had been made to him. A lady had suggested that it would be a very nice thing if the ladies of Peterborough undertake to present to the 57th Battalion new colors, the presentation to take place at some fitting time, 24th of May next perhaps. Mr. Stratton said that there was no one who doubted the chivalry of the volunteers, and the present colors were not as good they should muster under. The lady, he said, had further suggested that a meeting of the ladies of the town be held in the Y. M. C. A. rooms on Thursday next at two o'clock, p. m.

Two Wednesday Weddings.

At the residence of Mrs. Carr, on George-st., there assembled on Wednesday evening about twenty-five ladies and gentlemen to witness a very pleasing and interesting ceremony—the marriage of Mr. John Denoon to Miss Ina Sinclair, of Boston. Miss Carr acted as bridesmaid, while Mr. Isaac Gates assisted the groom. The The Rev. E. F. Torrence officiated. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful presents from town and a distance, one having been sent from Rome, Italy. The happy couple were the objects of the happy wishes of a large circle of friends. There was quite an extraordinary circumstance connected with the contracting parties which lends a halo to the marriage, and that is the fact that neither had seen the other for ten years when they were both in the Old Country.

Another wedding was celebrated on Wednesday evening at St. Luke's, when Mr. Geo. Dredge was united in the holy bond to Miss Hilliker. Rev. Mr. Mr. Warren performed the ceremony.

A rich musical treat to-night awaits our citizens in hearing the McGibeny Family. 1d115

AN EVENING WITH THE MILITARY.

The Second Annual Concert of the 57th a Grand Success.

It was a good audience that climbed the stairs to the Opera House last night to the second annual concert given by the 57th Battalion, and it was a pleased audience that shortly before eleven descended the same stairs after having seen the excellent programme that had been arranged and carried out. The walls of the Opera House were decorated with flags and bunting and the colors of the regiment were on the stage. The officers of the Battalion appeared in uniform, and these with the many red-coats who appeared on the stage gave quite a military aspect to the entertainment. Col. Straubenzie and Paymaster King was present in civilian clothes and liberally applauded several of the military features of the programme. The music of the band was also greeted with signs of approbation.

The curtain rolled up shortly after eight and Major Bell came forward and made a few opening remarks. He said the object of the concert was to raise funds for battalion purposes. They received the Government aid, which was supplemented by the officers, but they had also taken this way of adding to the funds to defray expenses. He was pleased to see such a large audience and hoped they would all favor them again next year.

The programme was an excellent one and was truly military. The opening pieces was the grand fantasia, "Joan of Arc," by the band, and a grand opening it was. The band mustered twenty-two men under the leadership of Bandmaster Miller. The audience sat and listened with rapt attention as now the full volume of the band would fill the hall or the soft cadence would delight the ear. Both in this and their second selection, "Maritana," their performance was grand and received the most vociferous applause. In fact their opening was the feature of the whole programme and the credit is their own and their leader's.

Sergt.-Major Rundle and twelve soldierly looking young red-coats were on the stage when the curtain rose the second time. The Sergt-Major gave them the command present arms, after they came to the shoulder, and they went through the whole manual exercise without a word of command, with a precision and unanimity that was remarkable. The firing exercise was also gone through in a like manner and the squad reflected great credit on their instructor and on the battalion.

The fencing bout was next on the programme, and was exciting. Capt. Brennan, of No. 6, and Lieut. Mason, of No. 1, were the combatants, the former coming out best man.

Mr. McGuire, of Uxbridge, in his clarionet solos delighted many who never dreamt that such sweet melody could be made with this instrument. Mr. McGuire's performance on this difficult instrument is, perhaps, unexelled in this Province, and both the numbers for which he was down were encored and applauded to the echo. His medley of Scotch airs was very sweet and he will be an attraction here on any concert programme hereafter. Prof. Hoover accompanied him on the piano.

Mr. T. Dunn gave a vocal solo, "Alone in the Desert," and, as usual, had to respond to an encore, when he gave "The Gay Hussar" in fine voice.

Capt. Brennan and Private Bowman were just getting the audience excited over their single stick bout when the breaking of Bowman's stick brought it to a sudden termination.

The two tugs of war occasioned much amusement for the audience, although some of the men had their hands pretty well skinned. There were two teams of five men picked from the left and right half battalion respectively in the first contest. After much fun and amusement the right half claimed the pull, although the left disputed this as they held the pull was not a square and fair one. In the second tug the left half team ran the pull with five non-commissioned officers. This was a fine and even test of strength and was won by the left half and that was all.

The Sergt.-Major's squad gave an exhibition of the bayonet exercise and worked remarkably well together, and presented a pretty sight to the audience. The Sergt.-Major also had six men who went through the sword exercise in a creditable manner, considering the short time for preparation. This was a novel feature to many.

The two tableaux, "The Roll Call" and "Quatre Bras," were well prepared and looked well, the latter especially bringing the familiar picture before the eyes of the spectators life size.

The officers and men of the battalion are to be congratulated on the success of their second annual concert, and let it be hoped that the third will be as successful.

After the concert the officers and a number of the friends of the battalion gathered round the festive board in W. H. Chamberlain's restaurant, and toasts and happy speeches made the hours slip by most pleasantly until early this morning. The band serenaded the merry-makers and played several airs in the ante-room.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dark, dull days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 65 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember Jas. Best's stand, 39 George-st. d111tf

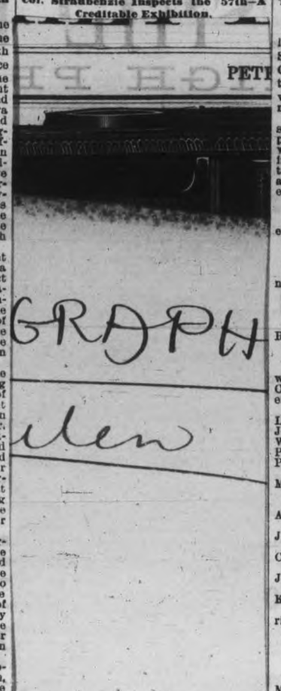
Friday and Saturday,



A Pleasant and Profitable Gathering.

A conference was held in the Baptist Church, Murray-st., on Thursday afternoon, the Rev. F. Clifton Parker, pastor, presiding. There was a good attendance and the discussion and conversation on the spiritual work of the church was very profitable. In the evening an oyster supper was served in the lecture room by the ladies of the congregation, after which addresses were delivered. The Rev. Mr. Massey, of St. Marie, Que., gave an address in reference to the Grande Ligne mission to the French. The Rev. J. B. Huff speke of the effects of Christianity. Messrs. Hillier, Elcombe, Curtis, Gillespie and V. Eastwood each gave interesting reminiscences of the history of the Baptist church in Peterborough, and Miss Maggie McDonald gave a reading, "The Brakeman and Churches." There was a large attendance at the tea, and the ladies did themselves credit by the repast they provided. Messrs W. E. Matthews, W. J. Minore, V. Eastwood and L. Croly rendered efficient assistance in making the preparations. There was no charge, and the voluntary offerings amounted to about $60.

THE TRAMP OF ARMED MEN.

Col. Straubenzie Inspects the 57th—A Creditable Exhibition.

The weather was luckily mild for November.

The officers of the 57th should feel proud of their battalion, for it acquitted itself well.

Sergt.-Major Rundle was in his element, for he is a thorough soldier.

Capt. Thos. Burke, of London Military School, was on the field in uniform, and spoke highly of the movements and drill.

Capt. W. H. Hill, of No. 3 Company, was not able to appear on parade, but was in the drill shed to greet his men.

What's the matter with the 57th—it's all right.

To be expected—six dollars.

It was too bad the Battalion could not take the road, as it was worth showing to full advantage.

The music of the band was excellent and Leader Miller got a good mark.

Drum Major Billings was given a hearty shake of the hand by the D. A. G.

Mr. R. M. Roy was on the field with his photo-making machine and succeeded in getting several good pictures. He took No. 6 Company in three positions and the whole Battalion in quarter column.

True Blue Ball.

A ball was given on Wednesday evening by the True Blues in their hall on Simcoe-st. There was a large attendance, the hall being filled to overflowing. Good music was furnished by Mr. Sherwood's orchestra, and supper was served in fine style at Mr. J. C. Craig's. The night was thoroughly enjoyed and the merriment did not cease until 6 o'clock in the morning. Another of these popular balls will be given on Dec. 5th, the anniversary of the Lodge.

CELEBRATE BY A SUPPER.

Mr. James Hendry moved, seconded by Mr. John Paterson, and it was unanimously carried that St. Andrew's Day be celebrated by a supper, the necessary preparations for which event will be left to a committee consisting of Messrs. Chas. Cameron, Jas. Hendry, Alex. Morrison, Thos. Telford, Roderick McClennan, Wm. Cumming and the Secretary.

The President and Secretary were appointed to wait upon Rev. E. F. Torrance for the purpose of requesting him to deliver the annual sermon before the members of the Society on Sunday, the 23rd inst.

MOTIONS OF THANKS.

The thanks of the Society was tendered to Mr. John Patterson for his painstaking efforts on behalf of the Society during the many years he had been a member, and especially for the large number of new members and subscription he had personally obtained during the past and previous years.

The retiring officers received a vote of thanks for their services during the past year, after which the meeting adjourned until Thursday, the 22nd inst.

THE CHURCHES.

Services held in the Churches on Thanksgiving Day.

Services were held in various churches on Thursday—Thanksgiving Day. A union service was held in the George-st. Methodist Church at 11 o'clock, which included the congregations of the Presbyterian, Methodist and Baptist churches, and was largely attended. Rev. M. L. Pearson presided, and the meeting was opened with the customary devotional exercises, Rev. E. F. Torrance leading in prayer. Rev. Alex. Bell read a selection of Scripture.

Rev. Mr. PEARSON announced Rev. S. J. Shorey's absence on account of illness. They should remember while in the meeting, that many were unable to gather with them, but all had reasons for thanksgiving. They had met in accordance with the vice-regal proclamation, but even if that call had not been issued their hearts longed to meet together in such a service.

Rev. F. CLIFTON PARKER based his remarks on Psalm ciii., 2, and referred to causes they had for thankfulness. As a nation they had great reason to be thankful to God. Their garners were full, and there was hardly a home in which there was not bread enough and to spare. They had, as a people, been enabled to something for others, and to send away that which would be food for other nations and receive in return that which they needed. They were astonished when they read of the Hebrew children being fed by manna, but the ordinary course of God's Providence was as grand a miracle. As members of the evangelical churches they had reason to be thankful for the work done through them and for the greatly increased interest taken in missionary enterprises. Since the first of the year fifty-three young men and women had offered themselves and been consecrated for foreign missions. The secular papers, also, were giving more attention to missionary and religious news. The women had awakened public opinion in the churches and the time was not far off when the whole heathen world would be consecrated to God.

Rev. ALEX. BELL said they should be thankful for the land in which they lived. It was one of the best under the sun, fruitful and prosperous. It had set a good example by its calm attitude during recent events when a small mistake might have caused serious trouble. It was a good thing that their rulers had been so wise. The country was growing steadily and would reach the highest prosperity.

The musical part of the service was excellent. The union choir, including members of the choirs of the churches, under Mr. Carter's leadership, sang two fine anthems in a very creditable manner, and a solo, "The Lord's Prayer," by Miss Lily Jackson, was sung with excellent expression.

A collection was taken up in aid of the Barnardo Home and the service closed by the Rev. Mr. Torrance pronouncing the benediction.

OTHER CHURCHES.

Thanksgiving services were held in St. John's Church at 11 o'clock in the morning and at 7 o'clock in the evening.

There were two services held at St. Luke's, one in the morning at 10 30, with Holy Communion; and in the evening at 7 30 with a sermon by the Rev. Mr. Warren, who took his text from Revelations, xi, 15: —"The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ."

THE LIGHT FANTASTIC.

First Annual Ball of the Trades and Labor Organizations.

The Opera House presented a gay and brilliant appearance on Wednesday night upon the occasion of the first annual ball of trades and labor organizations of Peterborough. Flags, banners, streamers and mottoes of all colors had been draped and arranged by a decorative hand in such a tasteful manner that they made the dismal and barren walls of the Opera House have a beautiful and brilliant appearance under the glare of the electric light. Each union had a motto with its name and number and in the centre of the wall over the stage was the inscription "Success to the K. of L, No. 6952. Knowledge is strength." There had been nothing left undone to make the ball an enjoyable affair for all those who were present. The evening was a success and the managers are to be congratulated on the smoothness with which the night passed off. Mr. F. Fairen in his capacity as president and Mr. R. McGreggor as secretary, went to a great deal of trouble in their efforts to make the ball a success, and their efforts were seconded and aided by every man on the committees. The Reception Committee was composed of Messrs. F. McNaughton, Geo. Graham, J. Hickey, J. Whitehead and C. Murty, and the floor management was in the hands of Messrs. R. Sheehy T. McNamara, G. Martin, J. Kelly, J. Launderville and C. Loucks. There were twenty-six dances on the programme, and the music furnished by the Fire Brigade Orchestra was excellent and the floor was in good condition. There were about sixty couple present and none of the dances were allowed to go by default. Supper was served at the Grand Central Hotel, and Mr. J. F. Daly, the genial host, served a first class bill of fare in excellent style. It was not until early in the morning that the inspiring airs of the orchestra ceased and the happy crowd of participators donned their wraps and homeward turned.

Must Have Been Muddled.

Some farmer who must have been going to get married, or at least, excited or in a hurry to get home, went away on Wednesday afternoon and left a fine quarter of beef on the market square. Officer McGinty found the piece of cow and arrested it as a vagrant. There being danger of the meat spoiling Chief Roszel had it sent up to the Protestant Home this morning. "It's an ill wind that blows no one some good."

A Success Every Way.

Forty-four dollars were the proceeds taken in at the door at the annua Thanksgiving dinner and entertainment given by the Endeavor Society of Charlotte-st. Methodist church last evening, and this should have been eighty-eight according to some who were present and said the admittance fee of a quarter should have been doubled to fifty cents as the supper was the best ever given in town and the after programme excellent. Tea was on from 5 to 8 p.m., and was a most sumptuous and beautiful spread, and established the reputation of the Charlotte-st. congregation in this important feature. The programme comprised eleven numbers, besides the fine selections rendered by the Y. M. C. A. Orchestra. Miss Clark opened the evening with a well-rendered instrumental solo, and was followered by Miss Bertha Brundrette's recitation "The Curfew," which was given in good style. Miss Pearson gave a pretty solo and the reading "Trouble in the Amen Corner," by Mr. Rowse, was given in such fine style that he was recalled and gave "Barbara Fetcher." Miss Wrighton rendered an instrumental solo in her usual artistic manner, and Miss Butcher sang a pleasing solo. Miss Sherlock recited "The Latest Shot," a legend of the Indian mutiny, splendidly. Miss Cameron gave a good song and Mr. Clegg contributed an interesting reading. The vocal duet of Misses Fawcett and Brundrette was good, and Miss Sanders recitation "Death Doomed," which was loudly encored, was the last item on the programme.

Brevities.

—The pay list for the last two weeks amounted to $163.32.

—Officer Stewart drove a cow into No. 1 pound this morning.

—The police made no arrests all day yesterday or last night.

—The Rev. P. Clifton Parker will address the meeting to-night at the Y. M. C. A. Hall.

—The members of the 'Prentice Boys Lodge were photographed in a group yesterday by Mr. Green.

—The regular meeting of St. Luke's Young Men's Guild was postponed until next Thursday evening.

—A thanksgiving dinner was provided for the people at the Nicholls Hospital by the kindness of Mrs. Nicholls.

The gains from time to time are well illustrated by the following table:—

PERIOD.	Gain in income.	Gain in assets.	Gain in assurances.
1872 to 1876, four years	$ 54,611 21	$160,482 69	$1,149,742 00
1876 to 1880, four years	36,580 67	195,139 20	1,167,986 14
1880 to 1884, four years	136,076 84	383,394 31	2,962,924 90
1884 to 1887, three years	217,451 80	475,907 24	4,029,373 65
Total in 1887	$445,831 54	$1,750,004 48	$10,873,777 69

It is worthy of note that the gains for the last three years only are 60 per cent. more than those of the preceding four years.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1888.

JIM NO. 1 AND JIM NO. 2.

"It is true, M. Roger, if ever you should do anything evil to Jim I should hate you, and I'd never forgive you, never, never!" And Mlle. Armande Plagnolles nonchalantly threw herself back in her chair and passed her taper finger with caressing gentleness across the lustrous and downy skin of Master Jim.

The cat—a superb cat, jet black from head to tail, so black that in certain lights his fur gave out metallic reflections—purred louder and louder, stretched out his paws, of a pearlish white, and blinked at Roger in a way that seemed to say: "Try it, my friend; try it; you'll get the worst of it certain!"

Not at all alarmed by the threat and the wicked look in Jim's eyes, M. Roger de Gramont responded hypocritically:

"Evil to Jim! Never! What made you think it?" And he, too, advanced his hand to stroke the cat, perfidiously hoping, of course, to touch instead the fingers of its beautiful mistress.

And she was pretty, truly, adorably pretty, this Mlle. Armande de Plagnolles; a demi-blonde with red-brown hair, curling and twisting into the most enchanting waves; rather tall, neither fat nor lean, and with eyes of astonishing depth and color.

Roger de Gramont, on his side, was good looking, accomplished, well built, broad shouldered, with limbs supple and vigorous.

Roger advanced his hand, as I've told you, and Jim received it, not with the dignity you would expect from the throne he occupied, but with a masterly stroke of his claw that opened the flesh to the bone and made the blood fly.

"The miserable beast!" cried the young man indignantly, for once unable to repress the truth.

* * * * * * *

The property of the De Gramont family was considerably larger than the chateau, or villa, rather, of the Plagnolles estate, and stood in a vast park rolling and wooded, and with an extended view of the Seine. Roger was wrong in laughing at Armande on account of her passion for Jim, for he himself was bringing up with jealous care, in a distant corner of this same park, inclosed with high trellises, a colony of pheasants of every country, form and tint. It was a mania with him and which he had taken to his heart with all a collector's ardent passion, and a veritable delight it was to him to conceal himself behind a thicket of juniper trees in that well hedged corner and watch the movements of his beautiful lady Hamerets with their variegated ruffs, or his Venerex with their brilliant colors. And there is nothing to laugh at, I assure you, in this little craze of my hero, Roger, for I, as well as every one else, knew that the rest of his manias were not a whit less respectable than this.

The morning following his visit to Plagnolles and Jim, as he was preparing to make his usual call on his pheasants, the keeper stood before him, cap in hand.

"Monsieur Roger," he said, "they got another one last night; I found the feathers along the paling!"

"What!" cried Roger angrily, "another of my pheasants last night! See here, La Branche, this won't do! Whom do you suspect now?"

The keeper shook his head. "Nobody, sir, but Pichou," said he; "it couldn't be any one else. Pichou's the worst and the most successful poacher in the country."

"But three of them—three of them in four days!" continued De Gramont.

"Thanks to Pichou, sir," persisted the guard; "Pichou's got 'em certain, sir; he always has."

The evening of the same day peace was declared between the two lovers. Roger returned in an excellent humor, only to find himself the next morning in a violent rage—they had gotten a fourth pheasant; more than that, two of his handsome cocks were wounded in the wing and left behind them as they walked a trail of blood.

Happen again! Not much, if he could help it; and though it was as dark as Egypt, as it had been for four nights past, Roger installed himself in ambush with his gun charged with the heaviest balls.

The wait was long; two hours rolled themselves into three, then three into four, and the young man was beginning to consign to the devil all the pheasants as well as all the poachers in the world, when a singular noise, a soft metallic clicking, set him trembling.

"Something," he said to himself, "something light as a sylph is climbing the trellis!" and, as well as he could for the darkness, he aimed and fired, and was answered by a caterwauling, fierce, prolonged, lugubrious, succeeded by the rattle of death.

"Good!" he muttered; "it wasn't Pichou at all, but a thievish cat. He's done for, at any rate!" and he continued to wait; not long, however, for summer nights are short and fleeting, and already a bluish haze upon the horizon announced the dawn. A few minutes later a clear light penetrated the leaves, and there in the middle of a thicket of rose trees Roger perceived the body of his victim. It was big, it was black—very black; his heart beat quickly; he foresaw, he divined, the catastrophe. He approached hastily. No more doubt about it; it was Jim, the adored Jim, the "cherished pet," shot in the middle of the head—cold and lifeless.

"Well," murmured Roger, contemplating him ruefully, "a beautiful mess I've made of it!" and to run to the tool house, seize and return with a spade was the work of an instant; five minutes more and Jim reposed at peace beneath the earth forever.

When M. de Gramont made his usual evening call at Plagnolles the house was in commotion, everybody from cook to chambermaid, valet and stable boy vainly seeking Jim; and the parents were wild with fright, for Armande herself was dissolved in hysterical tears.

"Ah!" she cried at sight of Roger, happy to hold in her hand at last one whom she could make into a fellow sufferer; "it is you, is it! You, who will be delighted to hear of it—you, who have never been able to endure him!" And immediately there was a new quarrel on the carpet, in which, as Roger was decidedly epres and guiltily unhappy, he got the worst of it. Armande worried him ferociously, going to the length of declaring that till Jim—always Jim—was found she did not even care to see him—that is, unless he would promise to hunt for Jim, in which case she would promise to recompense——

After a morning visit, more unfortunate still than the evening one, Roger told himself that something must be done; the situation was simply unendurable. He ran to the station, boarded a train, arrived at Paris, and an hour later, at the shop of M. M——, a merchant who dealt in birds, dogs and divers other animals, among them a cat—a superb cat, black all over, claws white, eyes yellow; in short, Jim's twin in every particular, Roger had no time to waste in explanations.

"How much?" said he, standing before it delightedly.

"One hundred francs, monsieur," replied the merchant.

In a basket, hermetically closed and tied, he carried away his purchase, regained the train, and then Maisons as soon as possible.

Truly, he had done well! Jim was restored—Jim No. 2; everything would be right now with that pretty creature, Armande, whom, truly, he adored! and thinking thus, as night had come, he approached the villa. Not a soul was to be seen. He seized his burden by the neck and with a vigorous hand launched it across the wall that surrounded the Plagnolles garden.

"Jim was found! Jim had returned!" Such was the salutation of his beautiful sweetheart at the usual morning visit.

"And he was—where?" demanded M. de Gramont, calmly.

"Stolen, of course, and beaten besides, for he's savage and wicked, hides from every one, gets under the furniture, and refuses to remain upon my lap at any price. No matter; he is here! It is all I care for. Besides, I'll caress him so much he'll forget the fright he has suffered. And now be friends! I was wrong to be cross with you, but you see I thought you had done an evil turn to my poor, dear Jim!"

Roger stifled an "oh!" of fright in an "oh!" of horror. Thus was peace signed that endured this time at the Villa Plagnolles.

Roger simply swam in a tide of tenderness, and Armande was growing almost melancholy under the pressing demands of this lover, who supplicated her ceaselessly. She had not as yet pronounced the sacramental yes, neither had she said him nay.

One evening, when M. de Gramont had shown himself unusually urgent and passionate in his wooing, she allowed him to take her hand and murmured, with a voice that was slightly tremulous, "To-morrow, Roger, to-morrow, I will give you an answer; I promise it!" and, ma foi! M. de Gramont was reasonably certain this response would be the one he had so long desired and awaited.

The night was long—the morning more so, and as soon as les convenances permitted it Roger presented himself at the villa. What else could you expect him to do! It was a case of marriage, you see, and he was in a hurry.

But the villa; well, the villa was topsy turvy. "Mlle. Armande could see no one," was the announcement at the door, and in the garden the domestics were all assembled curiously regarding something in the middle of a great cluster of peonies in the corner of the parterre.

Jim, the false Jim, or rather Jim No. 2, as he saw the moment he approached, accompanied—his legs trembled under him as he counted the catastrophe—by six little cats, evidently just brought into the world, and which Jim was licking lovingly.

M. de Gramont had not made sufficient inquiries. Pressed by the train hour, and without a second to lose, he had contented himself with asking "how much?" and now, scarlet with embarrassment, thunderstruck at the turn of affairs, he stood there, the gaze of the servants bent upon him curiously, an inner voice crying in his ear:

"A nice mess you've made of it! What will you do now? What will become of you! The kitchen and the office laugh together; they accuse you already; they knew before you the habits of the true Jim, his passionate taste for the chase. Deduction is the simplest thing in the world; they devise instinctively the facts of the case; the death of the poacher, the substitution of this interesting mother!

Poor Roger! poor unhappy lover! He dared not lift his eyes for fear of encountering Armande's at the window, and remained there unable to tear his gaze from that young and interesting family! Maternity had plainly sweetened the nature of the cat; it was no longer the least in the world ferocious, but lay there continuing to caress her children and to fix her yellow eyeballs upon Roger with an air of positively thanking him for having shaped her lot and landing her in so comfortable a place.

All these thoughts buzzed in the brain of M. de Gramont like a swarm of bees; to struggle against fate was useless; this last stroke finished him. He yielded; he abandoned everything, and, tearing himself from the spot to which he had been nailed, he ran without a word, without a gesture, without turning his head even; yes, ran with all his legs, gained the gate, the outer road and disappeared. Returned to his room he fell upon a chair and wiped his brow, from which the sweat ran in streams.

An hour later there was a knock at the door and a servant entered with an urgent letter from M. de Plagnolles. "My death sentence!" thought Roger, holding out a hesitating hand.

"My dear Roger," began the letter; "all is discovered; your embarrassment, your fright, your flight betrayed you. Armande was furious, cried hysterically; swore she would never see you again. Then she descended to the garden. She has seen the substitute for Jim and been seized with a sudden affection for the new born. She is mad about them already; intends to raise them all, and awaits your coming to find for them a collection of good English names—the only suitable ones, she contends, to bestow upon the feline race. Come quickly—all will be forgiven. Thine,

PLAGNOLLES.

Happiness is not to be described, and Roger's was complete.

A month later the marriage was solemnized, and a year later the young Mme. de Gramont renounced of her own accord the education and bringing up of cats.

One doubtless divines why.—Translated from the French of Praedel by E. C. Waggoner for New York Mercury.

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you you may depend upon this for certain.

THE CROWNING BARGAINS OF THE YEAR!

All Other Clothing Sales to be Thrown in the Shade.

AN IMPORTANT BUSINESS CHANGE IN THE CITY CLOTHING STORE.

H. LeBRUN,

After having been favored with a large and Prosperous Business during the past fifteen years, has decided to dispose of a share of his business, in order to give the faithful boys a chance. Therefore about the beginning of the New Year, an important change will take in the Business Management of the City Clothing Store, when Mr. JOSEPH PICARD,—who has been in my employ ever since commencing business—will be taken into the firm, and become an active partner of the same.

MAMMOTH PREPARATION SALE!

"Now comes the Tug of War." Previous to the above change taking place, I intend to place the whole of my Extensive Stock of Clothing, Cloths, Gents' Furnishings, &c., amounting to

$27,000 worth of Sterling Goods

at the disposal of the people of the Town and County of Peterborough, and will commence a Sweeping Preparatory Sale, Unequaled for Good Value and Big Dividends,

ON SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17.

In the meantime, the Goods will be all gone over, and re-marked down, including everything in the Store, from cellar to garret. Nothing will be reserved—all MUST go, no matter what the Sacrifice. No tricks during this Sale.

The Goods are all Clean and New, Fashionable and Seasonable—bought originally at Closest Prices, for Cash, in the Best Canadian Markets; besides a large proportion has been imported direct from the Old Country. The Goods do not contain any Bankrupt Stocks, or culls from slaughter houses, but have been manufactured for this season's trade.

In addition to the above regular Stock, I have just made a Splendid purchase of $4,000 worth of Ready-made Clothing, which was offered to me by the manufacturer, at a very Low Figure for Cash. These Goods will be sold along with the rest of the Stock at about Half their ACTUAL VALUE, and are bound to go off like hot cakes.

The Customers of the City Clothing Store are aware that our advertisements are always a simple statement of facts. No Brag, No Bluster, No Extravagant and Misleading Talk. When we advertise Positive Bargains, the Public are sure to get them.

Wholesale Prices to be Completely "Snowed Under"—Bankrupt Stocks to get a Rest

Turnbull's Column.

This Column Tells What is Doing at Turnbull's.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2.00, 2.50 and 3.00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it takes an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Gimlets and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man, yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c. than we will. All other lines just as cheap. Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's. We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

A SUCCESSFUL FORGER.

Two Kingston Merchants Victimized—A Life's Savings Burned.

KINGSTON, Nov. 16.—Kingston must be a favorite place in which to pass forged cheques. Two of them for $15 each, one drawn on the Ontario and the other on the Merchants' Bank, were got rid of yesterday by a young and shrewd man. In Lifflon's jewelry store he presented a check signed by C. F. Gilderal eve, received a silver watch valued at $12.40 and agreed to call for the change to-day. Shortly afterward the forgery was discovered, but the man had disappeared. Previously he entered George Sarsfield's boot and shoe shop, and after having selected a pair of boots, offered a cheque signed by E. W. Rathbun, explaining that he had been sent to that particular store. As the bank was closed he received the boots and $12.50 in cash and departed. The fellow, who put the name of Wm. Ross on the back of the cheques, let on that he could hardly write, so as to disarm the merchants if they suspected forgery. He tried several other stores without success, getting only two victims. It is thought he is an ex-convict.

Mr. and Mrs. Gobe, residing near Kingston, banked their savings, amounting to $900, in an old stocking, hiding it under a bed. Their children transferred the stocking to a stove, and the other day when the first fire of the season was lighted the accumulations of years were destroyed.

Balfour Criticizes Gladstone.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Mr. Balfour made a speech last night at Leeds. In criticizing Mr. Gladstone's recent speech at Birmingham he said that the allegations set forth by the ex-Premier were characterized by unblushing impudence. It was monstrous that the very man who had appointed the bulk of the resident magistracy in Ireland, although he well knew that such invectives had led to murder or suicide, should in order to obtain a cheer from a Birmingham mob, hold them up to the odium of their fellow men. Never once in the course of a long speech had Mr. Gladstone deviated into accuracy. A more scandalous performance had never been given by a great statesman.

Perils of the Deep.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Gen. J. A. Dumont, chief of the steamboat inspection service, reports that during the fiscal year ended June 30, 6425 vessels were inspected and 29,541 officers were licensed, being a decided increase over the work of the preceding year. The total number of accidents during the year resulting in loss of life was 36, causing the death of 208 persons or 18 less than during the previous year. Of the killed 85 were passengers and 117 employes. The loss of life is less than the average annual loss for the decade terminated with the year.

Colonial Stocks in London.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—It is announced that the Court of Chancery has definitely withdrawn the license to trustees to invest in Colonial stocks, finding the same beyond the court's existing legal powers. There is no chance of the bill before Parliament passing this session. City circles express regret that so salutary a change is again postponed, especially seeing the evident justice in the demands of Sir Charles Tupper and others on behalf of the Colonies.

Left to Arbitration.

BROOKLYN, Nov. 17.—The employes of the New Williamsburg and Flatbush Railroad reported for duty yesterday morning, as at a conference held at midnight it was decided between those representing the strikers and President Allen on behalf of the directors of the road to leave the question to the State Board of Arbitration to settle and to abide by the decision of the board.

HIS OWN REVOLVER DID IT

FRED BARBER ENDS HIS LIFE AT SUSPENSION BRIDGE.

A Member of a Well Known Sheffield Cutlery Firm Blows out His Brains Yesterday Afternoon.

TORONTO, Nov. 17.—At 9 o'clock last night this telegram was received at the Queen's Hotel from Coroner Cornell of Suspension Bridge, Ont.:

SUSPENSION BRIDGE, Nov. 16, 1888.

The Queen's, Toronto:

Fred Barber committed suicide here to-night by shooting. Do you know him?

W. H. CORNELL, Coroner.

An answer was immediately sent that Mr. Barber was well known at the Queen's and in this city. He was about 40 years of age and was a partner in the firm of Thomas Ellin & Co., cutlerymen, of Sheffield, Eng., and has travelled for them in Canada for 10 years. He has been in the habit of making semi-annual visits to Canada, and whenever in Toronto made the Queen's his headquarters. Mr. Barber has relatives in Oakville, and with them he spent Thanksgiving Day and returned to Toronto yesterday morning. Not feeling well he summoned Dr. Thorburn, who, after making out a prescription, told him to remain in bed all day. After the doctor left the hotel Barber came down to the office and said he had made up his mind to go to New York. He settled his bill and asked the clerk, Mr. Sam. Thompson, for a revolver which he had in the safe. Mr. Thompson says the revolver was empty when he gave it to Mr. Barber. Before leaving the hotel he told Mr. Thompson that he had been advised by his doctor to remain in his room, but that after he left he felt considerably better and thought he would walk around. It was after this that he resolved to leave the city, which he accordingly did at 2.50 p.m. That was the last the hotel people saw or heard of him until the telegram announcing his suicide last night.

Barber was a man of quiet manner and gentlemanly appearance and address. When Dr. Thorburn was consulted he saw that his patient was suffering from some mental disorder, and observed last evening, when he heard of the suicide, that he was not surprised. The deceased was a total abstainer. The Queen's management has cabled Barber's firm in England of the suicide.

Details of the Suicide.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 16.—Shortly after the arrival of the Grand Trunk mail train at the New York Central depot, Suspension Bridge, N.Y., at 7.55 this evening, the employes around the baggage-room heard what they thought was the explosion of large fire cracker outside on the north platform. Hiller, a newspaper boy, called Bridge Conductor Wm. Rogers, who was standing a few rods away. The boy, pointing to a man lying down, asked him to keep him on his feet. Rogers, thinking that it was some one under the influence of liquor, attempted to raise him when a revolver fell from the folds of his overcoat and he found the man sweltering in his blood, he having deliberately placed the nozzle of a Smith & Wesson 44-calibre silver-plated self-cocker revolver into his mouth and discharged the contents. The ball entered his head, passing out behind the right ear. Death was instantaneous.

The suicide was well dressed in a dark brown suit, with a heavy black beaver overcoat, black Christy hat, black, yellow and red and broad stripe necktie. On his left hand he wore a heavy gold ring, with large solitaire diamond setting. He is a heavy-set man, 5 ft. 11 in., and weighs 200 pounds. He has a heavy black mustache, tinged with a little grey. Coroner Cornell was at once notified and took the remains to his undertaking rooms.

In his pockets were a large number of letters and papers, both personal and business, and from them it was learned his name is Fred Barber, of 23 Chipping House Road, Sheffield, England, and was representing the Sylvester Works and Thomas Ellin & Co. of Sheffield. He held Grand Trunk Railway baggage certificate No. 2142, issued by Wm. Edgar at Montreal, Nov. 9, 1888. From the papers it was evident he had put up at the Queen's Hotel, Toronto, and St. Lawrence Hall, Montreal, and had sold a bill of goods for Thos. Ellin & Co., to C. & J. Allen, Toronto. Amongst a large number of cards were those of Joseph Martin, Montreal, and Joseph S. Tyler, Galt, Ont., also a personal letter from Peter Barclay, of P. Barclay & Co., patent cylinder lubricators, 19 Pearl-street, Boston, Mass., in regard to some patent that gentleman was securing for him. He had $122 in paper money and a gold watch and chain. He was identified by the trainmen on the G.T.R. mail train as a passenger on their train. They did not notice anything wrong, and he acted anything but like a person that would take his own life. When asked about his baggage he spoke very cheerfully and thanked the railway baggage check man when told about changing cars on the American side and that he would have to get his baggage passed through customs before he could go east. He held a through ticket by the New York Central to New York.

After the arrival of the train at the New York Central depot he went to the baggage-room, as directed, and had his large valise and bundle rugs passed through the customs and checked to New York. He must have gone straight from the room around the west end of the depot to the north side and shot himself.

MANITOBA MATTERS.

The House to Adjourn To-day—Fletcher Acquitted at Brandon.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 16.—A resolution condemning the action of the Canadian Pacific Railway in resisting the crossing by the Portage extension and threatening retaliation if the policy is continued, was adopted in the Legislature this afternoon. The house will probably adjourn to-morrow.

The Provencher election will eventuate early in January.

The question of responsible government for the Territories is attracting very little attention in the Assembly, the general opinion being that it is best to give the present system a fair trial.

Fletcher, charged with the murder of Matheson, was acquitted at the Brandon assizes.

A wealthy Irishman named Holt died very suddenly at Oak Lake yesterday.

The Bedson buffalo herd will be shipped to Kansas to-morrow.

Sir Lester Kaye intends entering largely into the manufacture of linen and binding cord from flax and expects it will be decided that the Northwest product is equal to the best Irish. Thirty-three thousand sheep will be imported from Oregon for his farms.

Lesueck publicly accuses Attorney-General Martin of being a "common falsifier" in connection with statements attributed to the latter touching the action of the militia in the recent crossing difficulty.

The Dewsbury Election.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—In the parliamentary election at Dewsbury to-day Oldroyd (Gladstonian) received 5071 votes, and Arnold Foster (Unionist) 3962. In the last election the Home Rule candidate received 5117 and the Conservative 2730.

A $300 Blaze at Goderich.

GODERICH, Nov. 16.—A fire broke out this afternoon in the stable of Mr. A. McD. Allan. A strong wind prevailed at the time and in a short time the stable and contents were totally destroyed. Loss $300.

THE PARNELL COMMISSION.

Lady Mountmorris Faints in the Witness Box—Sir Charles Russell's Protest.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—The proceedings of the Parnell Commission to-day were made interesting by the appearance on the witness stand of Lady Mountmorris, whose husband, Lord Mountmorris, was murdered at Clonbar, County Galway, in 1880. Sir Charles Russell, counsel for the Parnellites, was proceeding to cross-examine Lady Mountmorris when the witness fainted and would have fallen to the floor had not a court officer caught her. Sir Charles thereupon intimated that he would not proceed any further in cross-examination.

Sir Henry James, of The Times counsel, then announced that it was proposed to give evidence in relation to outrages committed in County Kerry.

Sir Charles Russell protested and Justice Hannen agreed that the Commission could follow the evidence by the method in which it was proposed to give it only with enormous difficulty, but when assured by counsel that there was no other manner to shorten the case than the course purposed, the court was bound to assent.

Sir Charles thereupon said warmly: "All I can do then is to protest against a course which certainly will not conduce to facilitate the enquiry."

Pat. Sullivan, a farmer of County Kerry, was examined. He said in June, 1884, a man came to his door, called him out and shot him with a revolver. After he had recovered from his wound he was called upon to attend a meeting of the League, where he was asked to let a particular tenant off with a reduction of rent. He assented. Cross-examined, witness said he did not connect the shooting with any member of the League. At the meeting he was not threatened. Sullivan was then re-examined by Attorney-General Webster, who asked: "Since you came here to-day have you spoken to either of the Messrs. Harrington?"

Timothy Harrington, rising from his place in the counsel seat, said: "I never remember having seen the witness before."

Edward Harrington, who was seated on the bench behind counsel, also arose and exclaimed: "This is an unfair imputation. I have never seen the man before to-day. It is hard to have our names thus dragged in."

Justice Hannan addressing Timothy Harrington said: "This proceeding is quite irregular. You ought to know that you cannot take part in the case both as counsel and witness."

Mr. Harrington replied: "I did not appear as a witness."

"Justice Hannen: "You cannot interfere at all."

Mr. Harrington: "The Attorney-General mentioned my name and I must request you to afford me the protection of the court."

Justice Hannen: "Let the court stand adjourned. We must maintain decorum."

The judges here left the bench hurriedly amid a scene of great excitement. Counsel for both sides remained in their places and Mr. Harrington consulted with counsel for the defense. The judges were absent 10 minutes. When they returned their places on the bench Mr. Harrington immediately saw that he had not meat any disrespect to the court.

Justice Hannen responded: "All persons alike must obey the direction of the court. I am glad to receive your statement."

The taking of evidence was then resumed.

A Blizzard Reminder.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—The jury in the suit of Frank E. Pooley against the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad Company, to recover damages for injuries sustained in a collision on March 12 last, the day of the great blizzard, returned a verdict to-day for the plaintiff for $9000. The defence of the company was that the accident was unavoidable and due to an act of God: that the engine of the train on which the plaintiff was a passenger was frozen up and could not proceed, and that the engineer of the other train was unable to see before him on account of the snow in the air.

Went Through a Bridge.

ELDORADO, Kan., Nov. 16.—A heavily loaded cattle train of 25 cars on the Missouri Pacific Railway went through Walnut River bridge last night. The engine and 10 cars were completely wrecked, 100 cattle were killed and many crippled. Fireman Kellogg was thrown 50 feet and although he was badly bruised he crawled back into the wreck and held up Engineer Spencer's head and kept him from drowning for 55 minutes until they were rescued. Spencer was caught between the engine and tender and terribly injured. It is thought he cannot recover. The loss to the company is $50,000.

Limits to the Rights of Insinuation.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 16.—The Journal de St. Petersbourg, referring to assertions made by The Paris Matin in relation to a Franco-Russian alliance, says: "There are limits to the rights of insinuation. Russia certainly desires to see France regain her legitimate position among the nations, which is necessary to preserve the equilibrium of Europe, but she is convinced that peace is for the interest of both France and Russia. Such insinuations, therefore, can only injure the cause they claim to defend."

The Week's Failures.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—The business failures occuring throughout the country during the last seven days, as reported to Dun, Wiman & Co., number for the United States 205 and for Canada 32, or a total of 237 as compared with a total of 226 last week and 275 the week previous to the last. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 224, made up of 205 failures in the United States and 19 in Canada.

Both Parties Claim the U. S. House.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Senator Gray, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, said this afternoon that the Republicans would certainly have control of the next House of Representatives by a majority of five. Clerk Thompson of the House says the House will be Democratic by a majority of from one to five.

The Nun of Kenmare.

UTICA, Nov. 16.—Sister Mary Frances Clare, known so widely in the religious and literary world as "Nun of Kenmare," the author of about 30 books and founder of numerous schools, convents and institutions for the training of working girls, has resigned her position as Mother Superior of the Sisters of Peace.

Without Foundation.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 16.—It is officially declared that the assertions made by The Kreuz Zeitung and Post of Berlin, that the redistribution of troops in Western Russia implied an advance and that the Russian garrisons on the frontier have been strengthened by two and in some instances three divisions, are without foundation.

Died From Apoplexy.

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 16.—While picking apples Wednesday evening Mrs. George Bishop, one of the oldest and most respected residents of the township of Adelaide, was stricken down with apoplexy and died shortly after.

The Coronation Number.

BARRIE, Nov. 16.—F. J. Lower is the possessor of a copy of The London (Eng.) Sun, dated June 29, 1838. It is the coronation number of that paper, and is printed in gilt letters, contains an excellent cut of the girl Queen, and gives a full description of the coronation festivities in London.

QUEBEC'S BOODLE CASE.

SENSATIONAL EVIDENCE AT THE INVESTIGATION.

Was Useless to Tender Unless Things Were Fixed and so a Contractor Fixed Things.

QUEBEC, Nov. 16.—The civic boodle investigation was resumed to-day. The whole session was occupied by the examination of W. McLea Walbank, the Montreal contractor for the Quebec water works, who told how he manipulated matters so as to obtain the contract. There were three in his syndicate, the other two being S. C. Stevenson and Mr. Lee, both of Montreal.

Walbank deposed that he made the acquaintance of Trudel, chief of the river police, who is charged with bribing aldermen, at the St. Louis Hotel, being introduced by the late Willis Russel, then an alderman, who told him it would be useless to tender unless he fixed things beforehand. Trudel gave witness two names as a guarantee of his good faith, one of which was Hon. Wilfrid Laurier.

After much negotiation Walbank offered Trudel a one-half interest in the contract if he succeeded in getting the Council to grant it to his syndicate. His interest was estimated at $30,000, which was to be divided among Trudel's syndicate, which included Charles Langelier, M.P., Pacaud of L'Electeur, Tarte of Le Canadien, and Carrell of The Telegraph, and afterwards lawyer L. P. Vallee, then a Councillor, was brought in.

Walbank repudiated all intention to bribe the Mayor and Council. He simply wanted local influence.

Shortly before the contracts were awarded Trudel insisted on part of his $30,000 being paid. He wanted cash, but the Walbank syndicate objected. Trudel wanted $10,000, deposited with Vincollette, Warden of Beauport Asylum, to be handed to Trudel after the contract was awarded. This was objected to and finally $9000 was handed Vallee in trust and a package of bills and waste paper was sent Vincollette so as to make the members of the Trudel syndicate believe that the money had been deposited in full.

Further evidence was given tending to show that Trudel took all the money himself and gave the Walbank syndicate little return.

The evidence created much excitement, and further developments are looked for.

A MARKED RADICAL FEELING

Displayed in the House of Commons Against the Queensland Appointment.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The Queensland Governor question is still much canvassed inside and outside of Parliament. Official circles continue strong in the belief that in view of the frequent intensity of colonial politics it would be most unwise to take the sole responsibility for the selection of governors from the unpartisan hands of the Imperial Ministers; yet it is generally recognized that if Queensland persists in objecting to Governor Blake he cannot be forced upon the colony.

A marked radical feeling against Mr. Blake was shown in the House of Commons last night during the discussion of the question, and it is fully expected that the appointment will be cancelled, though it is hoped that a middle course will be found to satisfy the colonial demand for prior intimation as to a Crown nominee, and thus avoid a recurrence of the unpleasant situation, especially seeing that South Australia would support Queensland, though the colonies generally never evinced a greater desire to co-operate with the Mother Country.

Posters For Parliament.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Parliament will be questioned on Monday with reference to the appointment of a successor to Lord Sackville, the British Minister at Washington. On Thursday the fisheries dispute will be brought up.

Indian papers assert that 1000 British Indian traders have been ruined in the German East African settlement. The Government will be asked whether a claim will be made for compensation from Germany.

New Postal Arrangement.

OTTAWA, Nov. 17.—An arrangement has just been completed by the Postmaster-General with the Postmaster-General of Newfoundland for the interchange by post of parcels between the two countries. The same rate and regulations will apply as now pertain to the parcel post between Canada and England.

Attempted Suicide.

BRANTFORD, Nov. 16.—Albert Warren, the colored man who attempted to beat out his wife's brains with an iron pot, endeavored to commit suicide in jail last evening. He took off his braces, making a noose by tearing a piece off his shirt, and was just about to suspend himself to the cell door when a fellow-prisoner gave the alarm.

Bronze John Still Claiming Victims.

FERNANDINA, Fla., Nov. 17.—Three new cases of yellow fever and one death were reported yesterday.

JACKSONVILLE, Nov. 17.—Fifteen new cases of yellow fever were reported yesterday. There were no deaths.

The First in 31 Years.

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 17.—Peter A. Day (Dem.) has about 500 majority in a total vote of over 400,000 for Railroad Commissioner. It is thirty-one years since a Democrat has been elected to any state office in Iowa before this one.

Failure of a Big Clothing Firm.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—The heavy wholesale clothing firm of Lindaur Bros. & Co. filed confessions of judgment to-day aggregating $181,622. The firm is one of the largest firms of wholesale clothiers in the country.

U. S. National Board of Trade.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—At the morning session of the National Board of Trade resolutions were adopted calling on Congress to take measures looking to a strengthening of our harbors and coast defences, to reduce the revenue and to restrict immigration.

The Crest of the Cold Wave.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 17.—The crest of the cold wave passed over the Northwest yesterday and left the following records of its intensity: Duluth 12 above zero, St. Paul 16, Moorhead 6, St. Vincent 2, Bismarck 12, Fort Custer 2, Winnipeg zero.

A Disastrous Gale.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Thursday's gale was very severe in the northern part of Ireland where much damage was done to property. At Belfast the wind blew with frightful force and several vessels were wrecked at the entrance to Belfast lough.

A Strike Compromised.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 17.—The brakeman's strike on the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago Railroad was compromised yesterday.

Thomas Royle Bain of Tilsonburg, died somewhat suddenly yesterday morning.

The Times Apologized.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—Sir John Pope Hennessy, while Governor of Mauritius began proceedings against The London Times for libel. Since then The Times has apologized for its offensive language. The case came up in court to-day and the judge gave a formal verdict for plaintiff.

IS LIFE WORTH LIVING?

SERMON BY LAYMAN.

To the Editor of the Review.

This is a plain and simple question, yet it will be answered differently by different persons. The young and the hopeful will say yes. They think life is given them for enjoyment. Their sun is just rising and is full of brightness and hope, their bodies are full of energy and strength, and their minds fresh and vigorous and they look forward to a long life of pleasure and happiness. The middle aged are not so confident, they have seen something of the world and they have many times found their road rough and hard to travel. They have experienced disappointments. They have had their youthful days, but now their failings and their hopes are not what they were then. If life were confined to this world alone they would not attach very great value to it. But in view of the life beyond, the life here is worth living, it being but a means to an end, and that end being life eternal. The first Napoleon, when at the heighth of his ambition and power, was in doubt that life was worth living. He was dictator of all the world, except England, and kings and monarch bowed down to and acknowledged him their ruler. And he believed himself to be the absolute ruler of the world. But he had not conquered, and he could not conquer England, and she, like a blood hound, was soon on his track, and she finally conquered him and sent him a prisoner to a far off island of the sea, where he died. He then had time to look back over his past life, and there is no doubt he then thought life was not worth living. Though he never looked beyond himself, this world contained all his thoughts and all his objects and feelings. And his solitary hours upon that lonely island must have been full of bitterness and pain. And he died and was buried and thus this great man's career was at an end. He lived for the world and he died for the world, and his prospects beyond the grave were dark and dreary. Go into the tenement houses and by-ways of a large city and view the persons whom you meet there. Some so changed and so degraded as hardly to be called human, fast wasting their lives in dissipation and vice. Some again struggling against adverse circumstances and trying to maintain an appearance of that respectability which they once possessed. Toiling on by day and by night to keep themselves from further poverty and misery. With their little surroundings so few and so worn as scarcely to be worth the trouble of preservation. Ask them if life is worth the living and they would tell you that it is not if this world was all they had to hope for. They will tell you that there is another and a better world beyond, towards which this life leads them, a world where there is peace and happiness and where the weary are at rest. With this belief and with these hopes and expectations before them they are willing to suffer and to toil on, and they will tell you that under these circumstances, life is worth the living. For if it were not for this life there would be no life to come. No heaven and no future peace and joy and happiness. They will tell you that this life is given them, with all its cares and sorrows, to fit them for the world to come, and they will tell you that they are patiently waiting the summons to leave their troubles here to go to the home above which God has provided for all those who love and serve him here below. They will tell you that this world is not their home, only an abiding place where they are only for a time and where they make themselves ready for the enjoyments of a heavenly home. And so they toil on and wait on, but by and by they are taken home, when there is no more poverty and toil and suffering, to live forever and forever with their Saviour and the angels who sing day and night the praises of their Lord. Thus life here is worth living to all those who properly appreciate it, and use it rightly.

I'm on my way to Zion, Oh sinner won't you come,
And join our noble army and with us go marching on,
Our Saviour, He is leading, so we need never fear,
For Jesus is our Captain, He's made the path so clear.

The pleasures of this world are bright, but Heaven's are brighter still,
Then won't you come and enlist and do our Saviour's will,
Our army is pressing onward, and when the battle's won,
We'll then go home to Jesus and wear a starry crown.

Oh, the way is getting brighter and brighter every day,
For Jesus is our Captain, He's leading all the way,
We at times have many trials and troubles to contend,
But if we look to Jesus, He'll keep us to the end.

Then don't go on in sin my friends, Jesus has set you free,
For you that precious Saviour was nailed upon the tree,
Backslider, you may come too. He's waiting to forgive,
Don't doubt Him any longer, But turn to Him and live.

Such is the song of all those who think life is worth living and who appreciate God's goodness, and who know that the better day is coming. If they have trials and troubles they bear with them patiently, for they know that it is only for a little while, and that the time is coming when they will be more than rewarded for all their sufferings here. But how different is the position of those who look only to this world and whose hopes and pleasures never go beyond it; having nothing to look forward to in the future to bear them through their difficulties here, though they imagine that they know best what is their destiny, and so they become discontented with their lot and say life is not worth the living. They will not see how fully God has provided for all those who are willing to accept His gifts and to enjoy them. They will not follow in His ways. They go on trusting to themselves alone. They abuse the blessings which are offered them, and when they reap as they have sown, they complain that God has not answered everything according to their wish. They barter their future for a present enjoyment which lasts only for a day and is then gone, leaving nothing but sorrow and trouble behind. And when their journey in this world is drawing to a close and they are languishing upon a bed of sickness and they hear the thunderings of the coming storm, when all is blackness and darkness around, they begin to see things as they are, to see things as they should have seen them long ago. But they find it is now too late to realize that life after all was worth the living.

THE IDIOT BOY.

On a winter's night, the streets were white,
For the snow was falling fast,
On a doorstep cold, in a few rags roll'd,
To protect from the keen north blast,
Sat an idiot-boy, and he laugh'd with joy
And sang as the snow blew past;
"Oh! such is life and life is such,
And after all it is not much—
First a cradle; last a hearse;
Might be better; might be worse."

Far had he stray'd from his home and made
A home for himself from the cold
On the doorstep damp, where the pale street-lamp
Shone on his features bold,
Showing a mouth of make uncouth
Moving in song that told—
"That such was life and life was such,
That after all it is not much—
Here a blessing; here a curse;
Might be better; might be worse."

Fierce flies the wind; but the idiot's mind
Feels not its keenest breath;
Fast falls the snow; how can he know
That he chants the dirge of his death;
But the great God of love and the angles above
List to the song as it saith—
"Ah! such is life and life is such,
And after all it is not much—
First a cradle; last a hearse;
Might be better; might be worse."

Keener it blows; colder it grows;
But the idiot sits there still;
Fainter he sings, and each line brings
Nearer his heart a chill,
And death sighed will only find
A little of him to kill—
"Ah! such is life and life is such,
That after all it is not much—
Here a blessing; there a curse;
Might be better; might be worse."

At length he rose and the heavy snows
Hung thick on his breast and head;
With one short cry his life slipt by
And he fell on the doorstone—dead!
But the great God of Love called his spirit above
For the truth the poor idiot said—
"Ah! such is life and life is such;
And, all considered, is not much—
First a cradle; last a hearse;
Here a blessing; there a curse;
Might be better; might be worse."

Reading the Death List.

The daily death list published in the newspapers is anxiously consulted by more people than those who have an idle curiosity to know who is dead. During a campaign, candidates for office are anxious to attend funerals that are liable to congregate men of influence. A certain class of lawyers are on the lookout for damage suits. Tombstone dealers take notes with a view to business in the future. Insurance agents make a memorandum to call upon the surviving relatives in due time. The keepers of the beer houses out near the cemeteries gauge their orders according to the outlook for the day. The class who want free carriage rides scan the column attentively, and dozens of other classes read the dreary list with more or less selfishness.—Undertaker in Globe-Democrat.

The Reading Will not Cut Rates.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—The Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company gave notice yesterday to all its connecting lines that on and after Dec. 1, it would not participate in any cut rates and that on that date the rates in force before the cut was made by the Trunk lines will be exacted in all cases.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you you may depend upon this for certain.

the prize given by Kidd the boot man for finding out exactly how much the public ought to pay for a pair of shoddy boots. The price should not exceed 5 60-72 cents. So that King's make of boots (bought from Kidd) is cheaper at $1.25 a pair than the Shoddy Shark's is at six cent a pair. d113tf

A Severe Pinch.

Reggie Dixon was the victim of a practical joke in the Y. M. C. A. rooms last evening. He was sitting on a camp chair and as a joke the chair was let down by another boy. Reggie Dixon's index finger was caught in the chair with his weight on it, and the top of the finger was taken off. Dr. Yelland dressed the injury.

Eight Scott Act Cases.

Eight more Scott Act cases were on the docket at the Police Court yesterday the eight being Messrs. Morrow, Geo. Henry, Rush Bros., Connors, Conroy, Dunn, Chamberlain and Mitchell. The first five pleaded guilty and were fined $40 and costs, and the last three failing to appear were enlarged until to-day.

For the Poor.

In announcing a lecture in Cobourg by Bishop Dowling the World says:—"Bishop Dowling is an eloquent speaker—always interesting and instructive." The Bishop will give a lecture in St. Peter's Cathedral to-morrow evening on "The Church and the Bible." The proceeds will be for the fund of the St. Vincent de Paul Society for the benefit of the poor.

346 Opera House Block.

Owing to the steady increase in the demand for Fresh Ground Coffee, W. J. Morrow has found it necessary to place in his shop a large coffee mill, manufactured by the Star Manufacturing Co., of Philadelphia, and as he uses nothing but the very finest Bean Coffee and grinds daily, or as required, parties can rely on getting the finest coffees to be had in town. d113

The Business Growing.

It is pleasing to see commendable enterprise succeed, and it is therefore gratifying to know that Messrs. Porter Bros. are building up a good trade on the other side of the wide Atlantic. They have received another order for a dozen road carts from their agent in Glasgow, Scotland, and a similar order to be sent to London, Eng. Their agent is also establishing a branch in Ireland, and the three kingdoms will soon be drawing these popular carts from Peterborough. This transatlantic business is a result of the visit paid to the Old Country by Mr. James Stewart, the firm's accountant, who established the agency in Glasgow.

ARRESTED FOR FORGERY.

The Man who is said to have Forged Mayor Stevenson's name Arrested.

Chief Douglas arrested at Port Hope yesterday a man named Wm. Ferguson, alias Lorie Ross, on a charge of forging Mayor Stevenson's name to a cheque here almost a year ago now, and of passing the said cheque on Messrs. Foote & McWhinnie. The man who commited the forgery went out to the woods and nothing more was done about the matter, and it was a thing almost forgotten until Chief Hoszel received word that this man had been arrested in his home, Port Hope. The chief went down at noon to-day to bring the prisoner here.

ACCOUNT OF THE FORGERY.

On Thursday, Dec. 22nd, a man who purported to be Wm. Ferguson walked into Messrs. Foote & McWhinnie's boot and shoe store, and wanted a pair of felt boots. He was going out to Toole's woods to work and was in a great hurry to catch the train. He had a cheque supposed to be signed by Mr. Jas. Stevenson, and said if the boot and shoe men would cash the cheque he would buy the boots. Mr. Foote took down a pair of boots and Ferguson at once picked up a pair of number nines, and was in such a hurry to catch the train that he did not try them on. He handed over a cheque on the Ontario Band signed by Mr. Jas. Stevenson for the sum of $16.

"Is that your name?" queried Mr. Foote.

"Yes," replied the man.

"Then endorse the cheque," replied Mr. Foote.

The man explained he could not write, but he made his mark, and Mr. Foote gave him his change—$16. As soon as he got the change he picked up the boots and got out.

Upon presenting the cheque at the Ontario Bank it was pronounced no good and a forgery. The signature on the cheque was a very deliberate attempt at forging the Mayor's style of writing his name.

The Witness Obtained.

The name of the boy whom Greenfield met on the Mud Lake Road and inquired the way to Cavanville, which was asked for in last evening's REVIEW, was handed to Chief Hoszel by the young man's father this morning. "Men are wise who advertise," etc.

Otonabee Canoe Club.

A meeting of the Otonabee Canoe Club will be held on Monday evening at the rooms of Mr. James Little, over Mr. Cox's office. This club does not confine itself to summer amusements, as last winter it conducted an excellent debating club. There should be a large attendance on Monday evening.

Highly Pleased.

To G. B. Sproule, Photographer, Peterborough.

New York, Oct 11, 1888.

DEAR SIR.—Photos received, and it affords me great pleasure to say that they surpass any work ever done for me. Will be happy to recommend you to my many friends in the profession.

Royal Arch Masonary

Word has been received by the officers that a visit to the Corinthian Royal Arch Chapter, No. 8, G.R.C., will be made on Tuesday evening next, the 20th inst., by R. Ex. Comp. W. R. Howse, of Whitby, Grand Superintendent Ontario district. The date given is that of the regular meeting of the chapter and the visit being the first official visit of the G. S., it is hoped that there will be a full attendance.

Heating Bankrupt Stock Prices.

Remember, remember the 17th of Nov., the date of commencing the big clearing sale of clothing at LeBrun's. An important business change necessitating sweeping out the stock. Everything must go by 1st January. G'gantic bargains the rule. Goods sold at less than bankrupt prices. Read the large advertisement and see how you can save money. All hands busy this week marking down prices on all goods. 3d113

"It's for Money."

The enlarged cases of breach of the Scott Act against Messrs. Dunn, Chamberlain and Cavanagh, were further enlarged until Monday. Thirteen other cases came up and all the accused pleaded guilty and were fined $50 and costs. These names were Messrs. W. Clancy, F. J. Daly, Elliott & Tierney, W. McGreggor, Geo. Cameron, M. Halpin, R. N. Roddy, J. E. McIntyre, Geo. Mitchell, A. P. Morgan, J. Clancy, J. Garvey and W. Croft. The makes of the twenty-nine cases that have been up this week.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dark, dull days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 55 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember Jas. Best's stand, 39 George-st. d111tf

Notice of Visit.

Mr. P. H. Morris, from the establishment of B. Laurance & Co., the Opticians, of Montreal, will be at the store of the agent, as under, for consultation, and for the purpose of suiting to all difficult and unusual cases of defective sight, the most perfect aids to vision known, the "B. Laurance" spectacles and eyeglasses. Mr. P. H. Morris is eminently qualified to adjust spectacles to every case where relief can be afforded. No charge made for consultation. Note the date of visit. For three days only, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, 20th 21st and 22nd Nov., 1888, at the store of Mr. John McKee, druggist, Peterborough. 9d112-1w46

Personal.

Mr. Geo. A. Cox has been re-elected a director of the Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby.

Dr. Montague, M. P. for Haldimand, was in town to-day on his way to take part in the election campaign in East Northumberland.

Mr. Atkinson, of the Toronto World, passed through town to-day to Campbellford. He goes to write up the campaign for his paper.

Mr. A. P. Choate who went from Peterborough to a daily paper in Toronto, has accepted a more lucrative position on an organ of the hardware trade in that city.

Mr. W. F. Johnston, of the office of Mr. A. P. Poussette, Q.C., passed his barrister's examination with flying colors, coming out at the top of the list. This is a most creditable showing and Mr. Johnston is to be congratulated.

Referring to the promotion of Mr. A. E. Ames, formerly of Peterborough, to the managership of the Ontario Bank at Lindsay, the Post says:—"Mr. Ames is an obliging and affable young man, and as an experienced and capable official the customers of the bank and the general public will find considerate and kindly treatment as under the preceding manager."

The Lindsay Post says:—"Mr. R. Morrow, the genial registrar of Peterborough, was in town Tuesday afternoon. Many old friends were pleased to see that he had not forgotten Lindsay, and availed themselves of the opportunity to "shake." Mr. Morrow admitted that the town was progressing rapidly, but hinted his belief that it would be "a spell" before we caught up to his burg. Such a loyal expression should be duly honored—but there ain't nuthin' to it."

A Serious Accident.

The four-year old son of Mr. W. G. Ferguson, while out playing yesterday afternoon about four o'clock, was struck in the back of the head with a stone, which inflicted a severe wound and caused insensibility. Dr. King was called and put the several stitches in the cut, and the child is doing very well.

The Market.

There was a large attendance at the market this morning, and price were about the same as last week. The market buildings here are too small for the accommodation of Saturday's market, and to-day it was a struggle to get around at all. Poultry was in great supply, and sold, chickens at 35c to 45c, ducks at 60 to 75, geese 50c to 60c, turkeys 80c to 90c. Apples sold at $1.75 to $2.25 per barrel and 90c to $1 per bag. Potatoes per bag 50c and 55c, beef 4½ and 5, and hogs 5¾ and 6. Grain remains unchanged.

Thanks Tendered.

Capt. Annesley and staff at "Hazel Brae" desire to tender their grateful thanks for $42.00, the amount of the Thanksgiving collection at the George-st. Church. This kind remembrance of Dr. Barnardo's good work was wholly unsolicited and unexpected, and on that account is all the more acceptable as a token of the friendly appreciation of those who know what a real benefit the institution is to the town from a business point of view. It may not be generally known, and therefore it may be well to state, that over $6,000 are spent in Peterborough every year by the Hazel Brae "Home."

Institute Literary Society.

A meeting of the above society was held on Friday afternoon in the Institute. Mr. Fife, President, occupied the chair. The programme consisted of two papers by Mr. J. H. Long, Principal, the first being on "Responsible Government in Canada," and was very able and instructive. The second was in the form of a poem, written by himself, on the Carnival at Montreal, which was enthusiastically received by the pupils. Two instrumental pieces by Miss Noble and Miss Fair were well rendered and brought the programme to a close.

It Makes them Smile.

It is a week since the devastating cyclone in the shape of Gough's great sale of the Sheppard bankrupt stock swept down upon the dry goods people of Peterborough. To-day the customers still continued to line into the store by the dozens, and the clerks were compelled to chew tooth picks, the taking of fifteen minutes for lunch being out of the question. Farmers came in with empty baskets just to look at the prices and see how the newspapers had exaggerated the reductions, but they went out with full baskets and a six inch grin overspread every countenance. A stock bought at 60 cents on the dollar can be sold at prices that will surprise the hardest customer and cause them to jump at the snap. The rush will continue, for the country people are here to tell their uncles and their cousins and their aunts, and in they'll come and "stock up" for the winter and next summer, too. The goods are no common bankrupt stock, but well selected and first class throughout.

If you do not use the Ideal Felt Tooth Polisher you either have no teeth, or wilfully refuse one of the greatest comforts and benefits of modern civilization. You will find it superior in every way to bristles. 6d116

A MUSICAL EVENING.

The McGibney Family Give a Most Unique and Admirable Concert.

The large audience that assembled in the Opera House last night to listen to the concert given by the McGibeny Family, did so to hear one of the most pleasing, admirable and unique musical entertainment ever given in Peterborough. The McGibney family are celebrated all over the United States for their wonderful musical talent and their programme will please almost any one, as the classical is combined with the amusing. The family comprises sixteen souls, all of whom have spent their lives in the atmosphere of music, and make a happy picture on the stage. From the father down to little Leo each member seems to have music in their composition and they have the power of using that talent in such a manner that the audience sat delighted with every number on the bill and was sorry when the last item was reached. Comment on the soloists would be out of place as their reputations preceded them. The kindergarten song, however, by the five younger members of the family was well executed, the cuteness of the actions of Little Leo, a four-year old little tot, causing much amusement. The little fellow's song "Bob White" also caught the audience, and the many other appearances of the youngster in the family orchestra selections and especially in the final all-eyes band quickstep when he played the bass drum with both hands and in remarkably correct time for a child. The male and female vocal quartettes were admirable, as were the overtures and choruses. The programme will give those who did not hear the treat a good idea of its character:—

They give a matinee this afternoon, and appear again to-night with an entire change of programme.

Brevities.

—No arrests last night.

—The halls of the police home were unoccupied last night.

—Mr. Charles McDonald, formerly of Westwood, is fitting up a new hotel in Norwood.

—The Norwood team defeated the Victoria University club on Thursday by one goal to none.

—A son of Mr. M. Ready, of Seymour, was drowned in Muskoka las week. The body was brought home for burial.

—Mr. T. Blute, of Campbellford, and Mr. Cochrane killed six deer, some mink and beaver in three days, north of Stoney Lake.

—The winter maketh its appearance, and the heart of the dude without a winter overcoat and cap is heavy with much sorrowing.

—The Methodists of Norwood will build a new church on their property at the corner of Peterborough and Colborne-sts. It will cost in the neighborhood of $15,000 or $20,000.

—A horse put up at auction on the market this morning would not bring a dollar. It was a chance for some one who wanted a nice, quite animal, for this one looked as tired as the men who bet on Cleveland did a few days ago.

—With the holiday season close at hand the wide-awake merchant adopts the quickest and most effective mode of securing patronage, by stating what he has to sell in a well-written, attractively-set advertisement in the columns of the REVIEW.

—It is said that the locomotive which was disabled by a broken beam, on the Grand Junction Railway, last week, has run over 38,000 miles of track without ever anything going wrong which necessitated a single delay. It has been sent to the workshop for repairs which will cost about one thousand dollars.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth it relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, it soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether arising from teething or other causes 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

The Invention of Destructives.

Is there any limit to the invention of destructives? The ironclad is now doomed by the invention of a torpedo boat that can dive completely under, fasten explosives to the keel and then by means of a wire work the cartridges at a distance with electricity. The boat is said to be perfectly manageable under water. Electrical appliances evidently will revolutionize us in every direction. Warfare on the waters is getting to be too dangerous a game. It is no longer a question of prowess and pluck, but of possession of the latest explosives and appliances. War grows not only more hideous in the light of modern refinements, but more ghastly in its ability simply to mechanically to destroy. It is far pleasanter reading that an English clergyman has invented a new boat for saving life. It is twenty-five feet long, double pointed, and made of canvas. It can be folded and stored, and will hold 100 persons. A vessel furnished with these is practically in a condition to insure the lives of all passengers.—Globe-Democrat.

The feeling in favor of adopting a universal hour is growing among savants, the Russians being the chief remaining obstacles.

TOPICS FROM THE CAPITAL

IT IS SAID MR. JOHN PRICE IS TO BE CALLED TO THE SENATE.

The Evidence in the Electric Light Case Finished—Dangerous Illness of the Father of Hon. Mr. Foster.

OTTAWA, Nov. 16.—It is understood that the contracts for militia clothing for the next twelve months will be let to the parties who had them last year on the same terms, the work having been satisfactorily performed.

The hearing of evidence in the Edison electric light case before Deputy Commissioner of Patents Pope has been finished and the case adjourned until the evidence can be transcribed and distributed to the lawyers, when the argument will take place.

Hon. Mr. Dewdney left for Toronto to-night on private business. He has received letters from settlers north of the Qu'Appelle lakes that although their crops have suffered from frost they are not discouraged and will put a larger area under crop next spring.

It is rumored that Mr John Price of the firm of Price Bros. & Co. will be called to the Senate in the place of the late Hon. J. Ross.

Hon. Mr. Foster, Minister of Finance, left for home suddenly this afternoon on the receipt of information of the dangerous illness of his father.

Supplementary letters patent have been issued to the Lake-of-the-Woods Milling Company, increasing the capital from $300,000 to $500,000.

Notice is given of application for letters patent to incorporate the Montreal Printing and Publishing Company, to carry on a general printing and publishing business, with a capital of $40,000.

An order-in-council has been passed defining the lands reserved for mountain parks in British Columbia at Griffin Lake, Mount Stephen and Glacier.

Atwater & Mackie of Montreal give notice of applicating to Parliament for an act to incorporate The Titles and Mortgage Insurance Company of Canada, with power to insure and guarantee titles, mortgages and other investments.

Notice is given by the Northern Pacific and Manitoba Railway of application to Parliament for incorporation for the purpose of building the following lines of railway and telegraph:

1. From a point at or near Winnipeg, on the west side of the Red River, to a point on the International boundary at or near Wood Lynn.
2. From Winnipeg to Portage la Prairie.
3. From Morris westwardly to a point on the 100th parallel west of Greenwich, and 49 deg. 30 min. north latitude in the District of Assiniboia.
4. From Morris to Brandon.

Notices are given of application to Parliament for a charter for a railway from Durham by way of Markdale to Meaford, and for the incorporation of the Annuity Life and Accident Office.

The militia general orders contain information respecting targets for the guidance of rifle associations.

The following amongst other appointments are gazetted:

Dr. W. J. Hanaran to be surgeon in the permanent force and attached to "D" School Infantry, London.

Lieut. H. Brock of the Queen's Own Rifles to be Captain, vice R.D. Hughes, allowed to retire retaining rank.

To be Lieutenants, Second Lieutenant Robert Reanie, vice Brock promoted. Second Lieutenant A. G. Peuchen, vice R. T. Johnson, whose resignation is accepted.

To be Second Lieutenant provisionally, Corporal H. F. Wyatt, vice Ince promoted.

To be Second Lieutenant provisionally, J. D. MacLennan of the Royal Grenadiers, vice Mackay, promoted.

COLONIAL GOVERNORS.

The Question of Their Appointment Discussed in the Melbourne Assembly.

MELBOURNE, Nov. 16.—The Assembly to-day debated the abstract right of the colonies to take part in the nomination of their respective governors.

The Premier, without discussing the Queensland question, pointed out that the constitution gave to the Queen alone the power of appointment, Her Majesty acting on the advice of ministers responsible to the Imperial Parliament. He called particular attention to the probability of a deadlock if the selection of a governor rested with both the Colonial and Imperial Parliaments. He refused to endorse such a scheme and said he was confident that the less the colonies insisted upon sharing in the power to appoint or nominate, the better it would be for the colonies.

The Premier's remarks were received with cheers.

Other members spoke in a similar strain.

THE SMALLPOX AT SARNIA.

A Statement From Inspector Lehman of the Provincial Board of Health.

SARNIA, Nov. 16.—Dr. Lehman, Inspector for the Provincial Board of Health, authorizes the publication of the following:

Hy. Geo. Loye, Chairman of the Board of Health, Sarnia:

DEAR SIR: At the request of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, I have visited your hospitals and quarantines and in conjunction with Dr. Oliver, your medical health officer, I have made a thorough examination. I find 9 cases of smallpox, 3 in the hospital and 4 of one family in an isolated house. I find the patients doing well, their medical attendance and comfort satisfactory, quarantine and disinfection are strictly enforced and I believe your present efforts with compulsory vaccination, which I strongly recommend, will soon rid the town of the disease. W. LEHMAN, M.D.

A Painful Accident.

HAMILTON, Nov. 16.—Mrs. Elizabeth Voelker, was cleaning a stove this morning and used turpentine in the blacklead. The heat of the stove ignited the turpentine, and the flames flashed up into Mrs. Voelker's face. Her hair was nearly all burnt off and her face was terribly burned. Blinded and almost crazed with pain, Mrs. Voelker staggered out of the room and fell downstairs, fracturing her collar-bone and receiving many painful bruises.

John Burlinghoff and H. R. Hall were fined $40 at the Police Court to-day for keeping their saloon open after hours.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Confidence Men in Court—Death of Neil C. Love, J. P.—The Cardwell Contest.

TORONTO, Nov. 17.—Henry Hunter and Wm. Alexander, the two men who were arrested on suspicion of being confidence experts who have been operating in Toronto and Montreal, appeared in the Police Court yesterday morning, charged with having on Nov. 3 received $75 in a confidence game from H. M. Chalmers, a Scotchman on his way to California, who stopped off at Toronto for a short time. They pleaded not guilty and requested to be tried summarily. A remand was asked for till Nov. 23 by the Crown, which was granted.

Mr. Neil C. Love, the well-known magistrate, druggist and ex-alderman, died suddenly from apoplexy yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the 69th year of his age. The deceased was one of the best known residents of Toronto, and was much respected by his large circle of friends.

Mr. J. M. Conroy, clothier of Montreal, has entered a suit for $10,000 against The Empire newspaper on account of an item appearing in its Montreal correspondence on Nov. 1 containing statements which Mr Conroy alleges to be derogatory to him and his business.

Inspector Stark has received a letter from the Boston police to the effect that James Kennedy, who shot at Constable Welch in the Ward the other evening, has served ten years in the penitentiary for committing burglary there.

Harry Wynne, who played in the game of poker in which W. H. Payne, the young man from Chicago, lost $142, was fined $25 and costs by the magistrate yesterday.

Annie Ferguson, the woman who was murderously assaulted on Edward-street about a fortnight ago by Edward Bell, is in a precarious condition and may not recover. Bell was again remanded yesterday.

Murray Gorsman, an elderly colored man, who resides at No. 38 Hamilton-street, has made a serious charge against his sister-in-law. Gorsman is married to a white woman and has had a series of quarrels with her sister, who lives with them. Recently he was seized with an illness, and he alleges that early in the week his sister-in-law poured a quantity of poison into his medicine. His suspicions had been aroused, however, and he did not use the medicine, but is having it analyzed. The police have taken no action in the case as yet.

Late yesterday afternoon a petition was lodged with the Registrar of the Queen's Bench division court against the election of Mr. R. S. White as the member of the House of Commons for Cardwell. It is understood that the petition alleges corruption by agents. The necessary $1000 accompanied the petition.

Turnbull's Column.

This Column Tells What is Doing at Turnbull's.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2.00, 2.50 and 3.00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it take an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c. than we will. All other lines just as cheap. Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's. We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

THE "CHEEKY" MORMONS.

THEIR SINGULAR REQUEST DENIED BY THE GOVERNMENT.

An Indian Murderer's Case—Immigration Returns for October—Disappointed Canadians Returning from the States.

OTTAWA, Nov. 18.—The Mormon delegates have left, professedly tolerably well satisfied with the result of their mission, but they have really obtained no special concessions from the Government nor been promised any further favors than would be granted to other immigrants. Their application for assisted passages and for special arrangements with regard to the entry of settlers' effects were not granted and, while of course no objection was raised to Mormons settling in Canada, they were clearly given to understand that they must conform to the laws of the country. One proposal made by them, and which may be regarded as somewhat "cheeky," was that those who already had a plurality of wives should be allowed to bring "their whole families" and be guaranteed from molestation, but they were firmly told that the law of Canada does not allow polygamy and if they infringed the law they laid themselves open to prosecution.

Judge Priest has made a report to the Department of Justice of the trial at Headquat, B.C., of an Indian named Isennaquor for the murder in July last of an Indian boy named Moise. Isennaquor was found guilty and sentenced to be hanged on Dec. 12.

Immigration returns for the month of October show an increase over the same month last year of 3180 in the total number of arrivals and of 3043 in the number of settlers in the Dominion. The total number of arrivals since January 1 has been 146,807, of whom 78,212 settled in Canada, being an increase of 10,511 over the same period last year. West Lynne appears for the first time on the report, there being 246 entries at that point, all of whom settled in Canada. These are presumably either Canadians returning from the United States disappointed or American settlers blown by the blizzards of Dakota to the more congenial climate of the Canadian Northwest.

Cunningham Stewart, Comptroller of Postal Finances, is ill with typhoid fever.

It is reported that the Government steamer Cruiser will be employed next season as a revenue cutter in the St. Lawrence between Kingston and Montreal and that another vessel will either be built or purchased for service on the lakes.

TO TUNNEL DETROIT RIVER.

A Michigan Corporation Organized With That for Its Avowed Object.

DETROIT, Nov. 18.—Articles of Association of the Detroit Railroad and Tunnel Company were filed in the County Clerk's office yesterday afternoon. By the terms of the corporation the capital stock is fixed as $1,500,000, it being stated that this is more than one-half of the estimated cost of the tunnel and the line of railroad at $8000 per mile proposed to be constructed. There are 15,000 shares of stock at $100 each. The sole object of the company is to construct and operate a tunnel under the Detroit river, together with railroad tracks with switches to connect with the same, the tunnel to extend under the river to the national boundary, where it will be joined by another tunnel to be commenced on the Canadian side by a company which will shortly apply to the parliament of Canada for incorporation. Some doubts exists here as to whether the purpose of the incorporation is to actually build a tunnel or merely boom the value of the principal stockholders' real estate.

A SINGULAR STRIKE.

The Hereford Railway Laborers Demanding Full Pay for Half Time.

SHERBROOKE, Que., Nov. 18.—The Hereford railway troubles have been resumed, and about 125 Italians are now on strike at Paquette, six miles from the border. On Thursday night they secured, by cutting away a portion of the track, two engines which had been in use during the day. They had previously prevented the work of the steam plow.

Their grievance is the singular one of demanding full pay for half time work. During last month the weather was so wet that work could not be carried on for about half the time, but the men consider themselves entitled to full pay.

Fire at Teeswater.

TEESWATER, Nov. 17.—The saw mill, stave, heading, shingle and lath factory, owned by W. R. Thompson and operated by Thompson, Fessant & Co., was totally destroyed by fire last night. By strenuous efforts, aided by a heavy snowstorm, the large stock of heading, lumber, etc., was saved. Loss, about $5000. Insured for $1000.

THE COLONIAL GOVERNORSHIP.

A Report That Sir John Gorst Was Offered Newfoundland.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—A notice posted outside the Conservative Club at Chatham today says that Sir John Gorst, Under Secretary for India, was offered but declined the Governorship of Newfoundland.

The Times again discusses the Queensland incident. While agreeing that reasonable objections to the Crown nominee should receive careful attention, it believes the less the colonies insist upon a claim to share in the nomination of a governor the better for the colonies. The Spectator urges the Government not to withdraw Governor Blake from Queensland. It says the proposal would lessen the cordial relations and mutual respect of the colonies for the Mother Land. It is suggested that, seeing the great importance of the constitutional question, Canada follow the example of Victoria, and express an opinion to assist the decision of the Imperial Government. Victoria heartily supports entire Imperial responsibility.

FOR WAR OR FOR PEACE.

THE KAISER'S REICHSTAG SPEECH AWAITED WITH INTEREST.

The Movements of Russian Troops Occasioning Uneasiness in Germany—Emperor William's Breslau Bull.

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—The Emperor's speech at the opening of the Reichstag on Thursday is awaited with exciting interest arising from the revival of the war alarm. The speech, however, will probably be suffused throughout with a spirit of optimism which ought to extinguish the war scare. The prospects are that the session will be pacific and uneventful. Brisk party encounters are likely to occur over the colonial policy, the Progressists and Socialists combining in hostile criticism. The Centre will join with the Nationalists and Conservatives in support of the Government, especially in relation to the slave trade blockade.

In regard to the movements of Russian troops, The Cologne Gazette in a semi-official communication says; "The scope of the new Russian military orders cannot be accurately known until war experts having clear data on the matter can pronounce upon it. The reasons published at St. Petersburg for the redistribution of the army feebly try to conceal the truth, but in Berlin they are estimated at their true value. The fact that Russia is pushing fresh divisions toward the frontier of Germany demands keen attention, although men of business need not discover in these movements any immediate threat against European peace."

Other papers show the same uneasiness, although they concur in considering it improbable that Russia will openly hasten forward her war preparations at the very moment when she is appealing for a new loan. Nevertheless the money market does not like to see Russia borrowing money. The Bourse in Paris does not consider the loan an unmixed evil, since it arranges to use one third of the whole amount for conversion. This fact modifies the hostility to the loan in Berlin. Still no subscription list will be opened in Berlin and Frankfort. On the contrary the semi-official press advises investors to unload on Paris.

It is hoped that the re-opening of the French market to Russian loans will facilitate the sales of German holders. The Post issues a warning against the investment by Germans in Russian bonds. The paper concludes that the purpose of the loan is to strengthen Russian credit and encourage a belief that her permanent policy will be pacific, so that she may ere long raise a large loan designed for war purposes. Already during the week large amounts of Russian stock have been transferred in Paris, where the buyers appear to be influenced by other than business ideas. A spirit akin to the mad excitement relative to the Panama Canal speculation incites the French investors to risk their money in favor of their beloved ally.

The German and English consular authorities in Zanzibar are about to issue similar proclamations forbidding German and English subjects to contract with slave owners for a supply of slave labor. This edict will be difficult of enforcement, as there are a number of ports and stations where the status of the men hired for work is doubtful.

An odd incident occurred on the Emperor's visit to Breslau. The Emperor congratulated Burgomaster Friedenburg on the result of the recent election, when the Progressists were defeated by two Free-Conservatives and one National-Liberal. His congratulations seemed to be awkwardly received. The Emperor afterwards on asking the reason learned that Friedenburg was a local leader of the Progressists.

Ex-Empress Victoria and the Princesses left for England at 7.30 this morning. On Friday they went to Potsdam and spent a long time at their devotions near Emperor Frederick's tomb in the Friedenskiche.

A TERRIBLE CRIME.

The Horribly Mutilated Body of a Massachusetts Woman Found in a Barn.

BRAINTREE, Mass., Nov. 18.—A most shocking murder was brought to light this afternoon in that portion of North Braintree known as the "Five Corners." The victim was Miss mehitable White, aged 64, who has been running a large farm in that section and who has lived with no other company than a hired man. At 3.30 o'clock this afternoon Ernest W. Dunsett, a nephew of the old lady, called at the farm house, but found the doors all locked, while the neighbors had not seen his aunt about the place since Saturday night. A light was burning in the house. Young Dunsett went home and returned with his father and a few neighbors. They broke into the house and found everything in confusion, the rooms having been ransacked. The searchers went to the large barn, the doors of which were also locked, and broke in.

A human hand was found protruding from a pile of hay. The covering was quickly thrown off and the horribly mutilated body of Miss White was brought to light, lying face downward, the feet and hands bound with hay ropes, the throat cut from ear to ear as though by a razor, while there was an ugly wound on the head behind the right ear.

Suspicion points strongly to John Thompson, the hired man, who came to the farm only last Monday from a Nova Scotia factory on Washington-street, Boston, and is described by the neighbors as a hard-looking character. He was seen at 5.30 o'clock last night driving home the cows with Miss White. At about 7.30 neighbors saw him driving rapidly towards the depot with the farm team and shortly afterwards return to the house. His trunk was missing.

The motive was evidently money, but it is known that there was little or none in the house.

ANOTHER BREAK.

Lock-Gates in the Cornwall Canal Give Way—Navigation Interrupted.

CORNWALL, Nov. 18.—Another accident has occurred on the Cornwall Canal. About 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, while the barge Cleveland was entering through Gillies' lock the gates gave way, causing a stoppage of navigation. A force of men was put to work immediately to repair the damage and will be kept at it until it is completed. The gates will probably be repaired by noon to-morrow, when navigation will again be resumed. The last of the boats that had been delayed at the head of the river before repairs on the break were completed had just passed through.

A Town Terrorized by Tramps.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 18.—A gang of 23 tramps boarded a local freight train a little after noon yesterday on the Boston and Albany Railroad between this city and Indian Orchard. When the train stopped at Indian Orchard they were obliged to get off while the switching was going on.

They attempted to board the train again and a brisk fight ensued. The train hands beat the men off with coupling pins and the ruffians retaliated by throwing stones until the train got out of reach. They then terrorized the community generally and threw stones at the depot. Help was summoned from this city, and a special train was made up with a force of policemen on board. The tramps were met just west of Indian Orchard station and the officers gave chase, each singling out a man. Six were captured in this way and City Marshal Cline shot and killed a seventh.

...ON'T WALK HOME.

...s of L. Delegates to Receive Their Mileage—Barry's Expulsion.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 18.—The Committee on the State of the Order got the floor ahead of the Grievance Committee, and the Saturday morning session of the Knights of Labor Convention was devoted to hearing its reports. On the recommendation of this committee the treasurer was ordered to pay delegates' mileage on the last day of the session at the rate of 4 cents a mile each day. In view of the balance of $49.39 reported as being in the treasury some fears have been expressed by outsiders that there would be no money on hand to pay mileage. This morning it was announced that $500 had been received by the treasurer since Nov. 1, and of this amount $355 was for new charters, showing over twenty-five new assemblies within about two weeks.

Representatives of the glass men, District Assembly 300, announced that in case of need they had $100,000, from which the General Executive Board could draw as much as needed. District Assembly 48 of Cincinnati offered $3000 as a gift and others volunteered various sums, making the aggregate $150,000. Nearly every delegate tried to make some offer and by so doing prove the falsity of certain newspaper stories regarding the bankrupt condition of the order. Since this showing the members are jubilant and are not slow in showing their good feeling.

At the afternoon session the Committee on Appeals and Grievances got the attention of the General Assembly and reported the Barry case. Although not strictly speaking a follower of Barry, George Schilling of Chicago took the floor in his behalf and made a strong speech in favor of the expelled member. General Master Workman Powderly made a careful statement of his side of the case. Many other able speakers followed and the debate was at times rather warm but for the most part in good temper. At the end of the debate the roll was called and the General Executive Board was sustained by a vote of 122 to 14. It is claimed by various delegates that these figures do not exactly represent the relative strength of the Barry and Powderly forces, for of the 24 they say not more than half-a-dozen are actually Barry's close friends. It is clearly seen that Powderly is growing stronger hourly and will probably meet with little opposition.

Mr. Barry declared last evening that he would take the case to the high court of public opinion. He believed, he said, that when the truth was known the men who control the Knights of Labor and are living at the expense of poverty will be considered the most infamous scoundrels that ever lived.

This evening a lecture on "Temperance" was given by General Master Workman Powderly in Masonic Hall.

Thomas B. Barry, the expelled member of the General Executive Board, was hard at work all day in his room and late this afternoon gave to the press a long article explaining his position and repeating his former statements against the Powderly administration. He denies that he had advocated strikes before D. A. 125 of Toronto, as was claimed against him in a letter from that assembly.

SENSATIONAL SCENES.

The Parnell Commission's Work During Last Week Reviewed.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The Parnell Commission has sat but three days this week and has made no great progress. Sir James Hannen has more than once expressed his impatience at the way in which testimony is given, but nothing can hurry Mr. Murphy or Mr. Atkinson, who examine in chief most of the witnesses. It has, however, been a week of sensations. The evidence of those who suffered from outrages has been supported by those who perpetrated them. Mannion and Flaherty are novelties in English courts. They swore with coolness to the commission of horrible crimes. Mannion testified that he was both a Land Leaguer and a Fenian. Flaherty avowed himself a Moonlighter with murder in his program; he too was a member of the Land League. Paying rent or taking land from which a member of the League had been evicted was a capital offence.

Yesterday there were three or four scenes in the presence of what might be called a brilliant house. Lady Mountmorres, after testifying of her husband's murder, fainted under Sir Charles Russell's cross-examination. Then came a tussle between Sir Charles and an Irish peasant witness whose stubborn cunning was more than a match for the great lawyer's trained ingenuity. Then, his temper perhaps a little ruffled by this defeat, Sir Charles made another effort to alter the course of proceedings. Baffled in this, he sat down with the angry remark that the Judges' decision was not conducive to the ends of justice; of which Sir James Hannen wisely took no notice.

Last of all Mr. T. Harrington, M.P., who appears as one of the counsel for some of the defendants, tried to appear as a witness too, or to contradict what he supposed the witness on the stand to be saying. He refused to obey Sir James Hannen's repeated orders to be silent, contradicted him, too, talked him down, and became so violent that the president adjourned the court for ten minutes. Then, under pressure from Sir Charles Russell, Mr. Harrington apologized. It is no secret that Mr. Parnell strongly objected to Mr. Harrington's acting as counsel in the case, dreading, no doubt, such scenes as this, which are not helpful to the Irish cause. But even Mr. Parnell does not always have his own way.

CROSS AND WHITE.

The Case of the Boodlers Arrested in Toronto to go to the U. S. Supreme Court.

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 18.—One of the counsel for Cross and White, respectively ex-President and Cashier of the State National Bank of this city, left here yesterday for Washington with a copy of the record in the case and a petition for a writ of error, to be presented to one of the Justices of the Supreme Court. Cross and White, who were arrested in Toronto, were convicted of forgery in the Supreme Court at Raleigh last July. They appealed to the State Supreme Court, on the ground that the State could not try them, they having, as officers of a National bank, committed the offence. The Supreme Court sentenced them to long terms of hard labor on the public roads. The case was argued in the Supreme Court, which fully sustained the lower Court. White, who has for many weeks been in jail here for lack of bail, has at last given it and is at large. The case involves, in a very broad sense, the question of State rights, and this deepens public interest in it.

Miss Macdonald Dead.

KINGSTON, Nov. 18.—Miss Macdonald, Sir John's sister, died last night. She had been ill for years, but had wonderful tenacity for life. On several occasions it was thought death was near, and Sir John came to the city to bid her farewell, but she gained strength. A week ago the Premier came to Kingston thinking the end was near, but after remaining two days returned to Ottawa, the change a turn for the better. Last night she was very low and Sir John was telegraphed for, but shortly before he arrived her spirit took its flight. The funeral will occur on Tuesday.

Suicide at Kingsville.

WINDSOR, Nov. 18.—John Cooper, a 20-year-old son of George Cooper of Kingsville, committed suicide Thursday by shooting himself through the head with a revolver. He had been insane for the last four years and about six months ago tried to end his life by taking carbolic acid. 6

THE URGENCY IS GREAT.

AN APPEAL TO THE IRISH NATIONAL LEAGUE OF AMERICA.

President Fitzgerald Issues a Manifesto in Which He Begs for Funds for Parnell's Defence.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 18.—The following circular has been addressed by President Fitzgerald to the various branches of the Irish National League:

"To the officers and members of the Irish National League of America:

"The foulest conspiracy known to British history since the days of Titus Oates has been entered into by the present Government of England, under cover of The London Times (newspaper), for the purpose of thwarting the efforts of Mr. Parnell and his colleagues to secure by constitutional agitation the legislative rights of the Irish people. Failing by every other device known to the tyrant and oppressor to repress the aspirations of men who, struggling for liberty, already begin to breathe its atmosphere, this Tory Government, beaten in its role of the tiger, now descends to the slimy methods of the serpent. Salisbury and his Cabinet have stooped to employ bravos, forgers, perjurers and outcasts of society to forswear the character of the Irish leaders and thus drive them from public life, hoping thereby to force the Irish people to adopt as their only alternative the policy of violence and despair, a policy which in Ireland's poverty and helplessness could only end in her destruction.

"Even in this last infamous design this most despicable of all British Governments begins to fear the exposure of its unexampled turpitude. The Royal Commission created by the Tory Government and framed with a view to accord Mr. Parnell and his friends only that modicum of justice which even corruption must pay to public decency, has proved itself incapable of descending to the level of Tory baseness. The opening statement of the Attorney-General has failed in its evil intent and several of the witnesses have under cross examination made admissions damaging to the enemies of Mr. Parnell rather than to himself and his colleagues.

"The evidence the Irish leaders are prepared to offer will prove beyond a doubt the infamy of the Government and its mask, The London Times, is attempting by means of forged letters to destroy not only the representative of the Irish people but the venerable statesman who, as leader of the British Liberals, has dared to inaugurate a policy of justice and conciliation between the people of Great Britain and Ireland. Baffled at every point of its ignoble and malicious course the Salisbury Cabinet is now striving to keep back the damning evidence held by the Irish leaders by prolonging and extending the commission and constantly increasing the enormous costs in the hope of compelling Mr. Parnell to abandon the case for want of funds to meet the expenditure forced upon him and his friends.

"Irishmen of America, you have nobly supported and encouraged Mr. Parnell in his contest with the enemies of Ireland. He stands now before the bar of British public opinion to answer the charges of villainous conspirators with English secret service money at their backs. Will you desert him now? Will you by apathy and indifference aid the foul conspiracy that seeks to morally assassinate the foremost man of the Irish people? Concentrated in him to-day are the feelings and aspirations of the world-wide Irish race, and shall Charles Stewart Parnell become the victim of the forger and the perjurer because he has not the money that necessity will compel him to expend to defeat the machinations of his and Ireland's enemies? To harbor such a thought would be an insult to every man of Irish blood. Come, then, to the rescue of the man who stands as the ideal representative of our race to-day.

"We have fought our great constitutional battle in America. The heat of the contest is over, and now let Irishmen of every political shade join in friendly grasp and pledge their aid to our brothers beyond the sea. Every branch of the League is most earnestly requested to raise at once a Parnell defence fund and remit the same as speedily as possible to Rev. Charles O'Reilly, D.D., Detroit, Mich. The urgency is very great. Ireland speaks by the voice of Charles Stewart Parnell. He asks assistance, more for the cause of the motherland than the cause of personal defence. He asks your help in the name of the living and by the memory of the dead. I will answer for you—you never failed Ireland in the past and you will not fail her now.

"JOHN FITZGERALD,
"President Irish National Association."

"RANDY" THE REFORMER.

Cleveland's Conduct in the Sackville Case Defended—The Liquor Traffic.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Lord Randolph Churchill, in a speech yesterday at Paddington, expressed the hope that the post of Minister at Washington would soon be filled. He said there was no doubt that Lord Sackville had been primarily indiscreet and had made an inexcusable blunder. No fault could be found with the action of the United States Government towards the minister. The American people were essentially just and proud in their relations with other countries. He deprecated the insulting and menacing articles which had appeared in the English press since Lord Sackville's dismissal, and said Englishmen ought to inform the Americans that they cherish no ill-feeling towards them. [Cheers.]

Lord Randolph attached the greatest importance to the maintenance by England of an imperturbable and friendly attitude towards the United States, and he regarded the attitude taken by Mr. Cleveland after the rejection of the fisheries treaty by the Senate as an unfortunate one. The utmost allowance ought to be made for the American position on the Sackville affair in view of the time at which it occurred. Mr. Cleveland's action had been rather sharp, but it did not justify the menaces, sneers and sulks in which the newspapers had indulged.

A war between England and America, he declared, would be more atrocious and dangerous than any war since God created the earth. He trusted that the Government's policy towards the new Washington Administration would be conceived with a view to making the American people our best allies on all questions and producing a durable friendship between the English-speaking races, thus guaranteeing to humanity in turn the blessings of liberty and peace.

Lord Randolph approved of the Government taking measures to repress crime in Ireland, and strongly advocated the restriction of the traffic in intoxicating liquors.

Look Out for These Fakirs.

WINDSOR, Nov. 18.—The police have been notified to look out for Geo. Elmer and W. Scampter, who are accused of swindling Londonites out of over $200. They pretended to be artists, and went round taking orders for crayon pictures, collecting $5 in advance on each picture and never delivering any.

The Daily Review.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1888.

THE GREENFIELD CASE.

The local Liberal paper on Saturday evening said:—

"Our local evening contemporary was very prompt in reprinting the Empire's 'misinformed' strictures on the Ontario government in the Greenfield case, but it has not shown the same readiness in publishing the Empire's retraction."

The REVIEW is not aware that the Empire published a retraction. As a matter of fact it has not. It published a statement made by Deputy-Attorney General Johnston, but how that statement improved the position of the Ontario Government is not easily seen. Mr. Johnston stated:—

"Extradition proceedings are not taken by the Government except in very special instances, and this was not one in which the Government considered it proper to expend provincial moneys in looking after."

Now that is why the Government was criticized. Here was a man who had been convicted more than once of crime, and who had escaped from one of the Ontario Government's own institutions. He was believed to have been guilty of shooting at Constable Stewart and had taken refuge in the United States. If this was not a case in which it would be proper to expend Provincial moneys, when would it be proper to do so? If Greenfield had not got out of the custody of the Government's officials he would not have been able to make a raid here, and the crime with which he was charged was almost as grave as it could be.

Mr. Johnston further stated:—

"The greater part of the work had been done before this Government became aware that any steps had been taken whatever. The authorities at Peterborough, finding, no doubt, that the expense was more than they anticipated, asked the Ontario Government if they would contribute. The Government promised to do so, and have contributed considerably more than half the expense. This was done because Greenfield was an escaped convict from one of our institutions. The warrants were directed to the Chief of Police at Peterborough, whereas, if the case had been properly a Government one, the warrants would have been addressed to a Government officer. The officers here did everything they possibly could to assist the local authorities in getting Greenfield back. The only communication that passed between the authorities at Peterborough and the Government was a request to have a portion of the expense paid, which, as I have stated, was done."

Now, this reads as though the Ontario Government had paid to Peterborough half of the expense it had incurred. The fact, however, is that the town had been to the expense of getting the evidence and had, as Mr. Mowat's deputy says, the greater part of the work done. The Government then took over the case and sent Detective Murray to Buffalo with the evidence. While waiting for action at Washington handing over Greenfield the Government telegraphed here—sending down half the town's expense?—no, but asking for $135 from the town. And the Town Solicitor forwarded the money to this economical Government that wants its members' salaries raised because they are starving on $4,000 to $5,000 a year. It was a petty piece of business on the part of the Government.

ANNIE LYONS' GRAVE CHARGE.

Against a New York Druggist—The Girl's Story Told to Justice Duffy.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Annie Lyons, the girl who attempted to commit suicide by swallowing corrosive sublimate after her arrest on Tuesday evening for raising a disturbance in W. Scott's drug store at Fourteenth-street and Seventh-avenue, was before Justice Duffy yesterday as a complaining witness against Scott, whom she charges with betraying her. Annie, who said she arrived here August 7 from Toronto, testified that Scott accomplished her ruin under promise of marriage, having first plied her with a quart bottle of wine and unlimited lager. She also related the particulars of two subsequent occasions when their alleged intimacy was renewed. Mr. Scott emphatically denied the whole story. Justice Duffy remanded the accused in the custody of his counsel until Monday.

MANITOBA MATTERS.

The Legislature Adjourned to Jan. 31—Drowned While Skating.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 18.—The legislature adjourned Saturday until Jan. 31. The bill empowering the Government to grant aid to municipalities for seed grain purposes to distressed settlers was passed. Premier Greenway said the commission appointed to enquire into the charges against the Government would report in due time.

Two brothers, Walter and Percy Skead, sons of J. H Skead, broke through the ice on the Assiniboine while skating yesterday. Percy was drowned and Walter died from the effects of his exposure during the evening. Percy's body was recovered.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Another Sensation in Connection With Fred Barber's Suicide.

TORONTO, Nov. 19.—A sensation has developed since Saturday in connection with the suicide of Frederick Barber in the New York Central depot, Suspension Bridge, N.Y., on Friday evening. It is learned that on Wednesday last Barber was married at Niagara Falls, N.Y., and that his bride had since mysteriously disappeared. Barber and the woman arrived at the New York Central depot at Niagara Falls on Wednesday, and while they sent their baggage to the Prospect House they sought a minister. About 9 o'clock that evening they called at the residence of Rev. C. S. Stowitts, Presbyterian minister, on Buffalo-street, Niagara Falls, and requested him to marry them. He did so. The lady was magnificently dressed, quite handsome and gave her name as Mary Pattison Hill of Toronto, and her age 31 years. After the marriage ceremony Barber and his bride went to the Prospect House and registered as "Fred. Barber and wife, Sheffield, Eng." They were assigned to Room 23, where they remained until Thursday morning. They then left the hotel ostensibly for Toronto. Nothing has been heard or seen of the woman since then and nothing is known of such a person here.

On Saturday afternoon Thomas Douglas, for protesting against John Gardner's throwing a cat into a tub of water, was knocked down by the latter and brutally kicked about the head. Douglas' condition is serious and Gardner will await in custody the outcome of his brutality.

A despatch was received from Gravenhurst Saturday that James Ions, a photographer's assistant who went to Muskoka on a shooting trip five weeks ago. had been drowned.

At St. James' Cathedral on Saturday morning Mr. Lucius R. O'Brien, the well-known Canadian artist, was united in marriage with Mrs. Parker, sister of Mrs. DuMoulin and Mr. C. Brough, manager of the Toronto branch of the Bank of Montreal, Canon DuMoulin officiating.

Henry James Thorpe, a carpenter by trade, is a prisoner in the Dundas-street police station on a serious charge. It is alleged that on Saturday night he visited his father-in-law, Adam Clarke Cooper, at the latter's residence and after abusing him, fired three shots at him, all of which luckily missed.

KILLED HER FORMER HUSBAND.

Henry W. King, Jr., of Chicago Shot to Death in an Omaha Hotel.

OMAHA, Nov. 18.—At 7.30 yesterday morning a fair haired lady-like woman arrived here from Chicago and registered at the Paxton House as Mrs. W. H. King, jr., and proceeded to King's room. Mr. King has been boarding at the hotel for some time with a woman to whom he was recently married. Calling him to the door some conversation ensued, the new comer upbraiding him, while he urged her to go away and leave him. She finally said with tears in her eyes: Harry will you take me to breakfast, I mean you no harm." He repulsed her roughly and started for the elevator. She followed, and overtaking him, drew a revolver and shot him in the mouth. He staggered away. She followed and fired three more shots, when he fell down the stairs leading to the rotunda, dying immediately. She rushed after him with the smoking revolver in her hand. Kneeling by his side, she sobbed: "I've murdered my husband!" Judge Brewer of the United States district court and many guests were eyewitnesses of the affair.

Probably His Divorced Wife.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Henry W. King, jr., or "Harry" King, as he was generally known here, was about 30 years of age and a graduate of Williams College. A few years ago he contracted an unfortunate marriage, as the result proved, causing his relatives much trouble and anxiety. Subsequently a divorce was secured and the supposition is that the shooting was done by the woman from whom King was divorced. Young King was a son of a well-known merchant of that name and had been very dissipated.

THE WONDROUS WIRES.

Sir Andrew Clarke in London in Consultation With a Victoria (B. C.) Physician.

VICTORIA, B. C., Nov. 18.—The Canadian Pacific Railway Company's telegraph was to-day brought into service in a manner that suggests wonderful possibilities in the future. Lord Eanismore, heir to the Earldom of Listowel, is lying at the point of death, at the hospital here, with typhoid fever attended with other complications. Through Sir Donald A. Smith, who is now in London, a telegraph circuit was made from London to Victoria by the Mackay-Bennett cable and Canadian Pacific Railway telegraphs, and Sir Andrew Clarke in London was placed in direct consultation with Doctor Hannington in Victoria. A conversation lasting three hours concerning the distinguished patient's condition was carried on. An unbroken circuit was worked from Victoria to the Mackay-Bennett cable office in New York, where the messages were repeated to London. Replies were received in 3 and 4 minutes.

Lord Eanismore, though still in a dangerous condition, is somewhat better to-day.

ALUMINIUM VASTLY OVERRATED.

Some Interesting Things About the Metal. Peculiar Properties.

Aluminium, as the discoverer spelt it, or aluminum, as it is often carelessly pronounced, is, like all mythical and expensive elements, vastly overrated. It tarnishes very rapidly, only, the rust being white, it is not very offensive. It cannot be used for anything where it comes in contact with salt; a pot of aluminium would be perforated by the salt of common soup if only used for a few months; spoons would be rough and perforated in the space of a year; nothing exposed to salt air or water could be made of aluminium. When pure, its greatest tensile strength is only a little more than that of ordinary zinc, that is, only about one-half that of steel. Its hardness is about that of soft copper, and it is just about as nasty to turn, file and drill as copper, without having the strength, pliability and malleability of copper. Its conductive power for electricity for the same weight is that of copper, hence telegraph and telephone wires might be made of it, if both have the same price—16 cents per pound.

Its peculiar chemical properties preclude the use of soft solder with the usual soldering fluids; it can be soldered, but at the points of contact, and solder aluminium becomes very weak and unreliable. Its peculiar melting point (600 degs. C.) precludes the use of hard solder (melting point 700 degs. C.). It is very sensitive to impurities. Half of 1 per cent. of silicon, or iron, renders it as brittle as pottery ware. As clay banks contain about aluminium 11 per cent., silicon 23 per cent., iron 4 per cent., the balance being water and oxygen, it may be seen by any chemist, considering the chemical properties of the impurities, that aluminium cannot be isolated pure from common clay for less than $2 a pound, this being the lowest price of the chemicals needed, vessels, coal, etc., for this purpose. If only as much as ⅓ of 1 per cent. of silicon remains it cannot be rolled and drawn into wire, but silicon and aluminium are very hard to separate completely.

There is no market to speak of for aluminium at $2 a pound. Most of the aluminium now used is beaten into white foil and used for silvering sign letters, etc. It is used for opera glasses, galvanic needle indicators, and a few scientific purposes. It has been a source of great revenue to the chemical credulity and mysticism upon moneyed non-chemists. Probably fifty companies are existing in the United States from which some sharp witted chemist obtains a living and the investors a large amount of hope at first, but considerable experience later. I do not believe that one pound of aluminium has yet been made in the United States that has not cost the maker at least $500. The only factories are in France, and if they sell it for $15 a pound it certainly costs them $14 to make and sell it. Beware of aluminium inventions.—Springfield Union.

A Good Many Missed It.

The McGibeny Family gave another concert on Saturday night, when they performed before an audience that was too small for the pleasing character of the programme. The programme was as good as Friday evening, and the audience was pleased immensely. The family left on their private palace car this morning for Belleville.

Professor Reynolds.

The following letter has been received from Mr. John Miller, B.A., formerly of Peterborough and who is now studying law in Toronto:—

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR.—For eleven nights out of the last twelve I have attended the exhibitions of mesmerism given nightly by Professor John Reynolds in Shaftsbury hall here, and feel compelled to say I never saw a more wonderful or interesting performance and cannot advise you too strongly to go and see it yourself. I went a sceptic but after the closest scrutiny for eleven nights of the different experiments. I came away convinced of the utter absence of humbug or deception. There was no difficulty whatever in securing a sufficient number of subjects from the audience at any time, and during the closing nights of his engagement here, the volunteers were almost too numerous. Let me again strongly advise your readers to go and see what is done.

Yours, &c.,
JOHN MILLER.

THE ALLEGED FORGER.

The son of an ex-M. P. P. on Trial for Forgery—Wanted Elsewhere.

Wm. Ross, alias Ferguson, who was arrested in Port Hope on Friday night last, for forging a cheque for eighteen dollars on Foote & McWhinnie in December last, arrived here in the custody of Chief Roszel on Saturday. Ross is known here by a great many, as his father, the late Mr. Louis Ross, of Port Hope, was member for West Durham for a great many years and was well known all over as a very respected and worthy man. It appears that William has always been a pretty hard customer. His mother still resides in Port Hope. A gentleman who had known him when he was a lad, says he left school when he was about ten years old and his father could never make him go again. He has a bad temper, and when drunk was the terror of the community. He says he cannot write, but this is not believed. He is a man probably about thirty years of age, about 5 ft. 11 inches, dark-skinned, slight moustache and heavy lower lip. He has a very pleasing address and seems to be a

NICE SORT OF A FELLOW.

He was brought over at the police court this morning before Police Magistrate Dumbis. Mr. R. E. Wood, C.C.A., appeared for the prosecution and Mr. A. P. Pousette, Q.C., appeared as counsel for the prisoner.

Mayor Stevenson was the only witness examined. He testified that he had no credit in the Ontario Bank at the time of the forgery, that the signature was not his and that he did not know the man Ferguson nor had never had any such man working for him.

The magistrate remanded Ferguson until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

It seems that Ferguson is suspected of having committed forgeries lately in Kingston and Trenton. A telegram was received from the former place asking for a description of the man, and Chief Roszel received word from the authorities at Trenton to hold Ferguson if he was acquitted until they sent for him as he was wanted there for forgery.

These dark, dull days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 45 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember Jas. Best's stand, 39 George-st. d111tf

Information Wanted.

John Stewart, a contractor on the Central Ontario Railway, says the Belleville Intelligencer, reports that four years ago, while engaged in constructing this line in the northern part of the county, he had in his employ one John McKinnon. One day while under the influence of liquor he went away, and from that time to the present he has been unable to learn of his whereabouts. He is anxious to hear from him, as there is some money in his hands, which is due him for work which he performed. Mr. Stewart is at present at Parkdale, near Toronto, to which place McKinnon is directed if his whereabouts becomes known.

Literary Notes.

One of the prettiest things in the Christmas goods line this year is a booklet published by Wm. Bryce, Toronto. It is entirely a Canadian production, the artistic and other work being done—and well done—in this country, and the poetical sections being from Canadian authors, including Sangster, Roberts, Dufferin, Lorne, and Isabella V. Crawford.

"John Ward, Preacher," by Margaret Deland, is a novel published by J. Theo. Robinson, Montreal. It is a book in which the characters are strongly drawn and the work throughout shows that the author is a writer of originality and power.

Wm. Bryce, Toronto, has issued a Canadian edition of "Michael Strogoff, the Courier of the Czar," by Jules Verne, one of the popular works of this popular and powerful writer. Among Mr. Bryce's recent publications is also a copyright edition of "The Astonishing History of Troy Town," by Q., author of "Dead Man's Rock."

"Stand or I'll Shoot."

Peter Brennan, from Belleville, got on a drunk at Wilson's hotel on Saturday and when his spirits—or rather Wilson's spirits—got pretty well worked up, he began to let people know that he was from the Bay City and in his expostulations broke a pane of glass in the hotel window. Mr. Wilson went up after the police and Constable Stewart went down, but the man had gone. However, Wilson spied the bouncer from Belleville a few blocks away and Constable Stewart started in pursuit. He chased the man some distance and then called out "Stand or I'll shoot you like a rat." The man had probably heard of Stewart's past record, as he came to a halt in an instant and walked back to the constable and trotted to the station. He consoled himself, however, on the way to the cells by telling the policeman that if it was on Front-st. in Belleville he would not take him so easy. At the Police Court this morning there was no charge against him, but he convicted himself, by telling the Magistrate he had been drunk and disorderly and had to pay a $2 fine and one dollar damages.

HIS LORDSHIP SPEAKS.

ON THE SUBJECT OF "THE CHURCH AND THE BIBLE."

A Large Audience—The St. Vincent de Paul Society—The Statement that the Catholic Church is the Enemy of the Bible Discussed—The Preservers, Witnesses, Interpreters of the Bible.

Half past seven was the hour announced for His Lordship Bishop Dowling's lecture on "The Church and the Bible" last evening in St. Peter's Cathedral, but long before seven o'clock had been tolled by the town bells the commodious edifice was well filled, and a large crowd was still wending its way towards the church. When the hour for the service to begin arrived an immense audience had entered the portals, and the quarters left at the door must have netted a good round sum. The object of the lecture was, however, a most worthy one, being in aid of the funds of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, the object of which is to aid the poor and poverty-stricken in our midst. The audience was by no means confined to members of St. Peter's alone, as quite a number of Protestants were present to hear the views of such a learned and eloquent gentleman as His Lordship.

Rev. Father Lynch, of Peterborough, and Rev. Father Keilty, of Ennismore, were present and occupied seats within the altar bar. Rev. Father Dube conducted Vespers, and the choir, under the leadership of Prof. Doucet, sang excellently, the music throughout the service being admirable. In the absence of Miss Ealand, Miss Kitty Hurley presided at the organ and did remarkably well. After the lecture Miss Annie Dunn rendered a solo, an "Ave Maria" by Michael Watson, with a violin obligato by Prof. Doucet.

His Lordship was conducted by Fathers McEvay and Rudkins to a platform directly in front of the altar, from which he delivered his address. He was attired in the court dress of a Roman prelate, namely, cassock, rochett and purple mantelletta, and wore the pectoral cross and chain. His delivery is rather a pleasing one, and he holds the attention of his audience by his smooth and easy manner of speaking. He relates an incident in a first-class manner, and the many amusing experiences which he told were appreciated to their fullest extent.

His Lordship's Lecture.

His Lordship began by expressing the pleasure it gave to be allowed to lend any services at his command in aid of a charity for the relief of the deserving poor in our midst, so wisely and efficiently administered as was that under the direction of the St. Vincent de Paul. Charity like every other virtue was often abused. Bold and bad people often imposed on a charitable community, but the officers of this society knew how to discriminate. They sought the abodes of poverty and suffering, inquired into their wants and quietly and sympathetically supplied them with food, clothing and fuel without extravagance or ostentation. They were thus assured that their contributions reached the deserving poor and in return they received their prayers and gratitude and the blessing of their Heavenly Father who had confided them to our care. Having thus shown the object of the lecture he would proceed to the subject announced for his lecture.

"THE CHURCH AND THE BIBLE."

He would first define the word church, which possessed many meanings. Although, he said, the term embraced all the faithful, yet, as he was going to discuss the relations of the Church to the Bible, he would restrict it to the pastors of the Catholic Church organized by the Lord Jesus Christ Himself for the purpose of teaching all nations. With this Church or congregation Christ had promised always to remain and that He would send the Holy Ghost to abide with it forever. His Lordship said an impression widely prevailed among their separated brethren that the Catholic Church had been and was now the enemy of the Bible. Was this charge true or false? If true the Church was the enemy God and he should cease to be a Catholic, cease even to be a Christian, but would be an infidel. For, he said, if this charge be proved, then it would necessarily follow that Christ failed to keep His word and if He failed to keep His word, then Christ and Christianity were alike false, and there was no resource but

DOWNRIGHT INFIDELITY.

If, on the contrary, the charge was proved to be false, then those knowing it to be such were bearing false witness, not only against their Catholic neighbors, but against the Holy Ghost abiding in His Church. And, they were told by the Lord a sin against the Holy Ghost would never be forgiven, either in this world or in the world to come. There was one fact he would establish that would clearly show the falsity of this statement, namely, that the Catholic church was the best friend of the Bible. In proof of this His Lordship proceeded to show that without the Catholic church Christians would have had no Bible at all to-day, as it was to her and to her alone they were indebted for its preservation. Had the church been the enemy, he said, of the Holy Scriptures she could long ago have destroyed and mutilated them, since she only had possession of them for fifteen hundred years before Protestantism came into existence. And not only had she

PRESERVED THE ORIGINAL SCRIPTURES,

but she also had them translated into the language of the people she evangelized—first into Latin, the language of the Roman Empire, and then, upon its downfall, into German, Saxon, French and the tongues of other nations which came amidst the ruins of the fallen empire. After the invention of printing, which was due to a Catholic, the Church had ordered the Sacred Book to be given to the press and had had no less than twenty editions of it published in Germany alone before Martin Luther was born. The Catholic Church was not only the preserver and protector of the Holy Bible, but she was also its witness, its interpreter and its dispenser. The Catholic Church alone could bear witness to the authenticity and inspiration of the Bible, and she alone was authorized to teach and, therefore, to interpret the revealed truth. It was the Catholic Church alone, also, that was authorized to dispense it. As a matter of fact, His Lordship said, it was the Church alone that converted from Paganism all the nations now Christian, and had furnished the first copies of the written Word of God. The objection was often made that the Church forbade the

READING OF HOLY SCRIPTURES.

In answer he would say "Yes, sometimes." When the church found that the Word was being abused, she had legislated against that abuse. Thus it was in the thirteenth century the Councils of Toulouse and Farragma forbade the reading of the Bible in the vernacular for two reasons. First, because the version used was a corrupt one, and, secondly, because the Albigenses, who taught the existence of two Gods and who denounced marriage as unlawful, were corrupting the minds and hearts of the faithful. But this prohibition and all others made at times by the Church were directed not against the use, but against the abuse of the Bible. In the middle ages when manuscript books were very precious and it was impossible for one family in a thousand to have a copy, it was ordained that each church should have a copy of the Bible chained to a pillar where all might come and read it. This had been the origin of the story of the chained Bible which was kept for public inspection in the church much in the same way as newspapers were kept locked on the desks of our public reading rooms, where all might have recourse to them.

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH

treated the Holy Scriptures with reverence. Their priests and bishops were sworn to read portions of it every day of their lives and to expound it to the faithful on Sundays and festivals. All the fine arts of painting, sculpture, music and architecture and all her popular devotions, such as the rosary and "way of the cross," were employed by the Church as a powerful means of impressing on the minds of the masses the great truths of Scripture. The Scripture, he said, contained, as itself declares, things "hard to be understood, which the unlearned and unstable read to their own destruction." Hence the necessity of an infallible interpreter. Such an interpreter Jesus had given. It was His Church which St. Paul declared to be the pillar and the ground of truth. While their separated brethren professed to look to their Bibles alone for what they are to believe, Catholics had the Bible and the Church as well. But the Catholic rule of faith was the revealed Word of God, both written and unwritten. The Church was in the world before the Bible was written, had received its commission to teach from the Son of God Himself, and would continue to exercise the office of teaching all truths, even should every copy of the Bible suddenly disappear from the earth. So far, said His Lordship, was the Church from discouraging the reading of the Holy Bible by the faithful with proper dispositions that she even invited and and profit by its lessons that they might be able to give a reason for the hope that is in them. Let any one read the words of Pope Pius VI. in a letter addressed to Martini, the author of a translation into Italian, to be found in the preface of most of our English Bibles, and judge for himself whether or not it be true, as our modern Bible societies are fond of saying, that the Pope will not allow the Catholics to read the Bible. Here is what the Pope says: "You judge exceedingly well that the faithful should be excited to the reading of the Holy Scriptures; for these heads are the most abundant sources that ought to be left open to every one, to draw from them purity of morals and of doctrine." His Lordship next proceeded to point out the harmony that existed between the Bible and the leading doctrines of the Catholic church, summing up by one being in aid of the funds of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, the object of which is to aid the poor and poverty-stricken in our midst. The audience was by no means confined to members of St. Peter's alone, as quite a number of Protestants were present to hear the views of such a learned and eloquent gentleman as His Lordship.

His Lordship concluded by saying he was not surprised that so many Christians of other denominations disliked the Catholic church, inasmuch as she was constantly misrepresented to them as the enemy of the written word of God. He hoped that his explanations would tend to remove many misconceptions. He thanked God that in Canada the vast majority of our people were believers in the divinity of Jesus Christ and in the inspiration of the Bible. He loved the Bible, he reverenced the Bible and he had no respect for the man that repudiated it. When a notorious infidel on the other side of the line lately attacked the sacred Scriptures and endeavored to bring its doctrines into contempt it was a well known fact, admitted by all the Protestant clergy, that by far the best book written in defence of the Bible, was the production of a Catholic Priest named Father Lambert. So far from discouraging his separated brethren from reading their Bibles, he would even, in the name of the Catholic church, say to them, as our Lord said in John V. 30., of old about himself: "Search the Scriptures, for ye think in them to have life everlasting; and the same are they that give testimony of me." His Lordship concluded as follows: "May the blessing of Almighty God, Father, Son and Holy Ghost, descend upon you all and remain with you forever. Amen."

Annual Meeting of the Executive Committee—Next Year's Meet.

Canoeists who are looking forward to next year's meet can now make arrangements to put up their tents on Canadian ground, the sight having been selected at Sugar Island, in the St. Lawrence, near Gananoque. This important point was decided on Saturday at the annual meeting of the Executive Committee. The meeting was held at the Toronto Canoe Club house, Commodore H. G. Rogers in the chair and the following representatives:—Secretary Treasurer Geo. Hatton. Peterborough Central Division.—Vice-Commodore Huntington, of Rome, N. Y., and F. F. Andrews, Rochester, N. Y. Northern Division.—Vice-Commodore Tyson, Purser Colin Fraser, Toronto, and Mr. F. S. Rathbun, Deseronto. Atlantic Division.—Vice-Commodore W. P. Stephen, Bayonne, N. J.

The first business, the Empire's report says, was the report of the Site Committee, including a number of letters relating to the various proposed sites in the Bay of Quinte, Rideau lakes and the St. Lawrence. After considerable discussion re the various good points of the above mentioned sites, Sugar island, in the St. Lawrence, was finally selected. It is a beautiful island for camping, cruising and racing, and is easy of access, being only four miles from Gananoque and one and a quarter miles from the old camping grounds of 1885, '85 and '86. The date was fixed from August 16 to 30 inclusive. A committee on transports, consisting of R. S. Oliver, Albany, W. J. White, Montreal, and J. N. Mackendrick, Galt, was appointed. The following resolution was introduced by Mr. Andrews and seconded by Colin Fraser: "Resolved, that the Executive Committe of the A. C. A. deprecates most strongly the introduction of special racing appliances that are incompatible with the requirements of cruising, and recommends to the Regatta Committee that the programme of the races will be so arranged as to encourage as far as possible the legitimate cruising canoe rig." This resolution was carried unanimously.

The following honorary lady members were then elected: Mrs. R. B. Laundy, Miss S. E. Vair, Peterborough; Miss Aggie McDougal, Miss Jennie Ovens, Galt; Mrs. Thomas B. Dean, Lindsay. In the evening a dinner to the guests was given by the Toronto C. C., at which about seventy canoeists were present, including E. B. Edwards, Peterborough; J. N. Mackindrick Galt; Samuel Britton, Mr. Magechen, Lindsay; Judge Dartnell, Whitby; Ford, Jones, Brockville; Johnson, of Hamilton, and representatives of the other boating clubs of the city. The dinner was followed by songs and toasts, and it was well towards morning before quiet was restored. The bill of fare and toast list was a very good piece of work. It was profusely illustrated with cuts of well known canoeists. The design was prepared by Mr. Kelly and the work was done by Mr. Jeffcott, of the Toronto Lithograph Company, both members of the club.

A Conversation.

Scene—Corner of George and Simcoe-sts. Time—Monday morning, Nov. 19th. "Good morning, Mr. T——." "Good morning, Miss A——." "Did you go to hear the McGibeny family Saturday night?" "No, I had the pleasure of hearing them on Friday evening. They are superb; I could listen to them any number of times. But on Saturday evening I went to the 'Y.' At Home." "Oh, indeed. I have heard that the members of the 'Y.' have their rooms open every Saturday night, but I have never been up yet." "Well, you have made a mistake, for it is just the place to go for a jolly hour." "What kind of performance do you have?" "Oh, they give you a nice cup of coffee and piece of cake, and there are a number of parlor games free to all, besides illustrated magazines lying about. Then music is provided, vocal and instrumental. Last Saturday night Mrs. Seward sang two lovely Irish songs, the second one filling Mr. Duff's number on the programme, as he was detained by another engagement. Miss Kathleen Duff played a beautiful selection." "By the way, didn't Saturday's papers promise a reading or recitation by Mr. Herbison?" "Yes, and some one told me that the President of the 'Y.' was to blame for that recitation not being given. I'm just going up street now to enquire what the cause of the failure was." "Do they have big crowds?" "Not half as many as you would expect, but I fancy the people have not got it into their heads yet that the Saturday night 'Y.' At Home' is an institution. One would think that scores of young people who walk aimlessly up and down the George-st. every Saturday night would be glad of such a pleasant entertainment." "Yes, indeed, I should think so. Well, I've got my exhortation and will ponder it, and try to see the 'Y.' Hall next Saturday night." "Good morning." "Good morning."

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth it relieves the little suffer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether rising from teething or other causes 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

ON TRIAL FOR ROBBING.

Thomas Shouldice Before the Magistrate—The Prisoner Gets Saved While in Custody.

Thomas Shouldice, the man from Harvey township who was arrested a week ago on the charge of having broken into and robbed the summer lodge of Mr. W. H. Cluxton at Pigeon Lake, was up before County Magistrate Edmison this morning. A large number of witnesses had been summoned in the case, the most important evidence being that of Mr. Gillman Wiles, a private detective from St. Catharines, who was brought here by Mr. Cluxton to work up the case. Shouldice is a rather pale, weak looking individual for a farmer, and was poorly dressed. He looks like a man who had seen a good deal of trouble one way or another. He had no counsel engaged in his behalf. Mr. R. E. Wood, County Crown Attorney, conducted the proceedings.

THE EVIDENCE.

Mr. W. H. Cluxton was the first witness sworn and he testified to the lodge having been broken into and household effects carried away.

Mr. Harvey Thompson, a hotel keeper at Bobcaygeon, was the second witness sworn and gave evidence in which he stated that Shouldice had admitted the doing of the robbery to him in the lock-up.

Gillman Wiles, the detective, being sworn told his story. He said:—I went down to Mr. Cluxton's on the 10th of Nov.; Mr. Staples, a constable, went with me to the lodge and examined it; we then went to prisoner's father's house; rapped at the door and the old woman (Thomas' mother) came to the door; when she opened the door I walked right in and saw someone go out the front door; she would not tell me who it was; I then told her my business and asked her where Thomas was and where he had the spect for the man that repudiated it. When a notorious infidel on the other side of the line lately attacked the sacred Scriptures and endeavored to bring its doctrines into contempt it was a well known fact, admitted by all the Protestant clergy, that by far the best book written in defence of the Bible, was the production of a Catholic Priest named Father Lambert. So far from discouraging his separated brethren from reading their Bibles, he would even, in the name of the Catholic church, say to them, as our Lord said in John V. 30., of old about himself: "Search the Scriptures, for ye think in them to have life everlasting; and the same are they that give testimony of me." His Lordship concluded as follows: "May the blessing of Almighty God, Father, Son and Holy Ghost, descend upon you all and remain with you forever. Amen."

Annual Meeting of the Executive Committee—Next Year's Meet.

Canoeists who are looking forward to next year's meet can now make arrangements to put up their tents on Canadian ground, the sight having been selected at Sugar Island, in the St. Lawrence, near Gananoque. This important point was decided on Saturday at the annual meeting of the Executive Committee. The meeting was held at the Toronto Canoe Club house, Commodore H. G. Rogers in the chair and the following representatives:—Secretary Treasurer Geo. Hatton. Peterborough Central Division.—Vice-Commodore Huntington, of Rome, N. Y., and F. F. Andrews, Rochester, N. Y. Northern Division.—Vice-Commodore Tyson, Purser Colin Fraser, Toronto, and Mr. F. S. Rathbun, Deseronto. Atlantic Division.—Vice-Commodore W. P. Stephen, Bayonne, N. J.

The first business, the Empire's report says, was the report of the Site Committee, including a number of letters relating to the various proposed sites in the Bay of Quinte, Rideau lakes and the St. Lawrence. After considerable discussion re the various good points of the above mentioned sites, Sugar island, in the St. Lawrence, was finally selected. It is a beautiful island for camping, cruising and racing, and is easy of access, being only four miles from Gananoque and one and a quarter miles from the old camping grounds of 1885, '85 and '86. The date was fixed from August 16 to 30 inclusive. A committee on transports, consisting of R. S. Oliver, Albany, W. J. White, Montreal, and J. N. Mackendrick, Galt, was appointed. The following resolution was introduced by Mr. Andrews and seconded by Colin Fraser: "Resolved, that the Executive Committe of the A. C. A. deprecates most strongly the introduction of special racing appliances that are incompatible with the requirements of cruising, and recommends to the Regatta Committee that the programme of the races will be so arranged as to encourage as far as possible the legitimate cruising canoe rig." This resolution was carried unanimously.

The following honorary lady members were then elected: Mrs. R. B. Laundy, Miss S. E. Vair, Peterborough; Miss Aggie McDougal, Miss Jennie Ovens, Galt; Mrs. Thomas B. Dean, Lindsay. In the evening a dinner to the guests was given by the Toronto C. C., at which about seventy canoeists were present, including E. B. Edwards, Peterborough; J. N. Mackindrick Galt; Samuel Britton, Mr. Magechen, Lindsay; Judge Dartnell, Whitby; Ford, Jones, Brockville; Johnson, of Hamilton, and representatives of the other boating clubs of the city. The dinner was followed by songs and toasts, and it was well towards morning before quiet was restored. The bill of fare and toast list was a very good piece of work. It was profusely illustrated with cuts of well known canoeists. The design was prepared by Mr. Kelly and the work was done by Mr. Jeffcott, of the Toronto Lithograph Company, both members of the club.

FEAR OF CONSUMPTION.

SOME OF THE ABSURD DELUSIONS ABOUT IT DISPELLED.

The Condition of "Susceptibility" and How It Is Induced—Symptoms Which Should and Others Which Should Not Cause Apprehension—Appetite.

It is said that everything which appears to affect the health of mankind has been alleged to be a cause of pulmonary consumption, such as deficiency and poor quality of food, lack of pure air, light, warmth and exercise; in fact, everything which impairs the nourishment of the body, induces poverty of the blood, or depresses the nervous system. This is true. The waste of the vital power, no matter how produced, leaves the system in a condition peculiarly susceptible to consumption; it invites that disease. It is generally believed by people at large that consumption of the lungs is a disease which occurs primarily in the lungs themselves. In other words, that such disease of those organs may exist, at least in the early stages, in a person perfectly sound in every other part of his system. There a great mistake is made. The lungs will never suffer from consumption as long as the rest of the body is in a good state of health.

It is generally accepted by physicians that the direct and exciting cause of this disease is a germ. Now, this germ, in order for it to thrive and do its destructive work, needs a peculiar soil, as it were. If introduced into the organism of a healthy person, it would not multiply, but would die. If, however, that same person's general health were impaired, either by overwork, disease, excessive indulgences, or as a consequence of being denied good and sufficient food, pure air, etc., then he would be in just such a condition as the germ of consumption needs for its growth and multiplication. He is, as physicians term it, in a condition of "susceptibility." This peculiar condition may not only be acquired, but it may also exist in a person at his birth. It is generally the inheritance of children of consumptive parents, but the parents need not necessarily have had that disease to transmit a susceptibility to consumption. If either of them are syphilitic or suffer from any malignant disease, or have what is termed a scrofulous constitution, their children are quite likely to come into the world stamped with a decided tendency to consumption.

Very many inflammatory diseases of the lung itself, especially those of a catarrhal type and other affections, prominent among which are measles and whooping cough, create a liability to pulmonary consumption. The term "catarrhal" must not be misunderstood in this connection. We do not refer to catarrh of the nasal passages. It is a popular delusion that nasal catarrh is liable to run into consumption. There is absolutely no truth in such a theory. If a person so suffered from nasal trouble that he could breathe only through his mouth, and if that condition lasted for several years, he would be likely to have set up a bronchial trouble, but that alone would never induce pulmonary consumption.

People who have had pneumonia are quite certain to fear for a long time afterward lest they become consumptive. That acute affection, when recovered from, does not leave the lung in a condition susceptible to the graver disease. In fact, pneumonia, running a natural course to recovery, never leaves behind it any special weakness; in other words, if one recovers he recovers completely. Consumption is often attributed to catching cold. If we take a severe cold and neglect it, and consequently are ailing for some time, during which we suffer from cough, then we are in a condition in which pulmonary consumption is possible if exposure to the germs of the disease occurs. When one has a severe attack of acute bronchitis he is likely, if improvement is not rapid, to grow uneasy and fear consumption. But very few cases, however, terminate in that grave disease, and none, we may say, unless the general health becomes much impaired or there is present the peculiar susceptibility to it.

While acute affections of the lungs create a liability to consumption, the number of cases which so terminate are comparatively small. That disease, as a rule, comes on insidiously, and usually exists for a time before its presence is suspected. It is a curious fact that among all the persons who consult physicians, believing themselves to have consumption, in only a very small per cent, are the lungs found to be affected. This shows how common it is as an imaginary affliction. A reason is, because people generally attribute to it symptoms which do not belong to it. As, for instance, if impressing the ribs one "feels a sore spot," which lingers for a few days, then straight away he is uneasy about himself and fears consumption. Now, really, the tenderness described is not a symptom of that disease. It is simply in the walls of the chest and has nothing to do with the lungs. In fact, pain is not a symptom of consumption; the lungs may be very badly diseased before any pain is ever felt in them.

Again, if one coughs and finds his sputa slightly streaked with blood, he is, as a rule, at once alarmed, and imagines he has consumption. That streaked appearance occurs far oftener in bronchial troubles than in the graver affection. When blood is raised from the lungs, it is generally nearly clear; the other symptom, alone, has but little, if any, significance. Sometimes what appears to be a hemorrhage from the lungs proves to be simply bleeding from the nose, the blood running back and down into the throat, instead of coming out of the nostrils. And yet, in all cases where clear blood is raised, a physician should be consulted and all doubts as to its origin set at rest.

One of the earliest symptoms of consumption is a short, hacking cough. That rarely excites uneasiness until it has existed for a long time. In certain throat affections we have a cough resembling it somewhat, yet there is quite a decided difference, which is evident to a physician. A hacking cough, if persistent, although it only occurs occasionally during the day, should lead one to seek the advice of a physician. Sweating at night, people generally believe, points to disease of the lungs. It does not by any means always signify that. We expect "night sweats" only in consumption when the patient's strength has measurably failed. They are an evidence of general weakness, and may occur in any form of debility.

A persistent loss in weight is one of the characteristic symptoms of pulmonary consumption, for the nutritive processes suffer early impairment. In all cases, whatever appears to be the probable cause of the "losing of flesh," if it is continuous, even if very gradual, a physician should be consulted, for that symptom is really serious. In the same connection we may say that if a consumptive gains in weight, it is one of the most positive signs of improvement. Among the most pronounced symptoms of this disease, and which are the least appreciated by non-professionals, are those referable to the digestive organs. Loss of appetite is often one of the first, and there is more or less dyspepsia. We may say with truth that while the appetite of a person remains good and his digestion sound, he has little to fear from consumption.—Boston Herald.

The Cottagers of Dunvegan.

We went the next day to Dunvegan. The road lay over long miles of moors, with now and then beautiful distant views of the mountains of Harris, but pale blue shadows on the western horizon, and of the high peaks of the Cuchullins, dark and somber above the moorland.

Here and there at long intervals we came to the wretched groups of cottages we had begun to know so well. Old witch-like women and young girls passed, bent double under loads of peat or seaweed, so heavy that were the same thing seen in Italy, English people would long since have filled columns of The Times with their sympathy. As it is, these burdens are accepted as a matter of course, or sometimes even as but one of the many picturesque elements of Highland life. From one writer one hears of the Skye lassies, half hidden under bundles of heather, stopping to laugh and chatter. From another, of Lewis women knitting contentedly as they walked along with creels, bearing burdens that would have appalled a railway porter of the south, strapped to their backs. We saw no smiles, no signs of contentment. On the faces of the strongest women there was a look of weariness and of pain. But perhaps the most pathetic faces in this land of sorrow were those of the children, already pinched and careworn.

The chief complaint was the same wherever we went. "We have not enough land; we could and would pay rent willingly if we had more ground to cultivate. As it is, our crofts are not large enough to keep us in food." The outside world has been busy watching the battle in Ireland. Little attention has been spared to the Highlands.—Elizabeth Robbins Pennell in Harper's Magazine.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR '89.

An All-Around-the-World Year.

THIS world-renowned magazine "for young people and their parents" is to have a great programme for the new volume beginning with November, 1888. The editor, Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, calls it "an all-around-the-world year." Of course the bulk of the contents, as heretofore, will relate to American subjects; but young America is always glad to learn what goes on in the world outside, and these stories and descriptive papers are not of the dry geographical order, and they will be strikingly illustrated. We have space here for only a few prominent announcements.

America.

"Little Saint Elizabeth," by Mrs. Burnett, author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy"; "The Routine of the Republic, how the Government is carried on"; "College Athletics"; "Amateur Photography"; "Boys and the National Guard"; "The Girls' Crusade"; Indian Stories, School Stories, etc. "The Bells of St. Anne," a serial about Canada. South American stories—"A Railroad in the Clouds"; "Indians of the Amazon," by Mrs. Frank R. Stockton, etc.

Europe.

Life in Norway, by H. H. Boyesen; "Holland and the Dutch," by Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge; "The Queen's Navy," by Lieut. F. H. Smith, R. N.; "The Winchester School"; "English Railway Trains"; "Ferdinand de Lesseps"; German, Italian (art) and Russian papers, etc., etc.

Asia.

Yan Phou Lee writes of "Boys and Girls in China," and there is a description of "Some of John Chinaman's Inventions." Mrs. Holman Hunt describes "Home Life in the East"; papers on Siam, Japan and other countries.

Africa.

"The White Pasha," by Noah Brooks, a sketch of Henry M. Stanley; How an American Family Lived in Egypt; "Bi-lor-Boy Dromios" a story of the siege of Alexandria.

Australia.

A series of interesting articles imparting much novel and amusing information concerning the history, the animal and plant life, etc., of a wonderful land.

The Arctic Regions and the Sea.

"How we made the Farthest North," by Gen A. W. Greely, of the Greely Expedition; "A Dash with Dogs for Life or Death," by Lieut. Schwatka; "A Modern Middy"; "A Submarine Ramble," etc., etc.

Subscription price, $3.00 a year; 25 cents a number. Subscriptions are received by booksellers and newsdealers everywhere, or by the publishers. Remit by P. O money-order, Bank Cheque, draft, or registered letter. The new volume begins with November. December is the Great Christmas Number.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there was a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

THE CROWNING BARGAINS OF THE YEAR!

All Other Clothing Sales to be Thrown in the Shade.

AN IMPORTANT BUSINESS CHANGE IN THE CITY CLOTHING STORE.

H. LeBRUN,

After having been favored with a large and Prosperous Business during the past fifteen years, has decided to dispose of a share of his business, in order to give the faithful boys a chance. Therefore about the beginning of the New Year, an important change will take in the Business Management of the City Clothing Store, when Mr. JOSEPH PICARD,—who has been in my employ ever since commencing business—will be taken into the firm, and become an active partner of the same.

MAMMOTH PREPARATION SALE!

"Now comes the Tug of War." Previous to the above change taking place, I intend to place the whole of my Extensive Stock of Clothing, Cloths, Gents' Furnishings, &c., amounting to

$27,000 worth of Sterling Goods

at the disposal of the people of the Town and County of Peterborough, and will commence a Sweeping Preparatory Sale, Unequaled for Good Value and Big Dividends,

ON SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17.

In the meantime, the Goods will be all gone over, and re-marked down, including everything in the Store, from cellar to garret. Nothing will be reserved—all MUST go, no matter what the Sacrifice. No tricks during this Sale.

The Goods are all Clean and New, Fashionable and Seasonable—bought originally at Closest Prices, for Cash, in the Best Canadian Markets; besides a large proportion has been imported direct from the Old Country. The Goods do not contain any Bankrupt Stocks, or culls from slaughter houses, but have been manufactured for this season's trade.

In addition to the above regular Stock, I have just made a Splendid purchase of $4,000 worth of Ready-made Clothing, which was offered to me by the manufacturer, at a very Low Figure for Cash. These Goods will be sold along with the rest of the Stock at about Half their ACTUAL VALUE, and are bound to go off like hot cakes.

The Customers of the City Clothing Store are aware that our advertisements are always a simple statement of facts. No Brag, No Bluster, No Extravagant and Misleading Talk. When we advertise Positive Bargains, the Public are su.e to get them.

Wholesale Prices to be Completely "Snowed Under"—Bankrupt Stocks to get a Rest

Turnbull's Column.

This Column Tells What is Doing at Turnbull's.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1 50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2.00, 2 50 and 3.00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it take an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap. Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's. We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

BARBER'S BRIDE LOCATED.

THE WOMAN WHO MARRIED THE SUSPENSION BRIDGE SUICIDE.

A Love Match on the Atlantic Followed by a Wedding—A Dramatic Story of Intrigue—"Polly" Bredin's History.

TORONTO, Nov. 20.—Many of the mysteries surrounding the suicide of Fred Barber at Suspension Bridge last Friday evening have been cleared up. Early yesterday morning a middle-aged woman, richly dressed and wearing an overcast countenance, was shown into the reception-room at the Queen's Hotel and sought an audience with Mr. McGaw. This was granted, and to the host of the well-known Front-street hostelry the new-comer told the story of her marriage with the dead man on Wednesday last at Niagara Falls, N. Y. She also informed Mr. McGaw that she lived at No. 17 Windsor-street, the gate-guarded thoroughfare of St. George's Ward, and that she would claim the remains now lying in the metallic casket in the vault of St. James' Cemetery.

Mrs. Barber was seen at her home by a reporter last night. She was dressed in a rich costume of black, and appeared to be greatly distressed. Mrs. Barber is probably 35 years of age, and talks with a pronounced Scotch accent. She is intelligent looking and apparently a person of education. She is of somewhat low stature, and may be classed as between a blonde and brunette. However, she cannot be described as the beauty which the reporters of the associated press at Niagara painted her in their despatches to the Toronto papers. She said:

"Mr. Barber had the utmost confidence in me and we loved each other very much. I first met him on board an Atlantic steamer a few months ago, when I was on my way to the Old Country. We became friends, and before we left the steamer on the other side were engaged to be married. So we were. I first learned of Mr. Barber's suicide about 8 o'clock last Saturday night. I read it in the papers. I did not believe it, but the news so prostrated me that I was unable to go out, or I would have gone to the Queen's Hotel and proclaimed myself the missing bride. I have not the slightest idea why Mr. Barber shot himself, except that he may have been suffering from temporary insanity. We were married last Wednesday evening at Niagara Falls. After we were married we put up at the Prospect House for the night. Mr. Barber was very careful not to register me at the hotel as his wife until after we were married. Thursday we left the Falls and came to Toronto. We arrived in this city at 12.40 on Friday morning (by the late train) and came straight to this house. That is the reason Mr. Barber did not go to his hotel. He left me about 9.30 Friday morning to attend to some business. That is the last I saw of him. Before going out he wrote a letter to his mother—[There it is,' said Mrs. Barber displaying it]—and one to Mr. Eyre, the father of his first wife. The letter to Mr. Eyre was only half finished, and it spoke of domestic troubles at home."

The letter to his mother is as follows:

TORONTO, Nov. 16, 1888.

DEAR MOTHER,—* * * * Now, mother, I told you I had seen the woman who would make me a wife who I arrived home last night, and from this engagement have never varied. I therefore decided, after arriving here, to ask her to marry me and we have been married. I promised you before leaving home that if this were so, you should be the first one to know, and therefore write you at once. Now dear mother, do not be against my inclination, that you shall stay with us during your life, and be both a stay to her and a mother to care as well.

You know, dear mother, we, that is you and I, have both talked and argued this matter over and you have said "Get settled." I have done so, I hope for life. I have got a brave, loving wife, who will make a mother to Eyre, a kind daughter to you and a comfort to me. She will not herself to conclude with, but my dear mother don't leave us, stay with us and we will try our utmost to be loving and kind so that you may be happier than you have been for some years.

My wife will meet me in Halifax, from whence we sail (D.V.) in the Sarmatian on Dec. 15, and you may expect us to reach home about Xmas. I will write you further details in my letters as I go along, but in the meantime will you, like a dear, kind, loving mother, as you have always been to me, even though we have had our tiffs and makings up, try and get a good servant into the house for me. I have done what you have often told me you would like to see me do, and now I have done I know you would you do anything but what would tend to the happiness of all parties.

I shall write Mr. Eyre this mail and also my partners, to whom it will not come as much of a surprise, knowing as they do that I have been in correspondence with my wife for some time. I don't know that I have more to say this time, but hope the step I have taken will be for the general good, and never be regretted by anybody.

With affectionate love,

FRED.

"That tells the story," said the woman. "I was to have met Mr. Barber at the Queen's at noon on Friday and his letter and my letter were to have been put in the same envelope and despatched to England. Then we were to procure our berths on board the Sarmatian, and I was to meet him at Halifax on Dec. 15, as stated in the letter.

"I have been married before and have three children. I do not care to say anything about my first husband more than that I divorced myself from him. I do not wish, either, to say where my children are at present. They are at a boarding school."

That Fred Barber was led into a deliberate trap there seems to be no reasonable doubt. Mrs. Barber's maiden name was Mary Pettison Hill, and she came from Scotland to Canada several years ago and married Thomas W. Bredin, the son of highly respectable parents at Whitby. Bredin's father is a clergyman, and is said now to be in the neighborhood of Alliston. When Bredin married Mary Hill he was a teller in the Whitby branch of the Ontario Bank. Dissipation and irregular habits lost him his situation, and he and his wife separated, she accusing him of cruelty and of her of infidelity. Mrs. Bredin, about five years ago, came to Toronto and became an inmate of Bella Howard's irregular resort in Terauley-street. She afterwards moved to No. 104 Richmond-street west, with Miss Howard, where she remained for a time. About three years ago she opened a house of assignation at No. 180 Adelaide-street west. For 2½ years she kept this place so quiet that even the police did not know of its existence. In the directory she described herself as a music teacher. She is highly educated in music and speaks three or four languages. Her establishment was run on exclusive principles. Young men and boys of the city were not allowed to bring women to her place. Her patrons were travelling men of means and strangers of wealth. She had an extensive patronage, flourished and made money. But still the police never "got on" to her place, nor were there ever any complaints against her. One inspector, however, did visit the place one fine evening, but he could see nothing wrong and did not interfere. "No. 180" was painted in large letters on the transom over the front door. To her patrons she was known as "Polly" Bredin. Her husband, Thomas P. Bredin, was directorized as being a boarder at No. 180, and he is now or was a porter in the employ of the Grand Trunk Railway.

About six months ago Mrs. Bredin made a trip to Scotland and she met Barber on shipboard. He became infatuated with her and fell in love with her. It is stoutly asserted by those who now know the facts that Barber did not know the character of his new acquaintance. This is probably true and undoubtedly the cause of Fred Barber's suicide was that in some way as yet unknown he was made acquainted with the past history of "Polly Bredin."

CHERRY VALLEY, Ont., Nov. 20.—David Miller and son lost their two dwellings and drive house yesterday morning at Salem Point. Loss about $1500, insured for $1000. The cause of the fire was a defective stovepipe.

The barn of Edmund Thebault was burned last night. Cause unknown. Loss about $300, insured for $200.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR.

All the Canadian Delegates Ask Powderly to Continue as Chief.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 20.—The desire of the delegates to the General Assembly of the Knights of Labor to continue Powderly as chief has been expressed to him formally. The seven delegates who represent the Canadian assemblies called on him and asked him to accept the office once more. He gave them to understand that he would do so providing he could choose his own advisers on the General Executive Board. Everything indicates that he will be given his wish, and there is now only a difference of opinion regarding the way it shall be done. One plan is for him to choose eight names, four of which will be selected by the Assembly. Another plan contemplates the nomination of four men, and if any be rejected new names shall be presented until the number is complete. Under any circumstances Mr. Powderly will undoubtedly continue in office and will choose his own cabinet.

Canada wants to be represented in the General Executive Board, the South has a like desire, and a movement is on foot looking to the selection of some representative business man. It is reported that a proposition looking to the formation of an entirely new constitution has been made to the General Assembly and has been considered by the committee. As there is a strong feeling in favor of a radical revision of the present constitution, there is little doubt that the new constitution will have many supporters.

Mr. Barry has ready another instalment of his attack on the Powderly administration, and it is said he will keep up his denunciations in the form of long articles for several days. This is his way of keeping before the public and preparing the way for the new order which he proposes to establish.

At the afternoon session of the General Assembly no active business was completed although a lively time interested the delegates. Last week George E. Detweller, editor of The Knights of Labor, a Chicago publication, was in this city in his individual capacity of editor and member of the order after which his paper is named and of which it is not the official organ. On his return home he wrote an editorial which appeared in his publication on Saturday and was read here yesterday. This editorial was an attack on the character and position of this General Assembly, stating that Powderly is the ruling mind, that the convention was packed in the interest of the General Master Workman, and that Powderly and Litchman were afraid of publicity and therefore both of them were ready to make peace and promptly did so at the first chance.

Powderly took the floor and made a vigorous denial and denunciation of the whole matter. He had introduced and referred to a committee a resolution that whenever a member of the order shall through the public press make accusations of misdemeanor against members or officials of the order, without first having made and sustained those accusations before the proper court of the order, he lays himself open to immediate expulsion by the General Executive Board without trial.

Ex-Secretary Charles H. Litchman followed Mr. Powderly in a denunciation of the editorial and a denial of its statements.

W. F. Lewis, the Master Workman of the Miners' Assembly, and others followed, and all denied and denounced, while none defended the editor in his criticism.

The stand taken by Mr. Lewis in this case is regarded as significant and Powderly's friends hope it means that the miners will not desert the order. There has been a great fear of that and it will not be fully settled until after the meeting to be held by the miners in Columbus, O., on Dec. 5. By a secret circular Mr. Powderly has asked them to remain in the order and try to add to it those miners who are out. In like manner Mr. Lewis replied to Mr. Powderly saying that the Knights of Labor must do something for them if they wanted to keep their present membership among the miners. There the matter stands as it has for two weeks and action here is expected to influence the Columbus meeting next month. Mr. Lewis has kept quiet and took no stand for or against the charge but some hope his action yesterday is indicative of his probable action.

BUILDING IRONCLADS.

Germany Will Expend Some Million Marks in that Way.

BERLIN, Nov. 20.—Gen. Von Schellendorf will shortly resign from the Ministry of War and assume command of the first army corps. Gen. Hobuka will succeed to the Ministry of War.

The increased expenditure for new war ships which has been provided for in the budget of 1889-90 amounts to 65,000,000 marks, the greater portion of which will be applied to the building of ironclads.

GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER.

John Naylor Gets Seven Years for Killing His Wife.

ST. ANDREWS, N. B., Nov. 20.—The trial of John Naylor for the murder of his wife at Clarendon on Sept. 29 was concluded yesterday. After Chief Justice Allan's address the jury retired and returned into court in less than an hour with the verdict of manslaughter, upon which the prisoner was sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary.

In a private interview with the prisoner in jail last night he stoutly protested his innocence and claimed to have no knowledge whatever of the cause of his wife's death.

POSSIBLY A MURDER.

An Ontida Indian, Struck by a Companion, Dies Suddenly.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 20.—Dan Kennedy, an Oneida Indian, was in the city last Friday with two Indians named Cornelious Hall and William Nicholas, with whom he partook freely of fire-water. In the course of a row during the day Kennedy was struck on the head with a club by Nicholas, inflicting a painful though not supposedly serious bruise. Hill and Kennedy then started for home, Nicholas remaining in the city. The two former proceeded about a mile along the road, when Kennedy complained of feeling ill and lay down in a corn field and soon after died. The coroner will hold an inquest.

ATTACKED BY GLADSTONE

LAST NIGHT'S DEBATE IN THE BRITISH HOUSE.

The Bill Granting £5,000,000 to Carry Out the Ashbourne Act Introduced—The Liberal Leader's Amendment.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—In the House of Commons last evening Mr. Madden, Solicitor-General for Ireland, in the absence of Mr. Balfour, who is ill, brought in the bill to further facilitate the purchase by tenants of land in Ireland by adding £5,000,000 to the amount applicable under the Ashbourne Act. Mr. Madden, in explaining the proposed measure, described the Ashbourne Act as a great success. There had been 14,338 signed agreements for the purchase of land, of which 8632 had been completed. There were only two courses open to the Government: One was to abandon the scheme of land purchase, and the other was to extend the act.

When Mr. Madden had finished Mr. Gladstone arose. He was received with prolonged cheering from the Opposition. Mr. Gladstone moved this amendment to the Government proposal:

"That in lieu of voting £5,000,000 it is expedient, in view of the lamentable sufferings arising from recent evictions in Ireland, to extend the land law of 1887 so as to empower the courts to reduce or cancel arrears of rents that are bound to be excessive."

Mr. Gladstone complained that the Government had broken their pledge to the House after obtaining the whole command of the time at the disposal of the members under engagement that no controversial measures should be introduced. His amendment did not strike at the Ashbourne Act, nor would it necessarily stop its operations. He did not desire to stop the operations of the act, whatever he might consider its dangers, and he did not oppose the bill because it proposed to keep the act alive, but he objected to it because of the amount demanded. The Government ought to have asked Parliament for a limited grant which would suffice to enable them to continue the operations of the act until the spring, when Parliament could consider the whole matter. The Opposition would cheerfully agree to such an advance but the Government instead of taking that course produced a bill involving Parliament in a fresh approval of its land purchase policy. [Cries of "Hear! Hear!"]

Mr Gladstone continued, stating that it was the manifest design of the Government to withdraw the subject of Irish land from the view of Parliament for several years. [Cheers]. That was not the course which could be allowed. The principle of the previous land act was totally different from the Ashbourne Act, under which £5,000,000 were obtained, apparently as a precedent for another £5,000,000, thus drawing the House by slow degrees into a system from which there was no escape from putting the land into the hands of the state, making the state the immediate landlord without proper guarantees. How different was the proposal from the Liberal side when Mr. Trevelyan laid down the principle that the Government should not ask the national taxpayers to advance purchase money unless the taxpayers in Ireland evinced confidence in the tenants by offering local guarantees.

What reason has the Government for refusing with such tenacity to deal with the arrears? Where they the means of insuring the servitude of the tenants? [Parnellite cheers.] It was certain that this bill would give the landlords a leverage to bring up rents, while it would enable only a handful of tenants to acquire holdings.

The Government were not justified in relying upon the tenants' will to pay, after the recent declaration of Lord Salisbury that the majority of 3,000,000 in Ireland were bent upon putting down the minority of 2,000,000 in order to get at and rifle their pockets. [Cheers.]

The tenants themselves had urgently demanded a settlement of arrears. A similar necessity had been acknowledged in the case of the crofters of Scotland. Much greater had been the need of Ireland, where the arrears were running without limit and led to a paralysis of the farmers' engagements and an increasing flow of evictions. He asked the House to intervene and prevent a recurrence of mischief, too certain to ensue, perhaps on a greatly augmented scale, under the Government's policy. Let them do justice to Ireland in the matter of arrears. [Cheers.]

Mr. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer, denied that the Government were pledged not to introduce controversial measures during the winter session. Mr. Gladstone's statement, that if the Government had asked just sufficient to keep the act in operation till the next session it would have been granted, was incorrect. Steps were taken to ascertain whether such a proposal would be acceptable, and the reports did not encourage the attempt. ["Hear! Hear!"]

The immediate extension of the Ashbourne Act was a necessity. It was desired by the tenants and he hoped the House and the country would perceive that they were dealing with land purchase which was not incompatible with dealing with arrears. The Government was prepared to deal with arrears in the course of time. ["Hear! hear!"] The suggestion that they were practically assisting the landlords in a conspiracy to allow the arrears to continue and to encourage evictions was so absurd that it was scarcely worth answering. [Cheers.]

Mr. O'Brien maintained that the bill would make rich tenants richer, but would leave poor colliers in the west in as bad a position as ever. It was merely a plan to shovel English gold into the pockets of the Irish landlords.

Mr. Campbell-Bennerman (Lib.) severely censured the manner in which the Government were thrusting the bill upon the House.

THE SLAVE TRADE.

France Has Not Engaged to Co-Operate in the East African Blockade.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—In the Chamber of Deputies yesterday M. Goblet, Minister of Foreign Affairs, stated that France had not engaged to co-operate with England and Germany in a block de of the coast of East India. Both powers, he said, had requested permission from the French Government to search the ships flying the French flag which were suspected of being engaged in the slave trade or importing arms into Africa. The Government had replied that it could not recognize the right of England or Germany to search all vessels under the French flag. Certain abuses due to the slave trade might have arisen, but they did not have the gravity with which it was sought to invest them. They were not to be compared with those perpetrated in the interior or on the coast of North Africa. Nevertheless a French war ship would be sent to prevent slave trading being conducted under the French flag.

MORMONS IN CANADA.

THERE is nothing, no law, to prevent Mormons settling in Canada or any part of Canada. A man's religious or political belief is not asked by the officials when he crosses the lines into this country. But while he is in the country he must obey its laws.

A number of Mormons from the United States are desirous of settling in the Northwest, and no one has prevented them from coming. But when they applied to the Dominion Government for special concessions they met with a proper refusal. Some of their requests were, to say the least, not very modest. They wished to bring in their goods free of duty, and were told that the law permitted settlers' effects to enter free. But they also asked that hereafter they be permitted to import free—that in their case the customs laws of the country be suspended—which was not granted. And another request was also refused, probably with greater emphasis. They wished to have those who had a "plurality of wives" to be guaranteed from being disturbed after coming into Canada! They were of course informed that if any of their number violated the law against polygamy they would have to bear the consequence. Canada desires settlers in the Northwest. Vacant lands are unproductive and the more quickly they are taken up and tilled the better. But that desire is not so strong that a second Utah would be permitted.

MR. JOHNSTON would evidently make a good partner for the Quebec Government official who wrote that letter inviting popular subscriptions to defray the cost of extraditing the Missisquoi robbers.—Montreal Gazette.

The Gazette is led to make this remark on account of an excuse given by the Deputy Attorney-General for the arrest of Hannah Boyd. But the Ontario Government does not ask for subscriptions to defray the cost of exradition proceedings; it assesses the municipalities. Has the Gazette not heard of the Greenfield case?

THE Toronto World is battling hard against those who are trying to prevent Victoria College from being removed to Toronto, in its own breezy style. But there is such a thing as being too breezy. When it refers to a friend of the University as "Old Hayfork" it does the college, federation or Toronto no good. Mr. Massey may be mistaken in his view of what is best for Victoria, but that should not subject him to disrespect.

THE QUEBEC BOODLE CASE.

Editor Maguire Refuses to Give up His Informant's Name.

QUEBEC, Nov. 20.—The boodle investigation was resumed before Judge Dugas yesterday morning, but only progressed a few steps when a forced adjournment was taken. In the evidence Saturday Contractor W. McLea Walbank made a reflection on the press of the city, stating that all the journals were interested one way or the other. All except The Chronicle and The Telegraph are in his favor.

Yesterday morning Ernest Pacaud, proprietor and editor of L'Electeur, and Carrel of the Daily Telegraph denied that they were in any way interested and then James Maguire, formerly editor of The Mercury, was called.

It was he who, by articles in The Mercury in February, 1887, naming several Councillors as having received bribes and giving the amounts against their names, raised the investigation. Later he was tried and convicted for libel and spent several months in jail.

Yesterday he admitted the publication of the charges but when asked for his authority for the statement flatly refused to answer.

A long discussion between counsel ensued and finally Judge Dugas took the matter en delibere, Crown Counsel Fitzpatrick declaring that unless the question was answered it would be impossible to proceed further with the inquiry.

GATHERING FOR THE FRAY

COUNSEL IN THE CROSSING CASE ASSEMBLING AT OTTAWA.

General Middleton Contradicts the Rumor of His Alleged Intended Resignation—Mariners Rewarded for Bravery.

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—The forces for the legal battle to be commenced before the Supreme Court on Wednesday on the Manitoba Railway question are assembling. Mr. Clark, solicitor for the Canadian Pacific Railway, arrived on Friday, Attorney-General Martin got here Sunday, and Mr. D'Alton McCarthy, Q.C., Hon. Oliver Mowat and Hon. Edward Blake are expected to-day.

General Middleton returned to the city yesterday after inspecting the Dufferin Rifles. He flatly contradicts the story published in the United Service Gazette and copied into Canadian papers that he intends resigning his position in January next on account of disagreement with the Government. He says that he has always been treated with the greatest consideration by the Government, and as the Canadian Government with the approval of the Imperial authorities and at the suggestion of the Minister of Militia had extended his term of service to November, 1892, he had no idea of retiring before that time had expired.

The captain, first officer and four seamen of the West India mail steamer Barraconta have been presented by the Marine Department with a handsome binocular, a gold watch and four silver watches for bravery in rescuing the crew of the schooner Henrietta, wrecked while voyaging between Arguilla and Lunenburg.

The Council of the Village of Aylmer, nine miles from here in the Province of Quebec, vote to-day on the question of imposing license fees on non-resident merchants, and the bylaw will probably be carried unanimously. Ottawa merchants are in the habit of sending delivery wagons two or three times a week to supply the village, especially in summer when many Ottawaites reside there, and the village merchants complain that all their trade is being taken from them.

It is estimated that the settlers in Manitoba and the Northwest this season will be double the number for 1887. The total amount of arrivals for last spring is approximately given as exceeding 9400.

A short time ago a train on the Pontiac Pacific Railway was derailed near Parker's Station by running down and killing five horses which had strayed on the track owing to the carelessness of a farmer named Courneau in leaving open the gate of a field in which the horses were kept. Damage to the extent of $7000 was done to the train. On Saturday Courneau was tried before Stipendiary Magistrate St. Julien at Aylmer and fined $20 for his carelessness in leaving the gate open, and the company will sue him for the damage done.

It is stated that Hon John Carling, Minister of Agriculture, will shortly commence the distribution of the grants made to the Northwest agricultural societies.

TRADE AND TRAFFIC.

Review of the Leading Grain and Produce Markets at Home and Abroad.

TORONTO, Nov. 20.—The receipts at St. Lawrence Market yesterday were small and prices steady as follows: Beef, sirloin, 14c to 15c; round steak, 10c to 12c. Mutton, legs, 12½c; chops, 15c. Lamb, hindquarters, 15c; forequarters, 10c. Veal, best cuts, 12½c; inferior, 6c to 10c. Pork, chops, 12c. Butter, pound rolls, 22c to 24c; large rolls, 18c to 20c; inferior, 14c to 16c. Lard, tubs, 12c. Cheese, 11c to 13c. Bacon, 12c to 13c. Eggs, 19c to 20c. Spring chickens, 30c to 40c. Geese, 70c to 80c each. Ducks, 55c to 65c. Potatoes, bag, 45c to 50c. Apples, per barrel, $1.25 to $1.75. Beets, per bag, 75c to $1. Onions, per bag, 75c to $1. Celery, 40c to 50c per dozen bunches. Turnips, bag, 15c to 20c. Carrots, bag, 35c to 40c. Cabbages, dozen, 30c to 40c. Cauliflower, per dozen, 60c to 75c. Tomatoes, per bushel, 45c to 55c. Beans, 40c to 50c a peck.

On call at the Board of Trade, buyers bid $1.28 for No. 1 Manitoba hard wheat: none was offered. Sellers offered a car of oats at 38 cents on the track, buyers bid 36c., sellers offered at 37½ to arrive, buyers bid 36½. One car was sold at 37c. to arrive; the same bid was made for another car, but no more was offered.

No hay whatever was received and only 300 bushels of barley and one load of goose. The barley sold at 67c. to 73c.

THE CHEESE MARKETS.

Offerings of cheese at Buffalo yesterday afternoon were 3800 boxes, divided among the different combinations as follows: Marshfield 1000, Cloverfield 800, Springville 1200, Neff 800 boxes. The Springville and Neff combinations offered September cheese but Marshfield and Cloverfield combinations had the first of their October make, which is light skin cheese. The market was dull. Johnsonburg, Sandusky and Springville, all sold, 3000 boxes sold at 11 cents. The others had 10½ offered but would not accept.

On the Utica market yesterday the cheese sales were 450 boxes at 9½c., 1920 boxes at 9¾c., 1127 boxes at 10c., 450 boxes at 10¼c., 200 boxes at 10½c., 300 boxes at private terms, 1230 boxes on commission.

The sales at Little Falls were 36 boxes at 9¼c., 809 boxes at 9½c., 2650 boxes at 10c., 1890 boxes at 10¼c., 334 boxes at private terms, 496 boxes on commission; 580 dairy sold at 9½c. and 10¼c. 55 packages of dairy butter sold at 21c. and 22c.

At Fulton 1230 boxes of cheese were sold at 9¾c. and 10¼c.

Something About Savings Banks.

John P. Townsend, in his address on savings banks in the United States, stated that the average expense of savings bank management in thirteen states is less than one-third of 1 per cent., the average interest paid is nearly 4 per cent; in the six New England states the average is greater than 4 per cent., in Vermont it was 4¼ per cent., and in Rhode Island 4 7-10 per cent was paid in 1887.—Chicago Herald.

ILLUSTRATED.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE is the most useful, entertaining, and beautiful periodical in the world. Among the attractions for 1889 will be a new novel—an American story, entitled "Jupiter Lights"—by CONSTANCE F. WOOLSON; illustrations of Shakespeare's Comedies by E. A. ABBEY; a series of articles on Russia, illustrated by T. DE THULSTRUP; papers on the Dominion of Canada and a characteristic serial by CHARLES DUDLEY WARNER; three "Norwegian Studies," by BJOERNSTJERNE BJOERNSON, illustrated; "Commodus," a historical play by the author of "Ben-Hur," illustrated by J. R. WEGUELIN, etc. The Editorial Departments are conducted by GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS, WILLIAM DEAN HOWELLS, and CHARLES DUDLEY WARNER.

The First Instalment Gone.

The meeting of the local Irish National League was held last evening in the library of the Murray-st. school, when the committees appointed to canvass in aid of the Parnell defence fund reported. It was decided to forward the first instalment of the subscriptions to Dr. O'Rielly, Secretary of the American League, of Detroit. The second instalment will be sent next week, accompanied by resolutions, which will be passed at the next meeting.

The Endeavor Society.

At the regular weekly meeting of the "Endeavor Society" last night it was decided to engage Prof. Williamson, of Oshawa, to give an entertainment with his fine dissolving views, in December. The Society is to be congratulated in securing such a splendid number for their course of entertainments; it will be a treat for all. After the business part of the evening was over a choice programme of a literary character was rendered, including an instrumental duet by Misses Butcher and Brownscombe. Next Monday evening a very excellent programme will be rendered including an able essay on "The Pleasure Dance in its relations to Religion and Morality."

At Which Hour?

A motion to change the hour of nominations of the Mayor and Councillors was lost at the last meeting of the Peterborough Town Council, it being contended that "the three or four would-be Mayors would take up all the time and not give the Councillors a chance. "And also that No. 1 Ward Councillor did not want to talk to No. 3 Ward people." This is rather a narrow view to take of the subject, the advantages of such a meeting to the ratepayers generally being entirely overlooked—but these Peterborough fellows are great talkers, and each Councillor wants a hall for himself.—Fort Hope Times. The Times does not take into account that in a town the size of Peterborough there is something to talk about.

Old Enough to Vote.

His Honor Judge Weller held a court in his chambers at the court house at eleven o'clock this morning for the purpose of hearing and determining complaints of errors and omissions in the voters' lists of the town for 1888. Nineteen cases in all were before him, out of which four were disallowed. The following are the names added:—

No. 1 Ward.—Geo. Stevens, Jas. Whitehair, John Donovan, R. Sheehy, jr., Alfred Sutton, T. Cavanagh, B. Laurin and Jas. A. Ellis. All of these were on property.

No. 3 Ward.—R. R. Hall (tenant), and A. H. Stratton (freeholder).

No. 3 Ward.—G. F. Carrie (income).

No. 4 Ward.—R. M. Donnistoun (freeholder), John Sterling (income), James Davidson and Geo. McKee (freeholders).

The Kingston Forgeries.

Wm. Ross is suspected of being the man who passed forged cheques on Messrs. Liffiton & Sandfield in Kingston. The same story was told them as was told to Mr Foote—the forger saying that he could not write and that he was in a hurry. He went into Wells' livery office in Kingston and asked for blank cheques, but as Mr. Wells did not like the look of the fellow he did not accommodate him.

A Belleville Horse Thief.

Chief Newton, of Belleville, came down from Lindsay on the 1.55 train, accompanies by Joseph Johnston, a young man who is wanted in Belleville for stealing a horse and buggy. Johnston was arrested at Reabro and taken to Lindsay to await the arrival of the Belleville Chief. The prisoner was locked up in the cells here during the wait for the 1.30 train for the Bay City, which carried the duet home.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dark, dull days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 45 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember Jas. Best's stand, 39 George-st. d111tf

Prof. John Reynolds,

A Superb Production.

In a very short time people will be thinking of Christmas souvenirs to send to friends all over the world. Canada is going to furnish one of the most superb Christmas souvenirs ever seen on this Continent. The Montreal Daily Star is getting out a Christmas number at enormous expense that will be far and away ahead of any previous effort. It will be a grand paper to send to friends in other lands. The publishers have already spent nearly twenty thousand dollars in its production.

Notice of Visit.

Mr. P. H. Morris, from the establishment of B. Edmison, Esq., P.M., for the County of Peterborough, under Ont. Act of last session respecting the supplying of milk to cheese factories. Edwards (Peterborough), in support of the motion, contended that the Act was ultra vices the Ont. Legislature on the ground that it dealt with criminal matters and matters relating to criminal procedure, which are by the B.N.A. Act reserved for the exclusive jurisdiction of the Dominion Legislature. E. F. B. Johnston on behalf of the Attorney-General. C. J. Holman on behalf of private prosecutor. Judgment reserved.

Paddlers Debating.

The first meeting of the season of the Otonabee Canoe Club Debating Society took place last evening. The night of meeting, which last season was Monday, was changed, and hereafter the club will meet on Friday evenings instead. The subject for debate at the next meeting will be "Protection vs. Free Trade," and in which Mr. Arthur Tebb will uphold the protection side of the question and Mr. A. Clegg will handle the Free Trade question. These leaders will each select seconds before the next meeting, while the other members will be chosen on either side in turn as they arrive. Mr. Jas. Little will preside as chairman and will decide the debate. The next meeting will take place a week from Friday next, and a pleasant evening may be anticipated.

See the Marvellous

A Splendid Holiday Souvenir.

When the Globe Printing Company announces, as it does this year, that it will issue a Christmas number which will be better than anything hitherto attempted in this country, the Canadian public will look for something remarkably fine. It is evident that the Globe is sparing neither pains nor money to make good its promise and that if Canadian artists, literary men and mechanics, by uniting their best forces aided by unlimited capital, can bring forth a worthy production, this Christmas number will be one of the events of the year. The fact that the principal representation place will be a reproduction of one of Mr. L. R. O'Brien's magnificent paintings of Canadian scenery, stamps this work as a great one. The other portions—literary, artistic and mechanical—will be in keeping with this leading feature. The publication will be looked forward to with the greatest interest by the Canadian reading public. Bearing this fact in mind, those who desire copies should order early. Orders may be sent direct to the Globe or placed with any newsdealer.

Entertaining Feats.

A WONDERFUL EXHIBITION.

Mesmerism Makes Merry a Mystified Multitude.

The immense crowd that entered the doors of the Opera House last night to see Prof. Reynolds, the mesmerist, were rather sore and weak when they emerged, for they laughed and kicked and kicked and laughed until you would expect something to break. It was a laugh which would do anybody good, and the cause of the hilarity was most innocent. Prof. Reynolds opened his entertainment by giving a short address in reference to the power of mesmerism or animal magnetism on invalids, stating that he had cured several cripples on whom all medical aid had proved futile. The professor then called for volunteers, and, after considerable talking, succeeded in getting twenty gentlemen on the platform. Out of these twenty he secured five who were susceptible to his power, and then the fun commenced. He would call a man out and ask him if he ever stammered, and then tell him to tell his name, but the surprised subject would find his naturally smoothe tongue stammering and could not utter his name. He made them forget their names and they will give "Mary Ann Jones," or something like that. They would try to jump over a walking stick lying on the ground, but the power had left them. Then the subjects would sit in a line and he operated on them all at once. They laughed until there seemed danger of convulsions, then he put the flees on them and it was fun to see them jump around and scratch. The professor turned the walking stick into a snake and the crowd roared and stamped to see the men hunt the backs of the chairs like a female who sees a rat. Another remarkable performance was the changing of the atmosphere on the stage to 40 degrees below zero, and to see the hands go into the pockets, and the poor fellows squeeze up close to one another was laughable. The performer would hand a silver dollar to his subject and then throw his power into it and the unhappy fellow would drop it like a hot potato. One fellow put the dollar in his pocket, but he soon jumped around while getting it out. The subjects which the professor had last night, with one exception, did not get under his control completely, but that one nursed a walking-stick for a baby, and carried it down and gently handed it to a lady in the audience. The professor will have a good house to-night, undoubtedly, and may get some good subjects. He did not commence last night to put them through half the antics and performances which he is able to, but it was well he stopped when he did, for the audience was almost exhausted with laughing. There are no bad feelings resulting from the mesmerism, and the backwardness of the ladies cannot be accounted for. There is nothing done that you could possibly be ashamed of, and it is by no means a sign of a weak mind. Professor Reynolds remains here all week and will give nightly exhibitions of his marvellous and wonderful power.

Imperial Federation.

A meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Imperial Federation League will be held in the Y. M. C. A. rooms to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock. All members are urged to be present.

Fast Time.

The Belleville Intelligencer says:—"The Peterborough train on Friday on its way to that town made exceptionally quick time. It ran from Campbellford to Peterborough, a distance of 33 miles in 45 minutes. When the condition of this branch of the road is taken into account, the time made is wonderful."

Lord A. P. Cecil.

Lord A. P. Cecil is advertised to preach on the second coming of Christ, on Thursday and Friday evenings at 7.30, in the Old Baptist Church, Aylmer-st. Messrs. Hayhoe and Rochester have a meeting there to-night at 7.30. Christians are earnestly exhorted to bring Bibles, prove all things and hold fast that which is good.

A Pleasant Evening.

The Young People's Association of the George-st. Methodist church held a successful meeting last night, when there was a very good turnout of members. Rev. Mr. Pearson, the pastor, occupied the chair, and the programme that was rendered was excellent, including recitations, readings, and instrumental and vocal music. A most pleasant evening was enjoyed by all present.

A Silent Alarm.

A telephone message from the Nicholl's Hospital between six and seven o'clock this morning informed Engineer English that a chimney was ablaze at that institution. The alarm was not sounded or the brigade called out as the hose could not be used, but Engineer English and Jerry Smith went up with the hook and ladder truck and the Babcock, but the blaze was extinguished before they arrived.

Fraternal Interchanges.

The Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows were paid a fraternal visit last evening by several brethren from a distance. Mr. S. McKeiver, of the Oddfellows' Covenant Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Galesburgh, Ill., Mr. W. B. Holcombe, representing the Oddfellows' Fraternal Accident Insurance Company, and Messrs. Hamilton, of Guelph, and Coonie, of Bowmanville, were present at the meeting. The latter gentleman, it is understood, will reside in Peterborough.

Imperial Federation League.

At the last meeting of the Imperial Federation League for Canada held in Toronto a few days ago. The Hon. Robert Hamilton, of Peterborough, was placed upon the Council, and James Stevenson, Esq., M. P., and Mr. J. H. Long, both of Peterborough, were made members of the Canadian Executive Committee. A resolution was passed calling upon the Government to invite delegates from the other British colonies to meet in Canada for the discussion of mutual trade, postal and telegraphic communication, &c.

Personal.

Mr. Wilson Irwin, district agent for the Travellers Insurance Company, was in town yesterday.

Mr. W. F. Johnston, of town, who passed his examinations at the head of the list, was sworn in as a barrister at Toronto yesterday.

W. A. Sims, manager for Canada of the London & Lancashire Fire Insurance Co., is in town in the interests of his company, which is represented by Wilson & Morrison.

The Fenelon Falls Gazette says:—"Mrs. John Nugent, of Peterborough, left for home on Friday, after a week's visit amongst her numerous old friends at Fenelon Falls."

NORWOOD.

Correspondence of the Review.

FOOTBALL.—An exciting game of Association Football was played here on Thursday between the first eleven of Victoria University, Cobourg, and the Norwood High School team. The ball was faced at 2.30. During the first half time the visitors pressed the home team hard, but without any success. The ball was kept moving alternately from one goal to the other, very often giving the backs of either side considerable to do. Half time was called and no goals were yet scored. The home team now appeared to be gaining ground. Many times the ball was found dangerously near the Cobourg goal. At length by sharp passing and combined play a goal was scored for Norwood. From this out the home team had decidedly the advantage and more than once came very nearly scoring. However, when time was called the score stood Norwood 1, Cobourg 0. The game was a friendly but strongly contested one throughout. The Norwoods owe their victory to their combined play. The Vics. do more of the individual work. The following composed the teams:—

COBOURG.		NORWOOD.
Lister	Goal	Hutchison
Snider	Backs	Finlay

THE MERCHANT OF VENICE.

The following questions on Shakespeare's Merchant of Venice were prepared by Mr. B. Earle:—

No. I. Examine the title of comedy, as applied to this play.

II. What are the supposed sources of the plot.

III. State all the grounds of the enmity between Antonio and Shylock.

IV. Sketch the character of Antonio.

V. Describe fully the character of Shylock. Compare and contrast his character with that of Marlowe's Jew of Malta.

VI. What seem to have been Shakspere's feelings with regard to the treatment received by the Jews? What extenuating circumstances for the conduct of Shylock are brought out in the play? How has the dramatist mitigated the severity of Shylock's punishment?

VII. Remark on the conduct and character of Jessica.

VIII. Describe fully the character of Portia.

IX. By what means has the dramatist lightened the general tone of melancholy in the play?

X. Sketch the character of Gratiano. How is the procedure of the play affected by him?

XI. Account for the popularity of this play.

XII. "The persons naturally fall into three several groups, with each its several plot and action." Does this affect the unity of the action? Who are the central figures of the several groups? How may the part of Lorenzo and Jessica be regarded?

XIII. Describe the character of Bassanio.

XIV. "The friendship between the merchant and his companions is such a picture as Shakspere delighted to draw, and so fair a sentiment is not apt to inhabit ignoble breasts." Give other instances from Shakspere's works.

XV. Can you justify the introduction of Launcelot Gobbo? State fully the importance of his part.

XVI. Write a brief epitome of the play.

XVII. How has the poet relieved the mind from the anxiety which would otherwise be too painful, for the danger which hangs over Antonio?

XVIII. Show that the several plots are skilfully complotted.

XIX. By what features in the opening scene is the plot of the Merchant of Venice foreshadowed?

XX. What references to the sixteenth century occur in Shylock's ennumeration of Antonio's "ventures?"

XXI. What was the probable reason for Shakspere attributing to Portia "Sunny locks?"

XXII. What references to the following are there in Act I:—Lato; the Golden Fleece; Heraclitus; the early commercial supremacy of the Italian Republics?

XXIII. What were the legends on the caskets of gold, silver, and lead respectively? Explain the significance of each.

XXIV. Infer the Prince of Morocco's disposition from his first dialogue with Portia and his comments on the caskets.

XXV. Infer the Prince of Aragon's disposition from his comments on the caskets.

XXVI. Explain the purport of the song which is sung while Bassanio comments on the caskets to himself.

XXVII. Give in your own words an account of the court scene, and remark on the features of character brought out.

XXVIII. How does it appear that not only "indirectly" but "directly too," the Jew had "contrived against the very life of the defendant"?

XXIX. Discuss the dramatic importance of Act V.

XXX. Explain Shakspere's use of the following words:—Conceit, continent, danger, fond, gear, gaged, his, advised, circumstance, prest, sometimes, possessed.

XXXI. Explain the following:—Alas the while!—Scorn running with thy heels.—A livery more guarded.—The wry-necked fife.—The sisters three.—Fancy dies in the cradle where it lies.—Hard food for Midas.

Brevities.

—There were no lodgers at the Rossel house last night.

—No police court to-day.

—The Literary Society of St. Peter's meets this evening.

Women's Studios in Paris.

On ordinary occasions this is what you see on opening the door of the studio in the Rue de Berri. A long and extremely lofty apartment lighted from above; at one end is a low platform on which stands a model "undraped" save for the red cloth round her loins; at the other end is a "draped" model. The former sits for the ensemble, the latter for the head and bust only. Before each, forty or fifty pupils are grouped, some sitting, some standing, brunettes and blondes, girls in blouses or pinafores, and one or two elderly women in bonnets, some wielding the brush, others working in charcoal. Between the two divisions is a young woman sketching out a rich hued bunch of particular blossoms that happen to be in season; the flowers from which she is painting being arranged on a low table, scenting the air with their fragrance. Lifting a drapery, you pass into an inner room, where modelling is being carried on. A fair young girl is sitting before a group of female sculptors, many of whom are reproducing her soft, rounded limbs in clay, not unskilfully, while a tall young woman, her hair cut short, is doing the same for a lithe youngster, who might personate John the Baptist in boyhood. I must not whisper to you the name of this tall woman; when noble dames assume the sculptor's blouse they leave their title with their fine manners in the vestibule. It is Chapu who dispenses praise and blame in this department, and a good deal of the former commodity falls to the share of Princess J——. Overhead there is another and a larger room, which is reached by a private staircase, and is extended for those whose prejudices exclude them from the study of the nude.—R. Julian in Kansas City Journal.

Religious but Economical.

Husband (on his way to church)—I'll just skip on ahead, my dear, and get some change. I've nothing less than $1, and that's too much to give.

Wife (on his overtaking her)—Did you get the bill changed?

Husband—Yes.

Wife—You will contribute half a dollar, John?

Husband—I can't very well now. I happened to meet three or four friends, and I've only got a quarter left."—New York Sun.

Effect of Waist Belts.

The effect of waist belts upon the work done by a healthy heart has been accurately studied by means of an instrument called a cardiometer. Experiments upon a dog showed that with but a little pressure upon the abdomen the abdominal vessels are capable of containing all and more than all the blood in the organism. Slight compression of the abdomen will, without disturbing the arterial supply, drive out from the abdominal veins and venous capillaries a large amount of blood; and this blood so driven out will, as long as the compression continues, be of use for the other regions of the body—for the brain, muscles, etc. Flaccid abdominal walls are from various circumstances rather the rule than the exception in the gentler sex, and, among men, occur in those leading sedentary lives devoid of exercise. We are, therefore, brought to conclude that among women some form of waist belt is very advantageous. Moderate constriction does no harm.—New York Sun.

A Highly Profitable Wrath.

During the civil war a great fair was held in New York for the benefit of the sanitary commission, which did a deal of good for the Union soldiers. A large amount of money was raised by private subscription. Vanderbilt and A. T. Stewart were approached, and each said he would give as much as the other. This word was carried backward and forward again and again, with no practical result. At last the commodore lost his temper at Stewart's delays, and put down his name for a round $100,000. The merchant did the same, but was said to be exceedingly angry at the rival millionaire. How very angry they must both have been! But it was a highly profitable wrath.—Paul R. Cleveland in The Cosmopolitan.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth it relieves the little suffer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether arising from teething or otherwise 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

DOGS OF HIGH REPUTE.

CLAIMS THAT THEY CAN UNDERSTAND HUMAN LANGUAGE.

A Terrier Better Than a Burglar Alarm. Noble Traits of the Ulmer Hound—The Common Cur—Hydrophobia—Pugs and Other Pets.

"Tippie, go away; I don't like you!"

Tippie was startled, stopped her fondling, and sank to the floor a picture of abject humiliation. She was not accustomed to such rebuffs.

"Now can you doubt that dogs have a certain degree of intellect and can understand human language?"

The speaker was August Berg, a North side dog fancier, and Tippie was a long bodied, silken haired Yorkshire terrier that leaped into his lap and attempted to kiss him.

"Tippie is better than all the burglar alarms that were ever invented," Berg continued. "Now that you have entered the house by invitation she treats you as a welcome guest. She understands that you have been properly introduced and she can trust you. Go and be friendly with him, Tippie," and the sleek little terrier sprang into the visitor's lap with the utmost confidence.

"What breed of dogs possesses the highest degree of intelligence?"

"Probably the large poodle has the most intellect. Next comes the terrier, and then the shepherd. In fact, you can train any dog to do many tricks if you treat him well. I have dogs that I can send to another room for my slippers or a whisk broom, and they well understand the order and obey it. A dog can be easily taught to sit on a stool and pretend to sing to piano accompaniment. Of course, he does little more than whine, but he acts as though he was singing and no doubt thinks he is."

"And what breed multiplies most rapidly?"

"I have known a Newfoundland to have twenty puppies at a time, and a little pug to have nine."

"As to cleanliness?"

"Of the larger dogs, beyond question the Ulmer hound, better known in this country as the German mastiff. Most long haired dogs have a certain disagreeable odor about them; when their stomachs are out of order they slobber. The Ulmer hound does not, and in intellect he is fully the equal of the St. Bernard. These qualities made him so popular with the students at the University of Ulm, whence he derives his name. A student would rather have a dog than a degree. These hounds are as proud as the emperor, noble in their bearing, and will not viciously attack a man, or even another dog. At the same time they know their business as a trained guard, and when on duty at their master's threshold they expect to be treated with courtesy. When they stand on their hind legs, as they have a way of doing, they are as tall as the tallest man, and a burglar would as soon encounter in a dark hallway a man with a loaded shotgun as an Ulmer hound weighing 150 pounds. The English mastiff, whom they much resemble in appearance, is entirely different in traits, being, like his master, sturdy, heavy and 'loggy.'"

"Have you ever handled the cur?"

"Only to treat him when sick. He doesn't have to be bred; he grows naturally, the same as weeds. And yet I have a great deal of sympathy for him. Nobody likes him but his master, and because he has no friends and is kicked when the thoroughbreds are petted he gets jealous. It is jealousy that makes him bark and snap at you on the street. Turn, snap your finger, and speak kindly to him and he instantly becomes docile and manifests his gratitude. In all my experience I have never known kind treatment to fail to transform the most vicious cur into attractable and clumsily affectionate animal. While I don't like curs I am sorry for them and can't help showing it."

"Have you ever treated a dog for hydrophobia?"

"I can't say that I have, but I have treated many dogs supposed to have hydrophobia that were merely suffering from ordinary diseases. Hydrophobia is to a large extent a bugaboo. Every time a dog has a fit he is supposed to have hydrophobia, and most likely he is killed. Now, all dogs are subject to fits and from natural causes. Almost every young dog has worms and in consequence fits. You want to treat him for worms and not for fits. Then he has teething fits, the same as an infant, and will froth at the mouth, snap and growl as though he had hydrophobia. Most people jump to the conclusion that the dog is mad and kill him. And after he is grown he may at any time have a fit as the result of overheating, overfeeding, or lack of exercise, and everybody yells 'mad dog!' and he is shot. This is all the result of ignorance."

"What dogs used for pets are the most valuable?"

"That depends largely upon the supply. There are not to exceed a dozen King Charles spaniels of pure breeding in Chicago to-day, and, therefore, the King Charles is the most expensive, the price being from $40 to $75. They are mostly imported. Next in value is the Italian greyhound, resembling the English greyhound, but very much smaller. As they are scarce they come high. A thoroughbred Yorkshire terrier is somewhat rare and, therefore, costs money, and so does the thoroughbred small black and tan. The pug is more plentiful and brings a lower price. And then, because the pug does not, at first sight, appear to be as intelligent as some other kinds of dogs, customers will try to cut down the price, though all the while they praise that kind of dog to any other. A pug has many lovable traits, as anybody knows who has ever owned one, and if it was rare it would be considered very valuable. The pug is the very best of mothers, and a like fidelity characterizes it in all its relations in life."—Chicago Times.

SIR LAUNCELOT.

Near Camelot the rivers meet
The lane where once he rode with her;
He rides and sees a dull wind stir
The pallid waters at his feet.

He hears the windless thickets stirred
By some wild creature. O'er the grass
He sees the hawk's gray shadow pass,
Yet knows it not from leaf or bird.

For he has come where fancies reign;
Now though he flees he soon returns;
Like flames his heart within him burns;
His mind is like a turning vane.

In crypts he vainly tries to pray;
There troop the burdens of gay songs;
In crowded inns he jests of wrongs;
But feels his great heart giving way.

His soul is like a hunted thing
'Twixt hell and heaven. Each kiss that drew
Their lips together thrills anew,
And then become a serpent's sting.
—L. Frank Tooker in Boston Transcript.

The Corner Drug Store.

Why is it that people select the corner drug store as a sort of trysting place? The man who arranges to meet his wife down town says he will meet her at So-and-So's drug store at a certain hour. Matinee girls meet their friends amid the assorted odors of the pharmacy, and the patient and long suffering drug clerk is often intrusted with both disappointing and happy messages. Drop into any one of the big corner drug stores about 2 o'clock on any pleasant afternoon, and you will find the chairs occupied by anxious looking females, who glue their eyes upon the door and vigorously munch chewing gum, awaiting the advent of an expected one. A masculine shadow upon the threshold causes the fair waiters to start with anticipation. One of them probably trips forward as the shadow materializes and she recognizes her friend. The others sink back and regiue their eyes upon the door. It is quite a study. Some unfortunate may be late. If he is he approaches with faltering step and a tongue loaded with excuses to meet the glance of flashing eyes and the spiteful stamp of a pretty foot. That is his wife. If the waiter looks happy and accepts his excuses they are not yet married. You can always tell.—Chicago News.

Will Have a Pleasant Visit.

"I think I will get one of those for my little boy," said Brown, as he stopped before a fakir who was making the day hideous with a big wooden rattle, "he likes anything that will make a noise."

"Then, are you going up town?"

"No, I've got to go to the telegraph office first. My wife expects her mother to-morrow and I want to wire her that I'll meet her at the station."—The Epoch.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wondersful things in existence. It is easily put out of order. Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

THE CENTURY

MAGAZINE IN 1889.

WHY has it such an enormous circulation? Experts estimate that between two and three millions of people read each number.

BECAUSE THE CENTURY is above everything a leader. It led the development of wood-engraving in America and it has fostered American authors. It is alive to the issues of to-day. What it prints sets people to thinking and talking.

BECAUSE whatever other periodicals we may come into the family, the great reading world has found out that "no household can keep abreast of the times without THE CENTURY." "Its success is explained by its contents."

BECAUSE the greatest writers of the world like to have their work read by the greatest number, and therefore to such a magazine as THE CENTURY the best naturally comes. It was for THE CENTURY that Gen. Grant first wrote his reminiscences of important battles.

BECAUSE it is publishing the life of Abraham Lincoln, by his private secretaries. Of this it has been said, "The young man who is not reading it robs himself of that which he will one day hunger for." The coming year presents the most important part of this great history, which may be begun at any time.

BECAUSE it is printing those remarkable articles on "Siberia and the Exile System," by George Kennan, which are attracting universal attention and are being reprinted in hundreds of foreign newspapers, but are not allowed to enter Russia. The "Chicago Tribune" says that "no such magazine articles printed in the English language just now touch upon a subject which so vitally interests all thoughtful people in Europe and America and Asia." They are "as judicial as the opinion of a Supreme Court Judge,—as thrilling as the most sensational drama."

BECAUSE during 1889 THE CENTURY is to have a series of engravings, with descriptions, of the greatest pictures of the old Italian masters, made by Timothy Cole, the leading wood-engraver of the world, who has spent four years in Italy on this work; a series of "Strange True Stories of Louisiana," by George W. Cable; occasional richly illustrated papers describing the scenes of the current International Sunday-school lessons; interesting illustrated papers on Ireland, and a series of humorous and pathetic Irish-American stories; a striking illustrated novelette, "The Romance of Dollard," by a new writer, and other novelettes to be announced later; supplemental war papers, untechnical and descriptive of special incidents; "Pictures of the Far West," by Mary Hallock Foote, etc., etc. We have not space here to announce a tithe of the new features. Let us send you (free) our "Catalogue of Special Publications," with original illustrations, containing full prospectus, special offer of back numbers, a beginning of the Siberian papers, etc. The November number, which begins the new volume, is for sale everywhere after Nov. 1st. THE CENTURY costs 35 cents a number; $4.00 a year. Address THE CENTURY CO., 33 East 17th Street, New York.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there's a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

This Column Tells What is Doing at Turnbull's.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2.00, 2.50 and 3.00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it take an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap. Our 25c. and 35c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's. We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1888.

AN OLD RUMOR REVIVED.

THE C. P. R. SOON TO ACQUIRE THE CANADA ATLANTIC.

Parliament Probably to be Called Late in January—The Sault Ste. Marie Canal Lock Contract Signed.

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—The rumor is revived here that negotiations are in progress for the acquirement of the Canada Atlantic Railway by the Canadian Pacific and that the arrangement will very shortly be completed. The scheme, it is said, involves the lease or sale by the Canadian Pacific Railway to the Pontiac Pacific of the line from Hull to Montreal, the Canadian Pacific Railway making connection with Montreal by the Canada Atlantic to St. Polycarpe and thence by the short line from Toronto.

The fact that the private sealing companies of the Pacific coast, who are of course opposed to the monopoly of the Alaska Commercial Company, supported the Republican ticket, is taken as an indication that the rights of private sealers in Behring Sea may get better recognition under Republican than under Democratic rule and that American war vessels will not again be sent to capture and confiscate American and Canadian vessels sealing in Behring Sea.

Sir John Ross, Commandant of Her Majesty's forces in British North America, accompanied by his A.D.C., Lieut. Dhuleep Singh, arrived in the city this afternoon and is the guest of His Excellency the Governor-General, who gave a dinner at Rideau Hall to-night. Sir John Ross was administrator of the Government for the brief period between the departure of Lord Lansdowne and the swearing in of Lord Stanley, but this is his first visit to Ottawa.

The Governor of Montana Territory has asked the United States Secretary of State to make a requisition on the Canadian Government for the extradition of George Godin, a half-breed who escaped last August from the jail in Helena while under conviction and awaiting sentence for the murder of a farmer named Embody. Godin is now in jail in Edmonton.

Commissioner Herchmer of the Northwest Mounted Police is at present inspecting the patrol recently established in Manitoba to stop the depredations of Dakota smugglers and timber thieves.

Although the matter has not yet been formally discussed in council there is a sort of general understanding about the departments that Parliament will be called for the dispatch of business on either Jan. 24 or 31 and the preparation of annual reports and estimates is being hurried up.

Application will be made to Parliament to incorporate the Ottawa Terminal Railway and Bridge Company, for the purpose of building a union depot on the west bank of the canal between Sapper's bridge and the militia stores.

An order-in-council has been passed approving of the plans for the proposed bridge across the Bay of Quinte at Belleville. The Bay of Quinte Bridge Company was incorporated session before last. The Council of Belleville has agreed to take $30,000 worth of the company's stock and the municipality of Ameila $15,000. The bridge will unite the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward.

The contract for the lock on the new Sault Ste. Marie Canal was signed to-day by Hugh and John Ryan, who will commence work immediately.

TORONTO TOPICS.

A Missing Jeweler—Accidents and Crimes—An Assignment.

TORONTO, Nov. 21.—J. C. Bourgoggne, a jeweler at 90 King-street west, whose wife deserted him after a quarrel two weeks ago, has disappeared. His stock is intact and his liabilities small.

Archdeacon Cassidy is seriously ill and his recovery is doubtful.

George Pendergast, a boy living at 125 Adelaide-street west, broke his arm in two places while playing on York-street. He fell under a passing wagon.

Young Mr. Shaw, the unfortunate victim of Parkdale's latest terror, is still in a precarious condition. The limbs are much swollen, and the doctor is afraid that erysipelas or inflammation may set in.

Wm. Stein, residing at 92 Adelaide-street west, slipped and fell while stepping off a street car at the corner of Yonge and Adelaide-streets. He broke his leg below the knee.

In the Police yesterday Joseph Dalton, pedlar, who stabbed two persons as reported yesterday, was remanded till to-day. Thomas Downs and his wife were fined $30 and costs or three months for keeping a disorderly house at 65 Centre-street, and Ellen, their daughter, was sent to the Mercer for six months for wounding her father. Henry J. Thorpe, charged with shooting at his father-in-law on Saturday night, was remanded till to-morrow. Mr. Badgerow obtained an adjournment till after the general sessions of the charge against Phip Spohn of having a barricaded door whereby the entrance of the police was obstructed at his alleged gambling-house, 112½ King-street west.

Drs. Potts and Burwash in a communication say that the General Conference having decided on Federation as the policy of the Methodist Church, no action of the Senate or Board of Regents of Victoria University can reverse that policy.

The Ontario Cotton Mill Company has assigned to W. F. Findlay of Hamilton.

Guelph's Fat Stock Club.

GUELPH, Nov. 20.—At a meeting of the Fat Stock Club these judges were appointed for the Christmas show: On cattle—John Dunn, Toronto; Jas. Dingle, Hamilton; Peter Rennie, Fergus. On sheep and pigs—Josiah Snider, Waterloo; C. Wood, Freeman; Geo. Puddy, Toronto. On poultry—Mr. James Goldie, Mrs. Haugh and Mrs. McIntyre.

LOST BY A BIG MAJORITY.

GLADSTONE'S PROPOSAL NEGATIVED BY THE HOUSE.

The Motion to Introduce the Bill Granting £5,000,000 to Extend the Operation of the Ashbourne Act Agreed to.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—On motion of Mr. Smith, the Government leader in the House of Commons, this evening, the rule requiring an adjournment at midnight was suspended in order that the debate on the land purchase bill extending the operations of the Ashbourne Act should proceed until a division was reached.

John Dillon said he thought the time had come to take a broad view of the Ashbourne Act and show the British taxpayer what advances might be asked and the nature of the security for them. He hoped the debate had resulted in waking up the taxpayer to the imminence of the danger of finding themselves committed to a scheme of landlord purchase without due guarantee. It was astounding to hear the Tories speak with fervor about the creation of a peasant proprietary, at the same time charging the peasants with trying to frustrate the measure which was directed to that end. Among the first principles of the League stood the peasant proprietary. The League aimed at procuring such an alteration in the law as would enable every occupier of the land to become an owner. He said that he had formerly spoken in favor of the Ashbourne Act but it was when no coercion existed. With coercion the act was assisting the landlords to raise the price of land while it was breaking up the combinations of the tenants. He must warn the English people that the day might come when the national program would include the repudiation of liabilities under the act. This position has been forced upon the Irish people at the point of the bayonet. ["Hear! Hear!"] Mr. Goschen had tried to show that there was adequate security for advances because the terms of purchase included both the landlords' and the tenant's interest. The truth was that in hundreds of cases the land commission had reported that the landlord's and tenant's interests together would not afford sufficient security for the prices at which it was proposed to purchase. ["Hear! hear!"] It was absurd to say that the existence of arrears was not used to raise the price of land, and it was equally untrue to deny that coercion tended to raise the price by crushing the power of the tenants to combine. The Government were trying to reduce the tenants to the unprotected position held by them in 1879. Such a course was cruel, dastardly, mean. It might inflict more misery upon the people, but they were wedded to liberty and were prepared to make sacrifices to achieve it. [Cheers.]

Lord George Hamilton (Con.) assailed the Parnellites as opposing the bill because they were conscious that it would enable the people to forsake the League yoke. The landlords' yoke might be heavy, but it was nothing compared with the tyranny of the League.

Mr. Gladstone's amendment was rejected, 330 to 246, and the motion to introduce the bill was agreed to.

The East African Blockade.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—In the House of Lords to-night Lord Salisbury stated that negotiations still proceeded in France with reference to the blockade of the East African Coast. Concessions by France would practically enable the Government to stop the slave trade. The objections that M. Goblet had taken were rather to the right of search theory than to its practice under the blockade. M. Goblet's promise to send a war ship for the surveillance of vessels flying the French flag ended the difficulty.

Sackville's Successor.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The Government is considering the advisability of appointing a successor to Lord Sackville before President Cleveland vacates his office. A successor may possibly be appointed in December, Lord H. C. Vivian, the Minister at Brussels, could have the Washington post if he wanted it, but it is believed that he does not desire it. After him the choice rests upon either Sir. Plunkett, the present envoy to Japan; Sir F. C. Lascelles, the minister at Bucharest, or Mr. Monson, the minister at Athens. It is understood that Lord Sackville will go to Madrid and that Mr. Ford, the present minister there, will be transferred to Vienna. Mr. Satow, the minister resident at Bangkok, will succeed Mr. Palgrave as minister resident at Montevideo.

Gov. Blake Would Accept.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Sir H. A. Blake arrived at Queenstown to-day. In an interview he said that if the Government upheld his appointment as Governor of Queensland the hostility expressed toward him would not prevent his accepting the post. He believed that only a small section of the Irish opposed him and this opposition he considered strange as he thought he had won the esteem and confidence of the Irish in Newfoundland as shown by the address presented to him on his departure.

Simpletons at Sackville's Sale.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The sale of the effects of Lord Sackville was continued at the British Legation to-day, and as was the case yesterday the articles sold brought generally more than they were worth. A considerable quantity of silver and plated ware was first sold and the hotel men were the best bidders. The contents of the stables were then sold. Everything which was marked with a coat of arms or looked peculiarly English brought good figures, sometimes two or three times their real value. A team of dark brown horses, which were said to have cost $800 a short time ago but which necessarily had no distinguishing monogram, brought only $370. The double harness they wore, covered at every available place with the Sackville crest, brought a good price. After everything in the stables had been sold the wines and cigars belonging to Lord Sackville were put up at auction and the bidding on them was brisk and spirited.

Tinged with Romance.

KINGSTON, Nov. 20.—Cape Vincent is teeming with romance these days. A young doctor was taken suddenly ill and was removed to the residence of a lady friend to whom he had been paying attention. His condition grew alarming and a physician was summoned, who in turn summoned the parents of the young man. While the physician was in search of some one to go after the parents, the young man sent for the girl and had the Gordian knot tied. The patient is now about the streets.

Belleville Favors Federation.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 20.—The subscriptions to the Federation fund at the meeting of the Methodist congregations last night amounted to about $1750, or within $350 of Belleville's quota. General Superintendent Carman subscribed $500.

An Oil Blaze at Petrolia.

PETROLIA, Nov. 20.—A fire broke out to day about 2.40 in the boiler house of the Producers' Oil Refining Company. It soon spread to an underground tank of crude oil. The fire brigade was promptly on hand and did good service. Loss about $600, partly insured.

LATE LONDON CHRONICLES.

The Queen Takes a First Prize at a Dairy Show—What's the Matter With Randy?

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The Queen bore her journey very well and looked bright on her arrival at Windsor station. Only the railway officials and the Mayor of Windsor were on the platform to welcome her. No one was admitted to any station when the train stopped. Even at Perth, where some of the privileged public are occasionally admitted, no exception was made. The station was kept absolutely cleared while the Queen dined and during her departure.

There are ominous difficulties ahead if Lord Salisbury adheres to his resolution of not sending another minister to Washington until the American government has expiated the offence of dismissing Lord Sackville. Phelps is certainly to be promptly recalled, and thus both posts will be practically vacant.

What has come over Lord Randolph Churchill? is the question everyone is asking. His meeting at Paddington was large, enthusiastic and expectant, and though his speech was excellent—indeed, one of his best—the feeling left on the minds of the audience was slightly disappointing. They had gone to hear him curse the Government: he did nothing but bless them. Herein was the disappointment. Lord Randolph's great power lies in attack. He is never better than when pointing out the foibles and shortcomings of his opponents. There were not opportunities wanting—notably the opportunity of criticizing his whilom friend and adviser, the Home Secretary. But Lord Randolph forebore. He is clever enough to see the increasing power of the temperance party in England and is therefore a little ungrateful to his old friend the publican, but he is satisfied that the real work for Parliament is to be found at home. In social questions that interest and affect the masses of working people in England he is perfect.

The much talked of inauguration of the Lyric club on Friday eclipses the glory of any similar function ever attempted in clubland. Phipps has contrived to adapt the building to its present uses with marvelous skill. It is difficult to say whether the white and gold music crypt with blue carpet and luxurious arm chairs, the Elizabethan billiard room, the oak, lined with bamboo, draped with delicate Persian embroidery, bears off the palm. There is nothing like it in London. Everybody in town was to be seen at the concert. The Duchess of Manchester, in flowered blue silk, wore seven rows of enormous pearls, The Duchess of Leinster was in white, Lady Randolph Churchill in terra cotta brocade, Lady Goldsmith in sea green crepe de chene. Lady Charles Beresford in black, the Marquise de Santurce in black silk and pink moire, and Lady Hothfield in black velvet and felt. Lord Hartington related his experiences with Chubb and the non-conformists to select circles of friends. Sir Morell Mackenzie chatted in a quiet corner to his old lieutenant, Mark Hovell.

The Queen took a first prize in one of the classes at the recent dairy show with a beautiful shorthorn, originally bought for Her Majesty at Windsor, from a well-known breeder in Westmoreland. A fine herd of black Galloway cattle has recently been purchased for the royal farm.

The price paid by Kennedy for the Murtty and Grantully estates, the sale of which was announced last week, is stated in Edinburgh to exceed £500,000.

At the arts and crafts exhibition on Thursday evening last, Walker's lecture on printing was the occasion of an amusing scene. Walker had expressed himself mildly as to the mechanical ugliness of new face type, and the folly, from an artistic printer's point of view, of illustrating books with pictures designed without reference to their destination as a part of the printed page. By this Walker meant, though he did not say so, that the monthly Harper's or Century is looked at as a decorative object, an abomination of desolation. An American gentleman present ventured to remonstrate. Thereupon Wm. Morris clothed Walker's unspoken thought in unmeasured words, denouncing American artists, engravers and printers alike, regardless of the fact that the American gentleman happened to be Joseph Pennell, whose works in black and white are the pride of the Century. The arts and crafts speedily made a ring and looked on with much relish. Crane was there with Sanderson, the veteran J. J. Linton and other more or less well-known spectators. Poor Pennell, too polite to retort on the ill-usage of his older and more famous adversary, could only appeal mutely from the injustice and the explosiveness of the poetic socialistic man. The Pennell incident will probably be the staple topic for next Thursday, when Sanderson lectures on bookbinding. EDMUND YATES.

AMBITIOUS CITY NOTES.

Business Transacted at the Session of the Presbytery—A Small Steal.

HAMILTON, Nov. 20.—At the meeting of the Hamilton Presbytery to-day deputations were appointed in each constituency to wait upon the members of Parliament and request them to bring the matter of closing the Welland canal on Sunday to the attention of the Dominion Government. The call from St. John's Church, Hamilton, to Rev. H. Abraham of Burlington at $1000 per annum was sustained.

There are a few clerical errors in the literature that decorates the front of the city coat-of arms on the new City Hall. The sandstone artist has placed a period after the I in "I advance," and has omitted to put commas after the first two words in "Commerce, Prudence, Industry."

Mrs. Sandburg of 147 John-street north reported to the police this morning that there were four men at her house last evening. About 9 o'clock, after they had departed, she missed $12 in cash, a gold locket, a silver locket, a silver fruit knife, a penknife and a box containing 200 tickets for an organ lottery. The value of the steal is about $25.

A special meeting of the City Council was held last evening to arrange for the public reception which it is proposed to give Lord Stanley of Preston.

A People's Church for Toronto.

DETROIT, Nov. 20.—At to-day's session of the Christian Workers Rev. J. M. Wilkinson of Toronto said it was his intention to erect a people's church, to hold 5000 people exclusively for the purpose of gathering in non-church goers. The cost would not be less than $45,000, of which sum two brethren will contribute $5000 each.

PROHIBITION OR LICENSE.

A GATHERING IN GOTHAM.

ANNUAL DINNER OF THE NEW YORK CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The Chief Magistrate Is Lauded and the Republic Glorified — "Our Relations with Canada."

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—The 120th annual dinner of the Chamber of Commerce held to-night drew out a brilliant gathering in which much of the wealth of this commercial centre was represented. Charles S. Smith as president of the Chamber presided. On his right were Gen. W. T. Sherman, Hon. Warner Miller and Chauncey M. Depew. On his left sat Prof. Goldwin Smith, Hon. Frank Riscock and Samuel D. Babcock.

President Smith spoke to the toast "The President," of whom he said that no words or sentiment could add force or dignity to the simple assertion that the Chief Magistrate represent 60,000,000 people.

Gen. W. T. Sherman responded to "The United States" and briefly got over the subject. He said that with an educated, united and patriotic people her success will continue to be commensurate with her opportunities and her power co-extensive with her vast domain.

Prof. Goldwin Smith handled "Our Relations with Canada," and said: "As a Canadian I have the greatest pleasure in responding to the toast. Such an expression of good will on the part of such a body of American citizens as the Chamber of Commerce of New York towards Canada would be welcome at any time, but is especially at this time, when there has been a little misunderstanding not between the two communities but among the diplomatists. As you have some gentlemen among you whose delight is to twist the tail of the lion so we have some whose delight is to twitch the feathers of the eagle but their number is very small. The fisheries dispute will be at rest by and by when the fisheries are common to us all."

AGAINST HIS WILL.

The First Action Taken by the K. of L. Contrary to Powderly's Wish.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 20.—The afternoon session of the Knights of Labor was taken up by the Committee on Law with many changes of the constitution. Contrary to Powderly's recommendation the time of meeting is unchanged, which is the first action yet taken against his will. The General Master Workman shall hereafter fill all vacancies on the board by appointment, this being a new power added to the office. It is now proper for any member of the General Executive Board to approve the reports of the Secretary-Treasurer, although that was formerly permitted only by the General Master Workman. The General Assembly so desiring may hereafter declare vacant any place on the board, and it can do so without at the same time expelling the officer so removed. Before appointment organizers must pass a proper examination.

The same committee reported approval of Powderly's denunciation of the provincial committee.

CAN BE TOLERATED.

Rome Won't Squelch the K. of L. if the Constitution is Amended.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—The Catholic News has received from its Rome correspondent the following text of the reply sent by Cardinal Simeoni, perfect of the Propaganda, to his Eminence Cardinal Gibbons:

"It is my duty to inform your eminence that the fresh documents relative to the association known as the Knights of Labor, forwarded to this Sacred Congregation, were examined by it at the sitting of Aug. 16 of the current year.

"After having attentively studied the whole subject, the Sacred Congregation has directed me to reply that, so far as at present appears, the association of the Knights of Labor can, for the moment, be tolerated. The Sacred Congregation merely requires that the necessary modifications should be introduced in the rules of the society to make clear whatever might seem obscure, or might be interpreted in a bad sense. These modifications are required particularly in passages of the preface to the rules concerning local associations.

"And then the words savoring of socialism and communism must be corrected in such a way that they shall only affirm the right conferred by God on men acquiring property, using legitimate means, and respecting the proportionate rights of all others.

"I am most happy to be able to inform your Eminence that the Sacred Congregation has highly approved of the design of the American hierarchy to see with us that in this and similar associations nothing should be secretly introduced which is contrary to justice and morals, or not entirely conformable to the regulations regarding the Masonic sect. Whilst confirming your Eminence in this excellent design in the name of the Sacred Congregation, I beg you to accept the assurance of our respectful and devoted sentiments."

A Fatal Quarrel.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—John Noland, who had quarreled with his mistress, Emma Boch, shot her this afternoon at No. 6 Second-street where they had lived, and she will likely die. The young couple hired a room at that address six weeks ago and lived there quietly until yesterday, when they had a fight. He was injured and was told by the girl to go to a hospital. He went however to a dispensary, but on his return home last night Emma would not admit him. He went there again at noon to-day and learned that a better looking man was in his room with Emma. He swore and fumed in the hall, but Emma would not let him in. At 3 o'clock he again went to the house and talked with the landlady in the hall. He sent up for Emma and she finally came down. He told the landlady to retire as he wanted to speak privately to Emma. She retired and soon after heard five pistol shots in the hall. On rushing up she saw Noland fleeing through the front door and Emma lying in the hall covered with blood. The girl was found to have been shot in the abdomen, shoulder and wrist. She was removed to a hospital, where doubts are expressed of her recovery. Noland was caught by an officer in his flight. He gave his age as 23 years and said the girl had seriously injured him the day before and he wanted revenge.

THE PIGEON CREEK BRIDGE.

THERE does appear to be good grounds for the steps taken by the people who were served by the Pigeon Creek bridge to have their district united to Peterborough county. The bridge was of great service to them. Over it, a correspondent of a Lindsay paper has pointed out, they received their mail matter, and by it they were enabled to reach their market town by a direct route. We do not discuss the value of the Peterborough market as compared with the markets of other towns. Those who have produce to sell are the best judges of that, and they pronounce judgment by coming to Peterborough. They wish to come here, and as this bridge is a convenience for them and they pay taxes for the maintenances of bridges, they should have the convenience. But Victoria county has not done what it should to keep up the bridge, and the people of the section feel the necessity for it so much that they have proposed disconnecting themselves from that county. To reach their best market—the market in which they wish to sell—without this bridge they either have to make a detour or wait until they can travel on the ice. They should not be put to such trouble and and annoyance and there is justice in their complaint. There is reason in there proposition that they should not be connected with a county in which strong influences work against their interests, and that they should be united with the county in which they are closely interested in a business way and from which they would receive their dues. This town is interested in the matter and by appropriating a sum of money, on certain conditions, towards repairing the bridge it has shown that it is not unmindful of its interests or unwilling to assist the people in Victoria who desire to have that means of communication kept open. If the annexation proposal is pressed, as it most probably will be if Victoria does not act justly, the Ontario Legislature should see that justice is done. It is unreasonable to expect Peterborough to maintain a bridge situated as this one is and unjust to expect the people of that section to maintain it when they are paying taxes into the general fund of the county. Yet one of these plans, or both jointly, must be adopted if the present position of affairs continues, or the bridge will remain closed. As this constituency is interested in the matter it is one to which the member of Legislature from this riding might well give attention.

FOR an organization which was said to have been weakened, the Knights of Labor showed remarkable financial strength at the General Assembly. Mr. Powderly retains the confidence of the order and the crisis through which it has passed, if it can be called a crisis, may do it good. There can be no question that general confidence is felt in Mr. Powderly as head of the Knights, and the failure of the attack upon him will be received with favor by friends of the order.

A Colored Brute Jailed.

WESTCHESTER, Pa., Nov. 20.—James Mills, the colored assailant and would-be murderer of Bertie Howard, the 11-year-old adopted daughter of Farmer Isaac Beck, residing near Paoli, was brought to Westchester this afternoon and immediately lodged in prison. He was captured in bed last night at Cranberry, N.J., by Officer Jeferis of this place. The hack in which he was conveyed to prison was surrounded by a hooting crowd. On Thursday evening, Sept. 28, Bertie Howard was returning from school when she was met by the colored brute. He dragged her into a field close by and assaulted her. He then dragged her to a neighboring pond and threw her in. She dragged herself to the bank and was again thrown back by Mills. This was repeated the third time. The girl lay still in the water and the assailant, thinking she was dead, left. He went to his house, where he had been living with a white woman, changed his clothes and left. Bertie managed to drag herself from the water and to a neighboring house where she was taken in and cared for. For several days it was thought that she would die, but she finally commenced to mend and is now apparently healthy in body, though she has never been the bright, happy child she was before the assault. Mills acknowledged committing the assault, but says he was drunk at the time. He denies, however, that he attempted to drown her.

He Had No Jurisdiction.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Haytien Consul Vasset to-day demanded of Deputy Collector McClennand that the steamship George W. Clyde, scheduled to sail this afternoon, be prevented from sailing. He said she was loaded with guns and ammunition for Monte Cristo, San Domingo. McClennand said he had no jurisdiction.

It is extremely interesting to visit some of the leading manufacturing houses in Toronto. Perhaps the most interesting are surprising of them all are the extensive Ornamental Stained Glass and Decorative works of the McCausland & Son. POLLY BREDIN LOCKED UP.

Another Chapter in the History of the Barber Suicide.

TORONTO, Nov. 21.—The important event of yesterday in connection with the Barber suicide was the arrest of Polly Bredin on the charge of bigamy. The information reads: "That Polly Bredin, alias Mary Pattison Hill, on the 14th of November, at the town of Niagara Falls, New York State, did feloniously marry Frederick Barber, during the lifetime of her husband."

Mrs. Barber or Bredin was locked up in St. Andrew's Market Police Station and at once sent for her lawyers. She will be charged in Police Court this morning with the crime of bigamy, but it is not likely the case can proceed very far, because the clergyman who married her and Thomas W. Bredin, several years ago in that town, and Rev. C. J. Stowitts, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., who performed the marriage with Barber on Wednesday last, will have to be subpœoned as witnesses. This will take a few days.

Barber's Last Letter.

NIAGARA FALLS, Nov. 21.—The following letter was found in the satchel of Fred. Barber, the Niagara Falls suicide, and was produced at the coroner's inquest:

Nov. 13, 1888.

My Dearest.—True yet, although this will be, I now feel, the last time I shall ever dare to address you. I can't hurt myself to see you again, as my heart overcomes my head and makes me say and promise things which we both know are impossibilities unless we count on certain ruin in this world.

Up to my landing in this country I was an honorable man. Since then I have been a dishonorable fool in my intercourse with you. Had I the sense to see the drift of your letters I would have realized that you wished to put something to me and make me understand that what we wished for could not be.

On Saturday you were straight and honorable and I could not see it. Since then you have given me the opportunity and over again to say I would withdraw my attentions, and even last night you were straight and true. In your presence I am unable to think of anything but yourself; I can't look in any other direction. You know and I know well that any ceremony that we might go through as a marriage would be illegal either here or at home. What is the use, then, of putting ourselves in a more equivocal position than at present?

There is some arrangement, you tell me, at present with your friend in Montreal for your going home again. Be it so. He is a man of true thought, and I feel myself, compared to him, a worm. I have thought myself sincere God help me, where is the sincerity? I have no right to address you—you are so superior to me in thought and action and everything else. I keep thinking from your having my letters all tied up that you had made up your mind to this and intended it should be so. Forget me, Polly; wipe me out as not worthy to tie your shoes. I feel it is so. I won't persecute you again, but shall look upon it as an honor to be able to do anything I can for you at any time, if you wish it. I know I deserve shooting for the crime of trifling, but God knows it has been without thought of doing so, and yet I can see now what I have done. I can also see that after my vacillating conduct of yesterday, you could not respect me as a man of moral courage and as one you could look up to.

This all seems well, and I feel I have done you wrong. Forgive me if you can, but our loving intercourse shall cease and then perhaps you will be able to look up to the man whom I feel I have wronged horribly. Punishment will overtake me, and I deserve it, and shall not try to run away from it. You ask me for your letters, which have during the last three months been such a comfort to me I can't describe, and I am in honor bound to comply with your request. I have not slept all night; am sick and ill, and don't know what to do. I dare not see you. Break this off, for God's sake, and our own happiness of any kind. What we proposed to do would only bring more unhappiness than we have ever experienced. I cannot say more, but legally marry we cannot, and the other way means destruction to ourselves and our children, whatever we may think when talking to one another.

Good-bye; God bless you, my darling. Still your own loving FRED.

A ROMANCE OF ROYALTY.

An Emperor Who Preferred the Madcap Sister to His Stately Fiance.

Caroline, the eldest and perhaps the most beautiful of the daughters of the Duke Maximilian in Bavaria, was, while still a child selected as a fitting bride for the heir to the Austrian crown, and although there was no formal betrothal her father was informed that she must be educated in such a way as would fit her for her future grandeur. This was more easily said than done, for money was scarce in the ducal palace; but the whole family, from the duke himself to his youngest child, seem to have thrown themselves con amore into the work and to have cheerfully economized for the sake of the fortunate Caroline. She had professors and teachers of the best, and she well repaid all the care that was lavished upon her, for at 19, clever, accomplished and regally beautiful, she was the very ideal of what a queen should be.

When the time for the marriage drew near the young Emperor Joseph came on a visit to the duke in Bavaria (the family title is "in," not "of"), that he might make the acquaintance of his future wife. He gazed at the stately young creature who had been so carefully trained for him with respectful admiration, but he fell violently in love with her madcap younger sister, Elizabeth, who, regarded in the family as a mere child, and one, too, for whom no high destiny was in store, had been allowed to pass her days on horseback scouring the country side. Ministers and courtiers stood aghast, but argument and persuasion were alike wasted on the emperor, who refused to see that a lack of accomplishments was a blemish in the one whom he loved, and a few months later Elizabeth, thorough child as she was, knowing no more of the etiquette of courts than the veriest little gamin, entered Vienna in state as empress of Austria and queen of Hungary.

Although this happened more than thirty years ago, she has not yet learned to submit with patience to the restraints that hedge in the lives of sovereigns; and the Viennese, in spite of their love for their beautiful empress, openly mourn that the emperor should have chosen one who regards a court ball as a penance and a state ceremony as a thing scarcely to be lived through. From the day of her marriage it seems to have been her constant endeavor to shake off the fetters of her station, and perhaps the happiest hours of her life are those in which, while following the hounds in England or hunting the chamois in her native land, she is able to forget that she is empress-queen. For her age, the Empress Elizabeth is the youngest looking woman in Europe. When one sees her slight, graceful form, eyes brilliant with life and vigor, and complexion that flushes and pales with every passing emotion, it seems absurd that she should be the grandmother of big boys and girls.

Caroline, the forsaken one, seems to have met her fate with true royal equanimity. Perhaps she thought that as her sister gained what she lost, it did not really matter. If one may judge by her face, her life has not been a happy one. When she was about 24 she was married to the Prince of Thurn and Taxis, who died some nine years later.—Cornhill Magazine.

Astonishing a Bell Boy.

Harry Meredith is considerable of an athlete and a wag. It is his habit to carry with him a pair of heavy iron dumb bells for exercise. These he frequently puts into his valise, making it so heavy that an ordinary man would find it a task to lift it. On entering a hotel it is a favorite joke of Meredith's to hang the valise on his little finger, assume an innocent expression and call to one of the bell boys: "Here, take my valise." The youngster, thinking from the way its owner carries it that it must be very light, takes hold of it in a careless, easy manner and the next instant is dumb (bell) founded to find himself and the valise on the floor.—Detroit Free Press.

An Explanation.

Jay Gould, it is said, pays $30,000 a year to his attending physician, Dr. William Munn, and thus commands his entire time. This may explain why, every two or three days during the entire year, the papers announce that Mr. Gould's health is in a critical condition.—Norristown Herald.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dark, dull days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 65 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefiting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember Jas. Best's stand, 39 George-st. d111tf

Prof. Reynolds had a slim audience last night, which was not what he desired by any means. However he secured a number of volunteers, a few of whom were susceptible to his wonderful power of mesmerism. Mr. W. P. Stephen, vice-commodore of the Atlantic division of the A.C.A., was in town yesterday the guest of Commodore H. C. Rogers. Mr. Stephen, who is one of the editors of Forest and Stream, was present at the executive meeting of the A.C.A. at Toronto on Saturday and took advantage of the opportunity to run down and look at the way they make canoes at Peterborough, the home of canoes and canoeing. He was surprised at the extent of the canoe plant and business at the Ontario Canoe factory and praised very highly the beautiful craft. The Peterborough canoes are a favorite boat on the American market and highly esteemed for beauty of model and finish.

THEFT BY WHOLESALE.

Henry Godfrey Steals a Horse and Sells it in Peterborough.

The Belleville Intelligence of Tuesday says.—Henry Godfrey is a sharp-looking, intelligent half-breed, who has evidently inherited all the bad qualities of both races and none of the good ones. He is clearly an accomplished falsifier, a clever rogue, and, to crown all, a horse thief. His accomplishments, such as they are, have had their natural result and Godfrey, who has already been in the penitentiary and in gaol many times, is now in gaol here, charged with having stolen one horse from John Doreen, another from Charles Marcole, a buggy and harness from James Darcy, a buffalo robe, a lap rug, a whip and a brush from Edward Powers. All this spoil appears to have been appropriated on the 5th and 6th inst. in Tyendinaga, where the persons who own it live. Godfrey drove via Trenton and Roseneatr, to Peterborough, where he sold Doreen's mare for $60 or $65 for shipment to Montreal. Thence he went to Bowmanville, where he was arrested by Chief Gunyou, of Deseronto. All the property, except the buffalo robe, was found with the prisoner, who had pawned the robe at Castleton for a night's lodging. He was brought here for trial and this morning made his appearance before the Police Magistrate and elected to be tried by Mr. Flint. The County Attorney prosecuted.

Prisoner was first tried on the charge of stealing Mr. Darcey's property and the evidence was so clear that the Magistrate said he thought there was no doubt in the case. Godfrey, however, refused to plead guilty. He knew, he said, he was guilty in the eye of the law, because the articles were found in his possession; but he did not steal them. He was convicted.

The Maracle and Powers charges were also proved and the prisoner was remanded until Monday.

The story which Godfrey tells is that on the evening of the 5th Bill Jones, a Yankee who lives near Napanee, picked him up near Marysville. Jones was driving one horse and leading the other and engaged him to sell the whole, as he (Jones) was about leaving his wife to return to the States. They rode together to Trenton, where Jones left him, as the roads were heavy, and joined him again at Peterborough, where he got all the money realized from the sale of Doreen's mare, except $5 to pay the expense of the trip to Toronto, whither Godfrey was to go and sell the rest of the property, but the trip was ended at Bowmanville by Chief Gunyou. Nobody believes the prisoner's story, particularly his assertion that he did not know that the property was stolen.

Peterborough Men in Montreal.

Mr. W. H. Law, of the Central Bridge Works, went to Montreal this morning to direct the work of putting on the iron roof on the C. P. R. new train shed in that city. The material for the roof has been prepared during the last two months at the Works at Peterborough, and several car loads have been shipped to the destination. A gang of men from the Works go down to handle the work and the laboring help will be hired in the city. The roof is of 90 ft. span and nearly 500 ft. long. The area covered is about 45,000 square feet, requiring about 240 tons of steel. It is expected that the work will be completed by the beginning of the year.

What are They Doing.

Gough Bros. are the only and wonderful cheap men. They rival all rivalry. They distance all competitors. They can point to the pedigrees they have made as a verification of the saying of a distinguished philosopher that "whether a merchant or a manufacturer, a painter or a poet, be located in the midst of a great city or in the depth of a great forest, the world will beat a path to his door, if his productions or the goods he has to offer excel the productions or goods of his neighbors." Their latest feat is to buy the Sheppard bankrupt stock and throw it on the market. The great sale is now on and thousands are rushing to buy. Entertaining Feats.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

Wm. Ross, the Alleged Forger, in Court —Attack on the Press.

The preliminary trial of Wm. Ross, alias Ferguson, was finished this morning and the prisoner was committed for trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction. Mr. A. P. Pousette, Q.C., appeared for the prisoner, Mr. R. E. Wood for the Crown.

Several telegrams and postal cards asking to have Ross held in case he got off have been received from Toronto, Kingston, and Trenton.

Mr. R. H. McWHINNIE was first sworn. He identified the prisoner as the man who came into his shop on the 22nd December last with a cheque signed by Jas. Stevenson and told the story, which has already been published, of how the prisoner got a pair of boots and then, after making his mark on the cheque had hurried away.

Mr. McGILL, manager of the Ontario Bank, was called and sworn. He said that Mayor Stevenson had no account in the Ontario bank at the time the cheque was dated, that the signature did not resemble that gentleman's signature nor did it look like an attempt at an imitation. He did not know any other Jas. Stevenson in town. There was a Jas. Stevenson in Asphodel who was killed last fall, but he had no account in the bank.

Mr. FOORE was also sworn. He could not positively identify the prisoner as the man who passed the cheque, but he resembled him. He told the story of what occurred in the store in the morning, and said he asked the prisoner if he got it from Mayor Stevenson or Mr. Stevenson, of town, he did not remember which, and the man had answered that he had. The man had said that the name Wm. Ferguson was his.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

Mr. POUSSETTE, Q.C., claimed that a prima facie case had not been made out, as it had not been shown that the signature was a forgery. It was not the signature of Mayor Stevenson, but Mr. McGill said in evidence that it was not even an attempt at an imitation of the mayor's signature. He did not think the prisoner should be committed on the case the crown had made out.

Mr. WOOD held that the cheque had been taken with the understanding that it was Mayor Stevenson's, and reference had been made to that gentleman by Mr. Foote. There had been no other man by the name of Jas. Stevenson doing business here for eight years.

Police Magistrate DUMBLE thought that the understanding was that it was Mayor Stevenson and his name had been mentioned. The fact that Ross was going under an assumed name looked bad, and he did not think it would be wise to strain the point and allow the prsoner to go. He could therefore, committed him for trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction.

Mr. POUSETTE asked what bail would be accepted.

The Magistrate fixed the bail at $1,000 surety by the prisoner, and two others of $500 each.

Mr. WOOD objected to giving bail, as he said the prisoner was wanted elsewhere on similar charges, and, if he was arrested, he might not be here for trial, and this would cause a great deal of confusion.

The MAGISTRATE.—I don't know anything about the other charges.

Mr. WOOD.—But the Crown does.

Mr. POUSETTE said that was something he would like to mention in reference to the manner of the press in commenting on prisoners and their trials.

Mr. WOOD objected to the time being taken up in that way.

The MAGISTRATE said he would hear what Mr. Pousette had to say.

Mr. POUSSETTE then objected to the press making comments about a case or in reference to a prisoner in a case of this kind. He said since the first the press had been trying to take up charges against the prisoner. The very men who would probably try the case as jurors read these comments and came into court prejudiced. He thought it was contempt of court for the press to make any comments on cases in court or of prisoners in custody waiting for trial and he thought it would be well for the press to understand from the Court that to make comments of this kind was not right and might prejudice the public against a prisoner.

Police Magistrate DUMBLE said it had been stated in several papers that Ross was wanted elsewhere. Of course if a telegram was received it was as a matter of news got to the press. How the court could interfere he did not know. The press was always very fair, and jurors were sworn to act on the evidence produced, and should be unprejudiced.

Mr. POUSSETTE said the local press had spoken of the prisoner having committed a forgery in Kingston.

No bail had been procured for the prisoner up to late this afternoon.

Morrow, R. E. Comp. Benj. Shortly, Grand Principal Sojourner, presided. A large number of the companions were present, and the superintendent was highly pleased with the work and the hearty reception he received.

The Work on the Siding.

Work on the Dickson siding of the C. P. R. is at a standstill just at present. The embankment has not been raised as high as it will be until a train can run over the line, when more gravel can be brought in and dumped along the embankment. The work of building the trestle work has not been commenced, owing to the pile driver not having arrived. As soon as this comes work will be pushed ahead.

A Social Evening.

The ladies of the W.C.T.U. held their first At Home at the residence of Mrs. A. Rutherford, Reid-st., on Tuesday evening. There was a large attendance, the residence being crowded with young people and friends who enjoyed the evening very much. A party of friends from Norwood were present, several of the young ladies contributing to the programme. Social games were provided and proved of interest. Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford were assiduous in contributing to the pleasure and comfort of all and excellent refreshments were served by the Misses Rutherford. The following very enjoyable programme was rendered:

Instrumental	Miss Tucker
Reading	Miss Lewis
Song	Mrs. Seward
Reading	Dr. Clarke
Instrumental	Miss Maud Jones
Reading	Miss L. Ford
Song	Mrs. Jones
Instrumental	Miss Rose
Instrumental	Prof. Seward

The instrumental pieces rendered by Misses Tucker, Rose, Jones and by Prof. Seward were pleasing features of the programme, while the vocal selections given by Mrs. Seward and Mrs. Jones were much admired. The literary items of the programme were particularly good, happy in selection and read with taste and ability. Dr. Clarke told of the agonizing grief of a gay captain of the line at being tricked out of his whiskers as the the result of a bet. Miss Lewis read a selection from "Josiah Allen's Wife" which held up some "home truths" for the consideration of the men folk. Miss Lillie Ford read "Hiawatha's Wooing" admirably, her rendition of the selection being exceptionally good and pleasing. The proceeds of the At Home go to the fund of the W.C.T.U.

The Lakes Frozen.

There was keen frost on Tuesday night. A subscriber from the shores of Chemong Lake who called said that the lake was completely frozen over, from shore to shore, a very early date for such an event. Our Keene correspondent writes that Rice Lake is also frozen over.

Mortuary Statistics.

The mortuary statistics for the month of October show seven deaths in Peterborough during October. One was from fever, one from diarrhœal affections, three from constitutional and two from local diseases. In Montreal the number of deaths was 409, Toronto 177, Brantford 21, Hamilton 53, Kingston 32, Guelph 9, Belleville 13 and Woodstock 8.

Brevities.

—Father Chiniquy, the lecturer, is ill at Stirling. His physicians think he will be around again before long.

—The C. P. R. pay car was at the station last night when all the Italians and navvies smarmed to get their wad.

—Maitland Clark, of Kingston, a brakesman on the C. P. R., had the forefinger and thumb of his left hand smashed while coupling cars at Tweed station on Saturday.

KEENE.

Correspondence of the Review.

FROZEN OVER.—Jack Frost is getting down to work early this season. The lake is frozen over and the Indian river from Keene down is frozen.

ANNUAL MEETING.—At the annual meeting of the Keene Skating and Curling Rink Co. the directors were re-elected. Mr. J. H. Cruikshanks is President, Dr. Shaw Vice-President, and Mr. H. J. English Secretary-Treasurer. The other directors are Messrs. M. Kennaley, W. Campbell and S. Mather. The rink is being levelled and prepared for the season's sport.

A BEAR.—On Monday a party of three or four took advantage of the light fall of snow to track a bear near Lane's swamp. Bruin was seen going over a fence by Mr. John McVittie, who fired at him, but it was the first time he had used a rifle and the bear got off.

SHOOTING AND RAFFLE.—On Thanksgiving Day a shooting match for geese was held. The animals' heads were outside a box and were the targets for the marksmen. One was got with three shots and another with five. In the evening a horse and geese were raffled.

BUSY.—Mr. J. McFarlane's business has increased to such an extent that he is advertising for a shoemaker.

STONES OF MEMORIAL.

Behold the host of Israel,
Encamp'd on Jordan's side,
Gazing with glad expectancy
Across the surging tide,
Upon the glorious promised rest,
The heritage the Lord had blest.

Soon as the priests feet touch the rim
Of waters, they divide,
And in the midst they stand till all
Have reach'd the other side.
Then when their feet touch Canaan's shore
The Jordan flows on as before.

Fulfilment of fond cherish'd hopes
When drawing very near
Intensifies desire, and time
Slow laggard doth appear—
So Israel hastes to gain the prize
They waited long to realize.

In Jordan and in Gilgal they
Two monuments uprais'd,
To stand as the covenant-keeping God
Through ages would be prais'd,
When He His holy name made bare,
And did His faithfulness declare.

What anthems of glad praise and joy,
Methink the air would rend,
As from that vast exultant throng
Thanksgivings did ascend,
Unto the Giver of all good,
From hearts replete with gratitude.

For bounties of His providence,
And blessings of His grace,
Each child of God a monument
In his accustom'd place
Should be His praise to celebrate
And tell of all His goodness great.

If Israel reason had to raise
Memorials to His name,
So much more highly favor'd, God
Of us will surely claim
Memorials that shall make known
His loving kindness to us shown.

As who doth humbly follow Christ,
And do'h His Word obey;
Ready to do the will of God
In His appointed way:
Greets a monument more grand,
Than greatest hero can command.

Forget not all His benefits,
The Psalmist, says, review
Them oft, that you may bear in mind,
How God hath hitherto
Sustained, and kept you, so He will Preserve, uphold, and bless you still.

A Young Gambler's Luck.

About fifteen years ago there was a large number of gambling saloons in Mobile, where keno, roulette and faro were played every night.

A young man who is now a merchant in Memphis, Tenn., was almost insane about devising some scheme to break the roulette at a gambling saloon which was backed up by thousands of dollars. He had been left some property by his father, and he had sold it piece by piece to secure funds with which to play roulette.

One night, while betting on the red and black numbers as usual, he lost all the money he had with him. Feeling around in his pockets his hand touched a coin about the size of a quarter, and he called out quickly, just as the wheel was about to stop:

"Twenty-five cents on number eight, black."

The wheel stopped with the marble on No. 8, black, before the young man could get his money out. The banker, knowing he was a good customer, paid the bet, giving him $3.

The young man bet $1 on another number and won. He bet again, and again won, and he continued to win for hours and hours until he had $6,000 or $7,000, and the bank suspended.

The young man carried the money home, and in his room searched his pockets for the quarter that had brought him so much money, saying he would keep it for a luck piece.

He found the coin and took it out—it was a brass button.—Atlanta Constitution.

Chicago's Well Paid Drummers.

The best paid drummers travelling for Chicago houses are five men in the grocery trade, who receive salaries of from $8,000 to $10,000 a year. There are perhaps a hundred traveling men in the Lake City who make $5,000 a year, but the average is not above $4,000.—New York Evening World.

A HAIR DRESSER'S CUSTOMERS.

Transforming Some of Ugliest Women of Europe—His Methods.

A short time ago, a hair dresser, speaking of two of the ugliest woman in Europe, the princess Lise Troubetskoi and the princess Metternich, who were formerly his customers, said of the Russian lady: "That little woman is adorable. She is absolutely without a single physical point worth boasting of. Her face was always monstrously plain, the nose being just two holes, the eyes of a washed out color, and wanting in fine form; the mouth coarse, with yellow teeth in detached pegs. Her neck, always thin, was, as she advanced in life, scraggy, betraying flatness of chest, notwithstanding the full bosom obtained by padding. Her arms were mere skewers, her legs ditto, and her feet flat and more like frogs than anything else. She was on the whole uglier than Mme. Limousin. Well, through talent in applying art, she was socially a great success, and one of the most victorious flirts both in her youth and in middle and old age that ever came within the range of my observation. To see her before the glass, waiting for me to operate, she was a truly revolting sight. But when her maid and I had fixed her up, she was a redoubtable rival for no matter what beauty. The satisfaction she felt on seeing herself transformed lighted her up, called all her perversity into play, and made her agog for manslaughter.

The Princess Metternich was jollier, and had finer hair, more wit and animal spirits, and was not quite so ugly, although a fright. Well, she supported triumphantly proximity to the prettiest and best dressed women in Europe—the Empress Eugenie and those beauties of her court, whom Winterhalter grouped around her in doing one of his portraits of her. She greatly depended on the capillary fantasia into which I worked her tresses—real and borrowed. A plain style would not have drawn the eye from the frightful face or tickled it into good humor, and grotesqueness would have been ruin. I had to be very eccentric, and yet to know exactly where to draw the line.

I was the coiffeur of the Vaudeville theatre when Mlle. Schneider was playing there in the bouffe operas which she made famous. The Princess used to come into the dressing room of Mlle. Wanda, when I could not absent myself from the theatre, to get me to dress her hair for balls and grand soirees. Her taste was very sure in choosing the dresses, and I always followed it. One night suggested that she should go to a fancy ball as a damsel-fly or 'devil's-needle.' She came splendidly got up, and looked as if ready to rise into the air. I never saw such an arrangement of gauze and tinsel in my life. The thin, long arms and legs, which were much in view, helped the costumer's effects. There was not a beauty at the ball who could hold a candle to the Princess Metternich, who was certainly the ugliest of women, although the most attractive."—The Argonaut.

The time of payment of a note must not depend upon a contingency. The promise must be absolute.

The man with lantern jaws should shine in conversation.—Harper's Bazar.

Victims of Mistaken Theories.

"Infancy," Dr. F. L. Oswald declares, "should be a period of exceptional health; the young of other creatures are healthier, as well as prettier, purer and merrier, than the adults, yet the childhood years of the human animal are the years of sorest sickliness; statistics show that among the Caucasian races, men of 30 have more hope to reach a good old age than a new born child has to reach the end of its second year. The reason is this: The health theories of the average Christian man and woman are egregiously wrong, so that only the opposition of their better instincts helps them—against their conscience, as it were—to maintain the struggle for a tolerable existence with anything like success, while the helpless infant has to conform to these theories—with the above results." Better food and less of it, pure air, proper exercise and plenty of sleep are the reforms proposed to remedy this condition of things.—Arkansaw Traveler.

WEDNESDAY. NOVEMBER 21, 1888.

THE ASTOR ESTATE.

ITS FOUNDER'S ANTICIPATION OF THE GROWTH OF NEW YORK.

The Policy Inaugurated by John Jacob Astor Closely Pursued by His Descendants—The Responsibility of Immense Wealth—The Astor House.

Although the founder of the family, John Jacob Astor, son of a Badenese peasant, laid, as is well known, the basis of his great wealth by the fur trade, the bulk of it came from realty, which he began buying early in the century, and continued to buy until his death, a period of nearly fifty years. He anticipated, in a measure, the remarkable growth of New York—he would be amazed, no doubt, if he could learn its present population—and had, it is said, unerring judgment as to commercial transactions. The city advanced so fast that the lots he acquired often increased fifty fold, sometimes a hundred fold in value.

The policy he originated has been closely pursued by his descendants, who are constant buyers—they very seldom sell—of improved city property at the lowest rates, and under the most favorable conditions. Their manager, shrewd, careful, thoroughly trained, is always on the watch for good investments, and never misses a chance. They are eternally adding to their possessions; they have thousands of buildings—residences, offices, stores, warehouses—and may in time hold title to the bulk of the town. No one outside of the immediate family, and but very few in it, have any idea how this absorbing process goes on, month after month, year after year, generation after generation. The Astors keep their affairs as secret a possible; they are reticent—men, women and children—as a rock on that subject, though only their head and their manager have any definite information. They know that they are superlatively rich; that every day, every hour, every minute, augments their riches; and with this they are satisfied.

What is the estate worth? Who knows? It is doubtful if any one can tell; but, as the mass of it is in houses and lots, an estimate might be made that could not be made were it in securities, liable to ceaseless variation in the market. John Jacob Astor counted up two hundred and fifty thousand dollars in 1800—he had then been in the Republic seventeen years, and was 44—and at his death, in 1848, his wealth was believed to reach twenty million dollars. In forty-eight years it had increased eighty-fold. Forty years have passed since then, and millions of surplus revenue have been annually reinvested in real estate, and real estate advances here with astonishing rapidity.

AN AWFUL RESPONSIBILITY.

We all know how great fortunes increase, like big balls of snow, at every turn. It would seem as if the Astor estate must by this time amount to $500,000,000. But, making all allowances and deductions, $300,000,000 is a rational estimate, and I am confident it will reach that. What a stupendous sum for one family, of which there is always a head, a director, a controller! What gigantic power it bestows; what an awful responsibility it involves! What hospitals, libraries, colleges, art galleries it might establish here without serious diminution; and New York lacks these more than any great capital does! John Jacob Astor gave $400,000 to found the Astor library, and his sons and grandsons probably think themselves absolved, therefore, from further liberality of the kind. Because one is worth a few hundreds of millions, is that any reason why one should devote a million or two to the public good of the city where they have all been made?

The first John Jacob Astor felt the deepest interest in the building of the Astor house, more than half a century old, and watched its progress day after day until its completion. This may account in part for the solidity of the structure, which is hardly surpassed by any building in New York. He was determined that whatever was done for him should be done thoroughly, and was as rigorously economical that he often, it is said, picked up nails that the carpenters had dropped, and remonstrated with the mechanics when they showed the least tendency to waste of time or material. He was very anxious to perpetuate the family name—an anxiety that has been shared, in a monetary way, by his descendants—and he enjoined therefore upon his heirs that the Astor house should always be used as a hotel. The Western Union company wanted to buy it before putting up their building at the corner of Dey street, but the Astor estate declined to sell for that reason, though offered a good round price.—Paul R. Cleveland in The Cosmopolitan.

The Indian Native Press.

A year or two ago, while trying a case of defamation, the district judge of Lahore, Mr. E. W. Parker, described in his judgment the manner in which a native newspaper can be started and worked. Little or no capital is needed. "A few rupees will purchase the necessary lithographic apparatus, and the services of a small establishment, comprising a writer, a copyist and a pressman, complete the arrangements." Almost without exception vernacular newspapers are lithographed, movable type being for the most part unsuited for the presentation of Oriental characters. A lithographic press will cost under £15 complete. The editor, in whose name the paper is usually registered, may be a smart lad fresh from school on a monthly salary of £1, and there are few editors who would not gladly abandon journalism for a government post worth £30 a year.

News is mostly obtained by the simple and uncostly process of translation from the English daily papers, the latest story from the bazar being thrown in occasionally by way of sensation. A native paper rarely sells more than a few hundred copies, and the working expenses of a circulation of 300 need not be more than £4 a month, everything included, from printer's ink to the editor's salary. The price of a single copy of the paper ranges from a farthing to a penny, or thereabout. Wealthy subscribers are expected to pay a higher rate for the paper than the poor. Strange devices are adopted in order to obtain an additional income in the shape of subsidies and grants in aid. As likely as not the paper is the mouthpiece of a society or of some private patron with a cause to agitate or an enemy to defame. By many editors blackmail is levied without scruple from native officials and others who would stand well in the eyes of the public and in the estimation of the authorities, from all who are afraid of having their family secrets proclaimed from the housetops, or who wish their good deeds noised abroad. —Macmillan's Magazine.

Air Ships for War Purposes.

While the officers of the German army have bent their inventive energies to the construction of a practical air ship for war purposes the French naval office has not been idle and it has achieved success in a like direction. The former have carefully guarded their secret. Not so the French. It now leaks out that on July 17 balloon experiments were made in the harbor of Toulon, on board of the floating battery Implacable, by the inventor, Lieut. Serpette, in the presence of Admiral Amet and a large staff of naval and military officers. The balloon had a circumference of 810 metres, was filled with gas made on board of the vessel and held captive by a thin steel rope.

The special invention of Lieut. Serpette consists in a new method of ballasting the car by which ascent and descent are exactly regulated, and in the practical application of direct telephonic communication between the aeronaut and not only the officers of the ship from which the balloon ascends, but also with those of an entire fleet. Three ascensions to the height of 350 metres were made by the lieutenant and a professional aeronaut. At the second and third ascensions the Implacable and the fleet moved out to sea at the highest speed. The results were satisfactory. The aeronaut was able to communicate at a distance of twenty nautical miles the approach of a small steam launch. Thus the approach of torpedoes, of hostile fleets and the movements of land forces near the coast can be promptly signaled. When the experiments were made a calm prevailed. Whether the invention is practical in a heavy sea with a strong wind is a question apparently not yet solved.—Philadelphia Times.

Began Life Over Again.

I rode up town from the court with a man who is now prospering in a responsible business position in New York, and who holds the respect and confidence of his employers, who, when I was in the far west a dozen years back, was in state prison on the Pacific coast for forgery. He had been employed in a commercial house, had been bitten by the mania for stock gambling, and landed behind bars. When he was released he came east and began life over again, and his record shows, as clearly as any record can at least, that he gathered wisdom from chastisement, and really commenced a new life with his new name.—Alfred Trumble in Pittsburg Bulletin.

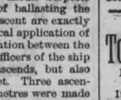
In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.



Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR '89.

An All-Around-the-World Year.

THIS world-renowned magazine "for young people and their elders" is to have a great programme for the new volume beginning with November, 1888. The editor, Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, calls it "an all-around-the-world year." Of course the bulk of the contents, as heretofore, will relate to American subjects; but young America is always glad to learn what goes on in the world outside, and these stories and descriptive papers are not of the dry geographical order, and they will be strikingly illustrated. We have space here for only a few prominent announcements.

America.

"Little Saint Elizabeth," by Mrs. Burnett, author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy"; "The Routine of the Republic, how the Government is carried on"; "College Athletics"; "Amateur Photography"; "Boys and the National Guard"; "The Girls' Crusade"; Indian Stories, School Stories, etc. "The Bells of St. Anne," a serial about Canada. South American stories—"A Railroad in the Clouds"; "Indians of the Amazon," by Mrs. Frank R. Stockton, etc.

Europe.

Life in Norway, by H. H. Boyesen; "Holland and the Dutch," by Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge; "The Queen's Navy," by Lieut. F. H. Smith, R. N.; "The Winchester School"; "English Railway Trains"; "Ferdinand de Lesseps"; German, Italian (art) and Russian papers, etc., etc.

Asia.

Yan Phou Lee writes of "Boys and Girls in China," and there is a description of "Some of John Chinaman's Inventions." Mrs. Holman Hunt describes "Home Life in the Czar's"; papers on Siam, Japan and other countries.

Africa.

"The White Pasha," by Noah Brooks, a sketch of Henry M. Stanley; How an American Family Lived in Egypt"; "Soldier-Boy Dromios" a story of the siege of Alexandria.

Australia.

A series of interesting articles imparting much novel and amusing information concerning the history, the animal and plant life, etc., of a wonderful land.

The Arctic Regions and the Sea.

"How we made the Farthest North," by Geo A. W. Greely, of the Greely Expedition; "A Dash with Dogs for Life or Death," by Lieut. Schwatka; "A Modern Middy"; "A Submarine Ramble," etc., etc.

Subscription price, $3.00 a year; 25 cents a number. Subscriptions are received by booksellers and newsdealers everywhere, or by the publishers. Remit by P. O. money-order, Bank Cheque, draft, or registered letter. The new volume begins with November. December is the Great Christmas Number.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack whenever there's a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

BARGAINS IN STOVES!

Down Right Bargains IN STOVES!

The most popular stove this season is the

"Happy Cook."

WHY? because it is the cheapest and best, and is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction.

W. G. BAIN & Co.

412 Crystal Block, George-St., Peterborough.

THE CROWNING BARGAINS OF THE YEAR!

All Other Clothing Sales to be Thrown in the Shade.

AN IMPORTANT BUSINESS CHANGE IN THE CITY CLOTHING STORE.

H. LeBRUN,

After having been favored with a large and Prosperous Business during the past fifteen years, has decided to dispose of a share of his business, in order to give the faithful boys a chance. Therefore about the beginning of the New Year, an important change will take in the Business Management of the City Clothing Store, when Mr. JOSEPH PICARD,—who has been in my employ ever since commencing business—will be taken into the firm, and become an active partner of the same.

MAMMOTH PREPARATION SALE!

"Now comes the Tug of War." Previous to the above change taking place, I intend to place the whole of my Extensive Stock of Clothing, Cloths, Gents' Furnishings, &c., amounting to

$27,000 worth of Sterling Goods

at the disposal of the people of the Town and County of Peterborough, and will commence a Sweeping Preparatory Sale, Unequaled for Good Value and Big Dividends,

ON SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17.

In the meantime, the Goods will be all gone over, and re-marked down, including everything in the Store, from cellar to garret. Nothing will be reserved—all MUST go, no matter what the Sacrifice. No tricks during this Sale.

The Goods are all Clean and New, Fashionable and Seasonable—bought originally at Closest Prices, for Cash, in the Best Canadian Markets; besides a large proportion has been imported direct from the Old Country. The Goods do not contain any Bankrupt Stocks, or culls from slaughter houses, but have been manufactured for this season's trade.

In addition to the above regular Stock, I have just made a Splendid purchase of $4,000 worth of Ready-made Clothing, which was offered to me by the manufacturer, at a very Low Figure for Cash. These Goods will be sold along with the rest of the Stock at about Half their ACTUAL VALUE, and are bound to go off like hot cakes.

The Customers of the City Clothing Store are aware that our advertisements are always a simple statement of facts. No Brag, No Bluster, No Extravagant and Misleading Talk. When we advertise Positive Bargains, the Public are sure to get them.

Wholesale Prices to be Completely "Snowed Under"—Bankrupt Stocks to get a Rest

HERE ARE A FEW OF THE PRICES THAT WILL TELL THEIR OWN STORY:

OVERCOATS. (450 to Choose From.)

This Column Tells What is Doing at Turnbull's.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2 00, 2 50 and 3 00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it takes an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Bugle and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Fannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap. Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's. We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

THE LAND PURCHASE BILL.

Mr. Labouchere and Sir G. O. Trevelyan Attack the Measure.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—In the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, Mr. Madden, Solicitor-General for Ireland, moved the second reading of the Irish land purchase bill.

Mr. Labouchere moved that the bill be rejected. He complained of the undue haste in which the measure was being pressed forward and said there was an obvious desire on the part of the Government to prevent the country from considering their proposals on the question of land purchase. He denied that Parliament had obtained at the last election any authority to legislate upon this question, the immense importance of which requires the special sanction of the country. As the bill stood it was a gross injustice upon the British taxpayer. Besides that, it was injurious to Ireland as it would encourage a gigantic system of absenteeism. Until a home-rule measure was carried nothing ought to be done towards land purchase.

Sir George Otto Trevelyan (Lib.) warned the House that if it assented to the bill it would not be able to stop further grants and it would soon be called upon and compelled to advance millions. Among the dangers of the Ashbourne Act not the least was that it committed the British taxpayer to a system of landlord purchase which gave no good security for advance, and which left the tenant in a condition to repudiate if bad years rendered him unable to pay his installments.

On motion of Mr. Parnell the debate was adjourned.

The Parnellites are discontented with the manner in which the debate on the Ashbourne extension bill is conducted. They declare that the bill is not fought with sufficient spirit and tenacity and that the attitude of the Liberal leader is wanting in hostility. Mr. Parnell, responding to the desires of his party, has decided to fight every stage of the bill.

THE EMPRESS' BIRTHDAY.

Berlin Decorated in Honor of the Event—The Military Budget.

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—Many public and private buildings were decorated with flags yesterday in honor of Empress Frederick's birthday. The Reichsanzeiger says: "With sincere sympathy for the grief which during the past year of her life has fallen to the lot of Her Majesty are everywhere mingled heartfelt wishes for her future."

It is semi-officially denied that the ex Empress will return here at Christmas. On leaving England, it is stated, she will go directly to Italy for the winter.

Although no extra military credit has as yet been presented in the Bundesrath, it military circles it is considered certain that a loan of 350,000,000 marks will be demanded. This will be distinct from the credit already before the Bundesrath, amounting to 62 million marks, to meet extra expenditures under the annual provisional budget.

An Aquatic Fed.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Nov. 22.—Prof. Oldreive the aquatic pedestrian who is attempting the feat of walking on the water from Albany to New York, reached here at 6 o'clock last night and left at 7. He will try to make Sing-Sing by Thursday night and New York Friday night. He complained of the cold.

The O'Connor-Teemer Race.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—John Teemer and William O'Connor of Toronto, who will row a 3 mile race with a turn on the Potomac here Saturday for $1000 a side and the championship of Ontario, are both in good condition. Mr. J. R. Elder of the Columbia Athletic Club has been selected as referee

LABBY'S LONDON LETTER.

"THE MOST RISING MAN IN EUROPEAN POLITICS."

The Czar Furious at the Condition of Russian Railways—Political and Fantastic Preachers.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—Count Herbert von Bismarck is absurdly described as perhaps the most rising man of the day in the field of European statecraft. So far is this from being the case that I hear from a person who is behind the scenes at Berlin that Count Herbert's days at the Foreign Office are numbered, and that on the retirement of Prince Bismarck, which is certain to take place next spring, he will be practically shelved by being dispatched to London as ambassador. The fact is that Count Herbert, instead of being a man of great political talent, is simply nothing beyond a manly, agreeable German, with a great father to guide him. The most rising man in European politics is Count von Waldersee, who will be the de facto ruler of the German Empire in conjunction with the Kaiser before another year has passed.

The marriage of the Crown Prince of Greece and the Princess Sophia of Prussia is to take place at Athens during the first week in May.

Emperor Francis Joseph celebrates the 40th anniversary of his accession to the throne on Sunday week, and has positively forbidden all rejoicings. Nor will he receive any gifts. He desires that the money which might be expended in such ways be devoted to the poor and to charitable objects.

The Czar is furious at the discovery that the Russian railways, on which hundreds of millions of roubles have been expended, are in such a rotten condition that in the event of war the whole transport arrangements must inevitably be broken down.

John Bright has rallied and I sincerely hope that he will entirely regain his health and strength. For, Unionist and hard hitter as he is there is much about the old athlete that is very loveable to those who know him. But I am sorry to hear that his general condition is not deemed satisfactory by his friends.

If Mrs. Chamberlain is as witty as her mother she will prove a most pleasant addition to the Birmingham upper circles. Mrs. Endicott is reported to have said that there were five obstacles to her daughter's marriage—two below the ground and three above.

It appears from Thomson's shorthorn circular that at the fourteen sales that have been held during the past three months 639 animals were sold for £14,920 16s., giving an average price of £23 7s. 3½d a head.

In the Dominion a minister of the Scotch establishment, at a place called Whiteinch, received an impressive lesson a few Sundays ago on the subject of politics in the pulpit. It seems that the general assembly has published a manifesto on the bi-centenary of the revolution of 1688, and the Rev. Quintin Johnston, after reading this edifying document to the congregation proceeded to supplement it with his own valuable views on the political situation, describing Gladstone as a tool in the hands of Romanism, and so forth. Thereupon up rose a young lady in the congregation who called upon the preacher to stop, and, having frightened him into silence, proceeded to rate him soundly for desecrating the house of prayer by propagating partyism within its walls. The effect seems to have been excellent, for the Rev. Mr. Johnson was moved to apologise frankly for the offence. We could do with a few young ladies of the same type on this side of the ocean.

There really appears to be no bounds to the aberrations and fantasticalities of the clergy of the present day. I heard last week of a recent parson of a western diocese who astounded his congregation by exhorting them before he commenced his sermon to pray earnestly for the early discovery of the Whitechapel murderer.

The feeling with regard to the action of the Parnell Commission is growing stronger every day, and to judge by the observations which have fallen from the president, Sir James Hannen, it would seem that the commissioners themselves are beginning to perceive that they have fallen into the trap baited for them by the Attorney-General in his double capacity as The Times advocate and a member of the Tory Government. At present every species of outrage, whether true or false, is being put in the expose being that the Attorney-General will connect them with the Nationalist speeches. The connection, however, can only consist in this, that the speeches were made and that the outrages took place. Whether one was the result of the other is, and must be, a matter of opinion. But if an opinion is to be formed on the cause of the outrages it is clear that it will be obligatory on the defendants to show that there were other causes which, irrespective of the speeches might have led to the same results. It will then be necessary for them to produce all the victims of evictions and of excessive rents. Excessive rents followed by evictions are, it will be contended by many, a sufficient cause for the outrages. Where, then, is this to end?

It is stated that Lord Salisbury has decided to send Lord Sackville to Vienna, as successor to Sir Augustus Paget, whose term of service expires next January. Lord Sackville must, of course, be provided for at once in an adequate way, but I do not believe he will be sent to Vienna.

HENRY LABOUCHERE.

Milanese Workmen for Peace.

MILAN, Nov. 22.—Forty-six workmen's societies at a meeting yesterday protested against the triple alliance and against war in general. A resolution was adopted declaring that they would not support the Italian Government in the event of war. The protest will be sent to workmen's associations throughout Italy, and the workmen of France will be invited to adhere in the name of the brotherhood of labor. The Milanese workmen ask other associations to co-operate.

Bishops to be Created Next Month.

ROME, Nov. 22.—The Duke and Duchess of Aosta have left Turin en route to Berlin. They have been invited to visit Emperor William.

At the papal consistory in December a number of bishops will be created. The nomination of cardinals has been postponed until the March consistory. The postponement is due to difficulty experienced in the creation of French cardinals.

Deimjohn's Victim, Not Jack The Ripper's.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—Investigations by the police show that the Whitechapel woman who reported yesterday morning that she had been attacked by a man, who went to her lodgings with her, is a fallen woman of the lowest order. She suffered only a slight abrasion of the skin on her throat and the police place no credit in her story of an attack. They believe she inflicted the injury herself while she was drunk.

Bronze John.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 22.—The official bulletin is as follows: New cases 3, deaths 2. Total cases 4646, total deaths 403. Of the new cases only one was white.

An Advance in Freight Rates.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—The Northwestern lines have agreed to advance their proportion of the through rate on traffic from the seaboard to St. Paul to the basis of 50 cents first-class, taking effect Dec 1. This is an advance of 10 cents and is made in consequence of the reduction in west bound rates by the trunk lines.

THE FLOUR MARKET SICK.

Decline in Production—The Output Reduced One-half.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 22.—The Northwestern Miller says: The flour output of Minneapolis is on the decline, the falling off of 3000 barrels last week being only precursory to a much heavier loss the current week. The total production last week was 141,700 barrels, averaging 23,617 barrels a day, against 149,800 the previous week and 143,400 barrels for the corresponding time in 1887. Since our last issue the millers here have entered into an agreement to reduce their output one-half. This arrangement went into effect Monday and is to continue until Jan. 1. This takes in every merchant on the falls, but the owners are allowed to consult their own convenience as to how they shall accomplish the desired end. The arrangement is evidently designed to pave the way for a water pool as soon as the power becomes poor. The effect of the arrangement is already felt in the flour output, five mills representing a daily product of over 7000 barrels being idle to-day and there are several others which are almost on the point of stopping. The mills at St. Louis, Milwaukee and Lacrosse, as well as those located at less prominent points in Minnesota, Dakota and Michigan, have practically agreed upon the plan to reduce the flour output one-half for a number of weeks to come. The flour market is very sick and the millers report that they are practically getting no orders. The decline in wheat induced millers to lower quotations 25 cents per barrel Monday. There is no improvement in foreign trade. The direct exports last week were 23,400 barrels against 31,560 barrels the preceding week. There were 1,739,070 bushels of wheat received for the week. The receipts were 216,390 bushels of wheat, 135,794 barrels of flour and 4300 tons of mill stuff.

THE ANGLICAN CHURCH.

Opening of the Buffalo Congress—Prof. Clarke on Church Colleges.

BUFFALO, Nov. 22.—Yesterday morning's session of the Church Congress was opened by Bishop Coxe with prayer, followed by the singing of the hymn, "A Glory Gilds the Sacred Page." The first paper was presented by Rev. W. B. Bodine, president of Kenyon College, Gambier, O., on "Colleges and Universities in their relation to the Church."

Rev. Dr. Potts, president of Hobart College, read a lengthy paper upon "The Church University and Church Colleges an Ideal for the Future Church."

Rev. Arthur Brooks of New York, Rev. P. W. Sprague of Charlestown, Mass., and Rev. Wm. Hughes of Norristown, N.J., spoke on the subject.

Rev. Prof. Wm. Clarke of Toronto followed and cited the names of a number of men, graduates from what is called church colleges. He believed in having church colleges, and that all the denominations should have them.

Another session was held last evening, when the subject for discussion was "The Question of Race in this Country."

Annie Lyons' Complaint Not Proven.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The case of Annie Lyons of Toronto, who charged Druggist Scott of Fourteenth-street and Seventh-avenue with deceiving her, was resumed in the Jefferson Market Police Court yesterday afternoon before Judge Duffy.

Judge Duffy reviewed the case briefly and at the end made a rather bitter speech against Mr. Scott, saying that he had received several anonymous letters giving Scott a bad character, but as the case was not proven he dismissed it. Miss Lyons was led back to her cell weeping and moaning piteously. She will be held to answer to a charge of disorderly conduct and possibly attempted suicide.

Precocious Pugs.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—A prize fight with kid gloves for a purse of $100, Marquis of Queensberry rules, took place on Long island yesterday afternoon between Benny Moore, 18 years old, and Eddie Morgan, of the same age. Both are from this city. Moore's weight was 114 pounds and Morgan's 118. The referee was Jack Golden, and the fight was to a finish. Both were new to the prize ring, neither having ever fought for stakes, although they have been well known as amateurs. They fought six rounds. In the first three matters were even. In the last three Moore pushed the fighting and catching his opponent on the the jugular knocked him out. The fight lasted 24 minutes.

A Frightful Leap to Death.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 22.—A horrible suicide occurred at the residence of H. O. Bonnell, Wick avenue. Mlle. Julia Goudart, aged 23 years, a French governess, came from New York city about ten days ago to teach French to Mr. Bonnell's child. Friday she became melancholy, and she has acted strangely ever since. This morning she went to the attic of the house, set fire to her clothing, which was piled on the floor, walked out on the roof and threw herself head foremost to the flagstone walk below. She alighted on her head, crushing her skull and died in a few minutes. Disappointment in love is said to be the cause of the suicide.

Gen. Sheridan's Memoirs.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Mrs. Gen. Sheridan left here yesterday for Canada for the purpose of securing the copyright to her husband's memoirs to be published in London on Nov. 26. The American edition will be issued on the same day. Her legal advisers deemed it prudent that she should be present on British soil when the book is published in England, in compliance with the technicalities of the law, so as to protect the family in the English publication.

Slain After a Drunken Quarrel.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Nov. 22.—Bertie Kasack, a Hungarian, was murdered last night at the "Swamp," a settlement near Frenchtown, by one of two Hungarians who were visiting him. The party had been drinking heavily and were all drunk. During a quarrel one of the visitors shot Kasack as he was going out of his shanty, causing instant death. The murderer, whose name is as yet unknown, made his escape.

Found Responsible for His Crime.

BINGHAMTON, Nov. 22.—A few days ago Patrick Donahue, whose mind has been diseased for some years, killed his 18-year-old son with a bed slat and attempted to commit suicide by cutting his throat with a razor. The self-inflicted wound was slight and he was immediately removed to the insane asylum at Utica. The coroner has had the case on hand for several days, much evidence being taken, and last night found Donahue responsible for the killing of his son. The case will go before the grand jury.

THE LEGAL BATTLE BEGUN

ARGUING THE CROSSING CASE IN THE SUPREME COURT.

Hon. Edward Blake Opens for the Canadian Pacific Railway—A Broad Construction to be Placed Upon the Clauses of the British North America Act.

OTTAWA, Nov. 22.—Arguments in the Manitoba railway crossing case was commenced at 2 o'clock to-day in the Supreme Court. Hon. Edward Blake, Christopher Robinson and G. M. Clark appeared for the Canadian Pacific Railway and Hon. O. Mowat, D'Alton McCarthy, Attorney-General Martin and J. J. Gormally for the Province of Manitoba. Hon. F. Langelier watched the case on behalf of the Province of Quebec. The counsel who it was said would appear on behalf of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia did not file an appearance.

Mr. Blake commenced shortly before 2 o'clock and spoke about two hours. He seemed in excellent health and spoke as clearly, forcibly and logically as is his custom. He submitted that the whole question with which the court had to deal was the one as to the validity of the Manitoba act authorizing the construction of the Portage extension.

Hon. Mr. Mowat said that the other side had to prove that the provincial act was not valid.

Chief Justice Ritchie observed that it was usual for the persons attacking the validity of legislation to commence the case.

Mr. Blake resuming read the reference to the court by the Railway Committee of the Privy Council and contended that the simple question to be decided was whether any work or undertaking under the exclusive legislation of the Canadian Parliament was ultra vires of the Provincial Legislature, and any assumption of authority over such work or undertaking by the Provincial Legislature therefore void. He held that the ninety-second section of the British North America Act had removed the legislative authority which would otherwise have been with the province. That section did not declare that certain specified works were to be regarded as for the general advantage of Canada but that such works as were declared by the Parliament of Canada to be for the general advantage of Canada were to be so regarded. The test question to be applied in any case was not whether the work mentioned was one for the general advantage of Canada but whether the Parliament of Canada had declared it to be so. He contended that if Parliament declared a work to be for the advantage of Canada, no matter if it ran only from the city of Ottawa to Hogs Back, a little way out, the declaration was indisputable, and no matter what our private opinion was they would be works for the general advantage of Canada.

He argued that the clauses of the British North America Act must be treated in the broadest possible way. The Provincial Legislature might build a railway itself, subsidize that railway, embarrass its finances and burden itself for the future in order that the railway may be built under its control, and yet ten years after its construction three words of the Parliament of Canada might declare that to be a specific work for the general advantage of Canada, and would be competent to remove it from the jurisdiction of the province and place it within the jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada.

Mr. Christopher Robinson followed for a few minutes in a similar strain until the adjournment of court at 4 o'clock and will continue his argument in the morning.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

The Canada Atlantic and the Canadian Pacific Railway.

OTTAWA, Nov. 22.—Mr. Andrew Flack, Secretary of the Canada Atlantic Railway Company, says that there is no truth in the rumor that negotiations are in progress for the acquirement of the road by the Canadian Pacific Railway. Such rumors are current, however, and those who are supposed to know say there is some foundation for them.

Dr. Scott and Mr. A. Lindsay, of Southampton, Ont., had an interview with the Minister of Public Works yesterday, with reference to the harbor improvements at that place.

The Marine Department has received information that all buoys in the north and south channels of the St. Lawrence below Quebec have been taken up except five, which will be left until the departure of the last ocean-going steamer.

Sir John Macdonald returned from Kingston this morning.

General Middleton will go to London next Monday to inspect the Seventh Battalion.

Burned Out.

HAMILTON, Nov. 22.—All last summer the family of Mr. Joseph Wright had been living in a small cabin on the Beach, between the Ocean House and Burlington. They have been a curiosity to many a traveller. Yesterday Mrs. Wright and one child came to this city, leaving her husband and four children in the cabin. At about 5 o'clock Mr. Wright left for Burlington to meet his wife, and when he got about half a mile away he looked back and saw his cabin in flames. The children had piled the stove full of wood and set fire to the place. Mr. Thomas Hood was in a boat shooting near by and heard the children's screams. He went quickly to their assistance, but was too late to save the place. Just as he arrived he saw the oldest boy aged 7 years, carry the baby out of the flames. The lad certainly saved the infant from a horrible death. The cabin and every bit of clothing, bedding and food were burned, not a cent's worth being saved. The family are very poor.

A Grapevine Transaction.

HAMILTON, Nov. 22.—At the Police Court yesterday William Henry of Stamford was committed for trial in $1000 bail for obtaining by alleged false pretences a note for $136 from Isaac Smith of Winona in a grape vine transaction which originated in 1885.

There is a peculiar state of affairs existing at one of Murton & Reid's large coal sheds at the bay. About $100,000 worth of coal has been piled in one large shed. The most of it was put in wet and the immense mass has commenced to heat like grain and volumes of steam are pouring out of it. It is feared that the heat may become so great as to end in spontaneous combustion.

Suits Against The Empire and News.

MONTREAL, Nov. 22.—J. M. Conroy, clothier of this city, has entered two actions for $10,000 damages each against The Empire and The Toronto Evening News because of libellous remarks which they recently published in their respective columns.

Death of An Aged Oshawa Citizen.

OSHAWA, Nov. 22.—Elder Benjamin Rogers, one of Oshawa's oldest residents, died yesterday morning in the 87th year of his age. He was among the early settlers of this section.

Will Prosecute the City.

MONTREAL, Nov. 22.—Mr. Paquette, whose mills were recently burned down, has in contemplation the institution of an action for $75,000 against the city on account of the inefficiency of its fire protective service.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1888,

THE MANITOBA CROSSING.

REPLYING to a contemporary the Montreal Gazette thus states the case regarding the Manitoba crossing difficulty:—It is a perversion of facts to say that the Dominion Government is in any way responsible for the difficulties encountered by the Manitoba Government. Assuming that the right to charter such a road as the Northern Pacific and Manitoba is possessed by the Legislature, a point sufficiently dubious to require a decision by the Supreme court, it is beyond question that no crossing of the Canadian Pacific track can be made until the manner of such crossing is defined by the Railway committee of the Privy Council. The Manitoba Government, however, thought itself above the law. Mr. Attorney-General Martin proposed to ignore Dominion statutes and be a law unto himself, and the obstacle he encountered was not the Dominion Government but the Manitoba courts which made permanent an injunction restraining the crossing of the Canadian Pacific track until the Railway committee has determined the manner of the same. If the Northern Pacific & Manitoba charter is legal, the whole difficulty could have been avoided by an application to the Railway committee last summer. Of that there is no doubt. Mr. Martin, however, neglected to comply with the law, and deferred his application until the Portage extension had almost reached the Canadian Pacific track, and then because the Railway committee would not over-ride the law and comply instanter with all his demands, he seeks to fasten upon it the responsibility for delays his own stupid folly or perversity had produced.

The abrogation of the monopoly rights enjoyed by the Canadian Pacific did not confer upon the Manitoba Government the right to build railways wheresoever it pleased. The termination of the monopoly merely lifted from the Parliament of Canada the obligation not to charter lines to the international boundary in competition with the Canadian Pacific. That is all. The Manitoba Government acquired no rights to the abrogation of the monopoly clause. It assuredly acquired no rights to ignore the law which requires the mode of crossings to be defined by the Railway committee of the Privy Council. Quite probably the decision of the Supreme court will declare that the charter of the Northern Pacific & Manitoba railway is ultra vires of the Provincial Legislature under Dominion legislation. If it should be so the wisdom of the course of the railway committee and the wicked folly of Mr. Attorney-General Martin, in attempting to defy all law, will be still more apparent. The Dominion laws were not made to thwart or hamper the aims of the Manitoba Government in the matter of railway construction. They were enacted for the safety of the public, the protection of the companies and the welfare of the whole country. If Mr. Martin's little game runs amuck of Dominion laws, the little game must suffer. Six months' time will be lost. That is regrettable on many grounds, but the fault lies not at the door of the Dominion Government, but at the door of Manitoba ministers, who delay to long in conforming to the laws, and who would have openly defied the laws had not the injunction of the Manitoba courts restrained them. The competing line is bound to come in good time, but it is rather too much to expect the legislation of the Dominion Parliament to be set at naught in a twinkling to save Mr. Martin from the exposure of his ignorance or perversity.

Fatal Tenement House Fire.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—At a fire in a tenement at 110th-street yesterday afternoon a woman named Mrs. Mary Lally was burned to death on the top floor. The fire only did $3000 damage and originated in a shop on the first floor. There was a scramble among the tenants to escape but no other casualty is reported.

Brockville's Enoch Arden.

BROCKVILLE, Nov. 22.—After an absence of 26 years Mr. Shanum, a former resident, turned up in town to claim his girl bride and finding that she is about to be married to a Cleveland man, having removed to that city some years ago, he returned to his Western home without seeing her.

Honor to a Brave Canadian.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The Secretary of the Treasury has awarded a silver medal to Walker Claus of Canada for rescuing the crew of the schooner G M. Bond of Owego, while stranded near Loudran light-house Lake Erie, in October, 1886.

Hanged for Murder.

WICHITA, Kan., Nov. 22.—Jake and Jos Jobler (colored) were executed yesterday at the county jail for killing Cass and Goody Kunz near the Sac and Fox agency in August, 1885.

An Elopement Spoiled.

MONTREAL, Nov. 22.—This city appears to be a perfect paradise for eloping couples. Wednesday G. Kennedy of Norwich, Ont., located his truant wife here. She was about departing for England with his widowed brother-in-law, John Vener. The trunks were seized, but the woman refuses to return to her children.

It is extremely interesting to visit some of the leading manufacturing houses in Toronto. Perhaps the most interesting and surprising of them all are the extensive Ornamental Stained Glass and Decorative works of the McCaus and & Son. It is from this establishment that the finest windows have come for the principal edifices throughout our country.

HARRISON IS AMBITIOUS.

HE DESIRES A BRILLIANT PAGE IN HISTORY.

It Is Said That His First Message to Congress Will Propose the Purchase of Canada—Willing to Pay a Bonus.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—A News special from Indianapolis says: An intimate friend of Gen. Harrison said yesterday that Gen. Harrison, like all Presidents, would like to do something that will give his administration a prominent place in the history of his country, and "I have reason to believe," continued the speaker, "that one of his first official acts will be negotiations for the annexation of Canada."

"What is his plan of annexation?"

"He believes the United States can and should receive Canada in a peaceful manner. His idea is that the territory can be annexed to the United States by assuming Canada's debt. If the territory can be obtained for that consideration I think Gen. Harrison would favor paying a considerable bonus. I understand he has said privately that the surplus in the treasury could not be spent in a wiser manner than by buying Canada. Whatever his plan for making Canada a portion of the United States may be I know he heartily favors such a move, and will so recommend in his first letter to Congress."

MR. COCHRANE ELECTED.

He Defeats Dr. Mallory in East Northumberland by 53 Majority.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 22.—The election in East Northumberland yesterday to fill the vacancy in the House of Commons caused by the unseating of Edward Cochrane (Con.), resulted in his return by a majority of 53 over Albert E. Mallory (Lib.). The vote was as follows:

Majority for Cochrane		53

East Northumberland had several contests since 1880. In that year Darius Crowter, a local preacher and a Liberal, defeated William Kennedy (Con.,) in a contest for the seat made vacant by the death of the late Joseph Keeler; his majority was about 200. In 1884 Edward Cochrane, the new member elect, left Mr. Crowter at home. At the general election in 1887 Dr. Mallory fought the constituency and beat Mr. Cochrane by 8 votes. He was unseated and at the next election in December, 1887, Mr. Cochrane was successful by 24 votes, only in his turn to be unseated.

QUEBEC POLITICS.

The Legislature to be Called Jan. 10—Proposed Cabinet Changes.

MONTREAL, Nov. 22.—The Quebec Official Gazette will on Saturday contain a proclamation calling the Legislature for Thursday, Jan. 10.

It is understood that the Magentic local election, rendered vacant by the unseating of the Conservative member, Mr. Johnston, will take place about the middle of December and that the Government candidate will be Lieut.-Col. Rhodes of Quebec, the former representative of the county, who will previously be sworn in as Minister of Agriculture, Premier Mercier taking the new portfolio of President of the Council. These facts were obtained from a gentleman who had a conference with the Ministers yesterday.

Mr. Mercier has been detained at his Quebec residence for three days past through illness. His ailment however is not considered serious.

All the departments are in full blast preparing for the session.

A Conservative M.P. stated yesterday that the Ottawa session would begin in the third week in January.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Polly Bredin in the Police Court Charged With Bigamy.

TORONTO, Nov. 22.—At the Police Court yesterday Polly Bredin was arraigned on the charge of bigamy. Mr. W. R. Meredith, Q.C., M.P.P., appeared for the prisoner, pleaded not guilty and demanded a jury trial. At the request of the crown a remand was had until Tuesday to secure witnesses to prove the two marriages.

Aikins Pfeffers, arrested in Listowel on a charge of having stolen $15 from a milk-dealer named Hobbs, was yesterday remanded by Justice Wingfield till Friday.

The alleged confidence men Alexander and Hunter appear to have been quite skilled in the various arts of bank sneaking and other styles of gentlemanly theft. The detectives have in their possession a cane belonging to the prisoners which has a history. Apparently it is simply a walking stick with a stout ferule and a nobby handle. The ferule, however, is sectional, and when the top is unscrewed a pair of tweezers is discovered, which opens and shuts by operating the handle. The idea is for the owner to walk into a bank, and when he sees a package of bills within easy reach of his cane he unscrews the ferule, distracts the attention of the cashier, and rakes in the notes with dexterity. He does not take them himself, but simply transfers them from the cashier's desk to a confederate in waiting, who, if the steal is successful, picks them up from the floor and walks out.

A SHOCKING ACCIDENT.

Two Men Horribly Mutilated and Killed at Dorval by a Grand Trunk Train.

MONTREAL, Nov. 22.—Ulrich Noel, aged 19, and Philip Casavant, aged 21, both employed as plasterers at the new Grand Trunk station in course of erection at Dorval, were walking along the track coming from the direction of Lachine yesterday and just as they neared a timber-stack situated a few yards from the station two trains were noticed coming along close behind them, both going in the same direction. One was the Toronto express leaving Montreal at 9.10 and the other was a ballast train out from Pt. St. Charles. Seeing that the men made no attempt to get off the line, the driver of the Toronto train blew the whistle, and shouted out to them:

"Get off the line if you don't want to be killed."

Charles Burton from the station platform and the other officials seeing that the men were running the deadliest risk frantically shouted and waved their arms to them to jump off the track, but just as the unfortunate men seemed suddenly to realise their danger the express swiftly ran them down and all was over.

The engine caught up Noel and flung him with terrific force against the side of the boiler, dashing his brains out on the spot. The other man seemed to be crushed right underneath the body of the engine and was dragged on for nearly 200 yards. Both his legs were missing and the trunk of his body was badly mutilated. The poor fellow just gasped once for breath and then expired without a word.

An inquest was commenced last night.

The man with lantern jaws should shine in conversation.—Harper's Bazar.

An Exception to the Rule.

These dark, dull days, when business is generally stagnant and most of the stores are empty, the bankrupt stock sale at James Best's booms along wonderfully. The splendid $11,000 stock of assorted dry goods and gents' furnishings, bought at 55 cents on the dollar, is being rushed off, and the people are benefitting by the immense bargains offered. Goods are sold at less than wholesale prices. The stock must be cleared off at once. Remember Jas. Best's stand, 39 George-st. d111tf

Another Loud Laugh.

There was only a fair audience last night at the Opera House to witness Prof. Reynold's hypnotic mysteries. The professor experiences a good deal of trouble in securing subjects of whom he can get mental as well as physical control. However, last night there were several who proved very susceptible to the wonderful mesmeric power, and the antics and performances of a couple of the patients were most laughable and amusing. They shaved one another, pulled teeth, talked through an imaginary telephone, scrambled for twenty-dollar gold pieces on the floor, tried to capture phantom canary birds and many other amusing and comical antics.

The Gift Show.

The Opera House was packed to the doors again last night by an appreciative audience, to witness the entertainment given by Prof. Semon and his Co., and to say everybody was delighted, would be a mild way of putting it. From the first raising of the curtain to the close of the programme, there was not a weak point in it. The Prof. is a whole show in himself, and with the flock of trained canaries, musical glasses, minstrel marionettes, and the magnificent views presented at the close, go to make up one of the very best entertainments that have visited our town for a long time, well worth the price of admission, without any of the presents which Professor Zera gives away nightly and which are both numerous and costly.—Port Hope Times, Oct. 31. At the Opera House next week. See advertisement. 1d120

Staying.

We are pleased to see that Mr. Bannell Sawyer has decided to stay in town and with his usual decision and purpose has opened a "Select Parlor Academy", in his own beautiful house 347 Charlotte-st. By reference to his advertisement it will be seen what he purposes to teach. We are glad to be able to make this announcement as Mr. Sawyer's financial, society and other interests are considerable and valuable to the town.

340 Opera House Block.

Owing to the steady increase in the demand for Fresh Ground Coffee, W. J. The Thanks of the Mechanics.

The committee who had the management of the ball held under the auspices of the united labor organizations have wound up the business in connection with the assembly, and in doing so passed a resolution tendering the hearty thanks of the organized mechanics of Peterborough to Messrs. J. J. Sheehy and Gough Bros. for so generously lending the bunting and flags for the decoration of the hall and also to Mr. F. J. Daly for the excellent and admirably style in which he served the supper on the occasion.

A Dispute in Court.

There was an abusive language case before Police Magistrate Dumble this morning, in which H. Pace was the complainant and Jos. Wyatt the defendant. Mr. E. A. Peck appeared for the defendant. Perjury was committed by some one, as Mr. Pace swore that Wyatt did use insulting language towards him, having called him a rogue and a liar, and Mr. Wyatt swore most positively that he never used any such language. Mr. Pace's eleven year old son corrobrated his father's evidence, and the magistrate was inclined to think that Wyatt used the words when angry without knowing it. The defendant had to pay $2 and costs.

Notice of Visit.

Purchase Extraordinary.

Macfarlane Wilson has bought for less than 50 cents on the dollar of wholesale cost, over five thousand dollars worth of crockery glass and chinaware, and having all the goods in his present premises will hold, he has rented the store on Water st. next Jas. Stevenson's office, where this lot will be opened up and sold regardless of its true value. The stock consists of 28 crates and over 90 other packages, barrels, cases, casks, etc., and cannot all be unpacked in less than a week or ten days, but he hopes to have enough opened to begin selling on Saturday, the 24th inst., and expects to have it all displayed early next week. At the prices, however, it will be bought very quickly, and the public will do well to visit the store daily for bargains in the different lines as they are unpacked. No goods will be out away for customers during this sale, but all goods will be delivered free on day bought. Terms strictly cash. 1d120-1w47

Visions of the Weather.

The snow fell to-day and everything bears a wintry aspect and whispers gently in the ear of everyone that the frost and cold is at hand, and the hideous spectacle of a worn-out overcoat, or a pair of trousers in which there are air holes through which the cold may come an uninvited guest, rise up and confront many a man. But, listen, read, and rejoice accordingly. Long before the snow fell and now before the bitter blasts of winter, you can fly to Sheppard's old stand, where Goughs, the Wonderful Cheap Men, are selling clothes at prices that will cause the heart to rejoice. Why freeze and shiver when you can for a few dollars defy the cold by purchasing a good warm suit of under flannel and a heavy overcoat? Be sensible, man, and go where the goods are sold cheap, not because of their inferior quality, but because they have been bought at a forced sale for half price.

A Sharp Game.

The Norwood Register says:—As we go to press we learn the following particulars of a sharp game practised on the Midland Loan and Savings' Company by a man representing himself as "Washington Vosburg, of Belmont." As the sequel will show however, "Washington Vosburg" is not the only person implicated as there is certainly a gang in the plot. On Saturday last "Washington Vosburg" presented himself at the office of the Midland Loan and Savings' Co. in Port Hope and offered for sale a mortgage for $2,050 purporting to have been given by Mr. Robt. Gardiner of Dummer, on the west halves of lot 1,3 and 4, in the 9th concession of Dummer. The document appeared to be genuine. The dates showed it to have been made on the 14th Inst. and recorded in the registry office, Peterborough, on the 16th. "Vosburg" represented that since lending the money his dwelling house and barns had been destroyed by fire, and that he required the money to build again—hence his desire to sell the mortgage. The Company agreed to purchase it providing the value of the property would warrant their doing so, and on Monday, Mr. Henry Mulligan, of Millbrook, inspector of the company, arrived in town on the evening train. Tuesday morning he drove out to Mr. Gardiner's, armed with the mortgage, to value the property. Mr. Gardiner, who, by the way, is a very wealthy man, was thunderstruck when Mr. Mulligan stated his business, and pronounced the documents to be a fraud of the first water. Whether the company advanced any money on the mortgage or not we are unable to say, but it being in their possession would lead us to suppose they had. Mrs. Gardiner's christian name was not given properly on the document and the names of the witnesses and the mortgagor are evidently fictitious The document was made out in a Peterborough law office and we have no doubt but that the guilty parties, if they have not by this time fled the country, will be brought to justice.

AN INHUMAN MONSTER

DECOYS A SIX-YEAR OLD GIRL FROM SCHOOL.

And Ravishes Her—Descriptions of the Wretch very Hazy—The Child's Injuries not Fatal—The Police on the Alert.

One of those horrible, inhuman and unnatural crimes, which cannot be understood in a Christian community, and the equal of which has never perhaps startled the citizens of Peterborough, was committed yesterday afternoon sometime, when some depraved and diabolical wretch in the guise of a man ravished in a terrible manner the five-year old daughter of one of the residents in the south-western part of the town. When the report became noised abroad a feeling of horror and indignation filled every person who heard of the wretch's work. The question of who was the monster was, unfortunately, unanswerable, and it was perhaps well for him that it was so for the throats of lynching if the beast was caught were numerous.

The particulars of the crime are simply this. The little girl has only just begun to attend school and had taken her dinner and started for school when she met the man who had conceived of decoying the child away in order to accomplish his horrible purpose. He took the little girl to Mrs. Minorgan's grocery at the corner of Sherbrooke and Rubridge-sts., where he bought her some oranges. It so happened that he was waited on in the store by a little girl, who is unable to give an accurate description of the ravisher. After leaving the store the fiend induced the child to accompany him, giving her a dollar as an inducement, and in her innocence she went with him, and he attempted to accomplish his vile purpose. He threatened to kill her if she told any person what he had done, but so frightened the child that when she escaped from his clutches and went home covered with blood and suffering great pain, it was with great difficulty that the mother got the child to tell her humble story, as she was afraid of the devil's threats. Dr. King was hurriedly summoned to attend to the child's injuries.

Although the injuries are serious, still it is not thought that they will prove fatal. It is unnecessary to say that the parents of the poor child are stricken down with grief, and the sympathies of all will be theirs in the awful misfortune which befel their little girl. The child is almost six years old, but is not large for her age, and cannot give of the fiend who so nearly caused her death in accomplishing his foul designs.

When the police were informed of the terrible crime that had been perpetrated Chief Reesor and his whole force immediately went to work to capture, if possible, the wretch, and bring him to justice. The case they had to tackle was a hard one, as there were no reliable discriptions to work on, and, therefore, no clue as to whom the perpetrator of the deed was. Not a man of the force saw a bed last night or closed an eye, but all kept on the alert to nab any suspicious person who might be run across, but their vigilance was vain.

ATTEMPTED IT BEFORE.

Since the facts of this case have become noised abroad it has been reported that several little girls have been stopped in different parts of the town during the last two or three days by a man and inducements held out to them to accompany him. This is undoubtedly the same wretch, who at last succeeded in preying on innocence with the result of untold suffering and injury to a young life and sorrow and grief to the parents. In one case he stopped three little girls returning from school and asked if they knew where the cemetery was and offered them each fifty cents if they would accompany him to that place. The children, however, were afraid of the man and would not go with him. Until the wretch is safely gaoled there will be found an anxiety for the children of the town among parents.

Bazaar and Entertainment.

A sale of useful and ornamental articles will take place in St. John's Church Sunday School Room commencing on Monday, 26th inst., and will continue every afternoon during the week until Friday, 30th inst. Proceeds of sale in aid of the Hazel Bros branch of Dr. Barnardo's Home. d114eod

St. Andrew's Celebration.

The annual supper of the St. Andrew's Society of Peterborough will be held at the Morgan House on the evening of St. Andrew's day, Nov. 30th. These suppers have been very successful and enjoyable in the past, the Scotchmen knowing how to make an evening pleasant, and the public will no doubt accept in numbers the invitation cordially extended.

Lord A. P. Cecil

is advertised to preach to-night and to-morrow night in the Old Baptist Church, Aylmer-st., on the Second Coming of Christ. To-night he proposes to show from scripture that our Lord will come again more than a thousand years before the end of the world. As this is contrary to what is commonly taught by most theological preachers, it will be most important to bring all to the infallible test of the word of God alone. Even the preaching of an apostle was submitted to the test of scripture. Acts xvii, 10, 11 and 12.

Imperial Federation League.

A meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Imperial Federation League was held last evening in the Y. M. C. A. rooms, Mr. J. H. Long in the chair and Mr. F. E. Bell acting as Secretary. There was a fair attendance, several prominent citizens being present. The chairman read letters and a circular explanatory of the meeting of the Council recently held in Toronto. As was mentioned in the REVIEW of a few days ago, the League is about to urge upon the Dominion Government the calling together in Canada of representatives from the Australian and other British colonies for the consideration of an Imperial trade policy of telegraphic and postal communication, and other important questions. There followed a general discussion of League matters, in which various speakers took part. The secretary was instructed to communicate with Mr. Dalton McCarthy, Q. C., M. P. (the President of the Canadian branch), Mr. J. A. Barron, M. P., and other prominent members, with a view towards having at an early date a large public meeting in Peterborough. The secretary announced that he had received printed copies of the speeches delivered by Archbishop O'Brien and others at the last meeting in Halifax; and that branches had been formed at St. John, N. B., and elsewhere.

Brevities.

—St. Andrew's Society meets to-night.

Three tramps were domiciled at the free lodging house last night.

—No arrests last night.

—The Literary and Musical Society will meet this evening.

—The friends of Mr. W. F. Johnston give a complimentary banquet in his honor at the Croft House to-night.

—Wipe the cob webs from off the snow shovel's brow and softly whistle "Wait till the clouds roll by," as you think of the early morning tussels with the beautiful.

—Two telephone linemen from Toronto have been here for the past few days engaged in stringing toe wires for eight new instruments which are to be placed in here.

—Wm Rose, who is held on a charge of forgery, was a member of the Midland battalion which went to the Northwest to assist in quelling the rebellion.

—Port Hope has a ghost—a "real live" ghost—which was heard for several nights by two young ladies and at last seen by one of them, who was unable to move until it disappeared.

BELMONT.

BURNED TO DEATH.—A Marmora correspondent writes to the Intelligencer on the 20th inst: "On Sunday last, while Mr. Geo Terrill and wife were in this village doing their trading, they left their children at home. The youngster was about two years old and got hold of some shavings and was putting them in the stove, when its clothing caught fire, and before assistance could be rendered the child was so badly burned that it died on Sunday."

LAKEFIELD.

Correspondence of the Review.

AN APPOINTMENT.—Mr. Neilly, principal of the Lakefield public school, has received the appointment of headmaster in the Southampton Public School for the year 1889. We extend our congratulations.

HARVEST HOME.—The Harvest Home festival, given by the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church on Thanksgiving Day in the P.C.A. hall, was a marked success. The ladies must feel very much gratified with the success of their enterprise. The Rev. Mr. Johnston opened the entertainment with a few well chosen remarks and called on Mr. Hull to occupy the chair. The chairman in his remarks compilmented the ladies upon the display of edibles provided for the occasion and also congratulated the audience upon the good fortune in store for them, in the lecture to be given by the Rev. Mr. Webber, of Toronto. He then called on the choir for a selection of music. The choir sang, "It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord." Rev. Mr. Webber was then introduced, and delivered his lecture, which he handled in a masterly manner for two hours. His subject was "The age we live in." The lecture was both instructing and instructive, the rev. gentleman being frequently applauded. The choir was called on for another selection of music and rendered "Deus Miserentur." Rev. Mr. Johnston moved, seconded by Mr. Harper, that a vote of thanks be tendered to the lecturer, the Ladies' Aid and the choir. A most pleasant evening was spent, the sum realized being $36.

ZION.

Correspondence of the Review.

HEAVY LOSS.—Mr. A. Cent had the misfortune to lose a fine young team of colts, aged 3 and 4 years, killed by the G. T. R. train at Drummond's station. He also came to a heavy loss during the summer of another team.

A PRIVATE ROAST.—A few of the Zion boys, in their cunning manner, captured a goose, and proceeded down the side line, where they halted at the second vacant house. The cook, in his rough and ready costume, commenced to pluck their fowl, his opinion being, "Boys you have selected an old one, I am sure my uncle had this 7 years ago."

BALL.—A union ball was held at Zion Hall on the 16th, which proved to be a success. A large number attended from Peterborough and the surrounding villages, and a few of the threshers near by, called in to get warm. Some of the gents found it difficult to secure shelter for their steeds.

PERSONAL.—Mrs. S. DIXON, of Manitoba, is visiting here at present.

If you do not use the Ideal Felt Tooth Polisher you either have no teeth, or wilfully refuse one of the greatest comforts and benefits of modern civilization. You will find it superior in every way to bristles. 6d116

NORWOOD.

A STRANGE OCCURRENCE.—The other day the wife of Mr. Thomas Howson, Queen-st., had rather a narrow escape from bleeding to death. She had had two teeth extracted and although the gum bled considerably she was in no way alarmed, thinking it only a natural consequence. The blood, however, continuing to flow, she became alarmed and a doctor was called in. Mrs. Howson was now weak from the loss of blood, and while the doctor was attempting to stop the flow, she fainted. This latter occurrence, combined with the prompt measures adopted, the doctor says, probably saved her life. She is now as well as ever.

AN OLD LANDMARK.—The brick building on Peterborough-st., now being converted into an hotel by Mr. Charles McDonald, is probably one of the oldest brick buildings in Norwood. It was erected in the year 1858—thirty years ago—by Mr. J. Foley, a brother of the late Jas. Foley. Both gentlemen will be remembered by many of our readers, the latter having opened the first store in Norwood and amassed a large fortune. Buildings in those days were not erected as they are now. The builder who would have dared to propose a nine inch brick wall at that time would have been deemed not in his right senses. The walls —from top to bottom—are eighteen inches in thickness and the glass front is hemmed in by massive timbers and iron columns. Although there is a considerable waste of material in the structure, still we are of the opinion that in this age of flimsiey-constructed buildings a little of the caution of old-time builders would not be out of place. —Register.

THE ETHICS of Civilization

Require that MAN shall be DRESSED—Fashion and a natural desire to appear at his best, require that he be WELL DRESSED, while his pocketbook frequently requires that he be ECONOMICALLY DRESSED.

It is to meet these THREE REQUIREMENTS that our efforts are constantly and successfully directed.

We make Clothing for Men, Boys and Children from honest, serviceable fabrics, CUT in a fashionable and tasteful manner to FIT perfectly, and put together by the best Tailors money can secure and in the HIGHEST STYLE of workmanship.

We sell this Well-Made Clothing at PRICES 25 TO 40 per cent. LOWER than the same qualities can be purchased for anywhere else in the world.

Because we steadfastly adhere to the principle of "LARGE SALES AND SMALL PROFITS."

Our goods are always HONEST, RELIABLE and LOWER IN PRICE THAN THOSE of our competitors.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A STONY Lake correspondent sends to the Register the following particulars of a fatal accident in North Dummer:—On Saturday morning, 17th inst., a young man named James Darling, son of Richard Darling, Esq., of North Dummer, was killed in Windfield Lesson's shanty by a tree falling upon him. As soon as the choppers saw that the tree was falling in the direction in which the deceased was working they apprised him of his danger. In endeavoring to escape, however, he ran under the falling tree and was almost instantly killed. Deceased was employed as a sawyer and was a general favorite. His bereaved relatives have the heartfelt sympathy of the whole community in their sad loss.

THE NERVE TO KICK.

M. QUAD TELLS OF THE BENEFITS OF MAKING COMPLAINT.

Driving Out the Railroad Hog—Gratitude of a Hotel Keeper—Taking Down an Extortionate Hack Driver—The Man Who Forgot—Cleaning an Alley.

I have met the railroad hog a great many times. I never meet him without making a kick. He is growing scarcer every day, and I sometimes flatter myself that I have contributed to drive him out. When I left Toledo for Cincinnati, the other day, the train was crowded and people were standing up in every coach. In my car was a man occupying two seats. He had a bad looking head on him, and he carried so little for our rights that he did not look up from his book. There were five of us standing up, and I said to the group:

"Gentlemen, there are three seats for which we have paid. Let us take possession."

"He'll kick and raise a row."

"But we'll kick and raise a bigger one."

"Yes, but what's the use of quarreling with a hog?"

"It is just such men as you who have made him a hog. You have allowed him to impose on you until he has come to think he owns the railroad."

Not one of the four would move. I went to the other end of the car, where three women were crushed into one seat, picked up a 12-year-old boy near by, and walked up to the hog and asked:

"Have you paid for four seats here?"

"That's my business!" he promptly replied.

"And mine and the public's."

I cleared the seat of his baggage, seated the woman and boy, and then crowded in beside the hog. He made an awful row, but it was useless. He was left with what he had paid for, and we got what our tickets called for. Let every passenger kick on the railroad hog and he must go.

A GRATEFUL LANDLORD.

One day last spring there were ten of us at a hotel table in Nashville. The soup was scorched and no one could eat it. Not a potato brought to us was done. The milk for the coffee had turned. I invited the others to go to the office with me and kick. They were drummers, every one, but not one would go. When people speak of drummers as kickers they are way off. They will put up with more and do less complaining than any class of men on earth. In the present case one of them spoke for all when he said:

"Yes, things are bad and ought to be righted, but we are here only for a meal and it won't pay us to kick."

I went out alone. The landlord was in the office and I asked:

"How long since you were in the dining room?"

"A week, I guess."

"You don't oversee the meals?"

"No."

"Well, please go to the head table and taste the milk, examine the potatoes and smell of the soup."

He departed at once. When he returned he was hopping mad. The head-waiter was called out and dressed down, the head cook got nicely peeled, and the landlord shook my hand and said:

"That kick of yours will benefit this house $5,000. I had no idea things were running thus."

The natural inference with him was that as long as no one kicked everything must be going all right and everybody satisfied. A thousand men had no doubt gone away mad and injured his house.

The fare from the foot of Market street, Philadelphia, to the Bingham house by coupe is $1. That is the figure established by ordinance, and is very liberal. When a coupe sat me down at the hotel a month ago the driver demanded $2. I kicked. He talked in a loud voice in order to gather a crowd and make me feel ashamed, but I refused to come down. He dropped to twelve shillings, but it was no go. He threatened personal violence, and I had him arrested. In fining him $1 his honor gave him a lecture he will never forget, and then turned to me and said:

"You deserve a medal for kicking. In this fellow's case, at least, you will have prevented him from swindling others. Had you allowed him to swindle you he would have been on the alert to make other victims."

THE MAN WHO FORGOT.

Coming out of Philadelphia by night, a passenger came to me and said he would take it as a great favor if I would exchange my lower berth for his upper, he having his wife along.

"When did you secure your berth?" I asked.

"This noon."

"And to be sure of mine I had to secure it two days ago."

"Yes, but you see I forgot."

"Forgot! A man who knew that he was to go at a certain date, and that he must take a sleeper, forget? I cannot exchange with you."

I know he thought me boorish, but had I exchanged he would have trusted to luck next time, thinking to meet some good hearted fellow and perhaps have got no berth at all. My refusal angered him, but it made him realize future responsibility.

The city ordinance says no horse shall be left unhitched on the street. I am careful to observe that ordinance, no matter what the bother. Another is not. His unhitched rig walks into mine and takes a wheel off. I demand pay, and he is astonished that he should be held liable for what he calls an "accident." He calls me all sorts of hard names, but from this on he will hitch his horse securely.

The ordinance specifies that alleys shall be kept clean. I go to trouble and expense to live up to that ordinance. My neighbor dumps his garbage into the alley and I notify the sanitary police, and he is fined. It is a great shock to him that he can't break the ordinance at will and offend the nostrils of a whole neighborhood. He calls me a crank and a mean man, never dreaming that all the trouble came from his own selfishness and disregard of law and right.—M. Quad in Detroit Free Press.

Popularity of Society Specialists.

Society, which is always ready to divert its dullness with any fad, however puerile or inconsequential, last winter developed a veritable novelty in the person of a buxom and comely widow, who possessed in an eminent degree a gift that does not commonly fall to or receive cultivation by her sex. For a whole season Mrs. Shaw's abilities as a whistler were the talk of the five o'clock teas. Wherever you went you were greeted by the melodious piping of this substantial nightingale, who really did whistle very tunefully, and who contrived, somehow, to not look ridiculous when she puckered her lips and faced her audience. At the end of the season Mrs. Shaw took a benefit, and went to London to whistle her way into the good graces of the nobility and gentry. The result is that she comes back to us graduated into a full fledged silfleuse, and with the Bow Bells guinea stamp of merit to recommend her for further social encouragement.

During her absence a new star in the drawing room firmament had arisen in the person of a young woman whose talent for that humorous distortion of the features known to the English as "mugging" is said to be only surpassed by that of Marshall P. Wilder himself. This fair artist, with a table, a couple of screens and a reflecting lamp or two, makes up for all manner of familiar and unfamiliar people, and as she artfully caricatures some of the odd men and women in society and its immediate outskirts, it can be readily understood that her performance is not without interest. There will be more money spent than ever this season in the direction of these society specialists, who are getting to be as popular here as they are in England—possibly because they are popular in England. What with readers and reciters, performers and pianists, fiddlers, face makers, whistlers and what not else, there ought to be variety enough to render the average luncheon or tea almost bearable to the person of average intelligence.—Alfred Trumble in Pittsburg Bulletin.

Making Boats from Tents.

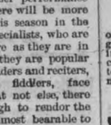
A Russian sergeant of the Semonovsky regiment has invented a method for the rapid construction of boats from tents. Upon experiment, in thirty minutes, under the designer's direction, a detachment of men chosen by haphazard, improvised several handy boats with the aid of green wood from a neighboring grove. Each boat readily supported four to six fully equipped soldiers.—New York Sun.

Weighing a Big Cat.

An account of the late Margaret Veley's attempt at weighing a cat is a new story by her biographer. "Thomas Claudius, a cat of imperial size and pride, weighed one violent scrimmage, one scratch (I had that), one scale kicked out of its place and clattering in the silence of the night, one tempestuous departure through the doorway."—Chicago Herald.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature. The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order. Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.



But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings healt and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

"It is simply the ideal young people's magazine, and holds the first place."—BOSTON JOURNAL.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR '89.

An All-Around-the-World Year.

THIS world-renowned magazine "for young people and their elders" is to have a great programme for the new volume beginning with November, 1888. The editor, Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, calls it "an all-around-the-world year." Of course the bulk of the contents, as heretofore, will relate to American subjects; but young America is always glad to learn what goes on in the world outside, and these stories and descriptive papers are not of the dry geographical order, and they will be strikingly illustrated. We have space here for only a few prominent announcements.

America.

"Little Saint Elizabeth," by Mrs. Burnett, author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy"; "The Routine of the Republic, how the Government is carried on"; "College Athletics"; "Amateur Photography"; "Boys and the National Guard"; "The Girls' Crusade"; Indian Stories, School Stories, etc "The Bells of St. Ann—," a serial story of Canada. South American stories—"A Railroad in the Clouds"; "Indians of the Amazon," by Mrs. Frank R. Stockton, etc.

Europe.

Life in Norway, by H. H. Boyesen; "Holland and the Dutch," by Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge; "The Queen's Navy," by Lieut. P. H. Smith, R. N.; "the Winchester School"; "English Railway Trains"; "Ferdinand de Lesseps"; German, Italian (art) and Russian papers, etc., etc.

Asia.

Yan Phou Lee writes of "Boys and Girls in China," and there is a description of "Some of John Chinaman's Inventions," Mrs. Holman Hunt describes "Home Life in the East"; papers on Siam, Japan and other countries.

Africa.

"The White Pasha," by Noah Brooks, a sketch of Henry M. Stanley; How an American Family Lived in Egypt"; "A Hor-Boy Dromios" a story of the siege of Alexandria.

Australia.

A series of interesting articles imparting much novel and amusing information concerning the history, the animal and plant life, etc., of a wonderful land.

The Arctic Regions and the Sea.

"How we made the Farthest North," by Gen A. W Greely, of the Greely Expedition; "A Dash with Dogs for Life or Death," by Lieut. Schwatka; "A Modern Middy"; "A Submarine Ramble," etc., etc.

Subscription price, $3.00 a year; 25 cents a number. Subscriptions are received by booksellers and newsdealers everywhere, or by the publishers. Remit by P. O money-order, Bank Cheque, draft, or registered letter. The new volume begins with November. December is the Great Christmas Number.

THE NERVE TO KICK.

M. QUAD TELLS OF THE BENEFITS OF MAKING COMPLAINT.

Driving Out the Railroad Hog—Gratitude of a Hotel Keeper—Taking Down an Extortionate Hack Driver—The Man Who Forgot—Cleaning an Alley.

I have met the railroad hog a great many times. I never meet him without making a kick. He is growing scarcer every day, and I sometimes flatter myself that I have contributed to drive him out. When I left Toledo for Cincinnati, the other day, the train was crowded and people were standing up in every coach. In my car was a man occupying two seats. He had a bad looking head on him, and he cared so little for our rights that he did not look up from his book. There were five of us standing up, and I said to the group:

"Gentlemen, there are three seats for which we have paid. Let us take possession."

"He'll kick and raise a row?"

"But we'll kick and raise a bigger one."

"Yes, but what's the use of quarreling with a hog?"

"It is just such men as you who have made him a hog. You have allowed him to impose on you until he has come to think he owns the railroad."

Not one of the four would move. I went to the other end of the car, where three women were crushed into one seat, picked up a 12-year-old boy near by, and walked up to the hog and asked:

"Have you paid for four seats here?"

"That's my business!" he promptly replied.

"And mine and the public's."

I cleared the seat of his baggage, seated the woman and boy, and then crowded in beside the hog. He made an awful row, but it was useless. He was left with what he had paid for, and we got what our tickets called for. Let every passenger kick on the railroad hog and he must go.

A GRATEFUL LANDLORD.

One day last spring there were ten of us at a hotel table in Nashville. The soup was scorched and no one could eat it. Not a potato brought to us was done. The milk for the coffee had turned. I invited the others to go to the office with me and kick. They were drummers, every one, but not one would go. When people speak of drummers as kickers they are way off. They will put up with more and do less complaining than any class of men on earth. In the present case one of them spoke for all when he said:

"Yes, things are bad and ought to be righted, but we are here only for a meal and it won't pay us to kick."

I went out alone. The landlord was in the office and I asked:

"How long since you were in the dining room?"

"A week, I guess."

"You don't oversee the meals?"

"No."

"Well, please go to the head table and taste the milk, examine the potatoes and smell of the soup."

He departed at once. When he returned he was hopping mad. The head waiter was called out and dressed down, the head cook got nicely peeled, and the landlord shook my hand and said:

"That kick of yours will benefit this house $5,000. I had no idea things were running thus."

The natural inference with him was that as long as no one kicked everything must be going all right and everybody satisfied. A thousand men had no doubt gone away mad and injured his house.

The fare from the foot of Market street, Philadelphia, to the Bingham house by coupe is $1. That is the figure established by ordinance, and is very liberal. When a coupe sat me down at the hotel a month ago the driver demanded $3. I kicked. He talked in a loud voice in order to gather a crowd and make me feel ashamed, but I refused to come down. He dropped to twelve shillings, but it was no go. He threatened personal violence, and I had him arrested. In fining him $4 his honor gave him a lecture he will never forget, and then turned to me and said:

"You deserve a medal for kicking. In this fellow's case, at least, you will have prevented him from swindling others. Had you allowed him to swindle you he would have been on the alert to make other victims."

THE MAN WHO FORGOT.

Coming out of Philadelphia by night, a passenger came to me and said he would take it as a great favor if I would exchange my lower berth for his upper, he having his wife along.

"When did you secure your berth?" I asked.

"This noon."

"And to be sure of mine I had to secure it two days ago."

"Yes, but you see I forgot."

"Forgot!" A man who knew that he was to go at a certain date, and that he must take a sleeper, forget? I cannot exchange with you."

I know he thought me boorish, but had I exchanged he would have trusted to luck next time, thinking to meet some good hearted fellow and perhaps have got no berth at all. My refusal angered him, but it made him realize future responsibility.

The city ordinance says no horse shall be left unhitched on the street. I am careful to observe that ordinance, no matter what the bother. Another is not. His unhitched rig walks into mine and takes a wheel off. I demand pay, and he is astonished that he should be held liable for what he calls an "accident." He calls me all sorts of hard names, but from this on he will hitch his horse securely.

The ordinance specifies that alleys shall be kept clean. I go to trouble and expense to live up to that ordinance. My neighbor dumps his garbage into the alley and I notify the sanitary police, and he is fined. It is a great shock to him that he can't break the ordinance at will and offend the nostrils of a whole neighborhood. He calls me a crank and a mean man, never dreaming that all the trouble came from his own selfishness and disregard of law and right.—M. Quad in Detroit Free Press.

Popularity of Society Specialists.

Society, which is always ready to divert its dullness with any fad, however puerile or inconsequential, last winter developed a veritable novelty in the person of a buxom and comely widow, who possessed in an eminent degree a gift that does not commonly fall to or receive cultivation by her sex. For a whole season Mrs. Shaw's abilities as a whistler were the talk of the five o'clock teas. Wherever you went you were greeted by the melodious piping of this substantial nightingale, who really did whistle very tunefully, and who contrived, somehow, to not look ridiculous when she puckered her lips and faced her audience. At the end of the season Mrs. Shaw took a benefit, and went to London to whistle her way into the good graces of the nobility and gentry. The result is that she comes back to us graduated into a full fledged siffleuse, and with the Bow Bells guinea stamp of merit to recommend her for further social encouragement.

During her absence a new star in the drawing room firmament had arisen in the person of a young woman whose talent for that humorous distortion of the features known to the English as "mugging" is said to be only surpassed by that of Marshall P. Wilder himself. This fair artist, with a table, a couple of screens and a reflecting lamp or two, makes up for all manner of familiar and unfamiliar people, and as she artfully caricatures some of the odd men and women in society and its immediate outskirts, it can be readily understood that her performance is not without interest. There will be more money spent than ever this season in the direction of these society specialists, who are getting to be as popular here as they are in England—possibly because they are popular in England. What with readers and reciters, performers and pianists, fiddlers, face makers, whistlers and what not else, there ought to be variety enough to render the average luncheon or tea almost bearable to the person of average intelligence.—Alfred Trumble in Pittsburg Bulletin.

Making Boats from Tents.

A Russian sergeant of the Semonowsky regiment has invented a method for the rapid construction of boats from tents. Upon experiment, in thirty minutes, under the designer's direction, a detachment of men chosen by haphazard, improvised several handy boats with the aid of green wood from a neighboring grove. Each boat readily supported four to six fully equipped soldiers.—New York Sun.

Weighing a Big Cat.

An account of the late Margaret Veley's attempt at weighing a cat is a new story by her biographer. "Thomas Claudius, a cat of imperial size and pride, weighed one violent scrimmage, one scratch (I had nearly), one scale kicked out of its place and clattering in the silence of the night, one tempestuous departure through the doorway."—Chicago Herald.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings healt and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

"It is simply the ideal young people's magazine, and holds the first place."—BOSTON JOURNAL.
ST. NICHOLAS FOR '89.
An All-Around-the-World Year.
THIS world-renowned magazine "for young people and their elders" is to have a great programme for the new volume beginning with November, 1888. The editor, Mrs Mary Mapes Dodge, calls it 'an all-around-the-world year." Of course the bulk of the contents, as heretofore, will relate to American subjects; but young America is always glad to learn what goes on in the world outside, and these stories and descriptive papers are not of the dry geographical order, and they will be strikingly illustrated. We have space here for only a few prominent announcements.
America.
"Little Saint Elizabeth," by Mrs. Burnett, author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy"; "The Routine of the Republic, how the Government is carried on"; "College Athletics"; "Amateur Photography"; "Boys and the National Guard"; "The Girls' Crusade"; Indian Stories, School Stories, etc. "The Bells of St. Anne," a serial about Canada. South American stories—"A Railroad in the Clouds"; "Indians of the Amazon," by Mrs. Frank R. Stockton, etc.
Europe.
Life in Norway, by H. H. Boyesen; "Holland and the Dutch," by Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge; "The Queen's Navy," by Lieut. F. H. Smith, R. N.; "the Winchester School"; "English Railway Trains"; "Ferdinand de Lesseps"; German, Italian (art) and Russian papers, etc., etc.
Asia.
Yan Phou Lee writes of "Boys and Girls in China," and there is a description of "Some of John Chinaman's Inventions." Mrs. Holman Hunt describes "Home Life in the East"; papers on Siam, Japan and other countries.
Africa.
"The White Pasha," by Noah Brooks, a sketch of Henry M. Stanley; How an American Family lived in Egypt"; "Sir Lister Bey Dromios" a story of the siege of Alexandria.
Australia.
A series of interesting articles imparting much novel and amusing information concerning the history, the animal and plant life, etc., of a wonderful land.
The Arctic Regions and the Sea.
"How we made the Farthest North," by Gen A. W Greely, of the Greely Expedition; "A Dash with Dogs for Life or Death," by Lieut. Schwatka; "A Modern Middy"; "A Submarine Ramble," etc., etc.
Subscription price, $3.00 a year; 25 cents a number. Subscriptions are received by booksellers and newsdealers everywhere, or by the publishers. Remit by P. O money-order, Bank Cheque, draft, or registered letter. The new volume begins with November. December is the Great Christmas Number.

Turnbull's Column.

This Column Tells What is Doing at Turnbull's.

THOSE FURS we mentioned a few days ago are going out very fast, and that is just what we want, as they are not in our usual line of trade and we do not expect to have any more like them. Those who have bought have got bargains and those who have come in time for what we have left will also. We have since secured a range of caps and can now offer you Astrachan Caps at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50, and Black and Gray Persian Lamb at $2.00, 2.50 and 3.00. Who ever heard of caps at such prices?

Our Ready-made Clothing keeps coming in and going out so quickly it is a sure sign that the quality and price are right. As this is only one branch of our business we can afford to sell closer than those who keep clothing only and it is often whispered over the counter that we have the best and cheapest clothing in town. This week we have opened out a fresh lot of boys' Tweed Suits and Overcoats. Call and see them.

In our Dress Making Department we are introducing all the new fall fashions. Those wishing to have a dress stylishly made and neatly and well put together should remember this department. We are now very busy, but it take an immense business to satisfy us. We have just opened out some New York Novelties, goods that are entirely new here, such as Black and Colored Girdles and fancy sets in Silver and Gold, Mixed Blue and Gold, Brown and Gold, and Brown and Silver, and every one knows our dress cloths are always right in style and price. See our German Costumes, the colors are just perfect. We are showing about twenty different styles of Ladies' and Misses' Mantles and Ulsters. Our long German tailor-made Coats are remarkably cheap.

In these days of keen competition you hear enough of cheap Flannels and Underclothing, but you never saw the man yet who will give a better flannel for 15c. or 20c than we will. All other lines just as cheap. Our 25c. and 50c. Shirts are Startlers. Every one wanting Underclothing should see them, and if you want better goods we have heaps of them.

When you are in town call at Turnbull's. We carry a Big Stock and have Big Bargains for you in every department.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 23 1888.

CANADA AND AUSTRALIA.

AN IMPORTANT CONFERENCE IN LONDON YESTERDAY.

The Pacific Cable Scheme—The Parnell Commission—The Land Purchase Bill Passes Its Second Reading.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—A conference of influential Australians and Canadians was held to-day. Sir Donald Smith of Montreal presided.

The question of laying a cable from Vancouver to Australia, to touch at Hawaii, Fanning Island, Samoa, Fiji and New Zealand, was discussed and approved, and it was voted to urge the Imperial Government to support the project.

It was said that the tariff between England and Australia by this route would be four shillings per word.

The Land Purchase Bill.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The debate on the Land Purchase Bill was resumed in the House of Commons to-night by Mr. Parnell. He declared emphatically that he approved the bill, but he believed that it was so designed that under the present circumstances it would be impossible to put it into effective operation. He had always held that the creation of a peasant proprietary was the only means of solving the land question. His own bill simply asked that church tenants be allowed to acquire land by paying the church commission, annually for 49 years, a rent equal to four per cent. on the capitalized value of the holdings. That would have created no risk to the Imperial exchequer. The Conservatives opposed the proposal, but the time would come when they would find it needful to go further. The Irish party were always ready and eager to assist in a settlement of the land question. It was a calumny to say that anyone off the Irish members tried to make political capital out of the question or opposed the bill because it would make the government of Ireland easier. [Cheers.] On the contrary their opposition to the bill was due to the knowledge that it would cause a loss to the exchequer without effecting its ostensible object.

The Government had not taken up the land question with a view to helping tenants but at the solicitation of landlords who seeing that they could not any longer maintain their position wanted to dispose of their property at inflated prices. ["Hear, Hear!"]. The bill did not contain provisions enabling the state when supplying money to decide what tenancies it would be desirable to purchase in the public interest. The Government left the landlords to decide. Congested and rackrented estates would not be touched under the bill. The only way to make the landlords of congested estates agree to accept the value of their property was to empower the commission to purchase at such a price as would really represent the landlord's interests. Arrears ought to be considered along with rent reduction, otherwise the land purchase arrangements were futile. He would not like to predict that tenants might repudiate bargains made under the measure on the ground that advantage had been taken of their necessities, but the bill would not assist that large and permanent settlement that was desirable. Any bargain with the farmers ought to have a basis that would put repudiation out of the question ["Hear! Hear!"]

The measure showed an entire absence of consideration for the national sentiment. The present system of government trampled upon this national feeling. If the Government meant to attempt a large scheme of land purchase it was essential to establish in Ireland representative authority to act as a buffer between the tenants and the state. The tenants would have their 86 and may be 103 members of Parliament. [Parnellite cheers]. Government would be as much dependent as now upon the Irish vote. No sane government of self-respecting character would tolerate the sending of tax collectors around the cottages with an army and a crowbar brigade to enforce payments. If the national sentiment was conciliated there would be nothing to fear from the influence upon the hot youth of the country of all the Fenian propagators from New York to San Francisco. It was those who exercised coercion that fomented disaffection far more than Ross. ["Hear!" Hear!"] This was not merely an agrarian question, it was knit up with national aspirations. If the Government meant well to tenants by the bill he implored them to insert suitable provisions dealing with arrears, the tenants' greatest difficulty. That done, he could cordially appreciate the measure and the legislature would reap its reward in the conciliation of the people. (Cheers.)

Lord Randolph Churchill said that the assertion that the bills was introduced to enable landlords to sell at inflated prices would not bear examination. The Parnellites knew that inflation did not exist in Ireland but very much the reverse. Regarding the national sentiment, he appealed to Mr. Parnell to say what room there was for romance in dealing with a matter of fact, advance and repayment of money. ["Hear! hear!"] Had Mr. Parnell any alternative bill? Would he support the principles of Mr. Gladstone's bill of 1886? [Mr. Parnell here gave a negative shake of his head.] Then, what other scheme?

Mr. Parnell: "I would accept the bill if the disadvantages connected with it were modified by dealing with arrears."
